HER BIRTHDAY GIFT.

By Croy Allison.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

The rarely used doorbell rang out an unexpected rusty summons, and Mrs. Jordan, engaged in putting the breakfast biscuits into the oven, tilted the pan in her excitement until the carefully cut forms slid down to one end of the pan, an avalanche of dough.

"Marietta, go answer that bell." She thought Marietta had not noticed the episode of the biscuits, and she would not for worlds have the girl think there was a vulnerable spot to her stoicism or that she owned to curiosity. "If it's a woman, don't let her in, for there ain't a woman round here that hasn't sense enough to know better'n to call before breakfast."

Marietta, without waiting for the end of the monologue, had opened the door.

"Here's a package for you," said the man from the station, grinning and pointing to the small boy on the doorstep, "he's labeled to Mrs. Jordan."

The girl stared at the small figure in astonishment. "I'm Ned and I'm a birthday present to grandma and I'm hungry," he said, with no recognition of the need of pauses or punctuation, raising very blue eyes to meet hers earnestly.

"I guess he'll have to come in," said the girl in bewilderment. "I don't know anything about him, but maybe Aunt Ann does."

Mrs. Jordan, waiting in the kitchen door, gave a gasp of terror when she saw the small face under the leather sailor cap. "Bobbie!" she whispered faintly.

"No; I'm not named Bobbie. I'm Neddie, grandma." The small hands clung around her waist. "Papa said you would love me and be awfully glad to see me."

She sat down by the kitchen table and took the child in her lap. It was

"YOU DO WANT ME FOR YOUR LITTLE BOY, DON'T YOU?"

he first time she had ever been called grandmother, and she had never known here was a child.

When Robert Jordan went to the city six years before to study bookkeeping and during the first year married one of the chorus girls belonging to the "Froth and Foam Extravaganza," his mother's Methodist principles had refused to acknowledge that she any longer had a son. His letters, unanswered, finally stopped altogether. There had been no word from him, direct or indirect, until this small boy, with the eyes and mouth of her own little Bobbie, called her grandmother.

"I never saw you before at all," he said, softly patting her cheeks with the cold little hands from which he had removed the mittens, "but papa said you would love me dearly and that every time you made cookies you would make me a large cake shaped like a doggie, with currants for its eyes. Will you, grandmother, please?"

Mrs. Jordan trembled from head to foot at the vision of another little boy of long ago watching her put the currants in for eyes. She could fancy his childish voice saying, "Mind, muvver, don't make him cross eyed."

"Where is your papa?" she asked, unbuttoning the child's overcoat mechanically.

"Papa's gone away. He said he was going to stay with mamma and that I was to be your little boy. He sent you a birthday letter in my overcoat pocket. You do want me for your little boy, don't you?"

His childish mouth quivered apprehensively at her continued silence.

She left the letter unopened while she hugged him suddenly to her breast.

"Yes; I want you for my little boy. I have wanted a little boy for years and years—so terribly long," she said, crushing the words against his short, curly hair.

"Marietta, take the child upstairs and wash his face and hands before breakfast. He's all covered with train dust," she said, suddenly becoming conscious that the young girl had been standing silent in the kitchen door.

Left alone, she looked at the letter long and silently. The years rolled back—she seemed to feel with all the intensity of her young motherhood. She realized that the letter must tell her that her son was dead, yet the child, her child, seemed miraculously restored to her.

Bringing her glasses from a corner of the dining room mantel, she opened the letter.

"I shall not live to see your birthday, mother, but little Ned will be with you, and you can't help loving him. His mother has been dead a year. The doctor says he will see that the boy gets to you safely. And, mother, if you will only love him and forget these last few years"—

The woman leaned her head on the table, and deep sobs convulsed her.

Marietta, coming downstairs with an immaculate little boy by the hand, saw through the front window some one who caused her to run hastily to the door.

"Come to the steps a minute, John," she called softly. "I was afraid I wouldn't get the chance to see you today. I've determined to say 'Yes,' even if Aunt Ann doesn't give her consent. She seems to have a horror of people getting married. It's getting unbearable. I wanted her to say I might marry you, but I'll do it, anyway."

John Terry's strong hand closed on hers convulsively.

"Will you wear a veil and carry a big bouquet?" eagerly asked the child, overlooked by them both.

The man laughed good naturedly.

"Hello, youngster, where did you come from? Yes, she can have the veil and bouquet, and maybe there will be a long train that you can walk behind and carry just like the picture of the princess and her little page. But who on earth are you, and when did you strike this town?"

"I'm Ned Jordan, and my papa's name is Robert Jordan, and I've come to stay with grandma, and I hope you are well," the child answered, with a polite timidity that caused him to rush through his explanations and wind up for lack of breath.

Terry gazed at the girl meaningly.

"So? The old lady has relented at last, has she?"

"I don't think it's that," the girl answered softly. "I think Cousin Robert is—dead. She seemed wonderfully affected and more gentle than I have ever known her."

"Marietta!" Mrs. Jordan's voice called from the dining room. "Is that John Terry? Tell him to come in and have breakfast with us. It's awfully lucky to have a man caller on your birthday. I'm forty-nine years young," she added, with a laugh that held a sob. "And I'm going to start in the fifties right. You might as well let John come on in. I'll bet he'll spend most of the year with you anyhow."

Terry, laughing, took the girl's arm and led her to the dining room.

"She's going to be married, and I'm going to carry her train for her, grandma," said the child excitedly.

"All right, Bobbie; come, sit in this chair by grandma, and let those people that are so much in love with each other sit by each other."

The child climbed into the chair and looked at her reproachfully. "I should think if I was your own little boy you wouldn't forget my name," he said.

"Yes, Bobbie, dear—I mean Neddie," she said, "bow your head now while John asks a blessing on my birthday gift."

Holland's Source of Wealth.

When it comes to coffee, sugar, indigo, spices and tobacco all the nations of the world have to take off their hats to the little kingdom of Holland," said Mr. Karl Van Valkenberg of Amsterdam.

"Once in every two weeks the Netherlands company sells more coffee than all the rest of the world's markets combined. This fortunate situation comes about through the ownership of our island colonies. Sumatra, which is almost thirty times as large as Holland, sends its tobacco crop to the home government. Java, tremendously larger, is also ours, and to it we are indebted for our coffee. Borneo, which would make a dozen of us, is our source of coal supply, and from the islands of Bianca and Billiton we get vast quantities of tin. So you see that Holland's riches come largely from her insular possessions. Amsterdam and Antwerp cut the diamonds of the world."—Baltimore American.

Easily Grown Lilies.

Few people understand how easily lilies may be grown in abundance. The madonna or candidum lily is as hardy as a plum tree, multiplies rapidly and gives great stalks of superb flowers in July—fragraut beyond words to express. Plant them under your grape trellises or in your gooseberry rows. If a bulb gets injured in cultivation, there will be enough left. I have had 900 blossoms in a small bed about ten feet in diameter. You can grow the Japanese longiflorums just as easily and in the same way, only you must plant them much deeper, about six inches, and you must not plant them in manure. Our native meadow lilies can be grown in the same way or even in sod if it is moist. Bury them ten inches deep. The auratum and Easter lilies require very deep planting, and I cannot promise that they will give you good results.—E. P. Powell in Suburban Life.

A Temperance Tattoo.

Kim Kyong Syop is a big, strapping fellow, energetic in body and zealous in spirit, who is engaged in selling the Scriptures in Korea.

Five years ago he was worshiping evil spirits, says a missionary who sends home the story to the British and Foreign Bible society. For three years he sacrificed a cow to them each year. When Kim became a Christian he cleared out of his house and premises twenty-seven "devils' nests" made of paper and old rags.

On the ball of each thumb Kim has a black spot, and the missionary asked him if they were tattooed.

"Yes," said Kim. "I did that when I vowed to give up strong drink, so that if ever again I raised a glass of liquor to my mouth in either hand I should see that spot and remember my vow."—London Quiver.

REINDEER GO SLOWLY

THAT IS DR. GRENFELL'S EXPERIENCE WITH HIS.

Caught In Newfoundland Storm—First Attempt to Harness Newly-Imported Animals — Famous Physician Tells of Attempt to Drive the Deer — Men Had to Break Road For Them.

Just how true are those old schoolbook stories of the Laplander flying over the snowy slopes of Lapland behind his speedy reindeer is a question which would seem to require an answer after anyone reads what Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell writes on the subject of the first journey in Newfoundland of the reindeer which are to be used in the Labrador mission. Dr. Grenfell has been experimenting on the importation of these animals into Newfoundland, and the Grenfell Association brought over a small shipload not many months ago

The doctor writes as follows: "The new herd of reindeer from Lapland had now been with us nearly three weeks. Under ordinary circumstances we should have expected them to be in good condition by this time. Unluckily, a heavy fall of freezing rain had made a bad glitter, or ice crust, over the ground, and had largely hidden the whereabouts of the moss.

"We told the Lapps to have three stags ready for a certain morning at their camp, that we would drive out with our luggage with our dogs, and so possibly cover sixty miles in the one day, as we had been told that the deer had done that distance before. On the day set there was a storm blowing, and it was impossible to face it on the real dog path, so we decided to travel along the foot of the hills and follow a lead of lakes and brooks, steering northwest till we should strike the cut path. According to the Lapp, it was necessary for him to walk ahead of the deer and guide them, as there was no road.

"Things went very well for three or four miles. When, however, we had for a mile or more been traveling along a small brook through thick trees we lost all signs of the deer for so long that we walked back to find them. We found them floundering along somewhat painfully. The little brook bore us on our snowshoes very successfully, but the snow bridges which kept it from freezing below would every now and again give way beneath the deer, and they were advancing in jumps and occasionally lying down for a spell whenever they fell through. Their pathetic faces when only their heads were above the snow made us pity them. It was with no little joy we at length emerged once again on a barren land with lakes, which led us to a high ridge overlooking the direction in which we wished to go. We should soon, we thought, be on the hard road, sitting behind our deer, galloping on our way. But alas! 'there's many a slip 'twixt cup and lip.' The distance to the road that appeared so short was all rolling land, covered with low trees and bushes known as 'tuckamores.' The snow was over their tops, but the crust would bear neither man nor beast.

"At length, however, by careful piloting, we reached a sudden drop into a nook, and found a fair chance of getting out. Having now a hard road to travel, with fresh light snow over it, we expected to sit on and gallop, like Santa Claus in the pictures. But, alas, for mere human expectation! Nothing would induce the deer to exceed the original walking pace.

"After proceeding about two hundred yards like a funeral procession, we decided it must be due to the exhaustion consequent on our long previous exertions

The writer then tells how a settlement was finally reached, where the animals were tethered for the night and the men found food and rest.

In the morning the party set out again. "After the deer had been well fed," continues the writer, "we each took a deer and a pulka, leaving the Lapp to follow with the third in any way he liked. The last we saw of him, he was still walking ahead of his deer, while we were alternately sitting on and running with ours.

"We waited for him, however, on the last hills; but we had learned many things by that time.

"First, it was obvious that the deer must either go faster and understand better or be of no use except as draught beasts, for log hauling, etc. Secondly, it was apparent our deer were never broken to driving fast at all. They would stop and eat ice, and never once exceed a slow amble, except when suddenly frightened by one's jumping off and running after them. Then they generally jumped out of the path altogether, or turned round and went the wrong way. Thirdly, they showed no capacity, like dogs, for finding the path while running, frequently wandering off it, though that might have been our driving. They frequently ran right into a pulka, instead of stepping around or over it, and we were inclined to think this stupidity. Fourthly, the pulkas are exceedingly heavy and clumsy. They overran the deer coming down hills, because the deer would, for no apparent reason, suddenly stop—probable because frightened at the pace, and untrained. On these occasions, man and pulka and baggage and deer got all mixed up

"Since writing the above we have made a good deal of progress. We find two abreast go very well, driving our large sleighs on good paths. We have had some difficulty from deer breaking their tether ropes and wandering back to the herd. They seem to smell that out, even if it is ten miles away. One little stag we have just caught again after a fortnight adrift; he is fat and in good condition. The best time made is six miles in thirty-five minutes over hilly country. That rate would amply satisfy us. One deer chewed through his trace and escaped; as we thought this might be for the salt in it, we have since tarred and paraffined the ropes. We have our three stabled now, and they seem to like it."

AFTER TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers, of Kalamazoo, Mich., relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in early youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, went to Mt. Clemens for baths, but received little benefit. While at Mt. Clemens I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and will continue to do so."

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" ALONE CURED HIM

Clarence J. Placey is a farmer of Ulverton, Que., known as a man of integrity and good judgment. He writes in no uncertain terms of the great benefit he derived from taking "Fruit-a-tives" for a long standing kidney trouble.

Ulverton, Que.

I suffered for many years with kidney trouble, with bad pain in the back and all symptoms of disease of the kidneys. I took every known kidney remedy and kidney pill but nothing gave me relief and I was getting discouraged. I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives" and I did so—and this medicine cured me when every other remedy failed. I used altogether fifteen boxes of "Fruit-a-tives" and from the outset they give me relief and I am now practically well again, no pain in the back, no distress, and all the symptoms of severe kidney disease have entirely left me. I am very thankful to be once more well and I freely make this statement for the sake of others who may suffer as I suffered and to them I say "Try "Fruit-a-tives." 151

MAKE CITIES BEAUTIFUL.

Inexcusable Ugliness Too Often Prevails Says the Khan.

The other day I drove to a big town in Western Ontario, and just before I reached it I passed a beautiful city of the dead. There was hill and vale and ravine, and some landscape artist had been at work, and the effect was delightful. It was a beautiful city, this city of the dead, with its graceful shafts and stately monuments and handsome mausoleums, while in the midst of them stood the little chapel, which looked as if it had been carved out of a single block of grey stone by the chisel of some master sculptor. Flowers were beginning to show here and there, and bouquets plucked by loving fingers—bouquets of hepatica, and narcissus, and tulips—lay on many and many a grave, showing that those who lay beneath, though dead, were not forgotten.

How neat and clean, how tidy, everything was in that city of the dead! And I realized that the whole place was under one wise and intelligent system; that there was one design, one beautiful scheme of form and color. It was evident that everybody was not allowed to plant this or that, or to erect that or this, so that as I passed along, this city of the dead looked like some beautiful dream picture, or an illustration of some poem, some inspiring sermon. It was like a splendid anthem fixed in a lovely landscape.

And then I came to the city of the living. The suburbs affected me like a dreadful discord. Ugly barns, impossible shanties, obscene yards, unthinkable fences, unspeakable gates! And the color scheme was atrocious; all the colors and all the shades of all the colors, not to mention clumsy stables and warehouses and sheds that had never known paint or whitewash. The city improved as one progressed; but not so much. Here and there sat a charming villa in obscene surroundings, and it reminded me of a diamond ring on a dirty finger, or a gem-like church among a lot of barns, like a cameo brooch on a horse blanket.

Where was their Guild of Civic Art? Why should not the city of the living be as ornate, as beautiful, as eye-restful, as the city of the dead?

Because there is no scheme. It is like the old-fashioned graveyard, where everybody owns his own plot and can do as he likes with it, and where there is no master mind or authority over all. There is one of these near almost every village. Too often the rotten old fence is down in places and the cattle and horses stray in and knock over the tombstones. At the least calculation, half of the graves are utterly neglected. Old families have moved away or died off, or, worse still, their descendants are degenerates and don't care

By degrees we are getting over permitting people to be offensive because they care to do so. We strictly forbid them to erect inflammable buildings within certain limits, and we have no compunction about destroying a business which is obnoxious to three-fifths of the people. People object to a half-rotten, dilapidated street car, with the paint knocked off it, stumbling and staggering and creaking past their places of business every half hour in the day. The day is coming when along the great highways will be beauty spots—resting spots. The day is coming when one won't have to go to a big cemetery in order to see what a landscape gardener, an artist, and an architect can do when they put their heads together. Once a great singer sang "All the prospect pleases and only man is vile." The trees are all right—if they are let alone. And the beautiful fields; but our houses are certainly fierce, and our fences for inexcusable ugliness can't be beat outside of a dope fiend's dream.

Let us mend this my masters!

—The Khan.

Canada's Weakness.

Mr. Rudyard Kipling in his final article in The Morning Post says there is no mistaking the spirit of sane realized nationality which fills Canada. There is little danger that it will go astray amongst the boundless wealth and luxury awaiting it. Dealing with the question of defence, he declares the question before Canada is not what she thinks or pays, but what the enemy may think it necessary to make her pay. "When England stumbles the Empire shakes. Canada's weakness is lack of men. England's weakness is excess of voters who propose to live at the expense of the state." Mr. Kipling concludes with an eloquent peroration in favor of inducing the working classes who are alarmed at this state of affairs to emigrate to the Dominion.

THE ROSS RIFLE.

Adverse Report by British Ordnance Experts.

The following are the conclusions arrived at by British experts as to the qualities of the Ross rifle, as contained in a report, which is alleged to have been suppressed at Ottawa:

1. The bolt and body are strongly constructed and serviceable.

2. The lock bolt in this rifle is defective inasmuch as it does not withdraw the cocking from the gear sufficiently.

3. As the primary extraction depends upon the momentum obtained in the first movement of the bolt, the extractor appears to be somewhat weak, being made of sheet material.

4. The magazine is poorly constructed, made of thin sheet steel, depending on the woodwork mainly for its support. The cut-off is simple and cheap, but unsatisfactory.

5. The construction of the back sight is decidedly weak, the leaf being made of thin sheet metal, pressed up to form a rib in imitation of Mausers can slot cut out from the sound. The strength of the lugs for the leaf is very poor. The slide is poorly fitted throughout, and the main object in this sight appears to have been cheapness of construction.

6. The nose cap is weak in construction, but one that could be cheaply made.

7. The sliding trap in the butt plate is not likely to be very durable, as any blow on the plate would fix it.

8. The stocking of the action is very rough and the fitting poor.

Progress of the G. T. P.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway now has a continuous line of between 300 and 400 miles west from Portage la Prairie towards Edmonton, but this fact gives but little satisfaction to the officials of the company. What they want is to have the tracks already laid extended into the heart of the city of Winnipeg, and they won't be happy till they get it.

A freight service is to be inaugurated between Winnipeg and Saskatoon within the next month. This will be limited to settlers' effects and necessary articles of freight, and nothing less than carloads will be carried. The service will be operated under what is termed "construction operation," as the line cannot be regularly opened until the Board of Railway Commissioners has passed upon it.

The Gude Wife's Warning.

An Ottawa correspondent sends a real Bluenose story straight from the Wentworth valley.

An old lady who had resided all her life within speaking distance of the lovely hills in that country, and whose only diversion had been, perhaps, a trip to Truro or Amherst, made up her mind a little while ago to go off to Boston to see her married daughter and her grandchildren. She made the rail journey to Halifax all right, and had no trouble with the sea voyage from Halifax to Boston. But when she got to the "Modern Athens" and discovered the "frivolity" which prevails there she wrote back to the "Old Man," who, it had been arranged, should come and take her home:

"Dear Pa: Don't you dare come down here. It costs you five cents every time you look, and ten cents every time you turn round. You had better stay at home and look after the farm. I will get home somehow, but how, Lord only knows!"

The "Old Man's" curiosity was greatly aroused, but as he didn't have the five and ten—the old lady being the keeper of the purse—he stayed at home.

Would Annex Canada.

Governor Johnson of Minnesota, who is a candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination, spoke at the wholesalers' luncheon in Chicago recently. He said:

"The great problem of the future is the government of America by Americans. In the working out of this problem I believe we must obliterate the imaginary line between the United States of American and the Canadian States of America.

"I can see no reason for the division. I believe that the flag bearing the stars and stripes must finally float from Behring Sea to the Gulf of Mexico. The intellectual energy of the country must be directed to the commercial union of the two countries, if to no other.

"I spoke in Sarnia on the same topic some time ago, and my words were greeted with even greater enthusiasm than you are now showing. If the products of the business men of Detroit went free and unhampered into Canada perhaps the flag would follow into that country."

London's Increasing Traffic.

The problem of how to deal with the ever-increasing London traffic becomes more complex every year. The principal railways have more than doubled their facilities in the last 20 years and in many instances have trebled the size of their principal terminals, but still the traffic increases, bringing in its train perpetual discomfort from overcrowding.

London travels by an immense and complicated system of communications. The ten railways which converge on London from different directions, have 478 miles of rail and 378 stations in the London area alone, and they employ as signalmen, platelayers, etc., 22,000 men, whose wages average $144,000 weekly. To and from the termini of the ten companies run daily 2,125 suburban and 444 other trains. In the working of these there are employed 3,000 locomotives, 27,000 coaches, 6,000 drivers and stokers, and 3,000 guards.

The passenger traffic of the Great Eastern Railway amounts to 250,000 daily, the South Eastern 200,000, and the London, Brighton and South Coast 160,000 every day. The three roads convey every year 41,000,000 workmen passengers.

Trials by Bread and Cheese.

There were many odd ways in ancient times of detecting criminals. Our ancestors had not lived long enough to lose their faith in the gnawings of conscience, and divine interference in earthly justice was superstitiously regarded as a daily occurrence.

No queerer example of this could be found than the ancient mode of trying prisoners by "bread and cheese." The unfortunate offender was led, with a halter round his neck, to the parish church, and there in the presence of all the people the priest put pieces of cheese and rye bread in a patten on the altar. These he blessed, and then the supposed criminal had to eat them dry before the congregation.

If he managed to swallow them easily, he was acquitted, but if he choked he was condemned. Naturally enough scores of innocent folk were thus done to death.

Silver Shipments From Cobalt.

The shipments of silver from Cobalt for the first four months of the current year were nearly double that of the same period for 1907. Fifteen mines shipped 1,317.55 tons in April, 1908. The shipments for April, 1907, only amounted to 535.15 tons. Cobalt shipped nearly three times as much in April, 1908, as it did in April, 1907.

Jan.	Feb.	March.	April	Total.
1,325.80	1,173.80	1,832.79	1,317.53	5,650.01
980.11	903.71	1,027.59	533.15	3,444.56

Increase in tons for first four months 3,205.45.

Canada's Task.

To become the British Empire's economic centre within a generation the country to the north of us must increase in population faster than the United States has ever done. But that is not all. She must have the inland means of communication and the ships to carry her trade to all parts of the world, the construction of which would mean an unprecedented commercial activity, so says The Brooklyn Standard Union.

The Largest of Crystals.

Belief in seeing sights of the other world in a glass ball has led to the polishing of enormous crystals in the orient. The biggest one known to exist is at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

The Black Fox.

The fur of the black fox is used for ornamenting the cloaks of royalty, as it is the only fur to which gold will cling. There are several black fox farms on Prince Edward Island. The skins are sold in London at prices varying from $500 to $1,800 each. The foxes are very wild. They are fed on oats, bread and cooked meat.

COMING ROYAL VISIT.

Prince of Wales Will Be Attended by Brilliant Staff.

Arrangements have been completed for the visit of the Prince of Wales to Quebec in July to attend the tercentenary celebrations and inaugurate the monument on the Plains of Abraham to Wolfe and Montcalm and the men who fought under them for possession of what is now the Dominion of Canada.

This will be the prince's second visit to Canada, the first having been nearly ten years ago, when returning from his world tour he visited all the chief towns and also spent some time fishing and hunting in the Northwest.

This time, however, he will go no farther than Quebec, and his stay will not be extended over a fortnight.

The prince will cross the Atlantic on a fast cruiser, probably the Minoteur, which will be accompanied by another cruiser as an escort. He will leave Portsmouth July 16, and reach Quebec July 22.

The British Atlantic fleet will go over in advance of the Minoteur and her escort to take part in the celebration and give a fitting welcome to the heir to the throne.

His Royal Highness will be accompanied by a brilliant staff, so that none of the pomp and ceremony of the British court will be missing.

Among the staff will be Sir Francis Hopwood, Permanent Under Secretary for the Colonies, who, of all men in England, knows more about the colonies, and upon whom the Canadians at least rely when dealing with the Mother Country.

French and American squadrons also will be at Quebec, and invitations have been sent to France and to all the colonies to send delegations to take part in the celebrations. Australia has accepted, and will be represented by Lord Dudley, the new Governor-General of the Commonwealth.

Brouages, in the Charente Inferieure, the birthplace of the explorer, Champlain, has been asked to send a representative, as also have the families of Gen. Wolfe and Montcalm, L. J. Murray, Guy Carlton and Simon Fraser, who performed deeds of valor in the taking of Quebec.

The prince on landing July 22 will be received by the Governor-General, and will be presented with an address by the Dominion Parliament.

On the 23rd the scene of the landing of Champlain will be re-constituted, and the old navigator shown arriving with a crew in a replica of his ship.

The fetes will then be formally opened by the prince in a speech, to which Sir Wilfrid Laurier will reply.

The program for the following days is:

July 24—Dedication of the battlefield, military and naval review.

July 25—Review of the fleets.

July 26—Thanksgiving day; services in the Roman Catholic and English cathedrals.

July 27—Naval display ashore by 10,000 sailors; representation of the bombardment of Quebec by the British fleet and army under Saunders and Wolfe.

July 29—Prince of Wales leaves Quebec.

EXTENSIVE IRON DEPOSITS.

Discoveries of Prospector In Unsurveyed New Ontario.

Some idea of the great resources of the unsurveyed parts of New Ontario is gained from a recent letter of Mr. Nap. Labrose, a well-known prospector, to The North Bay Despatch. Mr. Labrose has been prospecting in the wilderness north of the Proudfoot base line, about 100 miles west of the Cobalt country. The letter deals chiefly with the mineral wealth of the country, and is intensely interesting.

"Only three miles north of the Proudfoot line, bordering the township of Robert, lie large deposits of magnetic iron," write Mr. Labrose. "This iron has been known to Indians for twenty years. It is situated on the exact iron range which travels from southwest, commencing near Lake Onaping, and extending as far northeast as Lake Temagami, traversing Burwash Lake, where considerable development has already been done.

"The iron in most parts is magnetic, but considerable hematite is also found, including Hutton and Robert townships. In many places north of the Proudfoot line streaks of specular iron outcrop from the bare cliffs of this apparently barren country. No valuable timber except some small black spruce, with here and there a small, crubby white pine. Over the iron range, traveling north, are to be found large tracts of diabase rock, and sometimes diorite. Copper sulphite is a very common thing in veins of white quartz, in diabase or diorite rock. Calcite was not expected in that country; therefore no attention was paid to this white rock, which was supposed to be quartz. Silver, which is closely connected with calcite, suffered the same fate, as placer gold and iron were the only minerals the prospector was looking for. But, notwithstanding this, I located three copper, lead and silver properties 20 miles north of the aforesaid iron property. The wall rock, carrying as high as 56 ounces to the ton, indicates that there is much to be done to unearth the precious treasures that this apparently barren country possesses."

G.T.P. Rails Make Long Journey.

An order of 2,500 tons of steel rails for use on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, from the Prince Rupert end, were recently shipped by a long route. They were made at Pittsburg and shipped to New York, thence across the Atlantic, through the Suez canal and Indian ocean and up the Yellow sea to Kobe, and there laden on the steamer Teucer, thence taken across the Pacific to Vancouver, B.C.

Lord Strathcona's Tribute.

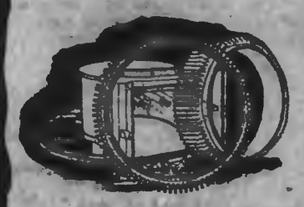
Lord Strathcona's tribute to the late Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman was as follows:

"He was unostentatious, kindhearted and sympathetic, and had a thorough honesty of purpose. His death will be deeply felt throughout the Empire."

Odd Breach of Promise Suit.

Surely the most curious breach of promise suit, on record is the one entered by an Ontario lady against her brother for breaking his promise to marry.

Another 1908 Improvement in "Hecla" Furnaces



The fire pot is the most effective radiating surface in a warm air furnace. That is why every manufacturer seeks to increase that surface by the addition of cast iron flanges, or pins or corrugations. As each of these flanges or pins covers a large part of the primary surface of the fire pot there is a limit to the number of such cast flanges as can be effectively used.

The "Hecla" Steel Ribbed (Patented) Fire Pot is a step far in advance of any other fire pot. Instead of thick and sandy cast iron flanges those in the "Hecla" are steel and are neat and clean. Being uniform they can be set so close together that, where we formerly used 19 cast flanges we now use 97 steel ones without covering any more of the primary surface of the pot.

Steel Ribbed (Patented) Fire Pots provide twice as much effective radiating surface as any other fire pots made, and in consequence radiate far more heat with the same amount of fuel.

In a test extending over two years, Steel Ribbed (Patented) Fire Pots showed a saving of 11% in fuel, over cast flanged pots.

Our Catalogue explains other exclusive "Hecla" features viz: Patent Fused Joints, Individual Grate Bars, etc. 60

A CASE IN POINT.

Why the Postmaster Leaned Toward the Sheriff.

There is a town in northern New Hampshire where the families have intermarried to such an extent that it is difficult for an outsider to make the least criticism on one person without the danger of offending some of his family connections. When an unfortunate visitor commented on this fact to Mr. Corbin, the postmaster, Mr. Corbin nodded violently.

"Bill Harmon, that's our sheriff, complained of that no longer ago than last week," said he.

"You see, it took him more'n a fortnight to arrest Nate Giddings because Nate got wind that he was wanted on a little matter o' selling hard cider, and he went on a round o' visits among his relatives—aunts, nephews-in-law and I don't know what all—and 'twasn't till he'd had his fun and went back home to his wife that Bill could make the arrest without seeming to kind o' butt in, as you might say, and spoil the reunions."

"I should think he would make a queer kind of sheriff," said the visitor, "waiting all that time for sentimental reasons and then arresting a man when he went home just because his poor wife wasn't a relation!"

Mr. Corbin drew himself up and assumed a remote expression.

"That's as you look at it," he said in a chilly tone. "I may be a mite prejudiced in Bill's favor, as he married my son-in-law's youngest sister. Anything that concerns him concerns me, you understand."

CONQUERORS CONQUERED.

The Fate of Alexander, Hannibal, Caesar and Napoleon.

It is a remarkable and instructive fact that the careers of four of the most renowned characters that ever lived closed with violent or mournful deaths.

Alexander, after looking down from the dizzy heights of his ambition upon a conquered world and weeping that there were no more to conquer, died of intoxication in a scene of debauch or, as some suppose, by poison mingled in his wine.

Hannibal, whose name carried terror to the heart of Rome itself, after having crossed the Alps and put to flight the armies of the mistress of the world, was driven from his country and died at last of poison administered by his own hands in a foreign land, unlamented and unwept.

Caesar, the conqueror of 800 cities and his temples bound with chaplets dipped in the blood of a million of his foes, was miserably assassinated by those he considered his nearest friends.

Bonaparte, whose mandate kings and emperors obeyed, after filling the earth with the terror of his name, closed his days in lonely banishment upon a barren rock in the midst of the Atlantic ocean.

Such the four men who may be considered representatives of all whom the world calls great and such their end—intoxication or poison, suicide, murdered by friends, lonely exile.

Pointed With Scripture.

A bachelor rector of a western church was alone in his study when his housekeeper brought him the card of one of his parishioners, a spinster of means and charm.

When the lady was seated on the opposite side of his study table the rector looked at her inquiringly, expecting to hear something concerning parish work, in which she was active. To his surprise an embarrassed silence ensued, during which he vainly sought for something to say.

"Dr. Blank," began the lady at last in faltering tones, "do you think—can you fancy conditions under which a—a woman is—justified in proposing?"

"Why, yes," said the rector, after some deliberation.

"Thou art the man!" said the lady resolutely.

She was right.

A Ready Answer.

The captain of a schooner that trades between New York and Savannah is noted for his wit, and on every occasion that offers he loosens his shafts of humor, to the chagrin and embarrassment of its target. Sooner or later the stinger gets stung, and this chronic pun artist is no exception to the rule.

On one occasion when about two days out from New York he approached a group of sailors who were washing the forward deck, and, singling out a big, rawboned Irishman who was experiencing his first taste of sailor's life, he gravely asked, "Can you steer the mainmast down the forecastle stairs?" Quick as a flash came the reply, "Yis, sor; I can if you will stand below and coil it up."

ROMANCES OF AUSTRALIA.

Discovery of the Rich Coolgardie—Unsuccessful Prospectors' Find.

In the history of gold-digging and gold finding many a romantic and tragic story is to be found. Few of these stories, however, possess more interest than that of how the famous Coolgardie mines, in Western Australia, were discovered in 1892—mines which have since yielded millions of pounds worth of gold. Luck played a great part in the discovery, but it was the reward of perseverance.

In April, 1892, two Victorian miners named Bayley and Ford struck out for the northeast of Australia, but after traversing 250 miles they lost their horses and had to turn back. Equipped with fresh horses, they started again on what proved to be a long, tedious and futile journey, for once more they were forced to turn back—this time for want of water. The third attempt won them fame and fortune.

First they found that which to them was more precious than gold—namely, water. They found a natural well, known to the scattered tribes of that far away country as "Coolgardie." Pitching their camp beside the well they turned their horses out to feed and started prospecting the country around. Ford picked up a half ounce nugget and before night they had gathered in over twenty ounces of gold. Two or three weeks more surface prospecting was rewarded with over two hundred ounces. By this time food supplies had given out, so keeping their own counsel concerning their discoveries, they returned to civilization, laid in a fresh stock of provisions and hastened back to their El Dorado.

Within a few days of their return they happened upon the reef that made Coolgardie. Beginning with a "slug" weighing 50 ounces, they picked out from a cap of that reef in a few hours upward of 500 ounces of gold. Bayley, carrying 554 ounces of gold, journeyed back to the nearest mining town, exhibited his find to the mining warden, put in a claim for a lease of the land on which this marvelous discovery had been made and hurried off to the field again with a party that numbered 150 men, besides coaches and horses and all the paraphernalia of prospecting and camping. In their wake in course of time came gold-seekers in hundreds and thousands. From Bayley and Ford's mine there was taken in the first nine years of its history 134,000 ounces of gold, valued at $2,650,000.

Almost as sensational as Coolgardie were the Londonderry and Wealth of Nations "finds." The Londonderry was discovered by a party of unsuccessful prospectors on their way back to Coolgardie. Two of them picked up some rich gold bearing specimens. After a brief search the outcrop of a reef was exposed, from which in the course of a few days they took out from 4,000 to 5,000 ounces of gold. From the cap of the Wealth of Nations reef gold to the value of $1,000,000 was secured in a few days.

FOOTPADS IN LONDON.

Gangs of Robbers Attack Residents In Western Suburbs.

Hooliganism has spread from Shoreditch, Limehouse, and Whitechapel to the quieter suburbs of London.

A band of ruffians are infesting Wimbledon Common and are making it unsafe for respectable people. At nightfall, and sometimes even in the light of day, women, children and occasionally men have been molested and robbed.

Cases have been reported in which people have been suddenly attacked by loafers, who are, in fact, nothing but footpads, and, taken by surprise, in sheer self-defence paid tribute to these hooligans of the road. A resident in the Upper Richmond road, Putney, was unexpectedly faced by a couple of ruffians who demanded money. While he was remonstrating with them some one flicked him over the eyes with what he describes as a "light twig." He turned quickly around, but was then seized by the other two, while the man behind pinned his arms to his side. His pockets were rifled and when they had taken all he had his assailants fled.

A gang of hooligans, most of them from the notorious neighborhood of Gerrattlane, haunt the Common for the express purpose of assailing and robbing helpless people or of blackmailing others.

A police official assured a newspaper man recently that, though the Common is well patrolled, it will not be secure until the general public unites with the police in suppressing this latest development of hooliganism.

"I think," he said, "that the culprits are some of Mr. Galdstone's released convicts, and they ought to be back in prison. Meanwhile a bold front and a stout ash-stick will prove a wholesome corrective."

Rough on the Doctor.

One night as a Canadian doctor who lives in eastern Ontario was driving into a village he saw a chap, a little the worse for liquor, amusing a crowd of spectators with the antics of his trick dog. The doctor watched him awhile and said: "Sandy, how do you manage to train your dog? I can't teach mine to do anything."

Sandy, with that simple look in his eyes, said, "Well, you see, doc, you have to know more'n the dog or you can't learn him nothing."

An Ideal Husband.

The Man—And you really think you have an ideal husband, don't you? The Matron—I know I have. Why, he treats me as if he were a candidate for office and I was a voter.

About the poorest kind of a reputation is the kind a man gets for being sarcastic.

Whites of Eggs.

If a child needs nourishment, one of the simplest forms in which it can be taken is by the raw whites of eggs. These are nutritious and easily digested. The white is broken into a jar with what milk is desired and the two shaken thoroughly together. A pinch of salt may be added before drinking if preferred.

A NEW ALASKAN TRIBE.

High Type of Red Men Discovered by Archaeologist.

A new tribe of aborigines hitherto unknown to science is reported by Dr. George B. Gordon, curator of the department of American archaeology of the University of Pennsylvania, who recently returned from a trip into the Alaskan wilderness.

The tribe was discovered 800 miles from the mouth of the Koskokwim river, and Dr. Gordon has named them Kuskwagamutes. Instead of wearing furs the people dress in the skins of birds, making clothing from the breast feathers of loons. The explorer brought home a collection of their clothing and utensils.

When the collection arrives at Philadelphia he and other ethnologists will try to determine whether the tribe came from Asia or whether it migrated from Lower California. Dr. Gordon believes the race has been gradually driven by Athabascan Indians and Eskimos to its present quarters, which is a natural fortress. They represent perhaps the most ancient dwellers of Alaska, who made their way there from Asia. They are monogamists, and no such thing as vice is known among them. They are permitted by their priests to have more than one wife, but never do so. The men are tall and strong physically and the women graceful and good looking. Dr. Gordon says there are only 400 of them left.

The members of the tribe show a higher mentality and development than any of the known inhabitants of the far north. They alone of all the tribes north of Mexico and southern California possess the art of pottery making and are believed to be the last of the undiscovered races on this continent to be brought to light. Dr. Gordon heard of them when he was in Alaska in 1905 and determined to find them, although it necessitated his penetrating an unknown Alaskan wilderness.

Dr. Gordon lived for several months with these strange people of the Koskokwim to study their language, religion and habits. He found them remarkably free from crime and with no set laws, being governed by priests who are patriarchs. The exploring expedition was fitted out by Mrs. Charles C. Harrison of Philadelphia and set out last spring.

As a companion for the journey he engaged a guide. They took steamer as far as Fairbanks, the largest mining camp in the Alaskan interior. At Fairbanks they built a canoe and made their way in it to the mouth of the Kantishua river, a hitherto uncharted and unnamed river emptying into the Tanana fifty miles below Fairbanks.

Although this river is as large as the Delaware at Philadelphia the geography of the northwest is on so tremendous a scale, says Dr. Gordon, that hitherto it has been ignored as an insignificant creek. Dr. Gordon resolved to go up it as far as possible and trust fortune as to his finding a portage from its head to the Koskokwim.

He camped one night near the mouth of this stream in an Indian village. One of the young men declared that he had crossed the divide between the two streams and volunteered to make a map of the portage for the doctor's guidance. Accordingly the youth drew on birch bark a map of a route up the Kantishua to its source, the hitherto unknown lake, Mintuana, within fifty miles of Mount McKinley, the tallest peak in North America, and across by easy portage of ten miles to the Koskokwim, whose course he outlined for a considerable distance both ways.

The canoe was forced up the river, which ran so swiftly that it was necessary constantly to resort to the tump line—a line attached to the forehead of one of the travelers, who walks in the stream and pulls the canoe while the other steers. After 250 miles of this heart-breaking work Dr. Gordon came to Lake Mintuana, nestling at the foot of Mount McKinley, and found the "easy" ten mile portage. It took him six days to traverse the ten miles. Once across, for two solid months the party paddled down the Koskokwim, making geographical and ethnographic researches as they went.

On his return journey from the mouth of the Koskokwim river to Nome, a distance of over 100 miles, Dr. Gordon nearly died of starvation and thirst. He was compelled to hazard the stormy trip in a twenty-foot trading skiff. On the first day out a storm arose, and the skiff was driven across Behring sea to the Siberian coast. For twenty days the doctor and his companions were buffeted by the sea in the neighborhood of Behring strait. On short rations from the first, after the first five days there was nothing to eat but hardtack biscuit. Near the end of the voyage water gave out, and only the sighting of Siberia, where the water cask was filled from a stream, saved the party from the horrors of thirst. At the time of the landing in Siberia the provisions ran out altogether, and as the coast was absolutely barren of life the party was compelled to put to sea again and face the return journey to America absolutely without provisions. Fortunately a fresh easterly breeze took them to Nome in three days, during which they had nothing to eat.

Canal Traffic at Soo.

The report of the lake commerce through the Sault Ste. Marie canals in 1907, United States and Canadian, just issued by the War Department, shows that the traffic through the Canadian canal was 27 per cent. of the total freight and 48 per cent. of the passengers, the amounts being 15,585,368 tons of freight and 29,883 passengers.

Knew His Boy.

Benson—Look here, that boy of yours threw a stone at me just now and barely missed me!

Proud Father—You say he missed you?

Benson (angrily)—You heard what I said, didn't you?

Proud Father—Then it couldn't have been my boy.—Tit-Bits.

A Cruel Thought.

He—If you refuse me I shall go out and hang myself to the lamp-post in front of your house.

She—Now, George, you know father said he wouldn't have you hanging around here.

THE CRITICS.

These Observers Were Wholly Personal In Their Judgments.

"The critical faculty is rare," said an editor and critic at a Philadelphia art club. "It must be impersonal. But most of us incline to be wholly personal in our criticism. The fact was brought home to me at one of the exhibitions at the Academy of Fine Arts.

"Passing from picture to picture, I overheard many criticisms. Thus a lady in a rich gown said:

"'What a superb portrait of a young girl! It should certainly win the Carnegie prize. It is easy to see that the gown was made by Paquin.'

"A fat, red nosed man in a fur lined overcoat halted before a picture entitled 'The Luncheon.'

"'This still life,' he exclaimed, 'is the most admirable I have ever seen. Terrapin, canvasback, champagne, lobster, even Perigord pie—ah, what a genius.'

"'In this historical painting,' I heard an antiquary say, 'the costumes are accurate in every detail. The painter is a second Raphael.'

"'That horse there,' said a young polo player, 'is exactly like my Podasokus. It's the best picture in the exhibition.'

"An athlete uttered a cry of delight before a daub called 'The Gladiator.'

"'What shoulders! What arms!' he said. 'I bet anything the jury gives this painting the highest award.'

"And half the throng, departing, said: "The picture in the last room is the best. No, we didn't see it—couldn't get to it, in fact—but it draws far and away the biggest crowd.'"

Male Superstitions.

According to tradition, if you have a mole on your chin you may expect to be wealthy, while if you have it under your arm it promises you wealth and honor as well. A mole on the ankle indicates courage. On the left temple a mole indicates that you will find friends among the great ones of the earth, but if it be placed on the right temple it warns you of coming distress. A mole on a man's knee means that he may expect to marry a rich woman. A mole on the neck promises wealth. If you have a mole on your nose you are going to be a great traveler. A mole on the throat indicates health and wealth.

An Interruption.

"But, Ostend, I told you not to lose your temper. Did you start to count 100?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"What happened?"

"When I got to 29, that Dugan kid knocked me over."—Lippincott's Maga-

IN A BREATH THERE'S REST

Breathe Hyomei And Be Cured of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma.

Nature has a remedy for catarrh, epidemic colds and bronchitis that is far better than dosing the stomach with medicine and drugs.

It is the healing oils and balsams of Hyomei, which medicate the air you breathe, reaching the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing all catarrhal germs and restoring health to the mucous membrane.

Hyomei acts like a curative internal air bath, and has the same healing and antiseptic effect as the air where the Pine and Eucalyptic forests give off their fragrant and healing balsams.

Breathe healing Hyomei and see how quickly you will get relief from catarrh and head colds. If it does not help you there will not be a penny's expense, as Wm. Madill agrees to refund the money. The complete Hyomei outfit costs only $1.00.

UNFASHIONABLE DOGS.

Airedales Are Out and French Bulls a Thing of the Past

What becomes of the dogs that go out of style? In the sporting papers one reads that Airedales are out and French bulls a thing of the past, but that Aberdeens and the amazing looking Chinese dogs are decidedly in favor. It is suggestive of all sorts of terrible things that we know nothing about. Think of a poor batch of pug puppies coming into the world with the full expectation of being liked and then overbearing quite by chance that their particular breed was so out of date as to be noticeable. The poor little creatures would shrink around corners, trying to conceal their most striking earmarks, and if any one came upon them unexpectedly they would make a desperate effort to look like greyhounds. Picture their agonized attempts to uncurl their tails before any one looked and scorned them utterly. Of course we know that all properly behaved pugs turned into china long ago and never appear anywhere except on back country mantelpieces, but a young pug—an absolute newcomer, as it were—cannot be expected to be up on these things.

Then, too, we rather wonder what people do when they find their pets no longer fashionable. They cannot very well have them made over. Perhaps they conceal them somewhere and let them die in peace. Ah, what honest rage the old dogs must feel at such capricious taste! Things were not like this in the good old days is what they mutter among themselves, and it is not a very high opinion they can have of us. Nature probably knew what she was about when she made us unable to comprehend their language. It occurs to one rather forcibly—we cannot understand any of the animal tongues. Was this so that our self love might not be hurt? Did nature think it unsafe to have beginners at the game too early discouraged? Perhaps; anyway we'd best not ask the creatures' opinion until we have found a very good defense for ourselves.

QUICKLY MADE BAG.

A Simple Prize For Impromptu Card Party.

Often the hostess who is about to give an impromptu card party of one or two tables is at a loss for a simple prize. Perhaps it is too late to get to the store or she may not wish to go to the expense of buying anything.

Most women, however, have odd strips of fancy ribbon in the house from which they can quickly and easily turn out a dainty and novel little work bag.

Take two pieces of six or eight inch ribbon twenty inches long and place them back to back. Directly in the center put some layers of wool or a narrow muslin case filled with bran to make a pincushion two inches wide and as long as the width of the ribbon.

Put this cushion between the two pieces of ribbon and stitch it in place on the machine with a row of stitching on each side.

This will leave two strips on each end which are overcasted on both edges into two pockets.

Turn in the ends of each pocket into a narrow casing, run baby ribbon through it, and you have a unique and useful bag that can easily be slipped into a bag if running over to a neighbor's for a chat and a bit of sewing.

On the underside of the pincushion it might be well to add a needle book of flannel and a stiffened sheath of silk covered pasteboard, into which the scissors can be slipped. The scissors should be fastened to the bag by a long narrow ribbon so they do not get lost.

HOUSEHOLD TIME SAVER.

If the meat chopper is used for making pickles and all the ingredients run through it a saving of time and labor results.

Having a few hooks by the stove on which to hang pot lids, a pan lifter and one or two long handled spoons will save the cooks many steps.

Plainly printed labels on covered boxes in the kitchen or pantry will prevent the lifting of many lids by a forgetful woman; also will prevent serious mistakes in seasoning if one does not believe in tasting.

If the soap for wash day is melted to a jelly in a stewpan it will save much time. The usual plan is to cut up the soap into the boiler with the clothes in it. Cut the soap into small pieces, cover with water and boil. When thoroughly dissolved put the soap into the boiler with cold water and put in your pieces of clothes as fast as they are rubbed. By the time the boiler is full of clothes the water will be boiling without your having to wait for it.

Orange Anti-fat.

Oranges are the latest cure advanced for obesity. The diet is:

On waking the juice of one fruit is drunk, and this should be cold. A second meal taken about an hour later than the first should be composed of the juice of two oranges and must be sipped slowly. If one is ravenously hungry there is no objection to taking at the same time one piece of very thin and crusty toast. No butter is permitted.

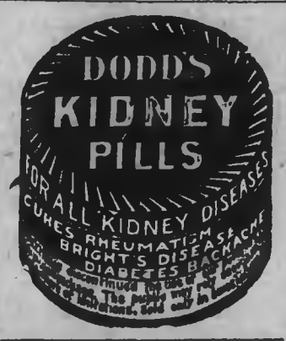
At intervals of two hours throughout the day juice may be sipped. One orange at a time is usually enough, for it is not to be expected that quarts of the fruit would allay real pangs of hunger. Another bit of toast is permissible during the afternoon, but if flesh reduction is the object of the cure the toast must be crusty and dry.

At dinner one is supposed to eat a hearty meal. No sweets or greasy dishes should be indulged in.

As Dark as Egypt.

"Are you able to make any plants grow in your apartment?"

"Yes—a night blooming cereus in the kitchen."



OLDEST NAVAL STOKER.

Tells of the Days of Paddle Wheel Warships.

A hale old man living at Enfield, William Atkins by name, claims to be England's oldest naval stoker, for, as he told a press representative, he was sweating in the stokehold of a British warship before the Crimean war.

Mr. Atkins, who was 73 years old last December, remembers the transition from sail to steam in the navy, and can recall the time when Britain's men-of-war were all paddle-wheelers.

"I am a native of Brighton," he said, "and a bricklayer by trade. I happened to be in Portsmouth in the beginning of 1854, and walking along the Hard I dropped into a public-house. Two gentlemen were there who I knew by their uniform were naval officers. They asked me if I would like to join the navy. I said I would like to be a stoker. They asked my trade—I suppose to know if I was used to rough work—and when I told them I had worked at Brighton in an engine shop, they at once listed me. They were the engineer and Capt. Wilcox, the commander of the Dragon, which was my first ship. Men are not taken on in that way nowadays, but it was quite common in 1854."

The Dragon was a vessel of 560 h.p., and carried six guns, two 96-pounders and four 84-pounders. Her complement was about 250 officers and men, and the stokers were 32 in number. The stokehold in those days was a very different place to the stokehold of a modern man-of-war.

"Our provisions," said Mr. Atkins, "were weevily biscuits and salt meat. The salt meat had been in casks for many years; so long, in fact, that we used to say it had been on board some of the ships at the battle of Trafalgar, and it might have been, judging by its appearance and taste. It was so bad that often we had to leave it, and then we just lived on the weevily biscuits. We had no distilled water in those days, like the ships carry now. The water we drank was like dirty coffee. But I was young and healthy and strong, and managed all right."

Although Mr. Atkin's stay in the navy was short—owing to severe dysentery contracted while on foreign service—he had some exciting experiences. One of his most cherished possessions is a little book, "Our Sailors," written by W. H. Kingston, author of "Peter the Whaler" and other fine sea stories. In it there is a description of the attack on Fort Gustavasvarm, Hango Bay, on May 22, 1854, by the Dragon and Magicienne. That was Mr. Atkin's first taste of warfare. He was on the Dragon, which, Kingston, says, "had one man killed and one or two wounded, and was considerably damaged.

That was in the second China war, and before it was over Mr. Atkins had a closed touch of the realities of warfare. He was in the Naval Brigade during the attack on Canton, and also with the brigade which was sent to destroy a town in the White Cloud Mountains, and successfully accomplished its mission.

His discharge paper is marked "Very good" by five different commanding officers. He is still a hearty, active man, capable of putting in a good day's work, but this he finds it difficult to get on account of his age.

Garden Time.

Garden time has come again!
Ground is getting soft and mellow,
And the yearning for the soil
Takes possession of a fellow.
Now he wants to spade and rake,
Tucking seeds in little furrows,
Playing havoc with the home
Of the earthworm as he burrows.

Garden time has come again!
Last year's failures all forgotten,
Happily he works away
Though his last year's crop was rotten.

Soon the tender leaves will start,
Soon the garden will be growing,
Then the weeds will get ahead—
Reason, insufficient hoeing!

Didn't Make a Business of It.

Oftentimes teachers have occasion to feel that the bread which they have cast upon the waters comes back in new and unexpected forms. It was in a history class that the following extraordinary bit of reasoning was developed:

Teacher—What can you tell about the religion of the colonists who settled in Virginia?

Boy—They didn't pay much attention to religion. They had slaves to do their hard work.—Woman's Home Companion.

Emeralds.

Step cut is the form in which emeralds are almost always cut. It is nearly square or oblong and generally has a large table with straight facets around it parallel to the edges of the stone.

Philosophy.

In the philosophy of some men heaven is nothing but a place where everybody will be able to buy cheap and sell high.—Chicago Record-Herald.

NEW THOUGHTS.

Nervous Cases Often Benefited by Change of Occupation.

Those who have attacks of nervousness are very often those who have gone through some great mental shock or anxiety or have received a blow through the loss of loved ones or of fortune or those who have got into a rut in life where one day followed another with a monotony of existence, says a physician in an exchange during the course of a very helpful article upon nervousness.

For all such and many other cases change is necessary. If it is not possible to go away that other scenes may cause other thoughts and actions and bring variety, then be inventive in doing the things of your daily life in a different manner. Take new walks and exercises, think new thoughts, study some books or read those which will give you an entirely different view of life. The nervous have a tendency to avoid new acquaintances, but often the coming in contact with other people will bring a change which is helpful and diverting. Avoid taking medicine suggested by sympathizing friends. The nervous are apt to dose themselves with unreasoning zeal, taking first one thing and then another. Take hot baths at night to arouse the sluggish circulation and brisk rubs with a flesh brush or a rough towel to make the skin of the body red. Quicken circulation by walks and other exercise. If your life is very humdrum and you see little chance of varying it, use your imagination, as do the children in their play, and make a change in that way. An ancient hymn writer declares that the sweeping of a room can be done to the glory of God.

HOUSEWIFE'S TRAY.

Made From Grocer's Box, Fitted With Nest of Drawers.

People who live in a small flat where the kitchen and larder are on a diminutive scale soon find that every square inch of space is valuable and must be economized.

It is important under such circumstances that extreme order and neatness should be preserved; otherwise things soon get into a state of muddle, and where the mistress of the home is a busy woman and has to do the greater part of the work herself she can be saved much time and trouble by keeping everything in a place of its own ready to hand. For this purpose many little items of carpentry may be contrived which will prove very acceptable to her.

The housekeeper's tray illustrated is a good idea. It stands on a shelf or under the dresser with all the ingredients necessary for the making of a light pudding. The tray is made from a grocer's box simply fitted with a nest of divisions and a couple of metal handles. The wood is stained mahogany, and each division holds a jar labeled with its contents—sugar, rice, etc. The housewife has only to lift the tray on to the table and take what she requires, and she will have her pudding mixed and popped into the oven without any loss of time in searching for one or other of the condiments, which, if kept anywhere and anyhow, have a strange knack of getting mislaid.

Advice to Plain Women.

The first thing a plain woman must do is to give her figure careful attention. A stylish or even well rounded body will nine times out of ten carry one through far better than a pretty face.

The individual with a poor figure, who is short waisted, flat chested, may be improved by suitably corseting. Petticoats must fit such a figure perfectly.

A plain woman must avoid everything in dress that will by comparison only emphasize her lack of beauty. Smart looking she may be, but all fripperies must be set aside.

The fit of her gown is most important. She should buy material of a good quality and employ the best dressmaker she can afford. Two or three well made dresses will be better than a dozen mediocre ones.

Youthful effects are likewise fatal.

Above all, the hair should be modish and becoming. Neatness, too, is an important factor. Her collars must be immaculate.

She must take special care of her complexion, never failing to take her nightly facial rubbing in hot soapy water, rinsing in several warm waters and then applying a good skin food.

A Hint Worth Knowing.

If one is ever seized with a sudden hemorrhage from the lungs the first thing to be done before the doctor gets there is to take dry salt as quickly as possible. This often prevents further bleeding entirely. A teaspoonful of salt is not too much to take, provided it is done gradually, so as not to choke.

The patient should, moreover, keep perfectly quiet and free from excitement and stay in a room not too hot.

For the Far North.

V. Stefanson, the young ethnologist, who spent the winter of 1906-07 with the Mikkelsen-Liffigwell Polar party, and his companion, Capt. R. M. Anderson, of the department of mammalogy and ornithology of the American Museum of Natural History, have started for the Far North by way of the Mackenzie river, and hope to get as far east as Copper Mine river.

BONUSED IMMIGRANTS.

Some Illuminative Facts Respecting the System.

W. D. Scott, Superintendent of Immigration, has given some illuminative evidence before the House of Commons agricultural committee in respect to bonused immigrants, and the medical and civil examination made of each immigrant by the Department's inspector. He said that the system of paying bonuses to booking agents on specified classes of immigrants gave the Department control over these agents which could not otherwise be obtained. If an agent was found to be sending an undesirable class of immigrants he was cut off the list by the Department. Some time ago when a booking agent in England persisted in advertising for two thousand artisans claimed to be needed in Canada, despite the remonstrances of the Department, representations were made to the British authorities and his agency license was cancelled.

Respecting the alleged drift of bonused immigrants to the United States Mr. Scott declared that the leakage of immigrants to the United States was only about 10,000 per year, and comparatively few of these had bonuses paid by Canada. Last year the number of immigrants who went to the United States via Canada was 15,667. Of these bonuses had been applied for on 1,212. By comparing the United States lists of entries with the Canadian lists the Department was able to ascertain the names of all bonused immigrants who did not remain in Canada, and bonuses were accordingly withheld from booking agents. In respect to the care taken to insure that bonuses were paid only on the right classes of immigrants, Mr. Scott noted that in every case where a booking agent applied for a bonus a sworn certificate, signed by the immigrant, giving full particulars as to his age, occupation, medical fitness, destination, intended occupation in Canada, etc., had to be forwarded by the booking agent to the Department in Canada. Then, on the immigrant's arrival in this country a similar set of questions was put to him by inspectors at the port of landing. If the immigrant's answers in both cases were found on comparison to be the same the bonus was allowed the booking agent. Thus adequate precautions were taken by the Department against any improper payment of bonuses. In case of all immigrants on whom bonus applications had been made by booking agents, a special civil examination was required on landing, and the result of this examination was to disallow a fairly large proportion of the applications.

CAIRO UNIVERSITY.

One of the Most Interesting Places of Learning In the World.

It may not occur to many visitors in Cairo that that city is a university town. Such, however, it is and as such it is known and regarded with respect all over the kingdoms and principalities of Islam. Millions of Moslems who have never heard of the Khedive are interested in Cairo, not because it is a great and wealthy city, the capital of Egypt, but because it is the seat of the University of El-Azhar. For that establishment is the chief seminary of the whole Mohammedan world, the gathering ground for all those who would make themselves proficient in the learning of Islam, the training school for the priests and doctors of the faith.

In the mere number of its students and its professors, writes Sidney Low in The London Standard, it surpasses all academics and colleges, not merely of the east but of the west also. Oxford and Cambridge, Berlin, Harvard, are small compared to it. There are over 10,000 boys and men, of all ages from 12 to 60, receiving instruction at El-Azhar, and the teachers, the sheiks, ulemas and tutors are counted by hundreds. Like the European universities in the middle ages, its constituency is cosmopolitan rather than national; it draws its pupils from every part of the three continents in which orthodox Musselmans dwell.

Even as students used to come from Scandinavia and Sicily to Paris and Gottingen, so they now flock to El-Azhar from all the lands of the Prophet. There are Syrians, Moors, Algerians, Turks, Tunisians, Bosnians from the Adriatic, and Mongols from near the Pacific, Afghans, Punjabis, Abyssinians and Somalis, blue-eyed Circassians and ebon-hued negroes. It is a microcosm of Mohammedanism; a museum of those various populations, white, brown, yellow and black, who make up the 200,000,000 of the children of Islam. There is no place like it anywhere, and nothing in Cairo so well worth seeing.

Wonders of Bee Life.

If the mother bee of a colony is getting past her work and she cannot be sent off with a swarm in the usual way the bees will supersede her. They will deliberately put her to death and raise another queen to take her place. This state execution of the old worn-out queens is one of the most curious and pathetic things in or out of bee life. One probe with a sting would suffice in the matter, but the honey-bee is a great stickler for the proprieties. The royal victim must be allowed to meet her fate in the royal way, and she is killed by caresses, tight locked in the joint embrace of the executioners until suffocation brings about the victim's death.

Heat Wave In Melbourne.

The recent heat wave in Melbourne broke all records even for that sultry city, the temperature in the shade reaching 112. The previous record was 105, and that had not been beaten for over 30 years. About a hundred deaths resulted from heat apoplexy, and for a time the people of Melbourne were almost panic-stricken by the dread of some frightful visitation. The heat led to some curious happenings. In a church up-country punkahs were installed, and during the service kept continually going. At another country church the clergyman who had been conducting the morning service 30 miles distant officiated in the afternoon in cricketing flannels, as he had no other clothes in place of the perspiration-drenched garments in which he had ridden in the broiling sun. Melbourne has also become concerned about the damage to the Town Hall organ caused by the heat.

BUTCHER'S ANIMALS SHOT

Entire Village Narrowly Escaped Destruction In Flames — Hotel and Other Buildings Burned Out—Key of Fire Alarm Box Missing—Could Not Call For Assistance —No Arrests Yet Made.

Cardinal, July 8.—A violent outbreak of vandalism and incendiarism, on Monday, in this village, has resulted in the destruction of property worth $30,000 and the death of several head of cattle. Intense excitement reigns, the entire village narrowly escaped annihilation by the flames. The authors of the crime have not been found.

Upon his arrival at his slaughter house, B. McKnight, a butcher, found several head of cattle dead. The animals had been shot with a rifle.

He at once drove back into town to his meat market and found it in flames. The fire spread rapidly and in a very short time the building was a mass of ruins.

McKnight ran to ring in an alarm, only to find the alarm box broken open and the key missing.

In the meantime the fire had spread to Dillon's Hotel, three storeys, and several barns and outbuildings. The firemen were brought out and every effort was made to check the flames. After a stiff fight they were subdued, but not before they had done immense damage, for a large area in the village. The buildings were for the most part wooden structures and burned like tinder.

No motive for the outrage can be guessed and the police are utterly at a loss to place the blame.

Excursion Train Derailed.

Three hundred people were aboard, including the Chatham bowling and cricket teams, which were going to St. Thomas. No one was hurt.

Arrested For Murder.

Windsor, July 8.—John, alias "Doc," McPheeters, wanted at Cleveland on a charge of murder, was arrested here yesterday. McPheeters was sitting in the City Hotel when caught. He admitted shooting the man in a mix-up, but did not know his victim was dead.

THE GOVERNMENT BILLS READY

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Announces Measures to Be Brought Down.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM BILL

Hudson Bay Railway Will Be Built Without Delay, Says Hon. Mr. Graham—Conservative Leader Alarmed at the Cost—Check on Partisan Officials at Elections—Transportation of Grain.

Ottawa, July 8.—During the course of a discussion in the House yesterday on the estimates of the Minister of Railways and Canals, Hon. G. P. Graham stated that the Hudson Bay Railway would be built without delay. Mr. Bennett shouted "when" and the Minister reiterated emphatically "without delay." Later there was a discussion of considerable interest as to the transportation of grain from the west via Canadian waterways, and the measures being taken to insure that not only Canadian but a considerable quantity of American grain will be carried by those channels. The civil service bill was read a third time and passed. One of the amendments provides a further check on officials who are foolish enough to be actively partisan in elections.

In the evening on an item of $30,000,000 for surveys and construction of the National Transcontinental Railway, or the Government section of the Grand Trunk Pacific, Mr. Borden gave his estimate of the cost to the country. As far as possible, he said, this had been based on data contained in returns and answers given by the Government. His estimate aggregated, including the cash expenditure by the Government and the bond guarantee on the company's section, $249,353,823, and he divided it as follows: Cash expenditure. Government section, Moncton to Winnipeg, properly known as the National Transcontinental, 1,803 miles, at $63,427 per mile, as estimated by the commissioners, $124,403,219; seven years' interest at 3 per cent., not compounded, for the period during which the G.T.P. is to use this section without paying rent, $26,124,678; interest at three per cent. for three additional years during which the rent is not collectible unless the earnings are sufficient, $11,196,290; estimated cost of the Quebec bridge, $14,422,236, interest to be paid by the Government without recourse on the mountain section, $9,639,400; cost of terminals at Moncton, Quebec and Winnipeg, including shops east of Winnipeg, $15,470,000. Total cash expenditure, $191,305,923; guarantee on bond issue on mountain section of G.T.P., $46,140,000; guarantee on bond issue on prairie section, $11,908,000. Grand aggregate, $249,353,823. In closing his statement Mr. Borden said this was a staggering amount in view of present conditions. Without taking into consideration any other of the calls upon the treasury of the country, the debt of Canada, now about $265,000,000, would be $450,000,000 by the time the road was completed.

Hon. Geo. P. Graham, having, on the request of Mr. Foster, fixed today for his own promised statement on this matter, made no reply to Mr. Borden.

Yesterday morning the Premier made his promised statement as to business yet to be introduced at this session of Parliament. It includes:

1. Supplementary estimates.
2. Railway subsidies.
3. A bill regarding Quebec bridge.
4. Legislation necessitated by the creation of new courts in Northern Ontario.
5. Legislation for the extension of the boundaries of Manitoba, Quebec, and Ontario.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that these were all ready for presentation to the House, with the exception of the railway subsidies bill. It was intimated that the Government would proceed to-day with the resolution which pledges the financial support of the Dominion toward the All-Red line project.

That Anti-Tobacco Bill.

Ottawa, July 8.—In the Senate Hon. R. W. Scott moved the second reading of the bill to restrain the use of tobacco by young persons. Senator G. W Ross approved of the principle, but to make it effective there should be provision similar to that in the Prince Edward Island Liquor Act, that interdicted persons should be compelled to tell where they purchased tobacco. Hon. Mr. Scott approved.

Senator Ellis said there was an element of humor in many of the laws of Parliament made to stop persons from doing things which lawmakers permitted themselves, and referred with regret to the increasing use of tobacco in the precincts of Parliament.

The bill was given a second reading.

The Quebec Bridge.

Ottawa, July 8.—Hon. Mr. Fielding, Minister of Finance, was yesterday a witness before the special committee of the Commons, which is conducting the enquiry as to the affairs of the Quebec Bridge Co.

Under examination by Mr. Monk, he said it was quite plain that under existing circumstances some new financial arrangement for the construction of the bridge would be absolutely necessary.

Mr. Fielding said, quite emphatically, that the Government would have to pay the entire amount of the guaranteed bond issue.

Mr. Fielding said that the reconstruction of the bridge was a necessity.

Heat Kills Twenty-One.

New York, July 8.—Twenty-one persons succumbed to the heat yesterday, a total of 31 deaths from that cause within the last 35 hours. Scores were prostrated.

Montreal, July 8.—Hon. P. H. Roy, president of the Banque St. Jean, was yesterday committed for trial to the Court of King's Bench.

BALLOON DIPPED IN THE LAKE

Men in Canadian Balloon Had Thrilling Experience.

SUBMERGED TO THEIR WAISTS

Exciting Adventure Over Lake Michigan—Suddenly Dropped One Thousand Feet—Aeronauts Had Close Call — Threw All Their Ballast Overboard — Would Not Attempt to Cross Lake Huron.

Chicago, July 8.—More thrilling adventures with the wind and water were added Monday to the stories of the international balloonists in their race flight from Chicago to establish a new long-distance record. The Canadian balloon King Edward, with John Bennett as pilot, and Gerald Gergory, 15 years old, as the other member of the crew, dropped into Lake Michigan twice.

Like the Ville de Dieppe, the French balloon, which nearly cost the lives of Capt. A. E. Mueller and Geo. Schoenech when ten miles out from the Illinois shore, the King Edward sank into the water and submerged the two occupants to their shoulders. They were nearly in mid-lake when the balloon took its first dip.

"We had just lost sight of the sky rockets and Fourth of July display in Chicago, when we suddenly felt ourselves sinking into the lake with a fearful drop," said Gregory, who returned yesterday.

"We immediately tossed over nearly all our ballast, but we could not stop the car from striking the water. This caused a great splash, and we were in the lake up to our waists.

"We managed to go up again after being in the water about five or ten minutes. Then we ascended to a height of about 1,000 feet, and went along at a fast pace, but suddenly we felt ourselves dropping again. This time the descent was more rapid, and as we had thrown all except two bags of the ballast overboard we were at a loss what to do. We shot down into the lake as if we were diving into it. The water came into the basket and we were force to climb into the netting above. We tossed out everything we had, including provisions, and rose again. When we finally did go up we went fast. We went up 6,000 feet in six minutes.

"We had no sand, and when we came in sight of Lake Huron, early in the morning, we decided not to risk the chance of crossing it, as the distance was 150 miles. So we landed near Port Huron, Mich."

Barge Sunk at Sarnia.

Sarnia, July 8.—About four o'clock yesterday morning the steam barge McIntosh of the Gilchrist line, bound down, ran aground on the middle ground just opposite the Pere Marquette docks here.

As her stern swung down stream the large steel barge Hanna, bound up, struck her just forward of the engine room, letting the water in the main hold. There was just time to get her to shoal water opposite the chain works, where she sank.

The Hanna is not much damaged, and is now lying at Port Huron, just opposite to where the collision took place.

Foresaw Bridge Disaster.

Kingston, July 8.—H. A. Calvin of the Calvin Shipbuilding and Transportation Co., states that eighteen months ago Capt. Thomas Donnelly of the Donnelly Wrecking Co. of this city, in a letter to an official of the first mentioned company, made the statement that there was a weakness in the canal bank near the place where the present break occurred, and that if something was not done an accident would sooner or later occur.

Friends Ask Pardon.

Kingston, July 8.—An effort will be made to secure the release of Samuel Williams, the Russian Jew sentenced in North Middlesex to three years in the penitentiary for the theft of two bags of coal. Relatives of the prisoner in Toronto intend petitioning the Minister of Justice. The prisoner has only been in the country a short time, and cannot speak a word of English. His sentence is looked upon as most severe.

Engine Derailed; Thousands Walked.

Montreal, July 8.—Far out the tracks from Bonaventure Station yesterday morning was a line of perspiring pedestrians making their way towards the city alongside a line of passenger trains stretching as far as one could see up the line.

The cause of the trouble was the derailing of a switching engine at a point where it practically deranged the whole work of the station.

MURDERED IN MONTREAL.

Chinese Barber Held as Witness, But Murderer Is Still at Liberty.

Montreal, July 8.—Shortly after noon yesterday a white man was murdered in the heart of Chinatown. The murderer escaped, and a companion, who may be able to give some information, has also disappeared.

None of the three men complicated in the shooting are known to the police or to the Chinaman, Tong Kee, in whose premises, at 111 West Laghauchetier street, the tragedy occurred. Tong Kee is held at No. 5 police station as a witness, and Detectives Leclaire and Pigeon are working on the case.

Tong Kee—at least that is the name on the police blotter—keeps a barber shop on the first floor of 111 West Laghauchetier street, between Channeville and St. Urbain streets.

Indians Up In Arms.

Weletka, Okla., July 8.—Three wagon loads of rifles were taken into the camp of the Snake Indians Monday and several hundred of the 2,000 Indians congregated there are heavily armed.

The Indians are making a new demand, according to reports, one distinctly different from anything heretofore broached. The demand is that the Snakes be given their allotment of certificates, which they have heretofore steadfastly refused.

It is said that Crazy Snake issued an ultimatum Monday in which he said that unless the certificates were delivered the Indians would make a charge upon the whites in their initial step, driving all the while people from the former Indian Nation.

Hottest In Seven Years.

Montreal, July 8.—Not since July 16, 1901, has the thermometer at McGill University, Montreal, stood so high as it did yesterday when it registered 92 degrees. Eight years ago it registered 93 degrees.

Gaming House Raided.

Hamilton, July 8.—Chief Smith and a large posse of police raided a house near the Steel Plant last evening and arrested John Yuzar on the charge of keeping a gaming house.

NO FEES IN FORM 1

Change That Will Allow a Greater Number of Children to Make a Beginning in the Collegiate

A NEW SCHEDULE ISSUED

Old Schedule
Form I.....	$5 00
Form II.....	10 00
Form III...	10 00
Form IV.....	10 00
New Schedule
Form I.....	Free
Form II.....	5 00
Form III...	8 00
Form IV.....	10 00

From the above table of the tuition fees at the Collegiate Institute, it may be seen that pupils will be able to go through the first form without having to pay any fees. Formerly, first year pupils had to pay five dollars, but the Board of Education believes that a greater number of pupils who have passed their Entrance examinations would take up the studies of the Collegiat einstitute if there were no charge. The Supervision Committee has, therefore, been working towards this end, and at the Board meeting last night the chairman, Mr. John Crane, presented the following report, covering the new schedule

Chairman and Members,

Peterborough Board of Education.

Gentlemen,—

Your Supervision Committee begs to report and recommend as follows:

That the schedule of fees paid by pupils of the Collegiate Institute now in operation be rescinded and that the following schedule be adopted on September 1 next:

Pupils of first form, free.

Pupils of second form, $5 per year, payable, $3 September 1, $1.50 January 1, and $1 April 1.

Pupils of third form, $8, payable, $3; $2.50 and $2.50.

Pupils of fourth form, $10, payable, $4, $3 and $3.

All fees must be paid within two weeks from due dates.

That no action be taken at present in connection with the admission of county pupils.

The report was adopted on motion of Mr. Crane and Dr. Burnham.

Discussion

Dr. Morrison considered that the county pupils should be dealt with at once. Last year there were 275 pupils in the old building, whereas the new one, he said, would accommodate 400, and if the fees for the county pupils were reduced there would be a largely increased attendance.

Mr. Hill explained that the pupils had not been fairly treated in the past, as the rooms were overcrowded and the teachers could not successfully teach to 50 or 60 pupils, as to 30 or 35. It was, therefore, not desired that the building be overcrowded. "The building is too small to begin with," he said.

Mr. Dumble remarked that it was economy when there were enough to fill up the rooms, but it was a loss when special provision had to be made.

No further action was taken.

The firm has also the contract for the plumbing and heating apparatus in a large residence at Stirling. They have just commenced operations on the Armouries here, the plumbing for which they will install.

SCOTCHMAN HAS BEARD TEN FEET, FOUR INCHES LONG; COMING THROUGH PETERBORO

Montreal, July 8.—(Special.)—A figure of considerable note during the past few days at the St. James Hotel in this city was Mr. Alistair Wilkie, a Scotchman, who attracted much attention among the habitues of the establishment by reason of the extreme length of his beard, which was ten feet four inches.

Mr. Wilkie, who moved about very freely during his stay in the city, is said to have refused an offer of $30 per week to play Scottish airs on the bagpipes in Dominion Park. He got an invitation from Orderly-room Sergt. Hunter, who was familiar with his antecedents and achievements on the national instrument of the Scottish Highlands, to go to Hamilton to join the local band of pipers there. He will also likely remain a few days in Peterborough. He will, however, be east again shortly, as he intends accompanying the Kilties to Quebec.

Mr. Wilkie is over fifty years of age and the massive beard which falls over his chin and breast like a cataract on the side of a mountain, is of a reddish grey hue. He seemed proud of the hissute ornament, but was in no way eager to discuss his affairs and prospects.

He was accompanied by Mr. Mowatt, a commercial traveller, during his stay here. Mr. Fred Bouillon, the proprietor of the hotel, thinks he spent some time in Western Canada before coming down to Montreal.

Chief Howard's Programme Of Drill For His New Brigade; What The Men Have To Learn

Men Were Out This Morning for a Ladder Practice—Schedule of Drill in Which the Men Will be Instructed

PRACTICE AND LECTURES

This morning Chief Howard's braves were out for a ladder drill at an early hour, and it will not be long he says, before the men will be accustomed to the handling of the apparatus and will act like old timers. Among the things he has outlined is a course of drills which will be taken up. Some of them consist of lectures, and altogether, the Chief believes he has the ground pretty well covered.

The list of drills is as follows:—

Handling the ladders on the ground.

Raising ladders and mounting the same.

How to stand on a ladder to work therefrom with ease.

Straddling sill of window to raise short ladder.

To swing with ladder from one window to another.

The use of roof ladders.

How to handle a life line.

How to couple and uncouple fire hose quickly.

How to replace a burst length of hose without shutting off the water.

How to lay a line of hose leading into a fire.

The use of Siamese couplings.

How to make connections to engine or hydrant.

The art of knowing how and when to turn on the water.

How to fight two fires at the same time in different districts.

How to enter a burning building.

How to prevent suffocation by gases and smoke.

How to hold a jumping net or life net.

How to carry persons out of a burning building and down a ladder.

How to care for injured persons.

The economical use of chemical fire extinguishers.

The use of signals by day and by night.

How to prepare for the next fire.

FORMER LOCAL MINISTER TO BE HERE JULY 13TH

In response to an invitation from the Programme Committee, the Rev. A. H. Brace, of Cobourg, has promised to give an address at the Orange demonstration in Peterborough on July 13th, when he will bring the Cobourg Orangemen reinforced by the Baltimore and Cold Springs lodges with a brass band with twenty members and a new banner costing $110. The special train will pick up the Port Hope men and the brethren at the intermediate stations.

ROOSTER MOTHERS NINE HEALTHY CHICKENS

New York, July 8.—(Special.)—A bantam rooster which Philip Stackpole, of Riverhead, R. I., set upon some eggs completed his job by hatching them all out. The owner of the rooster, a son of former Judge George F Stackpole, is greatly pleased by the rooster's feat.

Stackpole discovered that the rooster appeared jealous of the hen's ability to "set." Finally the little bird took to a nest, returning repeatedly when shooed off.

"Well, then, set it you want to set," said Stackpole, placing nine tiny eggs under the rooster Only once a day when he sought food and water, did the rooster leave the eggs, and then only for a brief period.

COW STOLEN FROM A DOURO FARMER'S FIELD

Douro, July 8.—(Special.) — On Dominion Day a fat cow was stolen from the farm of Mr. David Leahy and he has since learned nothing of its whereabouts or of the party who secured it. On that date Mr. Leahy attended the T.A.S. picnic down the Otonabee and next morning found that the beast was missing. Coming home that night about midnight he met a man driving a cow towards Peterborough and believes that it was his

CHIEF INSPECTED C. G. E. BUILDINGS WITH MR. PATTERSON

Chief Howard this morning completed an inspection of the Canadian General Electric Company's buildings, which he began on Monday last. He was accompanied by Mr. E. G. Patterson. The chief says that he expects the council to pass a by-law which is in force in larger cities, by which the head of the fire department is given permission to inspect all the public buildings, manufacturing houses, theatres and stores. It even goes further and makes this inspection compulsory once a year. Chief Howard has his first report ready for the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

WEDDING BELLS

THOMPSON—TUCKER

Yesterday evening at five o'clock the marriage was solemnized at St. Andrew's Manse of Mr. Peter Thompson formerly of Inverness, Scotland, to Miss Bertha Tucker, daughter of Mr. Thos. Tucker, Hunter street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. G. Potter, the young couple being unattended. They will reside in the city.

A Little Hiawatha Youth Tumbled From The Punt And Almost Lost His Life

Hiawatha, July 8. — (Special.)— Falling from a punt on Rice Lake in which he was playing, little Cecil Mather, son of Mr. Duncan Mather, almost lost his life a few days ago. He and a companion, Fraser Gray, were out in the boat not far from shore, when he accidentally tumbled out. He sank beneath the surface twice, and it was only the presence of mind of his playmate that saved him. The Gray boy leaned out over the edge and assisted him to get back into the punt again.

THE CHEESE BOARD

President John Riddell Resigns to Become Buyer—Mr. John Coughlin is the New President

FEATURE OF THE MEETING

The feature of the Cheese Board meeting this morning was the surprise presented in the resignation of the president, Mr. John Riddell, who has held that position for a year and a half. His resignation does not mean that he is severing his connection with the Board. He has become a buyer, and this morning took his place among the other purchasers, but did not purchase any cheese.

The new president is Mr. John Coughlin of Hastings, who has previously been the vice president of the Peterborough Cheese Board.

In referring to his resignation, Mr. Riddell says:

"It has been known during the past week that I might become a buyer, and as it would be inconsistent for me to be one of the buyers and president also, I therefore resign my position."

Mr. Riddell thanked all his friends for their support, and stated that he would still be the salesman for Benfort factory, as well as become a buyer on the Board. He will purchase cheese for an Old Country firm.

Mr. Riddell's resignation was accepted on motion of Mr. Jas. Andrews, and the election of the new president was proceeded with. The names of Messrs. John Coughlin, Edward Hawthorne and Wm. Switzer were placed before the meeting. A show of hands was taken, Mr. Switzer securing seven votes, Mr. Hawthorne 11 and Mr. Coughlin 12. The latter was, therefore, duly elected, and took the chair vacated by Mr. Riddell.

The election of a vice president was then taken up, Mr. W. A. Anderson being unanimously elected.

FIVE DOLLARS IN GOLD OFFERED BY DR. GEO. BURNHAM

The scholarship which was offered by Dr. Geo. Burnham some years ago to the boy and girl attending the city schools who obtained the highest marks in passing the entrance examinations, has been changed. Heretofore it consisted of one year's tuition free in the Collegiate Institute. Now the Board of Education has made the first year in the Collegiate free to all city pupils, and the scholarship was thus annulled. However, determined to offer a special inducement to the pupils in trying their examinations, Dr. Burnham has generously made a new offer, which was accepted with thanks by the Board. A five dollar gold piece will be given to the boy and girl securing the highest number of marks in passing the Entrance Examinations. This is in lieu of Dr. Burnham's scholarship.

On motion of Dr. Morrison and Mr. Crane the Board accepted this generous offer, which is characteristic of Dr. Burnham's interest in school affairs.

BOOM BROKE AND LOGS WERE BLOWN OVER THE LAKE

Examiner Special

Lakefield, July 8.—The McDonald Lumber Company is having an unfortunate time with its logs this season. In the severe storm of Saturday night a boom containing one of the company's drives of logs broke near Mr. Wm. Irwin's cottage at Stony Lake and scattered the logs in the various bays adjacent. A boom had to be stretched on Sunday from Mr. Barrie's Island to Grassy Point to keep them from scattering over the lake.

THE LOGS ARRIVE AND WORK STARTS AT LUMBER MILL

Work was resumed at the McDonald Lumber Company's mill on Monday after being closed down for a month awaiting logs. The Company's first drive came down last week and enabled the work to again begin.

CHURCH TENT TO BE READY THIS EVENING

Rev. H M Manning expects to have the large tent up to-night in which the services and meetings will be held. On Friday night there will be a church organization meeting in the tent and there will be choir practice at the home of Mr. Wm. Collins, Romaine street, on Thursday evening.

DEPREDATIONS BY DOGS BRING DEATH TO FARMER'S HERD OF YOUNG CATTLE

Dogged to their death by famished and blood thirsty dogs, eight cattle, the property of Mr. John A. Davidson of Smith, have been killed within the past week or ten days. Speaking to the Examiner to-day, Mr. Davidson stated that the dogs came out from the city and chased the cattle through the woods until the poor beasts became exhausted and died from the heat and fright. No less than eight suffered from this depredation. Two weeks ago, Mr. Davidson had twenty one young cattle pasturing in his woods, and to-day he has thirteen left. The animals killed were all year olds. The others apparently were stronger than their unfortunate mates and withstood the attack.

Choked to Death

Some of the cattle found appeared as if they had been choked to their death by being caught by the throats by the dogs. So far as Mr. Davidson knows, the canines are of the hound and collie breeds. One dog found roaming around in search of blood was shot by a neighbour.

Mr. Davidson has removed the cattle from the woods to an open field, and is constructing a lane from the woods to the barn to allow the cattle to seek safety, if chased.

Mr. Davidson is a well known Smith farmer, residing near Nassa.

James Brennan Thrashed His Wife Who Attempted Suicide by Drowning in Canal

SECOND BATTLING NELSON

Examiner Special

Montreal, July 8. — Margaret Thompson, wife of James Brennan, had a narrow escape this morning from drowning in lock No. 3, of the Lachine Canal, and she was completely exhausted when rescued by Mr. G. Martin, of No. 12 Lusignan street.

It appears that after a prolonged spree, Margaret and her spouse had a quarrel and James came off best. To end her troubles Margaret decided to drown herself in the canal, and had it not been for the prompt arrival of Mr. Martin she would have succeeded.

After having been rescued Margaret was taken in hand by the police of Seigneurs street station, while her husband was conveyed before the Recorder's Court. When passing through the corridor of the city hall Margaret spied her spouse in charge of a policeman, and before any one could stop her she had given him three or four blows on the jaw that would have done credit to Battling Nelson.

Margaret was then brought before Magistrate Lafontaine on the charge of attempted suicide. She was remanded for enquete to the 9th.

WIFE OF ALD. PHELAN PASSES AWAY

Death Was Unexpected Although Ill for Some Time—General Regret Expressed

WAS HIGHLY RESPECTED

The death of Margaret A. Nagle, wife of Ald. Harry Phelan, at 5.40 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon came as a decided shock to the many friends of the family. The late Mrs. Phelan had been ill for some time, but her condition was not looked upon as immediately dangerous.

The deceased was the second daughter of the late Richard Nagle, lumberman, of Ottawa. She was thirty seven years of age, and would have been married twenty years on the 8th of September. Her parents are both dead, but she is survived by her husband and one son, Nagle, aged 14, and two sisters, Mrs. M. J. Brophy and Mrs. H. J. Fries, both of Ottawa.

The late Mrs. Phelan was well known in the city and was highly esteemed for her unassuming modesty of demeanour, which covered many admirable qualities of character.

The funeral will be held to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock from the family residence, Rubidge street, proceeding to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

THE BUCKHORN FACTORY TAKEN OFF CHEESE BOARD

It was decided by a vote at the Cheese Board meeting this morning to take Buckhorn factory off the Board. President Coughlin stated that the Buckhorn factory had made a contract to sell their cheese to a Montreal firm at the highest price paid on the Peterborough Cheese Board, and that the cheese from there was never boarded.

Mr. Kennedy, the salesman, was present and explained the nature of the contract, which he maintained was a perfectly legitimate one. The Buckhorn factory paid its dues and was willing to pay all claims and fees made upon it. His factory had done no underhand work. They had not done as some had, boarded their cheese with the pretence that it was for sale on the Board, and at the same time have them sold before the meeting, and Mr. Kennedy believed that Buckhorn should have the privileges of the Peterborough Board.

The president and Mr. Hawthorne, the secretary, considered that Buckhorn factory was getting the same benefits as others, and yet it did not assist the Board in any way.

A vote was taken, and the majority present decided to have the factory under discussion erased from the Board.

A Thousand Indians And Their Wives In Procession On Streets of Calgary

(Writing from Calgary to her father here, a Peterborough young lady, who is visiting in the West tells of the monster exhibition being held in that city. On one occasion in a procession she states that there were 1,000 Indians with their wives participating, and the sight was one never to be forgotten. It was suited him to get back into the past west with the present, and to illustrate how the once masters of the prairies lived.

The Calgary exhibition is attracting thousands and the city is one of the liviest in which the Peterborough lady has ever been.

STAND PIPE SYSTEM

Board of Education Increases the Fire Fighting Facilities at the New Collegiate Institute

FOR USE IN INCIPIENT FIRES

The new Collegiate Institute building will be equipped with a fire-fighting apparatus known as a stand pipe, which, with the hose and all the accessories, should provide for fire protection in almost any emergency. This improvement is nothing more than a large pipe extending from the bottom to the top of the building generally through the centre. Taps are on each floor to which hose of from one and a half to three inches in diameter, according to choice, is at all times connected. It is a very neat arrangement and would hardly be noticed by the casual observer. The contract was let to Mr. C A J Duranseau for the sum of $139.80. The matter was brought up at the meeting of the Board of Education last night and was introduced by Dr. Morrison, the chairman of the Collegiate Institute Building Committee. The report was as follows:

Collegiate Institute Building Committee

Gentlemen,—

Your Collegiate Institute Building Committee begs leave to report and recommend as follows:

Your committee has notified Mr. Kinsard, clerk of the works, that he would be paid for full time dating from May 1 last.

Your committee advertised for tenders for the blinds required for the building, and has awarded the contract to Messrs. A. H. Stratton & Company at $97.56, blinds to be of the best quality and mounted on guaranteed rollers.

Your Fire Protection Committee has awarded the contract for installing the stand pipes for fire protection in the Collegiate building to Mr. C A J Duranseau for the sum of $139.80, this amount to include 200 feet of best quality cotton hose, brass valves, [illegible], [illegible] the walls, four sets of brass nozzles and all complete with pipe described, size and quality of pipe to be approved by the chairman of the committee and the architect.

Your committee advertised for the tables, cupboards, etc., for the chemistry and physical laboratories, but the tenders were indefinite and unsatisfactory, and we have, therefore, requested the architect to furnish written detailed specifications, and will again advertise for tenders, and would ask that your committee be authorized to award the contract.

Your committee empowered Mr. Dumble, who is a member of the committee, to take charge of the levelling of the grounds, the construction of the walks, etc.

The report was adopted on motion of Dr. Morrison and Dr. Burnham.

CAUGHT THREE 'LUNGE IN TEN MINUTES SATURDAY

Mr. W. G. Cameron, who is holidaying at Boschink, has been having great success in fishing. On Saturday last the "colonel," as he is familiarly known to the Boschink colony, succeeded in landing no less than three 'lunge within ten minutes, which is something like a record. Peterborough people who have been staying at Boschink say that the fishing in that vicinity just now is very good. Many catches of bass and 'lunge having been made recently.

A STRATFORD PUBLISHER IN THE CITY TO-DAY

Mr. W. M. O'Beirne, editor and proprietor of the Stratford Beacon, is in Peterborough enjoying a day with Peterborough friends. About thirty years ago Mr. O'Beirne was identified with the Lakefield News, after having severed his connection with the Lindsay Post. Subsequently Mr. O'Beirne had a newspaper in Napanee and Woodstock, but to-day is publishing one of the brightest and newsiest papers of Western Ontario. Mr. O'Beirne is not only personally popular, but his knowledge in connection with the Press Association is valuable and useful. He will return to Sturgeon Point this evening, where he is rusticating with his friend, Mr. C. D. Barr.

THE WEATHER

A most decided change to much cooler conditions has occurred, and is another instance of the vagaries of our Canadian climate. Yesterday morning was oppressively hot and close, while this morning brought back memories of last winter. Highest temperature yesterday, 84 degrees; lowest last night, 48.

TALKING TWADDLE.

The Review seems to want the election of Mr. Bradburn and others protested. It either "puts up a big bluff" or is very ignorant of the facts, in connection with the management of local elections. It asserts that the election, in West Peterborough especially, was conducted with absolute purity and states that "we have demanded particulars of charges (of corrupt acts) and prosecution of the guilty parties, but we can get no response." The Review might answer these few questions:

Is hiring conveyances to carry voters to the registration booths illegal? If so, then this was done.

Is hiring teams to convey voters to the polls illegal? If so, then this was done.

Is paying drivers of conveyances for registration purposes and other election purposes illegal? If so, then this was done.

Is promising voters by the dozen payment for their votes, but payable only after the expiration of the thirty days in which an election protest can be filed, illegal? If so, then this was done.

Is the presence of the Conservative candidate in different places, when Government officials are arranging for the expenditure of colonization road moneys, thereby using Provincial funds for election purposes, illegal? If so, then this was done.

Is the act of an agent of Mr. Bradburn having whisky in a polling booth illegal? If so, then this was done.

Is having whisky in a committee room illegal? If so, then this was done.

Is giving ballots to voters whose names are not on the voters' list, and permitting such ballots to be marked and deposited, illegal? If so, then this was done.

It the Review wants a protest to prove purity they know the procedure. The Examiner is satisfied with its information, but has nothing to do with protesting elections for the Liberal party or any other party. If however, the Review wishes to enter a protest against the return of Mr. Bradburn or Mr. Thompson, the Examiner will undertake to supply it with the information that will be certain to unseat both of them. The Review says it has demanded particulars, and also "demanded prosecution." Prosecution is properly in the hands of the party in power. It is the duty of the Attorney-General to prosecute. Has the Review demanded prosecution at his hands? It is rank twaddle for the Review to talk as it talks about the absolute purity of elections on the part of the Conservative party, and no one knows this better than itself and those of the inner circle.

It the Review is not satisfied with this, it it will call at the Examiner office we can inform it where it can obtain sufficient information as to the previous election to satisfy it as to the hollow hypocrisy of its manifold croakings.

THE "FAKE" SETTLER.

Good settlers are a national need in Canada, but bad ones are a national calamity. In every Province of the Dominion and in almost every section of every Province there are acres and acres of land waiting for the plow of the settler, that they may contribute their share to the wealth and upbuilding of the country. Everyone recognizes the necessity for a proper development of colonization, and there is no class of the population more anxious for it than the lumbermen and limit holders, who are so often misrepresented as being entirely opposed to it. And their motives for wanting good settlers on their lands are sufficiently obvious. It means that they will have a ready supply of labour, and will also have food for men and horses in their lumber camps instead of being obliged to haul it all in, sometimes from considerable distances. But while the good settler is a source of convenience and profit to them, and they are ready to do everything in their power to encourage him, the bad settler is a source of loss and danger, and he will hamper his operations in every way possible. Nor are they the only ones to suffer, for the loss falls upon the whole population, as the bad settler does serious injury to the public domain.

Everyone knows that the practice of "fake settling," as it is called, is more or less common in almost every province, and especially in the northwestern part of Ontario and in the Province of Quebec, where the fine timberlands offer so tempting a prize. But there are very few people who realize to what a frightful extent the evil has already spread. Even those who are somewhat familiar with this question can hardly believe that in the Province of Quebec alone there are two million acres of waste lands which have been taken up by settlers, stripped of their timber, and then abandoned, and which now represents a total loss to the country. And yet the truth of this statement is vouched for by no less an authority than the Census Report of 1901. Besides the work of stripping the land of timber has been going on with greatly increased rapidity since that time, so that now the total of abandoned and worthless lands would probably be far in excess of those figures. Such a state of affairs as this is no thing less than a national calamity.

The bad effect of such criminally reckless exploitation on the rest of the country is immediate and disastrous. In the first place it destroys the value of water-powers, as the rainfall runs off the denuded land as off a tin roof, and so the rivers are at times in a state of uncontrollable flood and at others so low as to be useless. Nearly every water power in this Province and in Quebec, on the south shore of the St. Lawrence, has been damaged in this way, and many on the northern side have been seriously affected. Then there is the effect on the land. Without the protection of a forest cover, the soil is rapidly washed off the highlands, and in such a country as Quebec, where the soil is light and thin, the underlying rock is soon exposed in barren nakedness. And the trouble here is that once the damage is done it is almost irreparable. And even on the low lands, timber stripping has had most serious effects on the soil, as seen at Lanorale and many other districts on the north shore of the St. Lawrence. Here the destruction of the forest has led to the growth of veritable sand deserts, which, under the action of the wind, have overwhelmed many thousand acres of arable land.

All these terrible results are due to the practice of "fake settling," that is, of taking up lots under pretence of colonisation, of stripping the wood off, and then abandoning the land to be a burden to the country. And this criminal method exploitation has increased with dreadful rapidity of late, on account of the high prices which have obtained for pulpwood, and the inducement thus offered for timber thieving. The American buyers are also very largely to blame. It would not be just to accuse them of directly encouraging the practice, but they do so indirectly by buying recklessly and indiscriminately, without any regard to the manner in which the wood is obtained. It would be very different if they were obliged to establish themselves in this country, for then to protect themselves they would have to join with the home manufacturers in stamping the practice out.

Tuesday's Session Of The Summer School At Chemong

Some Interesting Addresses Were Given—The New Theology Condemned

SPLENDID SOLOS RENDERED

Examiner Special

Chemong, July 8.—After the usual prayer and praise service led by the president, the Rev. E. N. Baker, M.A., D.D., conducted the Bible Study, selecting for Scriptural reference the Book of Hebrews, and he took for his subject the High Priesthood of Christ, laying special emphasis on the sinfulness of sin, and the atonement of Christ. Evidently Dr. Baker is not a friend of the new theology as outlined by Dr. Campbell, of City Temple, London.

This lecture was followed by an address by Rev. Dr. Crews, General Secretary of Sunday Schools and Epworth Leagues. He dealt with methods of junior league work, being a plea for a better understanding and closer sympathy with the life of the boy. The address was practical, interesting and inspiring.

From 11.10 to 12.00 Mission Study Classes were conducted by Prof. E. R. Doxsee, of Albert College; Miss Edna Drewry and Miss M. Dobson, of Whitby Ladies' College, and Miss N. Hamilton, B.A., of Peterborough. The classes were very instructive.

The afternoon session was given up for recreation, rest and personal work. At the evening session Rev. J. Garbutt, of Bowmanville, addressed the school on the Personal Experience of Religion as the Basis of Missionary Work, and laid emphasis on direct faith in God and real prayer, and the abiding of the Holy Spirit in the life, citing from the lives of master missionaries to prove that the coming of God into the consciousness of the human soul has been and is today the sufficient and ever necessary inspiration for missionary work.

The evening session of the convention was favoured with solos by Mrs. Curtis, of Havelock, and Miss Carrie Reesor, soloist of George Street Methodist Church, Peterborough, which were well rendered and in keeping with the spirit of the session.

On Thursday evening a delightful excursion will be run from Chemong Park to Bobcaygeon, leaving the park at five o'clock sharp. Return fare 25 cents. The public are very cordially invited to patronize this excursion as also to attend the mass meeting this evening in the pavilion, when a trip by limelight views will be taken through China, illustrative of Chinese customs, industries, architecture and religion.

The programme for to-day is:

SANG "THE OLD OAKEN BUCKET" AT CHURCH

Toronto Preacher Was Giving a Sermon On The Home

Passers-by on Sunday evening in the vicinity of Jarvis Street Baptist church, Toronto, heard rather unusual strains of music, strains, as a matter of fact, which are familiarly associated with that classic of bygone days, "The Old Oaken Bucket." Those who stopped to listen found that the words were also those of the familiar song, and heard the staid and conservative congregation swelling forth the chorus about—

"The old oaken bucket, the iron-bound bucket,
The moss covered bucket that hung in the well."

This unusual church music was the result of the topic chosen by Dr. H. Francis Perry for Sunday evening discussion, "The Story and Message of Songs and Hymns of Home." Dr. Perry remarked that every man was entitled to two good homes, one on earth and the other in heaven. He declared that the thought of home and mother, sweet, was the only key that will unlock the rusty gates which lead to the hearts of the straying. Besides having the congregation join "The Old Oaken Bucket," he had them sing "Home, Sweet Home" in its original and also in a scripturalized form. Hymns suggestive of the heavenly home were sung, "Jerusalem, the Golden," "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," and "Forever with the Lord."

That tired, languid feeling, and indisposition to effort of any sort will be rapidly removed by the use of Miller's Compound Iron Pills. Sold by J. D. Tully, druggist, Peterborough.

YOUNG WESTERNER HAS ADVENTURES

Upset a Canoe With Two Young Ladies and Then Fell Off Bicycle Into A Pail of Berries

A young gentleman from Vancouver, who is visiting in the city, has been having some exciting adventures. A few days ago, while canoeing with two young ladies near the lock's dam his boat capsized, and the trio received a thorough ducking and a bad fright. Yesterday the young man went out picking raspberries and after working for some hours in the heat, succeeded in filling a three quart pail. Mounting his bicycle he started for home in triumph, but fell off his wheel and upset the cargo, spoiling the fruit.

Petes Had Little Trouble In Disposing Of The Whitby Nine

A fair sized crowd, the majority of which formed part of the excursion party, saw the Whitby team, champions of the Central Ontario League, go down to defeat at the hands of the Peterborough club, leaders of the Midland League, in an interesting and well played game of ball. The Whitby team had secured the services of Rosser, who, with Fred Hickey, does the slab work for the Toronto Park Nine, but Mr. Rosser was not capable of delivering the goods and the Petes hammered him along to the tune of ten safeties, while five scattered singles were all that the visitors could collect from our Mr. Hawkins, who was in great form and shot them over in clever fashion. True one Johnston, who third based for the visitors, managed to lean against one of his shoots for a four-cornered ticket, but it looked more like an accident than anything else.

The fielding on both sides was for the most part sharp and clean and the crowd thoroughly enjoyed the exhibition. Murphy had the prettiest catch of the day by gathering in Adams' fly to left, in the ninth, after a long run. Johnston made a clever catch of Craig's foul fly in the eighth, stabbing the ball with his gloved hand as he slipped to the ground. Maddock, as usual, did some speedy fielding around short stop and second. He covers a lot of ground wastes no time in the throw to first.

A queer accident occurred in the seventh innings, when Lawson lifted a high fly to left. Short Stop Rosser and Left Fielder Jones both went after the ball and collided violently, both taking the count and Umpire Rattray had to call the game for repairs.

The Petes won thjo game in the first innings, when they scored three runs on hits by Burns, Maddock and Hawkins, and errors by Johnston and Hooper.

Another came in the fourth on singles by Burns and Murphy and Clements annexed another in the seventh by hitting safely and scoring with the assistance of another timely hit by Burns. Hawkins scored the last run in the eighth.

Whitby did not score until the fourth, when errors by Craig and Hawkins followed Andrew's single, sent Rosser across the plate. Their other tally came in the fifth, when Johnston drove out the first ball pitched to him to the creek for a homer.

Rattray, of the Athletics, was a very satisfactory umpire, and his decisions were received with no complaint.

Following was the score:

LONGBOAT AND SIMPSON PICKED BY CRITICS AS BEST CANADIANS

The Montreal Star's special correspondent in England has the following to say of the Olympic team:

London, Eng., July 7.—Seeing the renewed newspaper reports that Longboat would possibly be disqualified as a professional, I again questioned the Olympic secretary. He replied: "It is simply newspaper talk. So far as we know officially, everything is all right. If any representations are to be made they must be made in the next few days or it will be too late."

The Canadians are delighted that the King permits the Marathon race to start from his private grounds at Windsor Castle.

Most of the sporting writers agree that only two out of the fifteen competing countries stand a chance of providing the victor, namely, Canada and Great Britain, the Canadian favourites being Longboat and Simpson. On the other hand, Barrows, writing in the Leader, says: "Longboat wins his races easily, but never within half of the record of Shrubb. England has half a dozen who will easily beat Longboat."

Canadians entered for the Olympic clay bird shooting competition are Parker, Ewing, Fletcher, Beattie, Vivian, Westover and McMahon.

There are sixty entries altogether representing eight countries.

BURRIDGE IS FIND OF SEASON

So Says Youngstown Telegraph in Speak of Petes' Last Year Catcher

The Youngstown Telegram contains an excellent cut of Harry Burridge, catcher for last year's Petes, and now with Youngstown of the Ohio and Pennsylvania League, and has the following to say of him:—"Harry Burridge is one of the finds of the season. Local fandom has never seen a player develop faster than he has. The stocky little catcher has made good because he is a willing worker and a listener. There isn't a lazy bone in him and he has never failed to pay heed to the advice of an older and more experienced mate. Burridge has the build and nerve of a future great. He bids fair to be one of the league's stars in a couple of seasons.

ATHLETICS AND PETES TO CLASH

Meet in a Red Hot Midland League Game on Saturday Afternoon

One of the most exciting games of the season will be played at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon when the Athletics and Peterboroughs will meet in a Midland League contest. Each has defeated the other in a league game, the Petes winning the first game by 11—6 and the Athletics annexing the second by 5—3. The Athletics are in second place and a win over the Petes on Saturday will tend to make things decidedly interesting in the League race. Both teams will have their strongest lineup on and the fans may count on one of the most nerve-racking games of the season. The game will be called at Riverside Park at 3 o'clock on Saturday.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

The defeat of Dave Hartley in the local rink by a bunch of boys has aroused much sympathy around town for this old pedestrian, who, coupled with Jimmy Reynolds, is the founder of walking in Canada. Jimmy Reynolds used to walk considerably, but nothing was ever thought of the game until Dave Hartley made his famous walk—Oshawa to Toronto and return to Peterborough — beating Reynolds' time. Then walking commenced in real earnest, and we see Jim Harrison, Chas. Stevens and Stacey, with many others coming out on the horizon, and will in a short time beat Hoagland, the apparently invincible ped. The people have not been any too kind to Hartley and Reynolds and have heaped upon them many snares.

Slater has gone down and Hoag land is bound to follow, and it is hoped that these men who have done so much for walking, or any other sport, will be looked upon with respect in their old days, when they have to make room at the top for the younger blood. — Lindsay Free Press.

The local Y. M. C. A. will go into camp at Sandy Point a week from Wednesday. It is expected about ten boys, accompanied by Secretary Cook, will join the boys of Peterborough and Port Hope at Peterborough. The boys will be in camp for two weeks and expect to have a jolly time during the hottest part of the summer.—Lindsay Free Press.

• • • •

The Athletics ball team will practise to-night at Riverside Park at 6.30 o'clock. On account of the rain last night no practise was held.

• • • •

There will be a practice of the cricket players to night at 6.30 at the Nicholls Oval, and all members of the club are requested to be on hand.

WEATHER WAS COOL FOR BAND CONCERT

Splendid Programme Presented at Victoria Park Last Night

As the temperature dropped considerably in the early evening there was not a very large crowd at Victoria Park last night to hear the splendid Salvation Army Band concert. Under the direction of Bandmaster Greene the concert was a most delightful one and certainly deserved the applause that followed each number. The citizens of Peterborough appreciate the work of this band which has improved wonderfully within the past year.

WEDDING BELLS.

LEAHY—MOHER

At St. Joseph's church, Douro, a pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at 9.30 o'clock, the principals being Miss Loretta Moher, daughter of William Moher, of Douro, and Mr. Michael J Leahy, son of the late James Leahy, also of Douro. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Keilty in the presence of a few guests. The bridesmaid was Miss Anastasia Moher, sister of the bride, while Mr. Bart Leahy, a brother of the groom, supported the groom. The wedding breakfast was partaken of after the ceremony at the home of the bride, where there was also a handsome array of presents. Mr. and Mrs. Leahy will reside in Douro and the best wishes of their numerous friends will attend them through their wedded life.

Harper of Camborne, near Cobourg, was celebrated. About one hundred guests were present. Rev. J. Bedford of Lakefield conducted the ceremony. The bride was given away by her father and was attended by her sister as bridesmaid, while a little niece, Miss Willa M. On the return from their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Harper will reside near Camborne.

SPORT AT THE INDIAN VILLAGE DOMINION DAY

Many People at Chemong—Mr. Dan Whetung Erects New Barn

Examiner Special.

Chemong Indian Village, July 8.—Dominion Day at Chemong was most pleasantly spent. A large number of sports were run off and almost everybody present took part in them. Many people were there from the surrounding vicinity. The baseball game was won by the team captained by J D Tobico. The results of the other sports were as follows:—

Half mile race—James W Taylor, Chemong; Blewitt, Smith.

Ladies' race—Mrs. Alfred Coppaway, Mrs. George Johnson.

Girls' race—Miss Clara Coppway, Miss Irene Tobico.

Girls' walking race—Miss Clara Coppway, Miss Irene Tobico.

Skipping the rope — Miss Clara Coppway, Miss Irene Tobico.

Mr. Dan Whetung has built a new barn, 64x34 with a stone foundation. The stone wall was built by Mr. Jas. Garvey, of Ennismore and it is one hard to beat, according to good judges. The frame work was built by Mr. S. Young, of Smith. Dan is well pleased with his new barn.

Mr. John Johnson has erected a hay fork in the barn and Mr. Leonard, of Lakefield, has put up two galvanised iron ventilators, one at each end. The building is a great credit to the Chemong Reserve.

Proposal To Open The New Collegiate Institute With Eclat Befitting The Event

The opening of the new Collegiate Institute will be one of the most important events in educational circles ever held in the city, and it is the intention of the Board of Education to fittingly celebrate the occasion. It is very likely that the new Normal School building will be opened at the same time, and there is a possibility of the two events being combined. This, however, has not as yet been discussed. The question was introduced at the Board of Education meeting last night by Mr. Robert Fair. He stated that as there might not be another meeting before the re-opening of school, there should be something done at once.

It is not very often that the Board has a squabble, but in choosing the members to constitute a committee to look after the opening ceremony they had a friendly "mixup," which caused some amusement. After many suggestions the following were moved by Mr. Domble and seconded by Mr. Crane, to compose the special committee: Messrs. Fair, Morr[illegible] Hayes and Hill.

As the mover of the motion, [illegible] Dumble was also included.

Property Committee

Mr. B. F. Ackerman, chairman of the Property Committee, presented a comprehensive report, recommending many improvements which should be made to the various school buildings. The work will likely be carried out during the holidays, at least the greater part will receive attention. The report was received on motion of Mr. Ackerman and Dr. Morrison, as follows:

To the members of the Board of Education.

Gentlemen.—Your Property Committee beg to recommend the following repairs for the different schools:

East City Schools

1. The walks need repairing.
2. Water connection should be made with the main building, and a basin put in for the benefit of the students.
3. The windows of Miss Corcoran's room should be fixed so that they may be lowered from the top.
4. Mr. Kelly's room needs repairing. Good desks may be secured from the old Collegiate building.

Queen Alexandra School

1. Two or three loads of fine gravel would greatly improve the cinder path near the rear door of the building.
2. Shelves will have to be put up for the kindergarten supplies.
3. Some of the fire bricks in the boiler are misplaced.
4. There is no simple means of heating water in the summer for scrubbing purposes.
5. The hole in the concrete floor of the boys' basement needs repairing.
6. The desks belonging to the King Edward School will have to be taken away and replaced by those belonging to the school.

South Central School

1. There is no walk or platform in front of this building for the children to line up upon during fire drill.
2. The whole yard needs a covering of fine gravel, as it is very muddy in spring and autumn, and the children track in so much mud that the caretaker finds it almost impossible to keep the floors clean.
3. A solid partition between the kindergarten room and the primary room would deaden the noise and greatly improve matters.
4. The caretaker reported that one of the furnaces was badly in need of repair.
5. Some small patches of loose plaster need fixing.

King Edward School

1. The northwest room on the second floor is not properly heated. Something should be done to make this room comfortable in winter.
2. The sewer drain from the school to the street is not yet repaired.
3. The seats used by the Collegiate students at the Queen Alexandria School will have to be brought back and put down.
4. There is no simple means of heating water in the school.

West Ward School

1. This school needs a basement and closets.

Central School

1. The stairway leading to the inspector's office needs repairing.
2. There are some bits of plastering to be done.
3. The principal's room requires a new set of blinds.
4. A few loads of earth will be required to fill up a depression near the boys' entrance of the old Collegiate building.
5. If the kindergarten class and Miss Carey's class be transferred to the old Collegiate building, some painting should be done to brighten up the rooms to be occupied by these classes.
6. If the manual training be introduced the board should definitely decide upon the rooms to be used.
7. The caretaker might improve the desks by giving them a coat of oil.
8. The caretaker wishes the rooms to be lighted with electric light so that he may be able to keep them properly cleaned.

With the exception of the suggested improvements to the West Ward School, the others should not involve much of an expenditure.

Immediate Work

It was moved by Mr. Hill, seconded by Mr. Crane, that the heating and ventilation of the West Ward School be attended to at once, and that the proposed concreting at the South Central, on which the pupils can line up, be carried out.

It is likely that a competent man will be secured to oversee the work. This, however, was left in the hands of the chairman of the committee.

Mr. Nelson wanted to know what was going to be done with the East Ward School, on which, he thought, $2,000 could be easily spent for improvements. Beyond those suggested by Mr. Ackerman nothing will likely be done in East City for the present, as the funds are low and the Board feels that a new building is needed for East City.

Committee on Appointments

The report of the Committee on Appointments was read by the chairman, Mr. Hill, recommending Mr. J. H. Adams, B.A., of Toronto, for the position of Junior English master in the Collegiate Institute. Mr. A. W. Baird, of Brockville, was appointed, but declined. On motion of Mr. Hill and Dr. Burnham, the report was adopted.

It is understood that Hepburn will live with wife No. 2. Wife No. 1, so it is stated, has taken another husband and is living near Peterborough. CUT FINGER CARVING A WEDDING CAKE

Smith Young Man Fainted From Loss of Blood in Midst of Merriment

Between 5 and 6 o'clock on the evening of July 1st, Mr. Bert Allen, son of Mr. George Allen of Smith, met with a very painful accident. He was busily engaged in cutting his sister's wedding cake, when the large butcher knife accidently slipped and gave him a severe gash on the forefinger. From the loss of blood, Mr. Allen became very faint, and had it not been for the timely support of Mr. Harold Lawrence, would have fallen to the floor. Dr. Brown, of Peterborough, was immediately summoned and dressed the wound. Bert will be relieved of his duties in the milking yard for a few days, but his speedy recovery is hoped for.—Com.

FIRST THURSDAY HALF HOLIDAY

Clerks Enjoyed a Trip to Idyl Wyld This Afternoon

The ninth of July seemed a long time coming round to the clerks in some of the up-town stores, but it finally presented itself, and to-day, the first Thursday half holiday was enjoyed. Nearly all the stores were closed, a few, however, remaining open. The feature of the afternoon was a trip to Idyl Wyld on the "Otonabee," all the clerks as if prearranged taking in the trip. It was well patronized and a very jolly party comfortably filled the boat. The clerks were in glee, the fine weather appealing to them and promising an enjoyable trip.

WAS THIS THE DOURO BOVINE?

Cow Said To Have Been Slaughtered in the Night and Sold on Market

Possibly some new light has been thrown on the disappearance on Dominion Day from Mr. David Leahy's farm in Douro, of a beef cow, which was mentioned in yesterday's Examiner. A local painter asserts that on Friday night following he noticed two men driving a cow through a lane between Stewart and Rubidge street. About Townsend street the animal, according to the painter, was taken into a slaughter house and killed. A short time later a vehicle drove up to the door of the slaughter house and took the meat away. Next day it was sold on the market. Whether there is any connection between the disappearance of the cow from Douro on Wednesday night and the story told by the painter of his Friday night experience is yet unknown.

EXCURSION WAS WELL ATTENDED

C.O.F. Excursion to Niagara Falls and Buffalo Left To-day

The excursion of the Canadian Order of Foresters to Niagara Falls and Buffalo was held this morning. A special train passed through the city about twenty minutes ahead of the local. There were six or seven coaches, and the fairly large number of passengers from stations east of here was augmented by quite a number from Peterborough. This excursion is one which is always well attended and this year was no exception.

BY WALKING FROM WINNIPEG PERKINS A NEW PEDESTRIAN LOOMS UP IN THE LIMELIGHT

Tramped It All The Way on the Tracks to Peterborough — His Second Long Walk in a Year

TELLS OF HIS EXPERIENCES

John Perkins, Peterborough, is a living illustration of the people who lived in the times when modes of travelling were in their primitive state. Pedestrianism in years gone by was practised, because it had to be, by the early pioneers of the Dominion of Canada, but when it is stated that at the present time John Perkins walked from Winnipeg to Peterborough because he couldn't get any other way, one begins to get interested.

Such is the remarkable stunt just concluded by this somewhat obscure personage. He arrived in the city about 11 o'clock this morning, footsore and tired, after a jaunt lasting two months and 13 days. John was in Peterborough about a year ago, having come out from England. He secured a position, but unfortunately, he injured his hand and was forced to retire from activity until the wound was healed. But he never recovered his position and, believing that work awaited him in the Western Metropolis, went out to Winnipeg by a series of rides on freight trains. Disappointment faced him there and no labour was forthcoming. Montreal, like all far off fields, looked green and he hied himself on foot to that old city. He had no money and he was watched too closely by detectives to ride freight trains. He therefore trudged along the track, a distance of some 1500 miles to Montreal, where he was forced to enter an hospital on account of injuries to his feet.

In Montreal the only work he could find was selling papers and on a single day disposed of 35 dozen "Montreal Stars." A letter reached him there from Winnipeg, telling him of work and back to the West he went again. He travelled by freight, but was again doomed to disappointment on his arrival there.

Peterborough was the next place he had in his mind and about two and a half months ago left Winnipeg for here.

"I travelled by track," he said to the Examiner in relating his unique experience, "and a hard trip it was. I came by North Bay and Toronto and just got here at 11 o'clock. I got my meals principally at farm houses along the track for I had no money and I usually slept under the skies or in some barn. My feet are pretty sore, but I have a job in North Monaghan and I expect to be all right in a day or two."

John Perkins certainly looked as if he had just completed a long journey. He is a young man, long in stature, but slightly built. His clothes were ragged and torn and his heavy boots were beginning to show signs of evil days. But he did not complain and walked lightly out from the Examiner office with a smile of contentment, possibly at having secured a positon after so long and so tedious a tramp.

INVESTORS FLOCKING TO THE SILVER LANDS OF LARDER LAKE

Mr. H. G. Davidson, Manager of Mining Company Tells of Conditions There—Now in the City

INDUSTRY IS PERMANENT

The enormity of the mining industry, its permanency and its future, in the silver district of Larder Lake, New Ontario, was told of to the Examiner last night by Mr. Harry G Davidson, manager of the Golden Peak Larder Lake Mining and Exploration Company. Larder City mining centre is one of those places like Cobalt and Latchford, that spring up like a mushroom in the night. It is a progressive spot and the Mecca for hundreds of investors who flock there every month to view the situation for themselves.

Mr. Davidson until three weeks ago was the fiscal agent of the Harris-Maxwell Company, for which he sold their first stock. He is a young man but stands high as an authority on the mineral situation in New Ontario.

To the Examiner reporter he stated that already no less than 3,000 claims were staked on the property of the Company he represented as manager and that work was progressing in some of these with excellent results. As an example of the rapidity with which those interested in mining move in that country, Mr. Davidson referred to the occasion when the first vein of Golden Peak Larder Lake Company was made a certainty. The news was published in Toronto before the Company's head office heard of it and on the same night 150 Latchford people left for Larder City. Within three days at one time this year no less than 1,000 arrived. European and United States capitalists are there in large numbers and from $10,000 to $1,000,000 have been paid for 40 acre claims. A definite case is that of the Harris-Maxwell Company which was offered a million and a half for a claim of between 50 and 60 acres.

Labourers in Demand

Mr. Davidson also says that mining labourers have little difficulty in securing work and that there is a big demand for them.

"There is no doubt about the permanency of the situation," he remarked. "Larder Lake as a mining centre is there to stay."

The country rock showing mill run values to the extent of about $15.00 per ton, he explained, dispelled all doubt as to its permanent condition.

With the coming of the first snow of next winter, the Company of which Mr. Davidson is manager, proposes to instal the necessary machinery on the mining property. This work could not be accomplished sooner on account of the absence of roads.

Mr. Davidson speaks in the highest terms of the future of this great treasure land of Ontario, which in such a brief space of time has been ushered from what was considered to be a barren waste to a district worth millions.

COUNCIL DISCUSSED "A SKIN GAME" AND PASSED BY-LAW

The question of a dumping ground is one which is continually presenting itself to the Council and the ultimate result will likely be that the city will have to purchase a lot somewhere in the country and hire a man to look after it. Nothing has yet been discussed in regard to the matter, but it is felt that some step of that nature is necessary. At the meeting of the Council yesterday a motion by Ald. Neill and Elliott was passed, whereby the question is to be considered by the Property Committee to report at a later meeting.

A bylaw was passed regarding the mutilation of hides of horses that are taken to the dumping ground for burial. It states that the hides must not be mutilated. There was an understanding between Mr. Williams and the council, it was explained, by which he was to have the hides of the horses which were buried at the grounds. If the hides were cut or mutilated they were of no use and he could not receive anything for them. It was further explained that it is almost impossible to handle the dead beasts without injuring their hides. However, the by-law was passed although Ald. Butler considered that it should not be left with Mr. Williams to decide whether the hides were mutilated or not.

MAN SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN HYPNOTIST NOT RIGHT PARTY

P. C.'s Newhall and Adams journeyed out to the neighbourhood of Curtin' brickyard yesterday to arrest a man by the name of Furlong, who was suspected to be the stranger who was implicated in the mysterious case of Etta Kennedy, the little girl who was alleged to have been hypnotized on Dominion Day, and who had to be taken to the Nicholls Hospital as the result of her experience. The man was brought into the city, but when confronted by Mrs. Dawson and other people who saw the "man with the evil eye," last week, they declared that he was not the man wanted, and the police at once gave him his liberty.

THE SILLY SEASON.

The Review contains this luminous paragraph:

"The Examiner advertises its premises as an employment agency for farmers on Saturdays. Why this slap at the Laurier Government agency, which is not 200 yards away? Is Mr. Howson not qualified for his position? The Examiner evidently thinks not."

Pea-nut politics and ju-jube journalism couldn't do worse than this. The Examiner uses the influence developed by its large circulation in order to bring city dwellers wanting employment into contact with farmers who want farm hands. Mr. Howson deals only with immigrants. His official functions and the Examiner's enterprise, highly appreciated by both beneficiaries—farm hands and farmers—do not over-lap nor conflict, they are quite distinct. If the Review would pull itself together and try to do some good to the community instead of "knocking" those endeavouring to benefit their fellow men, it might in time come within gun-shot distance of being an influence for good instead of being as it has largely became, a common journalistic scold and purveyor of twaddle — in the field of political discussion. The silly season hits our contemporary hard.

INCONSISTENT.

A favourite form of complaint by Conservative oppositionists at Ottawa is of government expenditure in providing aids to navigation and transportation in the matter of minor public works. The assertion is made that these works are unnecessary and only another form of buying support. These public works, such as wharves, expenditure on small harbours, etc., are as much needed in local interests as great canals, transcontinental railways, etc., from a national point of view. And Conservative members are not themselves adverse to having the "money wasted" when their own particular constituency benefits. On Monday in Parliament, three members of the Conservative Opposition, made demands which practically belie the sincerity of their outcry against extravagance and wasteful expenditure of public money. Mr. Armstrong, of East Lambton, Conservative, wanted money spent on a harbour in his own district. Mr. Blain, of Peel, Conservative, urged the Minister of Public Works to dredge the harbour of Port Credit, which is in Mr. Blain's riding. Mr. Jackson, of East Elgin, Conservative, entered a plea for Port Stanley harbour, which, needless to say, is in Elgin County.

To show that the Government deals with these matters on principle, apportioning expenditure according to the public needs without reference to political considerations. Hon. Mr. Pugsley regarded the representations of these gentlemen as well founded and promised prompt investigation in each case. The expenditure on public works in Canada has necessarily been great, for the provision of transportation facilities as complementary to national progress and development. It is all very well for the Opposition to make protest against the expenditure, as a whole, but, as in the cases cited above, the Conservatives must share the responsibility of expenditures in detail, which in the case of most of them as well as those referred to, are justified by the necessities of the situation. Money spent in improving navigation facilities a money well spent. The Opposition is inconsistent.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The assay office at Vancouver has handled more gold the past three months than in any previous year. Like many another creation of the Laurier Government, it is justifying its existence.

Mr. Monk, Conservative member for Jacques Cartier, wants a wharf built at Lachine, wants the Government to build the Georgian Bay canal, and to make Montreal and Quebec free ports. That is a pretty good programme for one of the disciples of "economy."

The revenue of the United States fell short of the expenditure last year by the large sum of sixty millions of dollars. There was a large falling off in customs and internal revenue receipts. According to the protection theorists high taxation should bring perennial prosperity.

President Creelman of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, comes back from Europe much convinced of the importance of "intensive farming" which simply means farming methods directed towards getting the largest possible returns from the soil, cultivating one acre well rather than "scuffling" a large area, with returns, limited and unsatisfactory in proportion to the labour, time and money expended. Fifty acres tilled on intensive principles can be made to produce a better yield than 100 acres merely scratched over.

With the splendid crop prospects in the West, the Mail and Empire looks for a renewal of prosperity and work for all the unemployed. Indeed, it does not think the manufacturing centres of the East can afford to send men West to take off the harvest. This is the newspaper, followed with canine fidelity by our evening contemporary, which until lately, and without any justification, has been seeking to hold the Laurier Government responsible for bringing working men to this country. Now, it thinks we are not going to have enough of them. Little Canadians die hard.

WAS IT A SURRENDER.

(Brantford Expositor.)

Many of the Conservative newspapers are jubilating over the assumption that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has made a "surrender" in connection with the voters' list matter, and at the same time the despatches allege that Manitoba Liberals are furious at Sir Wilfrid for throwing them to the lions.

What are the facts?

The election reform bill, which has caused all this disturbance, was presented to parliament by Hon. Mr. Aylesworth on May 8th last. Protest was immediately made to the first clause of the measure, which provided that in Manitoba and in unorganized districts in Ontario and Quebec where the voting lists are not made up automatically from the municipal assessment rolls, as elsewhere, but are framed on a system of registration, permitting gross partisan discrimination, the lists should be revised by federal officials prior to each federal election. In Manitoba the need for this revision was the greater because of the fact that the provincial constituencies, for whihc the lists are prepared, do not in many instances coincide with the federal constituencies, so that the voters must be redistributed in their proper ridings prior to each federal election.

It was suggested by Western Conservative members that it would be fairer to have this admittedly necessary revision made by the Manitoba judges than by specially appointed federal officials. Sir Wilfrid promptly acceded to this. Subsequently, in consequence of promises that existing injustice, to Liberals in the framing of the lists would be remedied by the Manitoba Government — promises which have since been fulfilled by Premier Roblin who has amended his system so as to permit more time for judicial revision under provincial authority—Sir Wilfrid agreed still further to limit the application of the act so that the authority of the judges under federal jurisdiction would only extend to the re-allocation of the lists in the over-lapping constituencies.

This was all nearly two months ago, before the obstruction really began. It was on May 12th, only four days after the bill had been introduced, that Sir Wilfrid made this offer, which, as repeated by Mr. Aylesworth last week, is greeted as Liberal capitulation compelled by recent obstruction.

The Government stood by the Premier's first offer, trusting to the common-sense and fairness of the people to judge the dispute justly. And their trust was justified. Under the pressure of public opinion the obstruction ceased and the Opposition, sobered and chastened, allowed the bill to go to committee when, as already reported in The Expositor, Mr. Aylesworth formally repeated Sir Wilfrid's suggestion in almost the same words. And this suggestion, which a few weeks ago was furiously refused, against which the obstructive tactics of over a month were openly directed, is to-day hailed by the Conservative press as a Liberal "backdown" under fire. Considerable latitude is allowed in politics for humbug, but this is straining the easy rules too far.

Sir Wilfrid, it is true, had made some concessions since the Bill was at first introduced, but these were not made as a result of the obstructionist tactics of the Conservative party but prior thereto. It is the Conservatives rather than Sir Wilfrid who have capitulated, and weeks ago they might have got all that they have now been conceded only that they bought that a continued show of putting up a big fight would impress the country.

Looseness of The Bowels.

It is very seldom during the summer months that most people are not troubled with "looseness of the bowels."

Sometimes it only goes that far, but generally it develops into Diarrhoea, Dysentery or Summer Complaint and has a tendency to weaken the whole system.

When the bowels get loosened up in this way and you wish to check the unnatural discharge without bringing on constipation, there is only one remedy to use, and that one is DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY. This remedy is not an experiment as it has been used in thousands of families during the past sixty-three years.

When you ask for DR. FOWLER'S be sure you get it, as many unprincipalled druggists will try to palm off a cheap substitute on you.

Miss M. Hopkins, Roseview, Sask., writes: "I have used DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY and found it is all it is recommended to be for Diarrhoea and Summer Complaint. We would not be without a bottle of it in the house."

DOMINION PROVINCES ARE GROWING

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Announces Measure For Extensions.

ONTARIO IS WELL SERVED

Boundary Extended to Embrace the Greater Part of Keewatin Territory —Manitoba Also Shares and Quebec Secures Ungava — An Important Federal Enactment— Hodgins' Enquiry Report.

Ottawa, July 9.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier gave notice last night of the resolutions to extend the boundaries of Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec.

Briefly the Manitoba boundary is to be extended north of the 60th parallel, the northern boundary of Alberta and Saskatchewan. Ontario is to get that portion of Keewatin east of a line about 80 miles east of Cape Tatnam on Hudson Bay to the northeasterly corner of the Province of Manitoba. Quebec gets the whole of Ungava.

The resolutions say nothing of the school question. The increased allowance to Manitoba is to be the subject of negotiations.

The new boundaries are described as follows:

Manitoba.

The northern boundary to be the 60th parallel of latitude, the western boundary to be the present eastern boundary line of the Province of Saskatchewan to the said sixtieth parallel, the eastern boundary to be the present eastern boundary as far north as the northeast corner of the province, thence on a straight line to the most eastern point of Island Lake, and thence on a straight line to the point where the 89th meridian of west longitude intersects the shore line of Hudson Bay.

Notwithstanding the extension of territory above described the ungranted lands of the crown in the territory to be so added to the said province will still continue to be administrated by the Government of Canada for the purposes of the Dominion and the said province will not have the public land as a source of revenue. It is just and equitable to recognize the increased cost of civil government which such extension of territory will occasion to the province and in view of the premises to make to the said province an increased allowance by money payment, the amount of which should be the subject of negotiation between the Government of Canada and the Government of Manitoba.

Ontario.

Upon the Legislature of the Province of Ontario consenting thereto, it is expedient to extend the boundaries of the said province, upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed to by the said Legislature and by Parliament, so as to include all the territory to the north of the said province, lying between the extended boundaries of, as above described and the waters of James Bay and Hudson Bay.

Quebec.

Upon the Legislature of the Province of Quebec consenting thereto, it is expedient to extend the boundaries upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed to, so as to include all territory north of said province, known as Ungava and extending to the waters of James Bay and Hudson Bay, and the entrance thereto from the sea.

Land Bill Passes.

The land bill of Oliver's was given its third reading last night. It was held over last week on a technicality. The Speaker ruled that the bill was in order and Mr. Lake's amendment to set aside lands for higher education was voted down.

Mr. Herron moved an amendment that the head of a family need not personally reside six months in a year for three years before taking out his patent, as required by the act, but might leave his family in possession. This was voted down. The bill then passed.

The House divided at 11 o'clock last night, on motion to adopt the report of a special committee on the Hodgins' enquiry.

Mr. Lennox moved that the matter be referred back to committee to continue the enquiry, and a long debate ensued, all members of the committee, Messrs. Geoffrion, Macdonald, Carvall, Baker, and Lennox and Mr. Northrup speaking on the question.

Yankee Troops In British Khaki.

Washington, July 9.—Secretary of War Wright has received from certain New England manufacturers of khaki cloth a protest against the use of British-made khaki for the uniforms of the soldiers and constabulary in the Philippine Islands. The protest recited that the uniforms were not only British material, but were made up in Manila by Chinese labor.

Police Chiefs Convene.

Quebec, July 9.—The convention of the Association of Police Chiefs of Canada opened last evening at ten o'clock at the City Hall by an address of welcome from His Worship the Mayor, J. Geo. Tarneau. The convention is presided over by Chief Campeau of Montreal. There are delegates from Winnipeg, Vancouver, and other distant points.

Brute's Substantial Punishment.

Windsor, July 9.—John Guilfoyle of Windsor was yesterday sentenced in Detroit to a penitentiary term of not less than twelve and a half years, with recommendation that it be a longer term.

Guilfoyle was convicted of a criminal attack upon two girls who accepted his invitation to take a buggy ride with him. After the assault, which was committed on Belle Isle, Guilfoyle stole his victim's purse and she had to walk home.

Burglars Make a Haul.

New York, July 9.—Loot valued at $25,000 was secured by safe-blowers who early yesterday drilled their way through a 20-inch iron brick wall into the offices of the Diamond Point Pen Co. in Beekman's and then shattered two safes with dynamite. The police have no clue to the robbers.

THE CITY OF DENVER IS SHAKEN

Wild and Dramatic Bryan Outburst by Convention.

CHEERED OVER AN HOUR

Tremendous Tribute to the Nebraskan —Convention Adjourned From Exertion at Its Close—All Demonstration Records Broken by the National Democratic Convention —Eight Are Disqualified.

Denver, Col., July 9.—Bryan enthusiasm was vented yesterday and it was a record breaker in the way of a demonstration.

For one hour and nineteen minutes, with seven minutes more of exploding echoes of the clamor, did the convention applaud and applaud and applaud and applaud and applaud and applaud and then again applaud and applaud the name and fame of the Peerless Leader.

The outburst followed a fervid eulogy of the Nebraskan by Senator Gore.

The Chicago record hullaboo for Roosevelt was beaten out by 39 minutes.

It was a decisive exhibition of overmastering strength of the Bryan column, and one of the most dramatic convention pictures ever presented, as the standards of the states were torn from their moorings and borne through the hall until they stood together on the platform, like an army of banners, proclaiming their united allegiance to Bryan.

Amid this storm of Bryan demonstration the six standards of New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Georgia, Minnesota and Connecticut stood rooted in their places and rallying points of little groups unmoved by the frenzied scenes about them.

Throughout the hour and nineteen minutes the deafening uproar continued, ebbing and flowing in enthusiasm. A woman joined with the men bearing the Bryan standards aloft, while the whole assemblage of 12,000 people joined in the tumultuous demonstration.

The early session lasted three hours and then worn out with exertion and lacking the material to proceed with the business the convention adjourned until to-night.

The credentials committee unseated eight of Col. Guffey's anti-Bryan Pennsylvania delegates, thus reversing the complexion of the Pennsylvania delegation from anti-Bryan to Bryan.

Killed For Belt of Gold.

Vancouver, July 9.—A special from Dawson states that Ned Elfors, murderer of David Bergman, was sentenced to be hanged. The trial was commenced on Monday, before Judge Craig and a jury of six men.

At the trial it was shown that Bergman, who was murdered for a belt of gold, 11 miles above Selkirk early in June, had made a desperate struggle for his life. Enclosed by dense forests upon rugged ground, carpeted with leaves, Bergman met his doom. The murderer had hidden the victim's body in a hollow, over canopied with willows.

Emil Anderson, the man who fled from the scene of the crime with a bullet wound in his jaw, told the dramatic story of Elfors' guilt.

PRAYED FOR FIRE.

Chicago Resort Burned Twelve Hours After Preacher's Invocation.

Chicago, July 9.—Twelve hours after Rev. George Edward Lewis, in a public prayer, asked that the amusement resorts of Irving Park, where liquor is served, might "be burned to the ground," Excelsior Park was consumed by fire; loss $50,000.

The prayer was offered at a revival meeting of the Emmanuel Congregational Church, held in a tent within three blocks of Excelsior Park.

Proprietors of other parks in the neighborhood admitted last night that they were both puzzled and frightened. They also declared that they have taken precautions to protect their properties. The effect of the preacher's words and the actual burning of one of their rivals in business have hastened a general expurgation of the faults touched on by "the queer one," as they call the minister.

Farmer Missing.

Toronto, July 9.—A mysterious disappearance has been reported from Powassan, Ont., to the Attorney-General's Department. It is stated that it is the third recent case of the kind.

A man named Chambers has been missing since June 12. He is a farmer owning valuable property, and leaves his wife and nine-year-old daughter.

Five months ago his present wife, a Mrs. Potter, came to Powasson, and Chambers married her after a few hours' acquaintance. Mrs. Chambers then introduced her own daughter, a Mrs. Ash, and her husband, to the new home, with results which are not believed to have been conducive to amiability.

"If anything happens to me and I never come back, you keep my little girl," is what Chambers said to his wife, she declares, before his disappearance.

J. R. Cartwright, K.C., Deputy Attorney-General, is investigating the case.

Inspector Sues Minister.

Kingston, July 9.—Charging that the minister slandered him, Wm. C. Wright, local liquor license inspector, has entered suit against Rev. Dr. T. E. Burke, pastor of Brock street Methodist Church.

The two met on the market square a few days ago and had a wordy conflict. Rev. Mr. Burke charged the inspector with not doing his duty, and also made statements concerning what he had been told about Mr. Wright's actions. Mr. Wright forcibly demanded proof and his remarks will probably end in a counter-charge preferred by the minister of using profane language on the streets.

Mr. Burke does not know the difference between force and profanity in language, says Mr. Wright.

BOATS RACED OVER LAKE SUPERIOR

Thrilling Struggle of Speed by Fresh Water Steamers.

BATTLED ALL THE NIGHT

Steamed Across Superior in a Royal Contest Between British and Canadian Built Boats — Vessels Had Been "Laying For" Each Other —National Significance to the Contest—Made Good Time.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., July 9.—The most thrilling marine race in the memory of upper lake mariners was concluded early yesterday morning with the arrival of the steamers Assiniboia (C.P.R.) and Huronic (Northern Navigation Co.), the former a winner by a few minutes only.

Leaving Fort William at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, the Assiniboia, with four minutes' start, the big steamers tore through the waters of Lake Superior for 16 hours, for a distance of 27 miles between ports.

With smoke belching from their funnels in heavy streams and engines pounding like the feet of hundreds of running horses, with spray dashing from their bows and crowds of excited passengers leaning over the sides and cheering lustily, the rivals kept at it all through the night, passengers remaining on deck throughout in the excitement of the contest.

The Huronic was built at the yards of the Collingwood Shipbuilding Co. and is the product of Canadian industry.

The Assiniboia is a Clyde-built steamer and crossed the ocean last fall under her own steam, being cut in two to pass up the canals, and was rejoined at Buffalo. Both are new vessels and the most modern specimens on the great lakes. Each steamer is about 350 feet in length and is designed for freight and passenger traffic. Their capacity is about 4,500 tons.

The race has something of a national significance. Canadian shipbuilding interests were disappointed when the C.P.R. decided to have the Assiniboia and her sister ship Keewatin built in British shipyards. In fact the Collingwood Shipbuilding Co. guaranteed to build the vessels up to specifications and deliver them on time at a small profit over the cost of production.

The C.P.R. people, however, decided to send the orders across the Atlantic as the most economical policy.

There can be no question of the superior quality of both the Huronic and Assiniboia. Their speed is almost the same, to within the small fraction of a knot and they cost nearly half a million dollars each.

Since the advent of the Assiniboia the Huronic has been literally "laying for" her big rival, and it was more than a coincidence that the steamers left port one right on the other's trail.

At 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon both vessels steamed out of Port Arthur, the Assiniboia four minutes in the lead.

At Thunder Cape there was no change, the Assiniboia still leading.

A steamer which arrived at Port Arthur Wednesday morning reported that the Huronic was neck and neck with her rival, smoke and flames were pouring out of the funnel of the Assiniboia and both boats were being forced ahead at record speed.

Yesterday morning the Soo was all excitement and many citizens rose earlier than usual to see the boats pull in, and were rewarded by a sight that could scarcely be surpassed in a horse race.

The Assiniboia arived at the canal some minutes before the Huronic and then decided to go through the American locks. The passage was delayed owing to the fact that three boats were waiting to go through. The Huronic passed through the Canadian locks and was at the New Ontario dock when the Assiniboia steamed down the river to the Government dock. This shows that the race was hotly contested, although the officers on the Assiniboia claim that they arrived at the locks about eight minutes before the Huronic, getting in at 5.30. The Assiniboia did not arrive at the Government dock until 7.20.

Passengers on the Huronic say the Assiniboia beat the Huronic by about the same distance that was between the vessels when they pulled out of Port Arthur Tuesday afternoon.

May Be Suicide's Body.

Kenora, July 9.—The body of a man was found floating near the shore on the Winnipeg river by some small boys who were fishing near that point Tuesday. The remains have been identified as that of A. Foster, an Englishman, who is supposed to have committed suicide by drowning last June.

Acquitted of Murder.

Glace Bay, N.S., July 9.—The trial of Maurice Gouthro and Donald J. McKinnon at Sydney on the charge of murdering Clifford Murphy concluded Tuesday night. The judge's charge strongly favored the accused and the jury returned a verdict of not guilty after ten minutes' deliberation.

Bonus For Hudson Bay Railway.

Ottawa, July 9.—Dan Mann has been here two days. It is said he wants to build the Hudson Bay Railway, but on his own terms and for a bonus of $15,000 a mile. The Government is offering $6,400.

Murder of Stockman.

Alliance, Neb., July 9.—Emil Sandoz, a well-known stockman of Pine Creek, several miles northeast of here, was killed by F. E. Newman, a hired man on a neighboring ranch.

Count Wants His Children.

Paris, July 9.—Count Boni de Castellane, whose former wife, Madame Anna Gould of New York, was married Tuesday in London to Prince Helie de Sagan, the count's cousin, has opened what promises to be a sensational legal battle for the possession of his three children, the offspring of his marriage with Miss Gould.

WOULD-YOU-LIKE-TO-READ-THE-STORY OF-THE FURNACE?

Just write on a postcard, "Send Booklet A," and mail to nearest branch. The rest we'll gladly attend to.

—Just how correct principles say it should be constructed?

—Just why no other plan of construction will do?

—Just wherein lies its ability to be easy on fuel, quick in action, simple in operation?

The story is briefly told in a little booklet called "Furnace Facts." It's not an advertisement. No furnace name is mentioned, and you can read the whole story in 5 minutes.

To the party contemplating purchasing a furnace it points out the snags and pitfalls, and shows exactly what to demand of an architect, contractor or dealer, in furnace construction and installation.

Resolution Of Condolence Extended To Ald. Phelan

The City Council Passes Resolution Expressing Their Sympathy in Fellow Aldermen's Recent Bereavement

TO ATTEND THE FUNERAL

Before any business was commenced by the Council at yesterday's meeting, reference was made to the recent bereavement which Ald. Phelan had suffered in the loss of his wife. Sincere sympathy was expressed for him and his little son, and the following motion was passed:

Moved by Ald. Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Morrow,

That this Council express to Ald. Phelan the deep sympathy of the members with him in the sad bereavement he has been called upon to suffer by the death of his wife, which occurred last night, and also their sympathy with his young son, and assure them that they have the sincere sympathy of the whole community in the loss they have sustained of a loving wife and mother, and that this Council attend the funeral in a body as a mark or respect for the deceased lady and to show their sympathy with the bereaved family.

Peterborough, Wednesday, July 8th, 1908.

Carried by standing vote.

City Council Held Daylight Meeting Yesterday Evening

By-laws Were Passed—Communications Received and Routine Business Transacted — Application for Position of Assistant Fire Chief

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

The City Council held a daylight session yesterday, beginning at h o'clock. Mayor Rush was in the chair and the following members were around the board: Ald. Bradburn, Buller, Gillespie, Johnston, Elliott, Morgan, McIntyre, Morrow and Neill.

A communication was received from Filip Nitra, a Macedonian, asking for a rebate on his license fee of forty dollars, which he had paid for the privilege of peddling with a pushcart in the city. He contended that the police would not allow him to peddle on George street, which he considered would be the same source of revenue when he took out the license. It was moved by Ald. Morgan and Johnston that Mr. Nitra be refunded his money less the proportion for the two weeks mentioned.—Carried.

A statement was received from the Bank of Toronto, stating that the city's debit at the last day of June was $61,912.50.—Received.

Mr. S. R. Armstrong, secretary of the Charity Board, wrote asking the Council to advance on account of their grant, $500 to pay for wood purchased, to be used next winter. On motion of Ald. Buller and Neill, a cheque was ordered to be drawn for the above sum.

No Change to Canal

The following reply was received regarding the request to straighten the entrance to the look at Young's Point, and other changes in those waters:

Ottawa, June 24, 1908.

Sir,—Refegring to the certified copy of a resolution passed by the Council of the city of Peterborough on the 1st inst., asking to have the entrance to the lock at Young's Point straightened and widened, the entrance to the canal at Lakefield widened and the pier removed, I am directed to inform you that on inquiry, it does not appear that the conditions at Young's Point are otherwise than satisfactory, provided the route is known to those navigating the canal.

The department at present cannot incur any expenditure in connection with the widening of the entrance to the look at Lakefield, nor is it considered necessary.

Your obedient servant,
L. K. JONES,
Secretary, Department Railways and Canals.

Application for Assistant

The following application was received from Mr. W. Pakenham, applying for the position of assistant fire chief:

Peterborough, June 23, 1908.

Gentlemen,—Knowing that your honourable body has undertaken to reorganize the fire brigade, and that you have appointed a chief, I respectfully submit to you my application for the position of assistant chief. I think I am not presumptuous in saying that so far I have discharged the duties assigned to me to the best of my ability, and I am most desirous to continue to render faithful and loyal service to my city, in which I have spent over thirty years. I will do all I can to assist the promotion of the efficiency of the fire brigade, and am prepared to render every support to the proper authorities. Hoping to recieve your favourable consideration, I am,

Your obedient servant,
W. PAKENHAM.

Requests for Light

Mr. Austin, of Weller street, was present and asked for an improvement in the street lighting in his vicinity. Referred to Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Mr. J. A. Harper, secretary of the Regimental Band, wrote, asking for the usual grant.—Referred to Finance Committee.

Mr. McIlmoyle's Claim

Mr. W. A. McIlmoyle, market clerk last year, presented a petition asking for a rebate and quoting instances to show that he had not received fair treatment during the year in which he was clerk, and stating that he had been prevented from making money by the action of the city officials. Mr. Bradburn stated that the Property Committee had refused to deal with the matter. It was received.

Mr. W. J. Green's request for an increase in salary was received.

By-laws Passed

The following by-laws received their several readings and were passed:

By-Law No. 1399, authorizing grant of $400 to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition.—Carried.

By-Law No. 1400, authorizing the amendment of the agreement regarding the refuse grounds.—Carried.

The meeting was on motion adjourned.

MEN ARE POWERLESS

To Fight Against Diseases Unless They Strike at the Underlying Cause

To treat dandruff and falling hair with irritants or oils, upon which a parasitic germ will prosper, is like scooping water from the ocean to prevent the tide from rising.

You cannot accomplish a satisfactory cure without having a right understanding of the fundamental causes of the trouble.

You must kill the Dandruff Germ. Newbro's Herpicide does this because it is specially made to do that very thing.

When the germ is removed, the hair has no choice but to resume healthy growth and beauty.

"Destroy the cause, you remove the effect."

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes, 50c and $1. McDermid & Jury and the Market Drug Store, Special Agents.

GARDEN PARTY HELD AT FRASERVILLE

A Pleasant Event Realized—Absence of Football Team

The Salvation Army Band furnished the music last night at the garden party at Fraserville in connection with the Fraserville Methodist church of which Rev. Mr. Wetherill is the pastor. The band, according to a report from there, was most favourably received. Speeches, recitations, etc., were also on the programme, while strawberries and ice cream were conspicuous among the refreshments. The receipts, too, were satisfactory.

A football game was to have taken place between Springville and Cavanville, but the latter did not appear. The Springville boys were disappointed as they felt they could trim their rivals and attribute their non-appearance to what is colloquially termed "cold feet."

HOUSE FAT—A VITAL PROBLEM

Shall a fat woman decide during the sweltering evenings of midsummer to sit on the porch corseted and asphyxiated but presentable; or shall she take off her harness and garner a little comfort at the expense of a few pounds more of house fat? Here is a problem as momentous as Hamlet's "To be or not to be."

Hamlet ended where he began, however, whereas fat folks can solve their hot weather problem; they can reduce.

This does not mean hard work through exercise or a course of ascetic dieting, though. It does not mean one must take a chance of ruining his stomach with "secret" advertised "remedies." All one has to do is take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime of the following simple harmless mixture: 1-2 ounce Marmola, 3-4 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and 4 3-4 ounces Syrup Simplex, and in a reasonable time the loss of fat should amount to 12, or even 16 ounces a day. This home method of reducing flesh quickly and safely gets results without disturbing one's regular diet or the formation of wrinkles, and these advantages, combined with the fact that any druggist will fill it for a small sum, make this receipt unique.

A BRIDGE TO BE BUILT AT NORWOOD

On Victoria Street—It Will be 45 by 16 Feet

A committee comprising the Warden and Messrs. Brown, Russell, Oakman, Breault, and Darling, together with the county engineer, visited Victoria street bridge, Norwood, Wednesday, July 8. It was decided to erect a new bridge, the abutments to be concrete, with steel superstructure. The length of the bridge will be forty five feet and the width of the driveway will be sixteen feet with a sidewalk for pedestrians of five feet. The driveway is to be so constructed that when a new roadway is required it may be of cement. Tenders will be asked for the erection of this bridge as soon as the plans are prepared.

LARGE CROWD AT GARDEN PARTY IN OTONABEE

Many Attended From Peterborough—In Connection With St. Mark's Church

On Wednesday evening the annual garden party, under the auspices of St. Mark's congregation, was held on the spacious grounds of Mr. and Mrs. John Dixon, Drummond station. About 400 people were in attendance.

The weather was all that could be desired, so that the evening could be thoroughly enjoyed. Tea was served on the grounds; a refreshment booth was also on hand, which was well patronized. After the tea a short programme of vocal and instrumental music was given from the verandah. Mr. Joshua Matthison made an excellent chairman. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt and Mr. Johnson gave short speeches. Quite a number of Peterborough people were present.

Some people look upon tea as a mere drink. It all depends upon the tea. "Salada" Tea is a delicious and refreshing beverage. Sold only in sealed lead packets. 65

PETES HAVE A CRIPPLED CREW NOW

Murphy and O'Brien Both Injured in the Games this Week

The Peterboroughs will soon be in as bad shape as Kelly's Toronto cripples. Left Fielder Murphy is out of the game as the result of a badly injured knee, due to a twist given that member while sliding into third, during the game with Whitby on Tuesday. In the Port Hope game yesterday Fritz O'Brien, who has been playing third base, got in the way of one of Sarphia' shoots and as a result had the ligaments of his shoulder badly bruised. In addition Short Stop Maddock gave his injured ankle another twist yesterday, and all three are in bad shape.

WEDDING BELLS.

HARPER—ALLEN

On July 1st at 2.30 o'clock a wedding of interest to many was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Allen, Smith, when their daughter, Clara, was united in marriage to Mr. Ernest C. Harper, eldest son of Mr. James Harper, of Camborne. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Bedford, of Lakefield, in the presence of about one hundred guests. The bride, wearing a pretty cream dress of Sattoy, trimmed with lace and insertion, entered the drawing room on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Flossie Harper, sister of the groom. The bride wore the usual bridal veil caught up with white roses, and carried a handsome bouquet of white carnations. The bridesmaid, Miss Ethel Allen, sister of the bride, was prettily attired in cream Venetian and carried pink carnations. The groom was supported by his cousin, Mr. Dawson Sherwin, of Harwood. Little Miss Wilda Pethick, niece of the bride, acted as flower girl, while Master Eric, brother of the groom, carried the ring.

The usual wedding supper followed the tying of the nuptial knot. The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful gifts, showing the high esteem in which the young couple are held. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome cheque; to the bridesmaid a gold bracelet set with amethysts and pearls; to the groomsman a stick pin; to the flower girl a pearl brooch, and to the page a pin set with pearls.

Early in the evening the bridal couple, amid showers of oats and good wishes, left for their future home at Camborne, the bride wearing a travelling suit of brown, with leather trimming and a large picture hat.

PORTER—BRADLEY

Manvers village was yesterday afternoon the scene of a very pretty wedding, it being the occasion of the marriage of Miss Lena Margaret Bradley, daughter of Mr. Douglas Bradley, of that place, to Mr. Charles Herbert Porter, salesman with the wholesale firm of Gordon McKay & Company, Limited, Toronto, and son of Mr. Wm. Porter, merchant at Manvers. The ceremony was a most interesting one as both the bride and groom are very popular among their numerous friends. It was performed by Rev. Dr. Marsh, pastor of the Springville Presbyterian Church, on the lawn in front of the residence of the bride's father at 2.30 o'clock. The setting was made more beautiful by an archway of evergreens trimmed with red, white and blue. The bride was given away by her father. She was attired in a dress of fine mull trimmed with lace insertion and she carried a bouquet of cream bridal roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Mabel Bradley. The groomsman was Mr. Wm. Norman Porter, brother of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Porter were the recipients of a handsome array of presents, betokening their popularity. The groom received from his associates in the mail order department of the Gordon McKay Company, Limited, a solid mahogany settee upholstered in silk. After the wedding dinner the happy couple left on the five o'clock train for Toronto, from where they will take a honeymoon trip up the great lakes. The bride's travelling suit was of gray Venetian and an Alice blue hat. They will reside in Toronto.

Secondly: We have the most complete factory in a retail optical store in Canada.

Thirdly: We buy from the manufacturer only and pay prompt cash for our purchases

THE ST. JOHN'S SUNDAY SCHOOL EXCURSION

A Pleasant Time Spent at South Beach Resort Yesterday

Yesterday's trip over the lift lock to Clear Lake, taken by St. John's Sunday school scholars and their parents was a pronounced success and one of the most enjoyable in the history of the school. Although cold in the morning, towards noon lovely weather appeared, and the picnic scene in the beautiful grounds of South Beach was very pretty, an number of cameras having a busy time recording it.

About twenty races were run off under the direction of Messrs. Mills, Conway, Devey, Walkey and Armstrong, many pleasing novelties on the racing programme giving the children a happy time until 4 p.m., the hour of starting for home.

Quite a number of promising musicians kept the piano going and a happy time was spent by all on board.

Business Men's trip to Idyl Wyld to-morrow, Friday, July 10th. Otonabee leaves at 1.30 p.m. All business and professional men invited. 1d

Fair Weather At Stony Lake Suddenly Turns To Frigid And Arctic Apparel Absent

Many Purchased Thermometers—Pleasant Weather Returns—The Several Campers Under Canvas

COTTAGES ARE FILLING UP

Examiner Special

Stony Lake, July 9.—"From Greenland's icy mountains, from India's coral strand." The words of the old familiar hymn, with the lines reversed, are descriptive of the weather of Tuesday and Wednesday at Stony Lake. Tuesday it was a case of wearing only enough clothing to prevent sunburn and be respectable, while on Wednesday morning there was a wild scramble for heavy clothing, and a groan when it was discovered that those buckskin mitts had been left with the moth balls at home. 'Tis said there was a big sale of thermometers at the store that morning on account of their being so low.

The fascination of the aborigine's mode of living apparently appeals to many, and in a section of the country such as this, where the conditions at this season are most favourable to such a life, there are few who do not feel the attraction, or would be adverse to spending a "moon" or two à la "Injun."

Numerous parties are now under canvas about the lake. Three or four have located on Juniper Island and others are scattered on the islands and main shores.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Mansell and Miss Lillian Mansell, Toronto, are at "Chateau du Lac."

Mr. and Mrs. J. Nugent and Miss McBurney of Peterborough are at Mr. Nugent's cottage, "Meda Wambeek."

A tenting party consisting of Mr. H E Saxby, Mr. J P Porter and Mr. F S Giroux, Peterborough, have camped on Juniper Island.

Misses Florence and Gladys Cameron, Peterborough, are with the party at Syndicate Island.

Messrs. L. B. and Hugh B. McFarlane, Toronto, are guests of Mr. J. S. Knapman at "Forest Home."

Mr. Harold Meldrum, Peterborough, is at "Cairndhu" cottage for the season.

Misses Marion and Grace Stewart of Toronto are guests of Mr. Frank Rice at "Grassy Isle."

Miss Beatrice Geddes of Sarnia is a guest of Miss Meldrum at "Cairndhu."

Messrs. Reg. D Murduff and J E Richardson of Lakefield and Albert L. Reeves of London, Eng., are at "Sea Breeze" cottage.

Misses Edith White, Florence Wood, Grace Snowball and R D Snowball of Toronto are at Eagle Mount.

Messrs. H. Dunkerley of Toronto, C Warne and E Goodfellow, Peterborough, are at "Idle Side" cottage.

Mr. M. Grahame Joy and Miss Margaret Cassels of Toronto are guests of Hon. L H Grahame at "Kiluna."

Messrs. G. Hayes and J K Gilmour of Brockville, are at "Britannia."

Mr. and Mrs. F H Lingwood of Simcoe, Ont., are guests at "Kushaqua."

Miss Lillian L. Blain, Miss M S Campbell and Miss Lilla Campbell of Niagara Falls, N.Y., are at "Minnewawa."

Mr. and Mrs. T C Elliott and Misses Vega and Jean Elliott of Peterborough are at "Lansdowne Hall."

Messrs. Claude Rogers, Garnet Greer and A H Munro of Peterborough are at "Inglewood."

Among those at Mr. T. Barrie's cottage, "Ishpeming," are Mr. and Mrs. R E Layfield, Mrs. Pigeon, Miss A. Pigeon, Miss H. Brundrette, Miss J. Layfield and Master C P Layfield, all of Peterborough.

Messrs. G. Bernard Schemler and Walter A. Stewart of Rochester are spending a couple of weeks at Mount Julian Hotel.

Messrs. F C and F. M. Dela Fosse of Lakefield are spending a couple of weeks at "Fair Haven."

Mr. S. Henderson and Miss Henderson of Toronto came down this week and are at their cottage, "Kawartha," for the season.

Wednesday's Session Includes Many Addresses of Interest—China as Shown in Limelight Views, In Evening

AN EXCURSION TO-NIGHT

Special Staff Correspondence.

Chemong, July 9.—After the opening prayer and praise service in charge of the president, Rev. E. N. Baker continued the Bible Study from the previous forenoon on "The Atonement of Christ," and the hour proved one of great spiritual blessing to all present.

Dr. Crews' lecture on "Missionary Work in the Sunday School," was a strong argument in favour of persistent effort along the lines of missionary education among the rising generation of church workers.

The Mission Study Classes were noted to be larger and of deeper interest than the previous morning.

Rev. R. McCullagh, of Omemee, President of the Bay of Quinte Conference, gave a helpful address, taking for his subject, Confidence; its education and quickening on the Word of Truth.

"Universal Kingdom," the dream of the human mind from the beginning of history, its realization and the vision of its coming," was the subbject of an excellent address by Rev. H. V. Mounteer, chairman of Cannington District.

Evening Programme

In the evening the school gathered at seven for the Round Top Talk, conducted by Rev. H. W. Foley, of Bobcaygeon.

The evening session was opened by the usual devotional service, after which Mr. Stubbs, of Peterborough, gave a limelight trip through the mission lands in China, the detailed explanations of the views being given by Mr. G. C. R. McQuade, of Omemee. The crowds in the pavilion were delighted with the evening's entertainment, and the school feels very grateful towards Mr. Stubbs.

The programme for to-day is:

CITY FATHERS MAKE GRANT OF $100 TOWARDS QUEBEC FUND

Peterborough will be represented among the other cities of the Dominion in the Quebec Battlefields' Fund. At the council meeting yesterday evening it was unanimously decided on motion of Ald. Neill and Gillespie that the city contribute the sum of $100 towards that fund. It was felt that the money was for a good purpose, and not only was it thought that the spirit of national patriotism which the idea should foster was most worthy of assistance, but it was also considered that it was keeping the city in its place among the other cities of the Dominion, and would therefore be a slight advertisement. Ald. Elliott and Ald. Neill remarked that Peterborough should not be delinquent in this enterprise and all the people recognized the importance of the event which the park and monument are intended to commemorate.

Will Open A Moving Picture Show In The Times Building

It was reported to-day that Mr. M. Pappas has secured a thirteen year lease of the building now occupied by the Times Printing Company, and that he intends to open a moving picture show on the ground floor. This, it is learned, is correct and Mr. Pappas intends to make extensive improvements.

He will fit up the ground floor for a moving picture show and will reside on the second floor and rent the third story. Mr. Pappas will move from the rooms which he occupies at present on George street, over the shoe shine parlour and billiard room. These rooms upstairs which he will vacate will be fitted up as an additional billiard room and eight new tables will be put in. These changes which Mr. Pappas purposes making are very extensive, and cannot be begun until the printing establishment is removed.

MANY LEAVE FOR OLD COUNTRY

People Left on the Montreal Train To-day—Sail To-morrow

A noticeably large number of passengers for the old country took the C. P. R., 11.26 train to Montreal today. Some of them were for the Allen Liner Tunisian, which sails from Quebec to-morrow, but the majority were for the C. P. R. "Empress of Britain," sailing from Montreal tomorrow. The party that boarded the train at Peterborough was the largest that have started on the return to Liverpool in some time.

A PROLIFIC CURRANT BUSH

One Branch Contains About 14 Ounces of Fruit

The Examiner was shown the branch of a red currant bush to-day which certainly bears more than its normal amount of the ruddy fruit. It was gardened by Mr. Wm. Miles on the farm of Mr. Allum, Gravel road, North Monaghan, and the single branch contains about fourteen ounces of fruit. It was grown beneath a tree in a shady spot, otherwise the crop would have been greater. The birds, too, have had their usual tenth. The currant is known as the "Fay's Prolific."

BESSIE BUTLER GETTING NEW WHEEL

Now at Bobcaygeon—Are Painting the Bridges—Movements of Boats

The government steamers are busy yet on the Trent Canal. The Bessie Butler is idle, but not for long. Her old iron wheel is being replaced by a new steel one, and as soon as this is completed she will come down to Lakefield for a scow load of cement for the north division. She was engaged last week in the placing of buoys in the Otonabee River, which work is now completed.

The Bob Hall came down the canal to-day with a load of material from the north, and the Empire is attending the dredge Emmerson, just south of the Lakefield lock.

The canal painters are now at Hale's Bridge making the swing there look brighter and they expect to have this, as well as the swing on the Benafort Bridge finished by Saturday night.

WHAT BEAUTIFUL HAIR!

How often do we hear that exclamation of a certain woman's hair or a certain man's hair. Some prominent adjective and hair specialist emphatically states, and has proven, that any man or woman can have luxuriant, lustrous hair, by using a famous prescription called Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage is now made and sold in Canada. Wm. Madill, the druggist, is the agent in Peterborough, and th readers of the Examiner can buy from him for only 50 cents a large bottle.

Wm. Madill knows that Parisian Sage will beautify the hair, cure dandruff and stop falling hair, and that reason he sells it under a guarantee to cure or money back.

If you cannot obtain Parisian Sage where you live, you can get a bottle for 50 cents from Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont., express charges prepaid.

Dear Sir,---We beg to acknowledge receipt of cheque for $2,500.00 in settlement of fire loss, Policy 8,645,879, Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company.

We note in connection with this settlement a most unusual feature. They are legally entitled to 1% of stated sum for payment prior to due date. No business man would for one moment question their right to this amount. But they do not take it. Instead they have purposely waived their privileges and presented us with this additional amount.

We are gratified to note this remarkable action. To adjust and settle a loss within twelve days is noteworthy, but to add to this magnanimity in refusing to take advantage of their discount privileges places this company in a most favorable position.

We congratulate you upon representing a company of such superior standing.

Petes Won Loosely Played Game From Port Hope

Score Was 9-8 in Favour of the Homesters Who Were Five Ahead Until the Eighth Innings—Four Pitchers Were Used

THE FIELDING WAS ERRATIC

By 9 runs to 8, the same score by which they were defeated in Port Hope on Dominion Day, the Petes yesterday afternoon turned the tables on the lakeshore bunch in a loosely played game at Riverside Park. Up to the eighth the Petes led by 9 4, but two complimentaries, a similar number of wild pitches and three hits gave the visitors four runs and made the finish more exciting than it promised to be. The fielding on both sides was not above the average, and the Petes won because they hit oftener and bunched their bingles better than did the visitors, who collected but seven singles during the game. Both teams used two twirlers. Clements worked the first six innings for Peterborough and held the visitors to four hits in the period, while three were made off Hawkins in the last three chapters. Each of the pitchers gave three complimentaries, and as errors were obligingly worked in with the rest, the explanation of the eight runs made by Port Hope is easy.

The veteran Surphlis was touched up for seven singles during the six innings he occupied the slab, and when Jack Wilson, the ex London, Ont., pitcher, was sent out in the seventh, the Petes went after him for five more safeties. O'Brien fattened his average with three hits, while Maddock, Hawkins, Clements and Craig had two each.

The Athletics were represented on both teams. Murphy was off the Petes, laid up with a twisted knee, as a result of sliding into third on Tuesday, and Chris. Graham took his place, accepting the only chance he had nicely. Dubbie Shea played second for the visitors and hooked seven chances in faultless fashion, while he hit safely twice.

Pretty throws from the outfield by Burns, Jack Wilson and Rowden, cutting runs off at the plate, a fast double play, Maddock to Clements to Lawson, and two pretty catches by Burns in left were the fielding features.

The Petes got away to a good start, scoring four in the first. Burns was safe on O'Toole's error and stole second. Graham was walked. Both scored on Maddock's timely single. Edmunds drove out a bingle and O'Brien hit to Dunn, Maddock being forced at third. Lawson struck out, but Hawkins was there with a pretty single, sending Edmunds and O'Brien across. He was out stealing second.

Two more were scored in the fifth when O'Brien singled and stole second, going to third on Lawson's safety and scoring on Hawkins' sacrifice. Lawson stole second and scored on Craig's single between short and second. Craig was out at the plate when he tried to score from second on Clements' single to centre.

In the seventh a base on balls to Edmunds, singles by O'Brien, Hawkins and Clements, and Surphlis' error on Lawson's bunt gave the Petes three more.

The visitors did not score until the third, when they annexed three with two out. Passes to W. Wilson and Dunn, errors by Maddock and Hawkins and hits by Hudson and Andrews werer esponsible for the damage. Port Hope got another in the seventh on errors by O'Brien, and four in the eighth when a single by Hudson, an error by Maddock, bases on balls to O'Toole and W. Wilson and angles by Shea and Dunn with two wild pitches by Hawkins allowed four of the lakeshore bunch to cross the plate.

With one out in the ninth Hudson was walked, but Andrews hit to Maddock and the base runner was doubled up at second.

Rstiray of the Athletics umpired satisfactorily.

WILL ATHLETICS TURN TRICK ON PETERBOROS ON SATURDAY?

Will the Athletics trim the Petes on Saturday and by so doing place themselves within a few points of the league leadership? That is the question that is disturbing the local baseball world just now and will continue to do so until the two clubs at Riverside Park on the week end. The Athletics have done the trick once before this season and say they will do it again. While on the other hand, the Petes are confident of handing the Athletics a jolt that will send them down from the second rung of the ladder. The Petes may be handicapped by the absence of Murphy and O'Brien, both of whom are out of the game for the time being, as the result of injuries sustained in the games played this week. However, from both camps comes the report that the teams on Saturday will be strong and that the game will be one of the most bitterly fought contests ever pulled off on the local lot. Both teams need the game and may be depended to play ball from the drop of the hat.

The game is billed for three o'clock sharp and J. M. Rosevear, of Port Hope, will umpire the contest.

Y.M.C.A. CHEIFTAINS EASILY WON FROM PORT HOPE CHURCH TEAM

The Y.M.C.A. Chieftains, champions of the Junior Church League, had an easy time with the Methodist team from Port Hope yesterday, defeating the visitors at Nicholls Oval by the lop-sided score of 20 runs to 4. The visitors were never in the game a minute, although they were much older and bigger than the Chieftains. They could do nothing with Kirn who did not allow them a hit and gave but one base on balls. Had it not been for errors in the sixth and seventh, the visitors would have been shut out. On the other hand the Chieftains batted Dunsford all over the lot and the Port Hope fielding was loose into the bargain.

The teams were:

THE TRACK WILL BE 15 LAPS TO MILE

Mr. W. C. P. Heathcote Has Laid Out a Track in the Brock St. Rink

There was some dispute over the track in Lindsay on which Stacey made his record of twenty miles in three hours, and in order to avoid any doubt in connection with the big relay race, in which Stacey will meet five Peterborough men, George Stevens, manager of the walk, has had Mr. W. C. P. Heathcote lay out the track in the Brock street rink. He writes as follows:

George Stevens, Esq., City.

Dear Sir.—As desired by you I have this morning laid out a track of fifteen laps to the mile in the Brock street rink. I have laid it out on the following basis: The ends are two half circles 42 ft. in diam, the two together equalling 42x31416, which is 131.9472 feet. This multiplied by 15 equals 1979.2 feet. Each side is 140.09 feet long, which multiplied by thirty (two sides and fifteen laps), equals 3300.8 feet, the total being 5,280 feet. I have placed the line of posts twelve inches inside this line.

Yours truly,

W. C. P. HEATHCOTE.

Five men can be selected here that will give Stacey the race of his life and a big crowd will be on hand to see the contest, which will be one of the best ever pulled off here.

LOCAL CONDITIONS HAVE NO EFFECT

On the Sudden Rise and Fall of Water in the Bay of Quinte

The following despatch from Trenton appeared in last night's Toronto News:

Residents of the Bay front have been discussing of late a second problem of high water, which has raised the question whether or not there is a tide on the Bay of Quinte. A few mornings ago at Deseronto the water is said to have covered everything excepting the main line of railway at the wharf. An hour or so afterward the flood had disappeared and the water had returned to its usual level. Again the water rose, only to lower again a short time afterward. During the day the water rose and fell several times.

At Green Point early the following morning the boathouses were high and dry, with about 10 or 12 feet of beach between them and the water. A north-west wind was blowing whitecaps down the Long Reach, but it is a strange fact that chips thrown on the water floated northward against the wind and waves. Only a shot time afterwards the floors of the boathouses were again flooded and matters resumed their normal deluged condition. An old resident gave it as his opinion that a heavy westerly wind blowing on the lake was the cause of the water being forced into the bay.

Speaking of the above to Mr. J H McClellan to-day, he stated to the Examiner that local canal conditions had nothing to do with this peculiar state of affairs at Trenton.

MILL RUINS BURNED AT BUCKHORN

Supposed to Have Been Caused From Traction Engine Sparks

Buckhorn, July 10.—Fire broke out among the ruins of Culverwell's mill at Buckhorn, Monday evening and burned furiously Tuesday and Wednesday, until all inflammable material was consumed. Sparks from a nearby traction engine are supposed to have started the fire. The loss will consist chiefly of lumber and ties piled in close proximity to the mill.

Work is steadily progressing on the new government dam here and the leakage has been stopped. The exhaust of the steam drill is unceasing.

The steamer Cora spent part of Wednesday here before making her way up to Sturgeon Point and Lindsay.

A large number of river drivers are seen around town from the drives in the lakes below and above here.

NELSON WON $14,000 IN FIGHT

Prize Fighting is at Any Rate a Paying Game

San Francisco, July 10.—"Battling" Nelson, who knocked out Joe Gans in seventeen rounds at Colma on Saturday afternoon, not only won the legitimate lightweigh championship title, but he is also said to have cleaned up more than $14,000.

The gross receipts of the fight, according to the figures given out by Jim Coffroth, manager of the club, amount to $24,531. Of thus sum the fighters received seventy per cent., $17,171.70, as they fought on a basis of sixty per cent. to the winner and forty to the loser, Nelson, for being the victor, was handed $10,303.68. Nelson won several thousand dollars by betting on himself, it is said.

JOHN DIXON RELEASED FROM JAIL

By Order of Mr. Justice Clute—Was Serving 30 Days

Mr. Justice Clute yesterday morning gave orders releasing two men now serving time. One of them is John Dixon of Harvey township, who was serving thirty days in the jail at Peterborough on a charge of having failed to provide for the support of his wife and two children. He was released on consent of the Attorney-General's Department.

Mr. D O'Connell of the firm of O'Connell & Gordon represented Mr. Dixon in Toronto yesterday.

THE TRAIN KILLED EIGHT HEAD OF CATTLE

On Track West of Norwood—Broke From Their Field

Eight head of cattle were killed on the C.P.R. track, west of Norwood, a few days ago. They belonged to Mr. John Murphy, of Smith, and were pasturing on a lot in Dummer owned by him. The animals broke out of the field and strayed on to the track.

INMATE OF HOUSE OF REFUGE DIES

Passes Away at Age of 86 Years From Old Age

This morning an inmate of the House of Refuge died from the infirmities of old age. His name was Argue, he came from Dummer township, and was 86 years of age. He had been an inmate from the opening of the Refuge. If the remains are not claimed by relatives or friends they will be interred in the burial plot attached to the House of Refuge.

SOMEONE GUILTY OF A MEAN OFFENSE

Opened Stable Doors at Hastings and Let Out the Horses

Hastings, July 10.—(Special).—It seems that there is no end to the depredation that some rascals will commit, and last Friday night an individual who should either be in jail or a lunatic asylum was guilty of an offence which should be punished if its perpetrator can be found.

This fiend entered the stables of the Clarendon House by prying off the staple, and opened a box stall by the same method, and untied a hackney stallion which was put up there, and released him, as well as another animal.

The horses not not been long out when Mr. Jack Sullivan, who was sitting up with Mr. John Butler, who was sick upstairs, noticed the animals on the street and awakened the driver, who lost no time in getting his charge back into his quarters.

The horses did not get loose by themselves as both halter shanks were loose and untied.

The night before the Spellman House store house was broken into and three kegs of beer taken. The parties smashing off the lock and putting on a new one in its place.

BOILER FROM HASTINGS FOR STONY LAKE BOAT

Was Taken Up This Week for Mr. A. L. Dunford

Hastings, July 10.—(Special.) — Mr Chas. Plant started for Stony Lake on Monday with an eight-horse-power tubular boiler, which has been constructed at the Hastings foundry for Mr. A. L. Dunford of Hall's Glen. The boiler will be used in a steamer which Mr. Dunford is running on Stony Lake.

ARTISTIC FRAME FITTING

and satisfied customers are our best advertisements. A perfect correction is often spoiled by ignorance in fitting or selecting the frame. Great care and exact calculation is necessary in taking facial measurements, that the eye may look exactly through the centre of the glasses. A careful study of styles with cosmetical effect enables one with special skill such as we possess to select a satisfactory frame that improves, rather than detracts from the personal appearance of the wearer. PAIR OF PEDESTRIANS PASS THROUGH DOURO ON WAY FROM HUDSON CITY TO MONTREAL

Appearances seem to point to the time when pedestrianism will again be the mode, and when buggies, bicycles, trains and motor cars will belong to the past. In yesterday's Examiner the long tramp from Winnipeg to Peterborough of John Perkins was referred to.

This morning it was learned from Douro that two men passed through there on their way from Hudson City at Hudson Bay, to Montreal. They were walking on a wager, but what it is they did not make it known at Douro.

The new men were Mr. John Towns, who is a first cousin of Mr. P. G. Towns, of Douro, also a well known walker, and Mr. Larcum. They left Hudson City some two and a half weeks ago and they have to make Montreal in five weeks.

They went through Douro this morning and stopped at Mr. Towns store for a drink. They came from Lakefield, remained but a few minutes in Douro and passed on down towards Hastings at a four mile an hour clip. They did not appear to be at all fatigued and are likely to finish their journey.

MEETING OF THE SOCIALISTS OF THIS CITY WILL BE ADDRESSED IN OPEN AIR MEETING TO-NIGHT

Mr. Wilfrid G. Gribble, the provincial organizer of the socialist party, is in the city for the purpose of forming a branch in Peterborough. An informal meeting was held last night and an open air street meeting will be held this evening after which, if it is found that there a sufficiently large number interested, an organization meeting will be held.

Mr. Briblbe this morning, in speaking briefly of the party, said that the socialist headquarters are at Brussels. An international congress is held every two years, and Mr. Gribble states that it is likely that the next congress will be held in Eastern Canada. Speaking of the growth of the party in Ontario, Mr. Gribble stated that at the second last provincial elections there was only one branch and that at Toronto. There are now five sub branches in Toronto. They are English, Jewish, Italian, Finnish and French. If a branch is formed in Peterborough it will be the fifteenth branch in the province. Mr. Gribble expects that there should be twenty or thirty socialists in Peterborough, and they should be at the meeting. The popular aim of socialism, Mr. Gribble says, is placing the workers in possession of the things they have to work with.

Hastings Appreciates The Coming Work On Canal

Expect to Have 300 Men Working There—Engineer's Reports Regarding Estimates Nearly Finished

BRIDGE AT THE NARROWS

Hastings, July 10.(Special.) — The Government will soon begin their operations here in making the Trent waterway on this section navigable to all kinds of craft, and also lift up the dams and bridges so that no further changes will be needed for years to come.

The engineer's reports regarding estimates are about finished and it is likely that in a couple of weeks tenders will be asked for not only the dredging in the river, but for a new concrete dam and locks for Hastings, as well as concrete approaches to the lock, a new concrete wharf and a concrete and steel bridge over the head of the race.

This means that work will be well under way before the snow flies and that in the neighbourhood of 350 men will have Hastings as headquarters for a couple of years.

The bridge at the Narrows will have a 100-foot span, and be near the shore instead of where it is now, and many of the small points which lengthen the journey to the Falls will be cut off.

When it is considered that over 300 additional men will be spending the greater part of their money here for the next couple of years, it looks pretty good to us, and we can't wish for this big undertaking to begin too soon.

MR. WALTER J. SQUIRES INJURED IN RAILWAY WRECK AT LONDON

Mr. Walter J. Squires of Toronto, son of Mr. Walter Squires, 75 Albert street, of this city, was injured in a head on railway collision at London on Wednesday evening. The following account of his injury appeared in last night's Toronto Star, accompanying his photograph.

W. J. Squires, of Toronto, who was injured by the fracturing of his knee in the head-on collision between the Windsor accommodation and a switch engine yesterday evening, will be confined to his bed for perhaps a couple of weeks.

Mr. Squires was sitting in the smoker, and had risen to get his grip when the shock came. He was thrown bodily on to the next seat, and his knee struck the edge of the seat, fracturing it, but not to the extent of permanent injury.

He was going to get off at London and is confined at present in the Victoria Hospital.

Mr. Jas. Squires, of this city, a brother, was in telephonic communication with him yesterday and learned that he was getting along favourably, and expected to soon be around again.

THURSDAY'S PROCEEDINGS AT THE KAWARTHA LAKE SUMMER SCHOOL

After the usual prayer and praise service of the Summer School at Chemong, the morning session yesterday was opened by Rev. A C Crews, D.D. talking for his talk "The Adult Bible Class Movement and Supplemental Lesson Course." He emphasized the importance of having organized classes in the Sunday Schools from primary to adult. He recommended a ten minute test familiarising the scholars with the books of the Bible and the Catechism. This being taken up regularly each Sunday in the School.

The Bible Study was then conducted by Rev. E N Baker, M.A., D.D., continuing his study in Hebrews, subject being "The Lesson of the High Priest's Garment." These studies aid greatly in giving a clearer interpretation of the truths contained in the Book.

The mission study classes then dispersed to their several rooms and continued their studies of their Mission Books.

In the afternoon addresses were given by Rev. Totten, of Fairmount, his text being "I will not eat until I have told my errand." He brought out forcibly that each one of us, not only ministers and Sunday School workers but all have a message or an errand from God which must be delivered. Rev. G W Henderson, of Peterborough, spoke very earnestly on "Women's Department to Christianity." He contrasted the condition of women in heathen lands with our own under Christian influences. Thus showing the blessing brought to womanhood by the religion of Christ.

The excursion in the evening to Bobaygeon was well patronized and enjoyed very much by all present.

TWo Aged Inmates Ran Away From County House Of Refuge

Two inmates of the County House of Refuge at Lakefield, evidently of the belief that they had not yet seen enough of the outside world, took French leave of the institution last night while a garden party was in progress. The two were Jas. Dunlavye and a man named Christian, and they succeeded in getting away undetected. This morning, when Superintendent Ed. Beavis and Mr. Robt. Scott, chairman of the Committee of Management, set out in search of the missing pair they found Dunlavey busily engaged in pitching hay on the farm of Mr. Frank Weir, Otonabee, some twelve miles from the House of Refuge. He had evidently made good time during the night. Dunlavey was persuaded to accompany the officials back to the institution, but no trace has yet been found of Christian. He is probably at some farm in the vicinity and will be located without trouble.

THE LIQUOR CASE WAS DISMISSED

Local Hotelkeeper Charged With Selling Liquor During Prohibited Hours

A charge against a local hotel keeper of allowing liquor to be sold on his premises during prohibited hours, was dismissed at police court this morning. Inspector Stewart testified that he had gone into defendant's hotel on Saturday night shortly after eight o'clock and had seen the bar keeper of the hotel shoving a bottle of whiskey into the pocket of a man who at first refused to give his name, but afterwards said that he was Robert Pue of South Monaghan.

Pue was put into the box by the defence, and stated that he with his cousin, a Mr. Moore, of Toronto, had each purchased a flask of liquor in the afternoon, and that the bartender was assisting him to put his cousin's bottle in his coat when the inspector arrived.

The magistrate dismissed the charge. Mr. Jas. Haverson, K.C., appeared for the defendant, and Mr. W. H. Moore, K.C., conducted the prosecution.

A BOON FOR CONSUMPTIVES.

In another column is found information of interest to persons afflicted with consumption, especially in its nascent stages. The King Edward Sanatorium for Consumptives, pleasantly situated on the Humber, near Toronto, has issued a revised schedule of rates, which brings the benefits of its treatment of consummptives within reasonable reach of moderate or even limited means. There are many persons, who, with a proper pride, are averse to accepting treatment in a free institution. To such the new schedule of rates opens an opportunity which should be taken advantage of. Experience has shown that sanatorium treatment, taken in time, can cure consumption. Modern medical science has made this possible. The importance of the subject is emphasized by the terrible mortality of tuberculous disease, which counts its victims greater than nearly all other diseases combined.

PROOF, NOT DENIAL, WANTED.

Our journalistic neighbour, the Review, continues its chatter about purity of Conservative electoral methods. It has made the claim of absolute straightness of conduct in the recent campaign, has challenged denial, and invited instances. To be neighbourly and obliging, the Examiner has supplied instances of actions, which do not square with the requirements of the Election Law. Our contemporary has made its claim; its claim has been contested. If it maintains its claim it must show cause. The onus of proof is on it. The Conservative party may not be called upon to prosecute itself; but it has made a claim which has been disputed. It remains for it to establish its claim, or take the consequences. Does our contemporary think everybody is so innocent as to think that the Conservative party has suddenly become angelic and that it can do no wrong? There was some reason for the Conservative candidate refusing to bind himself to conduct "a straight, clean election." The Examiner two or three days ago furnished some of the reasons. The Review contents itself with a simple denial. Proof, not denial, is what is required. Does our contemporary want the proof?

CIVIL SERVANTS IN POLITICS.

One excellent amendment adopted to the Civil Service bill in the House of Commons Monday was that providing that a civil servant, while free to exercise the franchise, shall not take an active part in election campaigns. The vast majority of civil servants themselves are likely to welcome this. They are not desirous of being actively identified with party warfare.

Two distinct conceptions of public service can be followed out.

One is the British idea, that public office is a public trust, the holder of which is purely a representative and servant of the whole people, gives value to the people, and expects recognition by permanence in office. Under this conception, a civil servant has no business to take an active share in partisan work.

The other is the United States idea, that public office is a party reward, given to a man because he has been a partisan. The doctrine is also accepted that he will be fired out as soon as the other side gets in. For both reasons,—gratitude to his party, and concern for himself —the office holder in the United States is expected and is anxious to work harder for his party than any ordinary member of it. In the recent Republican presidential convention in Chicago, out of nearly one thousand delegates, no less than one hundred and fifty or so were civil servants.

Canada seems to have made up its mind to follow the British idea rather than the American one. The Journal is inclined to think this choice good. The question is by no means one-sided. There is a good deal to be said for the American system. But one thing is sure. The only sensible plan is to adopt one system or the other. To attempt to combine the two is folly. And, if we have decided to follow the British plan, such features of our civil service legislation as the amendment prohibiting the active participation of civil servants in politics are logical and desirable.—Ottawa Journal.

The Journal is wrong. The question as between the British idea and the United States idea—the spoils system—is one-sided; that is there is only one side, the right one; there is nothing right or defensible about the United States system. Because the Whitney Government has imported and applied the spoils system of the United States is no justification of it. It is utterly evil in tendency. It is true that the system makes the official work harder for his party. It also makes him work harder for himself since he knows that his time and opportunity are limited and that he must make hay while the sun shines, that is to say; must capture the spoils while he may. Instead of using his best endeavours to discharge his duty as an official in the interests of the general public whose representative he should be, his aim is to make the most out of his position at the public expense. The spoils system lowers the official ideal and tempts the officeholder to be a mere grabber. Under our constitutional system the rule of the majority is paramount—the majority absorbs and assimilates the majority, so that a member of parliament is, ipso facto, the representative both of those who politically supported, and of those who politically opposed, his election, and his duty lies as properly to the one as the other. Logically the officeholder as a creation of the majority becomes the servant of the minority as well.

CATARRH NOW CURABLE.

But Never by Medicine Swallowed, Snuff, Sprays or Douches.

Catarrh is not a blood disease and that is why it cannot be cured by any medicine taken into the stomach. Catarrh is a germ trouble contracted from the germ-laden air you breathe inward. These germs fasten themselves in the tissue and air cells of the breathing organs, multiply by millions, cause sneezing, coughing, raising of mucous, discharge from the nose, difficulty in breathing, hoarseness, dryness and stoppage of the nose, tickling in the throat and other symptoms that can only be reached by the dry air principal of Hyomei. It medicates the air you breathe with the curative properties of the Australian Eucalyptus Forests where catarrh is unknown.

The reason you get relief in a minute or two from Hyomei is because it destroys every catarrhal germ in the air you breathe, and its dry penetrating aroma will reach the innermost recesses of the air passages, killing millions of germs a minute. Their destruction means freedom for oppressed respiratory organs. Wm. Madill sells Hyomei under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. Price $1.00.

Butchers.

The bulk of the butchers' cattle sold at lower quotations than at the commencement of the week. Murby bought about 100 head this week at the following prices: Good feeders, 800 to 1000 lbs. each, $3.25 to $4; good stockers, 600 to 800 lbs. each, at $3.75 to $3.25; common to medium stockers, 500 to 800 lbs., $2.50 to $3.

The Supplementary Estimates.

Ottawa, July 10.—The supplementary estimates were laid on the table by Finance Minister Fielding last night. They call for an expenditure of $10,665,657, of which a million is chargeable to capital.

The total of estimates for the year is $138,078,381, made up as follows:

Main estimates	$119,237,091
Supplementaries	5,325,633
Seed grain loan	2,850,000
Supplementaries	10,665,657
Total	$138,078,381

The first supplementaries are chargeable against last year, but will be offset no doubt by a similar overcharge to be dealt with next session.

A further amount of $200,000 is asked for annual drill, including the Quebec review. The total for military and defence is $946,675. One hundred dollars is required for the Hudson Bay Railway, to provide for survey and location of line from the Saskatchewan river and Hudson Bay.

For the Intercolonial Railway the amount asked is $174,[illegible]. Canals call for $710,868 on income account, of which $59,000 is for the Welland. Ontario gets a generous sum for public buildings.

COUNCIL WILL ACT.

Medical Men to Discipline Doctors Who Sin Against the Unborn.

Toronto, July 10.—The disciplining of physicians who perform illegal operations was discussed by the Medical Council yesterday. It was decided to invite closer co-operation between the detectives and the prosecution committee of the council.

After a rather prolonged discussion the following resolution was carried:

"The attention of this council having recently been called to the prevalence of crime against unborn life, resolved that when a detective becomes aware of such a case he be instructed to lay the matter before the prosecution committee, which will carefully enquire and pass the evidence, when deemed desirable, to the discipline committee for action."

The opinion of the meeting was by no means unanimous that the responsibility should rest upon the council or that it should assume responsibility in the matter.

Dr. Varden of Galt defended the medical profession in which, he said, there were no more criminals than in any other. The paper which had called upon the council to act was one which had helped to cover up the scandals in the Yukon.

"Let lectures be given to the children," he declared, "so that they will understand the gravity of the situation, and then medical men will not be tempted as they are. The public do not know the position of the doctor, and perhaps if the holy editor were placed in a similar position he would fall, too."

Charles Rose, prosecutor on the council, recommended that the names of Dr. E. M. Cook and Dr. Webster Shier be struck off the lists. Both were involved in recent prosecutions.

Warning to Lord Charles.

London, July 10.—The morning newspapers regard Premier Asquith's statement in Parliament regarding the dissensions among naval officers, as a warning to Admiral Lord Chas. Beresford and other naval malcontents.

The Daily News prints a guarded statement that Admiral Beresford has addressed to the Admiralty a strongly worded memorandum, declaring that with an inadequate fleet under his command he is unable to guarantee the security of the Kingdom from foreign attack.

The Daily News suggests that this ultimatum means that the admiral intends to resign and seek a seat in Parliament with a view to attacking the Government's naval policy.

Drowned at Hamilton.

Hamilton, July 10.—There was another drowning accident last evening, the victim being Joseph Campayne, a young man who lived at 50 West Cannon street. He rowed across the bay to Bayview yesterday afternoon with Chief Harrison and G. L. Donovan, 48 Wilson street, and E. L. Smith, 146 Rebecca street. While his three companions remained on the shore he swam out into the bay. After getting a short distance out he shouted that he was drowning and begged for help. His companions hurried to the rescue, but Campayne sank out of sight and his body could not be found. His father is in Montreal.

The large display ads. are good for the large business and the Classified Want Ads. are proper—honestly good for the small firm. In fact many large firms became such by the diligent use of the Classified Columns. There's example is good—start now.

The best bargains to be had in any of the stores are always advertised and ad. readers are the only people who can keep "posted." Nowadays people do not speak boastingly about "never reading the ads." any more than they would of their inability to read at all.

A Thrilling Trip.

Cornwall, July 10.—For a boat to go up the Longue Sault Rapids seems almost impossible. Yet it has been accomplished by the powerful 60-foot boat Priscilla, owned by Senator Richardson of Delaware.

The Priscilla was tied up at Cornwall by the canal break, and after waiting several days a desperate attempt to run up the south channel proved successful, and four hours after leaving Cornwall the Priscilla was at Ogdensburg, N.Y.

This feat was accomplished once before some four or five years ago in a small boat.

St. Johns, Que., July 10.—The latest proposition of the shareholders of the Bank St. Jean is to pay up forty per cent. due on shares and obtain a discharge from the depositors for this amount, as a majority of the shareholders cannot meet the double call. President Roy was released at 11 o'clock yesterday morning on a $70,000 bond.

The York County Loan And Savings Company's Business

Liquidator Realizing On Assets of the Company---40 Per Cent May Be Paid Instead of 25---Shareholders Rank Equally

The liquidator of the York County Loan & Savings Company has been actively engaged since the winding-up order in realizing upon the assets of the company, and has been exceedingly successful in getting in a large amount of its assets, and it is confidently expected that instead of the 25 per cent. dividend, which was first anticipated as a maximum, the liquidator will be able to pay at least 40 per cent., but as to the dividend, the liquidator expects to be in a position to make a further announcement within a short time.

The above paragraph forms part of a statement handed out yesterday morning by the liquidators the National Trust Company. The settlement of the conflicting claims of the various classes of shareholders of the defunct company is also given.

The result of the settlement is that all the shareholders, with a few exceptions, rank equally upon the assets of the estate, the total amount of the preferred claims being $89,427, whereas the total amount of claims for preference made by certain shareholders amounted to $1,250,000. If these preferred claims had been allowed, there would have been very little left for the ordinary shareholders.

The result of the settlement is practically to affirm the judgments given by Mr. George Kappele, K.C., the official referee in the different classes.

All litigation between the shareholders is now settled, and appeals to the Privy Council are now out of question.

The adjustments of the rights of the different shareholders among themselves threatened at the outset to indefinitely delay the liquidation of the estate. There are altogether upwards of 120,000 shareholders, and it was necessary to secure an amendment to the Winding-up Act from the Dominion Parliament to obviate an expenditure of $200,000 in connection with serving each shareholder with a notice to appear before the official referee.

The result of Mr. Kappele's big judgment was not satisfactory to counsel representing the different classes of shareholders as was to be expected owing to the fact that the official referee practically decided against preference of one shareholder over another, and in all cases the Solicitor and counsel appealed to the High Court. At the time negotiations commenced there were thirty appeals pending, and things looked very dark for the shareholders. Mr C D Scott, counsel for the liquidator, and Mr. W M Douglas, K.C., counsel for the general body of shareholders, were instructed by the liquidator to secure a satisfactory adjustment, if possible, and this has been accomplished.

The Details of Claims

The details of the settlement of the various claims are as follows:

Class 1. Permanent shareholders—Official referee decided that they were liable to contribute to the assets the unpaid balance on their stock. This is not fully adjusted, as it will not interfere with payment of the dividend.

Class 2. Nova Scotia and other shareholders outside Ontario who claimed to rank as creditors—Referee decided against them, and the settlement confirms the decision.

Class 3. Holders of Class "C" certificates which purported to give a first charge on assets—Referee decided against this and settlement confirms this ruling.

Class 4. Terminating shareholders, who gave 30 days' notice of withdrawal — Referee decided that no shareholder whose notice expired after commencement of liquidation were entitled to priority, and that the shareholders whose notice had expired before liquidation were entitled to priority, but were subject to contribute to the losses of the company, which contribution would practically wipe out their property. Referee decided that liquidation commenced on November 20th, 1905, when the company practically ceased to do business.

Class 5. Those who had cash balances to their credit—Shall rank as creditors.

Class 6. Terminating shareholders whose stock was in process of conversion to permanent stock—Must rank as ordinary terminating shareholders.

Class 7. Claims of agents and employees for wages and commissions—Claims for salaries only get priority for a certain period.

Class 8. Shareholders who claimed no preference.

Class 9 Juvenile—Not subject to ordinary by-laws and regulations of the company.

Class 10. Shareholders in arrears—Shall be entitled to rank with the others upon payment by them of the arrears due, which arrears would be deducted from the dividends declared upon their stock.

Class 11. Share loan class — Payments made by shareholders to be applied upon the loans but rights to be adjusted according to date of the issue of shares.

The liquidator will not enforce any fines or penalties.

Representatives of deceased shareholders will rank in priority through the 30 days' notice was not given, subject to certain conditions.

Classification of the Claims

The following schedule shows how the claims of the different shareholders have been divided by the liquidator, according to their different rights, and shows the total amount of the claims:

Schedule "A," cash balance $164.55 preferred.

Schedule "B," sub-schedule 1, Class C certificates, withdrawable, notice expired $2,492.75, preferred.

Sub-schedule 2. Class C certificat-

Sub-schedule 2, Class C, certificates, withdrawable, notice not expired, $21,193.25.

Sub-schedule 3, Class C, certificates, withdrawable, payment demanded, $16,922.98.

Schedule "C," Class C certificates, not in force 6 1-2 years, not withdrawable, $216,626.21.

Schedule "D," Class C certificates, matured, having been in force five years $7,624.81, preferred.

Schedule "E," Class C2 certificates, not withdrawal, term five years. $332,295.66.

Schedule "F," sub-schedule 1, juv. certificates, withdrawal, notice expired $,1,161.48, preferred.

Canada's Dairy Annually Produces 94 Millions

Figures Showing the Importance to Canada of the Dairy Industry —Addresses by J. A. Ruddick

ABOUT CONDENSED MILK

Ottawa, July 9.—(Special.)—In an address before the Agricultural Committee of Parliament yesterday Mr J. A. Ruddick, Dairy Commissioner of Canada, gave some interesting figures in regard to the large increase of the dairy industry of Canada in the last ten years.

Mr. Ruddick explains that the shrinkage of exports is due to the enormous expansion of home consumption, resulting from the increase in population. The value of cream ory butter, cheese and condensed milk manufactured in Canada in 1900 was $29,700,000, exclusive of the milk used for home consumption. In 1905 it was $33,250,000, and in 1907 it was $35,450,000, so that in seven years there has been an increase of $5,750,000 in these branches of the dairy industry.

The census authorities estimated the manufacture of dairy butter at $22,000,000, and the consumption of milk in Canada at $35,000,000, so that the total value of these dairy products last year was $94,000,000. This figure, he felt sure, was well within the mark.

Ten years ago there was no condensed milk manufactured in Canada, whereas to-day there are ten factories with an output last year of $900,000. The importation of condensed milk into Canada has practically ceased, and the Canadian manufacturers are already engaged in an extensive business.

THE ANGRY GIRL.

She Loses All Sense of Humor When in a Temper.

She loses her sense of humor; often also any other sense she has goes with it.

If getting angry ever did any good there would be more reason in it.

The surest way to weaken a good cause is by a bad temper.

The girl who is easily angered pays the piper in broken friendships.

A hot temper rarely finds a happy home big enough to hold it.

The angry girl forgets that the penitence which follows her folly is not pleasant company.

Jefferson's hundred counting rule for the very angry does not always work. There are some rages that would require a lightning calculator.

Wrath conquered is the best recipe for character strengthening known.

She who can't get angry will never have the force of the girl who can and don't.

While an occasional storm clears the air, many storms work havoc. A rage in a good cause may correct abuses, but keeping up those rages never lands one anywhere—but in disrepute.

The angry girl has no sense of perspective. The tiniest wrong has a way of blocking the foreground as it would never do if she kept cool.

Anger would not be so bad if it did not loosen the tongue, but unfortunately the angry woman usually opens her mouth and shuts tight her eyes to what is seemly.

One rage, a hundred regrets, leave a balance on the wrong side of the ledger that is sometimes never worked off.

Anger is such a futile thing. Usually it hurts the woman who is racked by it more than the victim of her wrath.

Anger might be worth while if it were not for the day after. Then comes the time of wondering: "What did I say? Why did I say it? Will it ever be forgotten and forgiven?"

CLOTHES FOR VOYAGE.

Plain, Smart Garments the Most Suitable and Comfortable.

People do not dress as much on board as is often imagined.

A neat toilet is all that is required when one feels equal to the exertion of going on deck or to the table.

A half worn tailored suit is good for general wear with a shirt waist of French flannel, or, failing this, then a trim tailored looking shirt waist suit of some lightweight tweed stuff and a long, warm wrap is an excellent substitute.

The hat should be small and tied down with a chiffon veil and the footwear neat and substantial—no high heels or low cut ties. Gloves should be comfortably loose.

A linen collar and tie will give an air of freshness to your toilet.

A steamer rug for wrapping the feet when in the steamer chair is a necessity.

A white, plainly tailored shirt waist of linen or madras may be substituted for the flannel blouse worn during the day. If the former, it may be used at the table in the evening, and then, as a rule, wraps are donned again, and there is a return to the deck.

You might like to include in your steamer trunk a smart blouse for wear at any of the impromptu or informal entertainments that are sometimes a feature on board, but do not take elaborate clothes for the voyage.

Let all garments be plain, but smart. You will feel much more comfortable even if underdressed than overdressed, which is not considered in good taste.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

It is said that a simple homemade dye for coloring the hair brown is made from potato parings boiled in cold water in an iron pot until soft. The water is strained before using and is applied with a comb or brush. This must be carefully done, as, like most coloring matters, it stains the scalp. Different degrees of brown can be applied, according as one wishes a light or dark tint.

If the hair is dull and lusterless, especially after washing it, let it down and rub with a soft woolen cloth that has been sprayed with equal parts of alcohol and olive oil, scented. Do not have the cloth too oily. Rub this thoroughly through the hair until every part is brightened. It is one of the secrets of the hairdressing business which gives the even gloss that no other method insures.

A simple formula for tooth powder is this: Five ounces of areca nut charcoal, two ounces of cuttlefish bone, one ounce of raw areca nut, pounded. Mix together. Two or three drops of oil of cloves or of cassia may be added if a perfume is required. Use a firm brush when cleaning the teeth. Remove all foreign particles with a piece of dental floss. Twice a year have the dentist scrape away the tartar, which is sure to form in spite of all care.

This lotion and powder will be found beneficial for tender and swollen feet: Get a pint of grain alcohol, adding to it a teaspoonful of boracic acid. Put this into an atomizer and spray the feet with it. The evaporation cools the inflamed feet, and the acid also assists in giving relief. Before drawing on the stockings use a powder made of these ingredients: Powdered starch thirty-five grains; oil of bergamot, ten drops; oil of lavender, six drops; oil of wintergreen, sixteen drops. Mix well and run through a fine sieve.

Good Reasons.

"Her artist lover raves over her because she has hair of rich copper."

"Yes, and that is why her business lover takes stock in it."—Baltimore American.

The Kind.

"She seems like a very nice girl."

"Que whom it would be safe to marry?"

"Oh, no. No girl is safe enough for that. But she's nice enough to think about marrying if you only know when to stop."—New York Life.

Polite Circumlocution.

"Is that man a lobbyist?"

"My dear sir, there are no lobbyists. But there must be patriotic people who give members of the legislature advice on public needs entirely outside their own range of experience."—Washington Star.

Exigencies.

"I should suppose, in the interest of realism, you would have real wine in the play."

"Well, we mustn't be too exacting. The plot requires the leading man to decline a drink of it, and we only pay him $20 a week, you know."—Puck.

Egbert—No. I didn't know it, and I read the fire record too! — Yonkers Statesman.

The Gun Barrels Grew.

In the early days in the northwest, when the Hudson Bay company laid the foundations of great fortunes by trade with the savages and a gun paid for as many beaver skins as would reach to the muzzle of it, the skins packed flat and the gun held upright, it was alleged that the barrel of the weapon grew and grew with each successive year until the Indian, after he had bought it with the peltry, had to borrow a file and cut off a foot of useless metal.

FIRE ALARM SOUNDED—NO FIRE

Some One Broke Glass and Sent in Alarm —Indian Sign Hung Out

About 12.37 o'clock last night a rather strange affair happened near the Hunter street bridge. Fire alarm box No. 24 is situated on this side of the bridge opposite the Cereal works. An alarm was sounded from this box, and within three or four minutes the brigade was on the spot, but everybody was in slumberland excepting Chief Howard and his men and a few belated citizens. Not even a curl of smoke from a cigar stub was noticed, and the place was as peaceful and placid as its proximity to East City at that hour would suggest.

After waiting and looking in vain for signs of a blaze, Chief Howard cried out "All home, men," and the full complement of eleven were soon back to the barn. Two strokes were sounded on the town clock denoting the fire extinguished.

MANY MEDICAL STUDENTS FAILED

In Their Intermediate Examinations—An Inquiry to be Held

The Ontario Medical College has appointed a special committee to look into the fact that between 60 and 65 per cent. of the medical students had failed at the last intermediate exams, though they had passed the primary with credit.

It was pointed out that either the instruction given must be inadequate, the examination papers too difficult, or the examiners could not have been fair in their decisions.

Dr. W. Britton thought something must be radically wrong. So far as Toronto University was concerned there were plenty of men to give instruction. The students as well as the public had to be protected, and a full inquiry should be held.

The committee will consist of Dr. Ryan, Kingston; Dr. Britton, Dr. Spankie, Dr. Gibson, Dr. Roerthson, Dr. Moorhouse and Dr. Temple.

Welcome Information For Consumption Patients

Revised Schedule of Rates for the King Edward Sanatorium—An Institution for Patients Suffering From Tuberculosis

THE LEADING PHYSICIANS

The Board of Trustees of the King Edward Sanitorium for Consumptives, opened in August last by His Excellency Earl Grey, having frequently impressed upon them the necessity for an institution in which patients suffering from tuberculosis could be cared for at a moderate rate, but who are adverse to entering a free institution, have made arrangements in the King Edward Sanitorium for accommodation for a limited number of patients in semi-private wards (two patients in a room) at $8 a week.

This institution is set aside for patients in the incipient and moderately advanced stages of pulmonary tubberculosis. It is beautifully situated near the Humber, about four miles from Toronto, and is under the careful supervision of Dr. W. J. Dobbie, a physician of experience, with a number of leading throat and chest specialists of Toronto, as a consulting staff.

The Executive Secretary, Mr. J. S. Robertson, 347 King street West, Toronto, will gladly answer enquiries and send literature to any applying.

Cressman's Employees Spent Half Holiday At T.A.S. Park

The Finest of Weather and a Jolly Crowd Combined in an Outing of Enjoyment Which Everybody Entered Into

DOWN ON THE OTONABEE

The employees of A. W. Cressman, has an outing yesterday afternoon at T. A. S. Park, which, from its pleasureable features will be long remembered by everyone of the jolly party that enjoyed the trip. They went down on the "Otonabee," arrangements having been made with the navigation company to land them at the park. In all there were about fifty in the party, everyone uniting to make the event one of genuine pleasure.

A basketball match was played between the boys and girls, the latter winning out by 10—8. The boys were handicapped to the extent that they were allowed to use only their left hand. Among the races that were competed for were a married ladies' race, won by Mrs. Temple. The girls race was a double event, Miss May Trombley winning the first and Miss Sadie Walton winning the second.

The fat man's race was a classic event. Three times did the men of extraordinary overdurgois run the one hundred metres and it is said the judges were responsible just to see them in action. However, the third time was the charm, and Manager Titterson, of the baseball team, flew over the tape a winner. A pleasant surprise was provided by Mr. Cressman, who had a ten gallon can of ice cream sent down to the park unknown to the employees. This kindness was greatly appreciated. The ladies provided luncheon, which was featured by the quality and quantitry of the food.

The "Otonabee" did not make its return call until ten o'clock, and the evening hours were spent as pleasantly as the afternoon. A large camp fire was built and school games and song were sung. Old Mr. Moon responded to the request "Don't be Anybody's Moon but Mine," and shone with silvery brightness from an unclouded sky. The clerks are all agreed that a finer outing would be impossible to be arranged.

HAPPENINGS AT THE FIRE HALL

Test of Engine Made This Morning—A New Man Taken On

There has already been a change made in the men of the fire brigade. Mr. Fred Davidson went on this morning succeeding Mr. J. Mulhall, whose resignation had been received. This morning the brigade was out for a test of the engine. A run was made up to the creek, where steam was got up, and the engine began to pump water. About six o'clock one of the check valves broke and the work was desisted.

The bells which were in the homes of the old brigade have been taken out and will be put in the residences of the new members.

NOT MUCH PROFIT IN MILK IN PETERBOROUGH AT PRESENT

The milk problem seems to be disturbing the minds of the citizens of Toronto considerably. Many of them believe they are being held up by the dairymen in price, and also that the source of supply is not of the best.

Milk in Toronto costs the consumers 8 and 9 cents. In Peterborough the price is six cents.

In conversation with a local milk vendor yesterday the Examiner learned that at six cents a quart there was not a great deal of profit, especially at the present time. Earlier in the year when milk is more abundant the profit is greater, but now so many families are holidaying at Stony Lake and other places that within the past two weeks there has been a shortage in sales amounting in his case to twenty quarts per day.

"Milkmen who have made contracts with farmers to purchase a specified number of quarts daily are losing money," remarked the Examiner's informant.

Referring to money lost by the non-payments of customers, he stated that this amount was usually considerable and that there was therefore little opportunity for profit at the present time, considering the above-mentioned conditions.

PAID SALVATION ARMY ELEVEN CENTS FOR A SINGLE MATCH

An amusing incident took place in connection with the Salvation Army open air service at the post office last night which caused a ripple of laughter to travel through the ranks of the Army members as well as the spectators. A large crowd had gathered around when the collection was being taken up, one of the lady collectors found that she had $1.01, while the other had but 35 cents. An appeal was made to the crowd and the second collection succeeded in bringing her total up to $1.35, whereupon the first asked the spectators to bring her amount to the same total. Finally she needed but 11 cents and a man who had been hunting through the crowd for a match, offered to give the amount if the lady would give him a light for his cigar. She was non-plussed for a moment but, a gentleman, one of a trio of American visitors to the city, came to her rescue and offered the match on the condition that the light-seeking gentleman would hand over his 11 cents to the Army. He was provided with amatch and proveth himself to be a man of his word by transferring the necessary amount to the collector.

FRED SIMPSON WRITES ABOUT LONDON; SEES KING AND QUEEN

Keene, July 9.—(Special) — A friend in Keene received a letter today from Fred Simpson, the Indian runner, in which he states that he is having a good time and is in the very best of condition. London, he states, is a much busier town than Keene and the traffic is greater. He likes both the city and the people. The day before writing, he says he saw the King and Queen who passed in an automobile. The Queen nodded to Simpson and the party of athletes, and the King lifted his hat.

GREAT SPORTS AT THE EXCURSION

The excursion of All Saints' Church to Sandy Point, Clear Lake, yesterday was a most enjoyable event. The greater number remained at Sandy Point, where the sports were held, but some took in the round trip on the steamer.

The sports were very exciting and many of them amusing, especially the walking match. The results were as follows:

Girls, 14 to 66—Bernice Garside, May McGill, Violet Wheeler.

Walking match for boys over 14 years, lasting 15 minutes—Cecil Armstrong, Willie Sotheran. In this race there was only a difference of 30 seconds.

Single ladies—Clara Garside, Eva Roadhouse.

Three-legged race—D. Layfield and E. Lebar.

Married ladies—Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Barraclough, Mrs. Hayes.

Officers race—Alfred Gilbert, D. Layfield, W. Abbot.

The return sail was a delightful one, and the officials of the church are greatly pleased with the day's results.

FOUGHT THE WAVES FOR HOURS

Atlantic Steamer Sank and Crew Swam For the Shore.

CRASHED ON HIDDEN REEF

Whole Bottom of the Vessel Was Torn Out—Arcola Struck During Fog and Went Down In a Few Moments—Both Masts Fell Through the Deck—No Lives Were Lost—Owned In St. John, N. B.

Sydney, N.S., July 10.—While the Battle line steamship Arcola was steaming up the coast Wednesday night in a dense fog, which shut out the shore line, she ran ashore on a treacherous reef north of Paul's Island, and became a total wreck.

The steamer was bound from Manchester to Mirimichi in water ballast and was to load a return cargo of deal for the United States.

The impact against the rocks tore the whole bottom out of the ship, the sudden jar sending both masts through the deck.

She immediately began to sink and in less than five minutes was completely submerged.

The crew of 29 had a narrow escape with their lives, as she settled so rapidly that they only had time to lower one boat, and several of the men were compelled to swim ashore, which, fortunately, was only a short distance away.

Captain Shaw says that the fog was so thick he could not make out the light on St. Paul's. He had an idea that he was near the island, and trusted to the sound of the breakers on shore to give him his bearings. Without warning the steamer ran high and dry.

The Arcola was owned by Wm. Thomson & Co., St. John. She is insured at Lloyds.

Another Bridge Collapse.

Cologne, July 10.—The new bridge under construction over the Rhine fell in yesterday, and a number of the workmen engaged on the structure lost their lives. Up to noon fourteen bodies have been recovered and nine men have been taken from the water seriously injured. It is impossible to tell now exactly how many were killed. The scaffolding supporting the powerful crane used in the erection of the central span of the bridge collapsed and carried with it several other spans.

Ten Workmen Killed.

St. Petersburg, July 10.—The roof of a house being constructed near the Douma buildings collapsed yesterday and crashed down through the partly finished floors. Ten workmen busy on the structure were killed outright and forty others were injured.

Old Couple Incinerated.

Rochester, N.Y., July 10.—Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Smith, who resided on a farm two miles east of North Rose, were burned to death yesterday morning in a fire which destroyed their residence. Both were 80 years of age.

Child Killed By Pitchfork.

Woodbridge, July 10.—Pierced to the heart by a pitchfork in the hands of the hired man, the little son of Oliver Burton of Vaughan Township, died yesterday.

The boy, six years old, was on top of a load of hay driving from the field to the barn. The horses started suddenly and the hired man, also on the load, was unbalanced and his pitchfork, which was in his hand, plunged into the boy's breast. The little fellow died a couple of hours later.

Dreamers Break Camp.

Ebor, Man., July 10.—The Dreamers broke camp at 10.30 yesterday morning and are still headed north. They expected to camp on Tapestone Creek last night, making about 12 miles. Two of the party stood guard with loaded guns all Wednesday night. The ancient horse is in bad condition, but is still able to make about two and a half miles an hour.

Murderer Goes to Asylum.

Charlottetown, July 10.—Alonzo Doherty, acquitted recently on a verdict of not guilty because of insanity at the time of shooting and killing Joseph D. McMillan of Miscouche, was yesterday transferred to Fashionwood Hospital for the Insane at Charlottetown.

TRAIN WRECK IN THE WEST.

Seven Men Lose Their Lives; Others Injured Seriously.

Medicine Hat, July 10.—A locomotive, running light, from here to Coleridge, had a head-on collision with the morning passenger train from the Crow's Nest Pass, at 8.20 yesterday morning. The light locomotive was driven off trucks, and the baggage car, mail car and tourist coach of the passenger train were partly telescoped, and with the engine rolled into the ditch.

Engineer James Nicholson, Fireman Howard Cray, Baggageman Archambault and passengers James Shaw and Duncan McEachren were instantly killed. Engineer Thomas Twohey and Conductor Malette died a short time afterwards.

Brakeman Leonard Black and Expressman Vicars were seriously injured. Seven other passengers are in the hospital.

James Nicholson had orders to pick up the Spokane flyer, and pulled out of here with the light engine. The Crow's Nest passenger train was two hours late.

Although badly scalded Harry Thompson, fireman of the light engine, ran up the yard with news, and was immediately sent to the hospital.

During the afternoon Engineer Twohey and Conductor Malette succumbed, bringing the deaths up to seven.

A passenger named Samuel Abbus had his leg broken and Phillip Menge, a rancher from Taber, was badly bruised. Both are in the hospital.

Operator Ritchie, from whom Nicholson received clearance papers, disappeared.

Turns Thief to Win Girl.

New York, July 10.—A youth of 20, who described himself as Nathan Levine, a student of languages and the son of a retired manufacturer, and who told the police he had robbed nearly every first-class hotel in this city during the past few weeks, was captured in a room on the fourteenth floor of the Hotel Belmont yesterday, after he had bound a woman in bed and was about to loot the apartment. When the prisoner was searched the police found one of the most complete outfits for use in sneak thievry that ever came into their possession. The police say the young man made no attempt to conceal his guilt and intimated that it was to raise funds to enable him to make up appearance to a certain young woman that caused him to turn to a career of crime.

Whitney Not Surprised.

Toronto, July 10.—Hon. Mr. Whitney sees no great act of charity in the Dominion Government's legislation to extend the boundaries of Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba.

"With reference to the so-called extension of boundaries," he said yesterday; "it should be understood that this means a parceling out among certain provinces certain territory now held by the Dominion. It does not mean that any province receives anything as a matter of right.

"I observed the divisions as proposed by the Government at Ottawa. I would rather not say anything at present except that I am not surprised at the attitude of the Dominion Government towards the Province of Ontario."

Want Indians Deported.

Helena, Mont., July 10.—Governor Norris has addressed a letter to the commissioner of Indian Affairs at Ottawa, relative to the deportation of a large band of Cree Indians, who, while Canadian charges, have for years been roaming throughout this state.

The Indians participated in the Riel rebellion, and with its suppression came to Montana. The State Department arranged with Canada for their return, but soon afterward, dissatisfied with conditions in the north, they returned to this state and are now at the point of starvation. Hence the letter to learn if the original allotments are still available. A number of Indians have agreed to return.

Lightning Killed Child.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., July 10.—At Tyne Valley the home of Wm. H. Ellis was struck by lightning and destroyed Wednesday night, and Mr. Ellis' four-year-old daughter, who was lying on the kitchen floor behind the stove, was instantly killed. Mr. Ellis and his wife were both stunned, and an infant in the latter's arms was torn from her embrace and fell upon the floor. The lightning also struck the residence of John Ellis of Northam, following the clothes-line into the house, and causing considerable damage.

U. S. and Venezuela Break.

Washington, July 10.—Senor Velez Goitico, the Venezuelan charge d'affaires in this city, yesterday afternoon called at the State Department and presented to Acting Secretary Bacon his letters of recall.

This action was taken by direction of President Castro and as the result of the withdrawal from Caracas of Jacob Sleeper, the American charge. The effect of yesterday's action is the complete rupture of relations between the United States and Venezuela.

Driver Falls and Breaks Back.

Stratford, July 10.—Falling backwards from a wagon while unloading coal, West, driver for Duggan and Gray, had his back broken and neck dislocated. He is paralyzed from his shoulders to his heels.

Despite these serious injuries, he is conscious. He is 30 years of age and unmarried.

THE ALL-RED LINE UNDER DISCUSSION

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Pledges Canada's Financial Support.

SIFTON ABLY PLEADS CAUSE

An All-Day Debate in the House on the Big Enterprise — Opposition Leader Submits an Amendment But Supports the Principle of the Proposal — Mr. Sifton's Plea For Fast Steamers.

Ottawa, July 10.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's "all red" line resolution, pledging financial support to the project, was debated all yesterday.

R. L. Borden, leader of the Opposition, moved an amendment expressing strong sympathy with the object of the resolution, but expressing the view that more favorable freight rates and a thoroughly efficient system of cold storage were essential features of such a transportation project, and that having regard to the very heavy expenditures and obligations in which the present administration has involved the country, the Government should not commit Canada to any such plan or to any contract or expenditure for such purpose till it shall have been approved by Parliament.

Mr. Sifton said the Opposition, in pursuance of their policy in part, should give more enthusiastic support to the project. He took it from the speeches of Messrs. Borden and Foster that it was their intention to negative the resolution.

The definite question to settle was, Will we endorse the proposition or will we not? It was impossible to go into the question in more detail. This was a proposition having to do with various parts of the Empire. The first thing to do was to endorse the general idea. That would have to be done before they could get any further ahead with the project.

Mr. Borden said his amendment did not effect that part of the resolution, and Mr. Sifton declared the provision for freight service and cold storage would be a matter of detail to be worked out later.

Mr. Sifton said he did not have, nor did he expect to have, any interest in the project except what any member of Parliament would have. When he was in England he had made some enquiries into the project. Mr. Foster had questioned the definite nature of the proposal.

The Prime Minister had definite ideas on the subject, but these would necessarily be modified as the subject was discussed. The proposal generally was for a 20-knot service on the Pacific and on the Atlantic. This would be from England five days to any Atlantic port in Canada, nine days to Vancouver and 23 days to New Zealand, as compared with 7, 12 and 38 days at present. These ships would carry 1,000 tons of freight on the Atlantic and 4,000 tons on the Pacific. The very fast boats to New York did not carry anything like 100 tons of freight.

If these plans could be carried out, it would be for the colonies to get together and settle on the definite plan to be presented to the Imperial Government. It was essential that Canada become the chief promoter to achieve success.

The cost of the project was estimated at one million pounds sterling, of which it was expected that Great Britain would contribute £500,000, New Zealand £100,000, Australia £75,000 and Canada £325,000. At present we were giving in subsidies on the Atlantic and Pacific £625,000 a year.

Mr. Sifton was satisfied that the time was coming when, the stigma would be removed from the St. Lawrence river. With a fast and safe route, business would come. Germany built the fastest boats in the world as an advertisement, to show what she could do, and an enormous business half come to Germany as a result.

If that result could come about between Germany and the United States, rivals in commerce, what would be the result of an establishment of a fast service between Great Britain and the friendly colonies?

It could not be expected that we could carry the scheme into effect inside of five years, but it was time now to start. It had to come. It was a necessary thing, and a good thing.

Mr. Sifton said he would not venture to criticize the financial position of the Government. But he thought that some of the expenditures proposed at the present time might well be cut out to provide means for a fast line service.

Dr. Daniel thought the House had well considered the outlay involved. Mr MacPherson of Vancouver urged the importance of improving the Canada-Australia service, and stated the moment was ripe for an up-to-date service to China and Japan.

W. B. Northrup felt bound to deny the insinuation made by Mr. Sifton that the amendment meant hostility to an imperial project. Both sides were a unit as to the wisdom of increasing our means of transportation.

Revenue Men Want Increase.

Ottawa, July 10.—With a request for increased pay a deputation from the outside department of the Inland Revenue called on the Premier and Hon. Mr. Templeman yesterday morning.

Sir Wilfrid said he realized the justice of the demand, but in the absence of the Ministers of Finance and Agriculture he could promise nothing definitely.

The deputation asked also that they be placed under the new civil service commission. The Premier said the matter of salary revision was being carefully studied, but that it had not been placed in the civil service bill because of pressure of time.

Prospector Drowned.

Cobalt, July 10.—Walter Ruth, a prospector, about 28 years of age, was drowned on the Montreal river. He was in a canoe with a companion, when in some manner it capsized, throwing both into the water.

Democratic Convention Contemplates No Other Candidate.

NEBRASKAN ON FIRST VOTE

Caustic Arraignment of the Failure of President Roosevelt's Politics—Drafting the National Platform—Labor Will Have the Right to Organize — Modification of Present Injunction Law.

Denver, July 10.—Two sessions of the Democratic National Convention, the first at 11 o'clock yesterday, and the second beginning at 7 o'clock at night, advanced the work of the convention well nigh to completion. The opening session lasted three hours and brought about the completion of the permanent organization of the convention. When the session opened last night every formality of organization had been accomplished and the decks were clear for the work of adopting the platform and naming the candidates.

The scenes within the convention amphitheatre yesterday repeated those of previous days in the magnitude of the gathering and the eager enthusiasm of the throngs. The address of the permanent chairman, Clayton of Alabama, proved to be a caustic arraignment of the failure of Roosevelt politics, and an enunciation of Democratic doctrine. The orator stirred the listening thousands to frequent demonstrations of enthusiastic approval. At 2.30 the platform committee was not yet prepared to report, and the convention took a recess until last evening, so that all remaining differences could be threshed out. The platform is ready for adoption, and the Presidential nomination be reached before the adjournment of the night session.

Following is the injunction plank adopted by the sub-committee of the committee on resolutions, and as it is expected to be incorporated in the platform:

"Experience has proven the necessity of a modification of the present law relating to injunctions, and we reiterate the pledge of our national platforms of 1896 and 1904, in favor of the measure which passed the United States Senate in 1896, but which a Republican Congress has ever since refused to enact; relating to contempts in federal courts and providing for trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt, questions of judicial practice have arisen especially in connection with industrial disputes. We deem that the parties to all judicial proceedings should be treated with rigid impartiality and that injunctions should not be issued in any case in which no industrial dispute were involved.

"We demand such enlargements of the powers of the interstate commerce commission, as may be necessary to enable it to protect persons and places from discrimination and extortion, and to compel the railroads to perform their duties as common carriers. We favor the efficient supervision of and rate regulation of railroads engaged in interstate commerce. To this end we recommend the physical valuation of the railroads by the interstate commerce commission, such valuation to take into consideration the original cost of construction and all elements of value that will render the valuation made fair and just. We favor such legislation as will prohibit the railroads from engaging in business which brings them into competition with their shippers, also legislation which will assure such reduction in the transportation rates as circumstances will permit, care being taken to avoid a reduction that would compel a reduction of wages, prevent adequate service or do injustice to legitimate investments.

The last plank to be acted upon by the sub-committee was the demanding of a system for the guarantee of deposits in national banks; an alternative provision was inserted recommending the establishment of postal savings banks. In the event that the guarantee provision is not carried into effect.

Lightning's Havoc.

St. John, N.B., July 10.—Very severe electrical storms occurred Wednesday night near Amherst and Woodstock, several residences being struck at Woodstock. Emmons Howard, aged 19, was terribly injured, and his leg will have to be amputated. At Amherst John Jollymore's house was shattered, great holes being torn in the walls and floor. Mrs. Jollymore and seven children were rendered insensible, but recovered. Other persons were also stunned.

GREAT EXCITEMENT OVER BIG GAME TO-MORROW AFTERNOON

To-morrow's game between the Peterboroughs and Athletics will be called at 3 o'clock sharp, and all indications point to the biggest crowd and the best game of the season. The Athletics are confident of victory, pointing to their wins over the Petes and Cobourg as an indication of the fact that they are playing the fastest kind of ball. The Petes will be crippled with Murphy and O'Brien in all probability out of the game, owing to injuries, but the blue and white team are going to put up a game fight nevertheless. The Petes will line up as follows:

Burns, rf.
Maddock, ss.
Edmunds, c.
Lawson, 1b.
Hawkins, 3b.
Craig, 2b.
Laing, cf.
Johnston, lf.
Clements, p.

The Athletics will in all probability have on the same line-up which played such great ball against Cobourg on Dominion Day, and they will take a whole lot of beating. The game should prove a keen struggle for supremacy. J. M. Rosevear of Port Hope will umpire.

The Cobourg Golf Club will visit Peterborough on Wednesday, July 15th.

NEW SCHEDULE OF THE LEAGUE

The City League Games Are Nearing the Finals

Being anxious to conclude the City League games at an early date and without letting any Saturdays slip by, a change has been made in the schedule. The Karnot games not being played, the time was used by the other teams. The rest of the games are to be played as follows:

July 11, Saturday, 2 p.m.—
Strathconas v. Lakeviews.

July 15, 7 p.m.—
West End v. Wellington.

July 18, 2 p.m.—
Y.M.C.A. v. Wellington.
Lakeviews v. West End.

July 22, 7 p.m.—
West End v. Strathconas.

July 25—
West End v. Lakeviews, 2 p.m.
T.A.S. v. Wellington.

August 1—
Lakeviews v. Wellington.
T.A.S. v. West End.

August 8—
Lakeviews v. Strathconas.
T.A.S. v. Y.M.C.A.

August 15—
Lakeviews v. Y.M.C.A.

It is most desirable that all the teams play out their games as they are now pretty well bunched, and a hot fight at the finish will be beneficial to the league, and the teams will thereby benefit.

One game not mentioned in the schedule is the Y.M.C.A.-Strathcona contest, which should be arranged mutually by the two teams, and the date of the game reported to the secretary.

The teams are once more reminded not to play ineligible men. The games are running along now in a merry manner, and everything is pointing to a happy conclusion. The fact that nearly all the teams have a fighting chance is a proof that they are well matched, and the remaining contests should be red hot.

The Havelock senior football team play an exhibition game with the Deloro eleven at the 12th of July celebration at Marmora on Saturday.

WHAT LOU MARSH THINKS OF CANADIAN ATHLETES

He Gives Sherring's Views of Best Marathon Runners

London, July 9. — Canada's best chances in the Olympic games look to Lou Marsh to be as follows:

Bobby Kerr in the sprints.
Ed. Archibald in the pole vault.
Cal Bricker in the broad jump.

The Marathon is doubtful. Billy Sherring says Harry Lawson and Fred Simpson are our best. He doesn't figure on Longboat at all.

Sherring fears three Englishmen—A. Duncan, J. G. Boale and F. Lord. Duncan is the 10 and 25-mile champion of England, adn won the trial Marathon over this course.

The Canadians are worrying to-day over the non-arrival of Dr. Bricker, the Toronto jumper. He was due here on Sunday, but has not yet put in an appearance. The Canadians expect Bricker to do well in the broad jump.

W. Morton, the Toronto cyclist, arrived to-day. He is considered to have a chance in the sprints. The other Canadian cyclists are faster than ever, but cannot get the stretch sprint necessary to win. They may do better in the long races.

INSANE IMMIGRANT EVIL

DANGER OF DETERIORATION OF AVERAGE QUALITY OF PEOPLE.

Grave Menace to the Dominion—Suppress the Undesirables—Foreigners Fill Canada's Jails—Cannot Be Deported—Sexual Perverts of Worst Kind Sent Here — Need of More Inspectors.

"We are beginning to be able to sympathize with the trials gone through by the United States," says Superintendent Clarke of the Toronto Asylum, in an article in the current issue of the University Monthly, on "The Defective and Insane Immigrant," "and we should profit by the experience of New York, and apply even more vigorous methods than those adopted by that state in the suppression of undesirable immigration.

"Strange to say," he says, "at the present time the greatest menace is the alum degenerate from Great Britain.

"The insane man in due course finds his way to the asylum, where he is cared for at the expense of the country, or deported if the technicalities of the deportation act do not exempt him. Not so with the majority of the degenerates. A certain proportion of these find their way to prison, but are not retained there long unless guilty of some great crime. They are attracted by other weaklings, marry, and the population is added to."

Mr. Clarke says that there is a suspicion that some, if not many, among the Britishers who have failed in life and have come here have been deliberately sent here to get rid of them. He says that in this class are sexual perverts of the most revolting kind, insane criminals, alum degenerates, general paretics, and weaklings of other varieties.

Among last year's immigrants were six cases sent to Canada merely to get rid of them, some of the friends of these people frankly admitting that the undesirables had been sent to Canada simply to get rid of them.

"A striking feature of the situation," says Mr. Clarke, "is the preponderance of English defectives in our admissions, and the cause of this is the wholesale cleaning out of the slums of English cities. Toronto may be a Mecca for this class, but it is evident that other cities and towns have suffered as well, and the jail records are significant, although they also reveal the unpleasant fact that the United States are furnishing more than their share of the criminal population. The Italian leads in the criminal records, but in the asylums he is practically unknown.

Mr. Clarke says that federal and provincial authorities must unite to fight intelligently and conscientiously the evil of the admission of defectives to Canada.

"Our new law is good as far as it goes," he says, "but it does not go far enough, and in many cases we are powerless to act, where duty seems manifest.

"Our system of inspection must be improved by enlarging the staffs of inspectors, even at great cost."

"Forty-one per cent. of the prisoners received at the Central Prison in 1907 were foreign born, and 38 per cent. of the people sent to the common jails of the province were foreign born. Foreigners make up about 20 per cent. of our population.

"The greatest danger to be feared is the deterioration in the average quality of the people of the nation when it is overstocked by immigrants of low type, and experience has shown that where hordes of immigrants of poor class are collected, these of better class will be deterred simply because they do not wish to compete with the occupant of the sweatshop or low quarter.

"In 1902 the direct cost to the United States of the excess of the foreign-born insane amounted to five millions.

"In New York state the annual cost of caring for foreign-born poor amounts to $12,000,000.

"In 1902 no less than 13,000 foreign-born insane, idiots and epileptics were in the public institutions of New York state, or twice the number to be expected. Their maintenance, estimated at an annual per capita cost of $165, will be about $12,000,000.

"Of 422 patients admitted to the Toronto Asylum during 1906 and 1907 two hundred and ten were foreign born, 212 Canadians. Of the foreign born no less than 124 were comparatively recent arrivals. The majority of them could not be returned to Europe because they did not come within the requirements of the Deportation act—hence, Ontario must assume the burden of their maintenance. Putting the amount for each one we must take care of until death at about six thousand dollars, a modest estimate, and the result is, indeed, startling, but this aspect sinks into insignificance when we go more into detail.

"Many of these patients are married, and brought their families with them. As a rule, their heredity is of the worst possible description, and what their children are likely to do for the quality of the stock only those who are familiar with the possibilities of certain varieties of insanity may guess. Sixty-five per cent. of the insane immigrants suffer from dementia praecox, a psychosis notoriously the outcome of defective heredity."

Improve Montreal Streets.

The City Council of Montreal has entered upon a general street improvement scheme which will involve the expenditure of some two million dollars. Some two million dollars is also being laid out on water works account, the purpose being to secure a purer as well as a larger supply. The water is to be brought from the St. Lawrence to the pumping station in covered instead of open conduits, and power created so that water-wheels instead of steam engines will do much of the work. The condition of the city's streets has long been a cause of reproach, and last year a breakdown of one pump reduced the water supply dangerously.

NOCTURNAL ESCAPE OF TWO "REFUGEES"

Last night during the excitement attendant upon the garden party festivities at the County House of Refuge, two male inmates escaped or absented themselves, and their whereabouts are so far unknown. The House authorities are seeking them. The rules governing the institution inflict a penalty for leaving the Home without permission of the Board. No other reason than a desire for a change is given for the unauthorized departure of these inmates. Nobody is forced to enter the House of Refuge, but persons are admitted under certain conditions, and must be subject to the discipline prescribed. This discipline must be maintained, so that the two absentees, when located, as they are sure to be, will be "brought upon the carpet."

GRAND TRUNK LAKE AND RAIL ROUTE

At the Grand Trunk general offices this morning, confirmation was made of the report that a long-term agreement had been made with the Northern Navigation Company of Ontario, Limited, for the formation of a Grand Trunk Railwayy System line of steamers on the Georgian Bay and Great Lakes in connection with their Ontario and Quebec Lines from and to the East and Sault Ste. Marie, port Arthur, Fort William and Duluth.

The Navigation Company has been running lines of passenger and freight steamers in connection with the Grand Trunk for a number of years out of Collingwood and Owen Sound on the Georgian Bay and from Sarnia to Lake Superior ports. While the steamers will continue to be operated under a separate organization, the new arrangement creates a very close affiliation and practically makes them a Grand Trunk line.

The fleet at present consists of eight passenger and freight, and two purely freight steamers. Five boats are operated on the Georgian Bay from Penetang, Collingwood and Owen Sound to Sault Ste. Marie, and, during July and August to Mackinac Island, thus giving the railway the only complete means of reaching all the 30,000 islands, the North Channel and other portions of this wonderful region.

The two larger vessels, together with the two freighters, comprise the Lake Superior Division, running from Sarnia and delivering passengers and freight at Port Arthur to the Canadian Northern and Canadian Pacific Railways, and at Duluth to the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railways for Winnipeg, the Northwest and Pacific Coast points, and, of course, later on, connection will be made with the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Through fares are quoted and tickets sold at all the railway offices to all points in this vast territory.

Of the fleet the "Huronic" is the flag ship, being a new vessel and one of the largest and finest on the upper lakes. In addition, the Company has at present under construction to be put into service next year, another vessel which is intended to be not only the largest but finest vessel in the Lake Superior trade. She will be of 5,000 tons, with cargo capacity for 3,500 tons of package freight, will have five decks, with accommodations for 425 first cabin passengers, and a large number of second class. There will be eight parlour rooms with private baths, drawing room, ladies' lounge, smoke room and an immense sun parlour capable of being converted into a ball room 38 x 80 feet in size. The interior decorations and ornamentation are designed by the most celebrated marine interior expert in America and she will be a very complete and handsome ship. She will be fitted with engines capable of developing 6,500 horse-power and with sanitary heating, ventilating, lighting and refrigerator systems of the most modern and approved design. A second similar ship is under consideration for construction as soon as the traffic warrants, the intention being that by the time the Grand Trunk Pacific is in operation west of Lake Superior a thoroughly complete and up-to-date line will be ready to furnish a rapid and enjoyable trip up the lakes—a service first class in every particular.

WEDDING BELLS

BELLEAU—BARBEAU

Sault Ste. Marie, July 10.—(Special.) Two of the most popular French-Canadian young people of the Soo were united in marriage on Wednesday morning in the persons of Miss Virginia Barbeau and Mr. Arthur Belleau. The bride is one of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Barbeau's charming daughters. The ceremony was performed in the Sacred Heart Church by Rev. Father Neault, and in the presence of a number of relatives and intimate friends of the contracting parties. After the nuptial bonds had been sealed the happy couple were driven to the home of the bride's parents on Wellington street, where a sumptuous breakfast was served. Later in the day Mr. Belleau and his graceful young bride took possession of their elegant new home on Dennis street, where a large reception was held in the evening. Scores of admiring friends showered their congratulations upon the happy pair who were also the recipients of a great number of very beautiful wedding gifts. The fact that Wednesday was the anniversary of St. John Baptist Day added interest to the happy matrimonial event above recorded.

The bride once lived in Peterborough and is a cousin of Mrs. Lajeunesse, 291 Lewis street, of that city.

HOODOO OF MERRY WIDOW

Joe Weber's Merrymakers Have Been Pursued by Merciless Monster

ONE OF COMPANY IS DEAD

While the "Merry Widow" operetta goes merrily and triumphantly on in every land under the sun where there are theatres, Joe Weber's burlesque of the "Merry Widow" appears to be fast in the clutches of a deep, dark, dank hoodoo.

Not to be blasphemous, the Seven Great Plagues of Egypt with which the Lord of Israel scourged King Pharaoh disturbed that injurious monarch little more than the "Merry Widow" burlesque hoodoo has disturbed Joseph Weber and his players. Here are some of the details, chronologically arranged:

Edgar Smith, author of the burlesque, breaks down with his work half finished.

Julian Mitchell, stage director, laid low by appendicitis.

Bessie Clayton, premiere danseuse, sprains her ankle.

Lulu Glaser, prima donna, down with la grippe.

Mabel Fenton, comedienne, in the hospital for a dangerous operation—varicose vein.

Charles J. Ross, leading man, in the same hospital, with a broken kneecap.

Peter F. Dailey, principal comedian, ill with pneumonia and dead after three days.

Maud Elton, thrown from her horse and painfully injured.

Alice Gringam, sudden attack of aphasia — unable to remember her lines.

Beth Moore, threatened with blood poisoning from dressmaker's needle.

Several nervous young women out of the cast — resigned to escape the hoodoo.

Until "Charley" Ross, leaving the theatre after the last performance but one of the New York run, fell on a stone stair and broke his kneecap square across, the hand of the hoodoo had not been recognized.

The Sudden Spells Of Hot Weather Are Not Hurtful

Scientists Declare the Opinion That Heat Brings Disease is Erroneous---How to Combat the Discomforts of High Temperature

When the first hot weather came a few days ago the disgraceful doings of the climate last summer were forgotten and forgiven, and there was practically universal rejoicing at the old-time summer heat. Already however, this rejoicing has largely turned to groans over the excessive temperature. The cry now is for the continuation of clear skies and delightful summer breezes, but as far as the actual temperature is concerned, the weather bureau is in disgrace with most Londoners, says the London Daily Mail.

Without quite knowing why, the average man in the street has a firm opinion that the degree of heat we have experienced during the last few days is not good for his health. While medical opinion is quite convinced that this idea is a wrong one, the vast amount of careful statistics which have been collected to show the effect of spells of almost tropical heat on people living in temperate zones has not furnished us with any concrete facts which would appeal to the lay reader.

Terrible Sufferings

In sudden hot waves certain organs of the body are particularly apt to suffer some derangement of their functions, and naturally these are the organs which are overworked in our attempt to accommodate our systems to the unaccustomed heat. It is through the average layman's total ignorance of these effects of high temperatures on the various organs that one hears so much of "terrible sufferings" during heat waves.

Contrary to the general opinion, the heart and lungs bear little of the stress of the hot weather. The almost universal belief that our lungs must increase their work at such times is due to a hasty idea that, just as a dog pants when overheated, we consumably must resort ot the same means (though in a lesser degree) for removing the excessive temperature of our body. This natural analogy is a mistaken one, for in this matter of heat-waste, the dog is at a great disadvantage compared with his human brother.

We rely chiefly on our perspiratory systems to regulate the control of temperature; whereas the dog, not having perspiratory glands comparable to ours, must make greater use of his lungs in preventing his body temperature from being too much influenced by outside conditions. Far from being increased, careful experiments recently made in India show that the ordinary European's breathrate is reduced about one-fifth during his first attempts to accommodate himself to the fierce heat of that country. The same series of experiments show that the heart's action is also not increased in even tropical temperatures. The liver and spleen are the chief sufferers, but even then the congestion which extremely high temperatures may cause in these organs may be left out of account by the resident of this country who is studying his health during the heat wave.

Nervous Depression

The only other untoward effect we can lay to such heat as we have recently been experiencing is a slight depression of the nervous system. Even here careful students of the subject have noted that little nervous depression is caused by high temperatures themselves unless there is a large degree of humidity or dampness in the air at the same time.

The most important effect of heat on our bodies lies in its action upon the skin. The effect of an unaccustomed high temperature and of the sun's rays themselves is directly stimulating to the skin, the result being that the excretions from the skin are increased in amount. The degree varies in individuals, but in some cases this increase has been estimated to be as much as twenty-four per cent. above the average during the cool weather.

In arguing against the healthfulness of heat waves, it is often stated that during such times no one has any appetite and that the digestion is impaired. The universally acknowledged truism that everyone loses weight in the hot weather is another excuse sometimes used for complaining at such times. Theoretically it is bid to lose weight, and excessive perspiration does lead to loss of weight. Reduced digestive powers and a decreased breathing rate, which means that less of poisonous gases are thrown off per minute, are also prejudicial to health.

Is the average Englishman, then, to think that the present heat wave is only another expression of this historic disadvantages of his much-abused climate? Leaving out the heart and lungs as being little affected, and the liver and spleen congestion as being too transient to be worthy of serious consideration, the effects of the hot weather on the skin and the digestion are the only points we need consider.

One of the greatest scientists of the age recently stated that most of us died simply because we could not rapidly enough get rid of the poisons which accumulate in our systems. According to his theory, which in slightly varied forms dates from the ancients our hope of old age lies chiefly in keeping our various excretory systems in the best possible working order.

Saved From Degeneration

Among these systems, through whose functions we keep the body free from the effects of auto-intoxication, the skin plays a very important part. During the greater part of the year, unless a man belongs to that small minority who get active daily exercise, his skin and the glands within it lie practically dormant. Any part of the body not actually used will tend to degenerate; therefore it is easy to understand that we northerners would be in a fair way gradually to lose the use of one of the best systems of freeing our bodies from accumulated impurities if our skins never received any climatic stimulation. What can be better, then, than a short spell of almost tropical weather which will make these glands once again thoroughly take up their too little exercised function? The unaccustomed perspiration which most people have rebelled against in these last few days, should be looked upon as a sluicing out of the myriads of tiny channels which cannot but be the better for this all too short period of activity.

The depressing effect of heat on the digestion is also a blessing in disguise. If there is one thing that medical men of all schools are thoroughly agreed upon it is that we eat too much. If with the reduced activity of our digestive systems our appetites were increased, then, indeed, trouble would ensue; but Nature is far too clever for this; she meets the situation not only (with a decrease in appetite, but also by a repugnance, well marked in most people, for the heavier and more indigestible varieties of food.

A Precautionary Measure

Unfortunately, the reviewer of the beneficient effects of an English heat wave cannot get over the fact that the humidity nearly always present detracts from the healthful results that might otherwise be received at this time. It is this humidity, and not the temperature, which leads to the lassitude and nervous depression of which people complain so bitterly. To guard best against this and yet to receive all the benefits of the hot spell, woollen undergarments should be worn. If of fine texture and light in weight, such garments, by their poor conductivity of heat, ward off that greatest danger of the hot wave—sudden variations of temperature. Not only will wool keep the layer of air between itself and the skin at an equable temperature, but it draws the excreted perspiration away from the skin, thus removing a chief factor in the sensation of chills. More than this, it protects the skin from the dampness which, together with the heat, penetrates the other clothing when humidity and high temperature are combined.

If properly cared for, an active skin is one of the best safeguards against disease, and since this extreme hot weather forces even the most sluggish skin to take up again its natural duty, one cannot but believe that the heat wave, even if it has its disadvantages, is a climatic vagary that we ought gladly to put up with for the sake of our health. Apart from all other considerations, the mere fact that it induces us to eat less and to drink more water between meals, which better unfashionable but most healthful habit is too much neglected in these days, should prevent the heat wave from being condemned as unhealthful.

THE BUSY FOREST RANGER AND HIS VARIOUS DUTIES

Of All Positions Under the Government His Is One of the Hardest

WHAT HE HAS TO KNOW

The old-fashioned notion that a forester is a lucky individual whose only work is to rest "under the green wood tree" and occasionally arrest some tenderfoot who has let a campfire spread is being fast dispelled, for in all the government service there are only a few positions that call for more varied qualifications than the forest ranger finds demanded of him.

When the forest service was begun, under the administration of President Cleveland, the duties of the forest guards were comparatively simple. Since then their work has become more complex every year, and eventually only men who are specially trained will be able to assume the ranger's duties. Annual examinations for forest-ranger positions are held in the various Western States, containing the great national forests. Many hundreds of men, ambitious to enter the forest service, are examined as to their qualifications, and selections are made strictly under civil service rules. The first day of an examination is spent in indoor work. The applicants are given questions dealing with problems confronting one in the forest service, and bringing out each man's educational fitness. The examination, while not particularly rigourous, bars the totally uneducated from the ranks of the government's foresters.

The second day of the examination is devoted to field tests, and it is here that the applicant must demonstrate his ability along practical lines. He must show some knowledge of the surveyor's compass and is required to pace off half a mile or so in a triangle and then reduce the distance to rods and feet. Then he must satisfy the government officials who conduct the examination that he knows something of the art of packing a horse. For that packing is an art is well known by any man who has had actual experience away from the haunts of civilization in the west. The man who takes to the trail without some previous knowledge of packing will soon find that he is helpless as an infant, and the best thing he can do is to put back to town and hire a guide.

After the applicant has been accepted and enters the forest service he finds his examination has only begun. He must familiarize himself with the Use Book, a veritable encyclopedia of forestry information, published by the government, and which is called the 'Forester's Bible." He must study practical forestry from all sides; must know the commercial value of trees, and how to use to the fullest extent the timber supply of a reserve. He must know how to scale timber in order to supervise the working of sawmills within the national forests, and must be an expert in forest planting in order to aid in the work of reforestation, which the government is carrying out.

He must know the character and value of lands, and be able to determine if mineral claims or agricultural claims within the reserve are being made in good faith or merely to get possession of valuable timber. He must acquaint himself with grazing restrictions and know how many sheep or cattle a certain area will support. If the range within the reserve is being overstocked he must see that the offending stockmen cut down the sheep or cattle grazing therein. He must know something of the legal side of forest matters and must be able at all times to fight forest fires, the greatest menace of the national forest. Protection of wild game under the laws of the state in which his national forest is located also comes within the ranger's province and he must keep a watchful eye on campers and see that the regulations of the forest are complied with.

REPORT OF FRUIT CROPS AS GIVEN BY THE COMMISSIONER

The Branch of the Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has issued the following statement regarding the fruit crop.

WEATHER CONDITIONS—The weather conditions throughout the Dominion for the past month have been generally favourable for fruit. The first three weeks were exceptionally dry in the fruit districts of Ontario, but occasional showers after the 20th have prevented serious injury except that the samples of strawberries in some cases are not so large as usual. Light frosts on the 15th did only a very slight damage. Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island have had exceptionally favourable weather. In British Columbia, though the weather was cool and wet till the early part of June, conditions were not seriously affected. During the latter part of the month the temperature has been higher with occasional showers.

APPLES—Prospects are not so good this month as last. The "set" of fruit was not as good as was expected, and the dry weather has probably increased the June "drop". A fair estimate of the present conditions would be an average or slightly above the average crop of early and fall apples, with the winter apples somewhat below a medium crop. The districts producing the larger quantity of fruit in Ontario, such as the Counties of Hastings, Durham and Northumberland, have rather a light crop of winter apples.

Speaking generally for the whole apple belt, Spies, Baldwins and Kings will be light or very light, Russets a medium crop, Ben Davis nearly full crop, Greenings a medium crop, the Fameuse above the average almost everywhere and at least an average crop of fairly clean, good-sized fruit in the Ottawa and St. Lawrence Valleys.

In Nova Scotia the prospects for the apple crop as a whole are particularly good this being a bearing year for the Gravenstein. There are no unfavourable conditions in British Columbia the prospects showing a medium crop.

PEARS AND PLUMS—The prospects for pears and plums are only medium. Bartletts and Kieffers have the best showing.

PEACHES — Early varieties will be fairly abundant, somewhat above the average; late varieties a medium crop. In the early varieties Alexander, Early Rivers and Triumph are reported bearing full crops. Of the later varieties St. John will be only a light medium crop, the Early Crawfords are light; Smocks and Elbertas show for something over a medium crop. The Elbertas are bearing heavily where they were sprayed for Curl Leaf; those not sprayed have in many cases a very light crop.

TOMATOES—The prospects for tomatoes are excellent. Should there be plenty of moisture during July, there seems nothing in the way of a full crop this year.

CHERRIES—Sweet cherries will be somewhat scarce, sour cherries more plentiful.

GRAPES—Grapes look well and promise a full crop.

SMALL FRUITS—With a moderate amount of rain small fruits will likely give a large crop. The conditions are so favourable over all the fruit producing sections that the aggregate of the crop will likely be very large.

INSECTS—Insects are not more prevalent than at this time last year, and fungous diseases are not specially in evidence. Up to the present time most injury has been done by the Cigar Case Bearer, the Bud Moth, Canker Worm, Green Fruit Worm and Oyster Shell Bark Louse.

FOREIGN CROP CONDITIONS — The United States will have only an average crop, but very generally distributed over the apple growing districts. The prospects for stock suitable for marketing during the winter months would indicate about an average crop or somewhat less.

The prospects for apples in Great Britain and for the fruit crop generally are particularly good, and there are no serious adverse conditions reported from the Continent.

"I don't savvy what you mean," said Dextry, glancing at his partner warningly. "We ain't done nothin'."

"Well, it's all right then. I took a long chance so you could make a getaway if you wanted to, because they've got warrants for you for that sluice robbery last night. Here they are now." She darted to the window, the men peering over her shoulder. Coming up the narrow walk they saw Voorhees, McNamara and three others.

The house stood somewhat isolated and well back on the tundra, so that any one approaching it by the planking had an unobstructed view of the premises. Escape was impossible, for the back door led out into the ankle deep puddles of the open prairie, and it was now apparent that a sixth man had made a circuit and was approaching from the rear.

"My God! They'll search the place," said Dextry, and the men looked grimly in each other's faces.

Then in a flash Glenister stripped back the blankets and seized the "pokes," leaping into the back room. In another instant he returned with them and faced desperately the candid bareness of the little room that they lived and slept in. Nothing could be hidden; it was folly to think of it. There was a loft overhead, he remembered hopefully, then realized that the pursuers would search there first of all.

"I told you he was a hard fighter," said Dextry as the quick footsteps grew louder. "He ain't no fool, neither. 'Stead of our bein' caught in the mountains, I reckon we'll shoot it out here. We should have cached that gold somewhere."

He spun the cylinder of his blackened Colt, while his face grew hard and vulture-like.

Meanwhile Cherry Malotte watched the hunted look in Glenister's face grow wilder and then stiffen into the stubbornness of a man at bay. The posse was at the door now, knocking. The three inside stood rigid and strained. Then Glenister tossed his burden on the bed.

"Go into the back room, Cherry; there's going to be trouble."

"Who's there?" inquired Dextry through the door, to gain time. Suddenly, without a word, the girl glided to the hot blast heater, now cold and empty, which stood in a corner of the room. These stoves, used widely in the north, are vertical iron cylinders into which coal is poured from above. She lifted the lid and peered in to find it a quarter full of dead ashes, then turned with shining eyes and parted lips to Glenister. He caught the hint, and in an instant the four sacks were dropped softly into the feathery bottom and the ashes raked over. The daring maneuver was almost as quick as the flash of woman's wit that prompted it and was carried through while the answer to Dextry's question was still unspoken.

Then Glenister opened the door carelessly and admitted the group of men.

"We've got a search warrant to look through your house," said Voorhees.

"What are you looking for?"

"Gold dust from Anvil creek."

"All right—search away."

They rapidly scoured the premises, covering every inch, paying no heed to the girl, who watched them with indifferent eyes, nor to the old man, who glared at their every movement. Glenister was carelessly sarcastic, although he kept his right arm free, while beneath his sangfroid was a thoroughly trained alertness.

McNamara directed the search with a manner wholly lacking in his former mock courtesy. It was as though he had been soured by the gall of defeat. The mask had fallen off now, and his character showed—insistent, overbearing, cruel. Toward the partners he preserved a contemptuous silence.

The invaders ransacked thoroughly, while a dozen times the hearts of Cherry Malotte and her two companions stopped, then lunged onward, as McNamara or Voorhees approached, then passed the stove. At last Voorhees lifted the lid and peered into its dark interior. At the same instant the girl cried out sharply, flinging herself from her position while the marshal jerked his head back in time to see her dash upon Dextry.

"Don't! Don't!" She cried her appeal to the old man. "Keep cool. You'll be sorry, Dex—they're almost through."

The officer had not seen any movement on Dextry's part, but doubtless her quick eye had detected signs of violence. McNamara emerged, glowering, from the back room at that moment.

"Let them hunt," the girl was saying, while Dextry stared dazedly over her head. "They won't find anything. Keep cool and don't act rash."

Voorhees' duties sat uncomfortably upon him at the best, and, looking at the smoldering eyes of the two men, he became averse to further search in a powdery household whose members itched to shoot him in the back.

"It isn't here," he reported, but the politician only scowled, then spoke for the first time directly to the partners:

"I've got warrants for both of you, and I'm tempted to take you in, but I won't. I'm not through yet—not by any means. I'll get you—get you both." He turned out of the door, followed by the marshal, who called off his guards, and the group filed back along the walk.

"Say, you're a jewel, Cherry. You've saved us twice. You caught Voorhees just in time. My heart hit my palate when he looked into that stove, but the next instant I wanted to laugh at Dextry's expression."

Impulsively Glenister laid his hands upon her shoulders. At his look and touch her throat swelled, her bosom heaved and the silken lids fluttered until she seemed choked by a very flood of sweet womanliness. She blushed like a little maid and laughed a timid, broken laugh. Then, pulling herself together, the merry careless tone came into her voice, and her cheeks grew cool and clear.

"You wouldn't trust me at first, eh? Some day you'll find that your old friends are the best after all."

And as she left them she added mockingly:

"Say, you're a pair of 'shine' desperadoes. You need a governess."

CHAPTER XI.

A RAW, gray day, with a driving drizzle from seaward and a leaden rack of clouds drifting low, matched the sullen, fitful mood of Glenister.

During the last month he had chafed and fretted like an animal in leash for word of Wheaton. This uncertainty, this impotent waiting with folded hands, was maddening to one of his spirit. He could apply himself to no fixed duty, for the sense of his wrong preyed on him fiercely, and he found himself haunting the vicinity of the Midas, gazing at it from afar, grasping hungrily for such scraps of news as chanced to reach him. McNamara allowed access to none but his minions, so the partners knew but vaguely of what happened on their property, even though, under fiction of the law, it was being worked for their protection.

No steps regarding a speedy hearing of the case were allowed, and the collusion between Judge Stillman and the receiver had become so generally recognized that there were uneasy mutterings and threats in many quarters. Yet, although the politician had by now virtually absorbed all the richest properties in the district and worked them through his hirelings, the people of Nome, as a whole, did not grasp the full turpitude of the scheme nor the system's perfect working.

Strange to say, Dextry, the fire eater, had assumed an oriental patience quite foreign to his peppery disposition and spent much of his time in the hills prospecting.

On this day, as the clouds broke about noon, close down on the angry horizon a drift of smoke appeared, shortly resolving itself into a steamer. She lay to in the offing, and, through his glasses Glenister saw that it was the Roanoke. As the hours passed and no boat put off, he tried to hire a crew, but the longshoremen spat wisely and shook their heads as they watched the surf.

"There's the devil of an undertow settin' along this beach," they told him, "and the water's too cold to drownd in comfortable." So he laid firm hands upon his impatience.

Every day meant many dollars to the watcher, and yet it seemed that nature was resolute in thwarting him, for that night the wind freshened, and daylight saw the ship hugging the lee of Sledge island, miles to the westward, while the surf, white as boiling milk, boomed and thundered against the shore.

Word had gone through the street that Bill Wheaton was aboard with a writ or a subpoena or an alibi or whatever was necessary to put the "kibosh" on McNamara, so public excitement grew. McNamara hoarded his gold in the Alaska bank, and it was taken for granted that there would lie the scene of the struggle. No one supposed for an instant that the usurper would part with the treasure peaceably.

On the third morning the ship lay abreast of the town again, and a lifeboat was seen to make off from her, whereupon the idle population streamed toward the beach.

"She'll make it to the surf all right, but then watch out."

"We'd better make ready to haul 'em out," said another. "It's mighty dangerous." And, sure enough, as the skiff came rushing in through the breakers she was caught.

She had made it past the first line, soaring over the bar on a foamy roller crest like a storm driven gull winging in toward the land. The wiry figure of Bill Wheaton crouched in the stern, while two sailors fought with their oars. As they gathered for their rush through the last zone of froth a great comber rose out of the sea behind them, rearing high above their heads. The crowd on the surf's edge shouted. The boat wavered, sucked back into the ocean's angry maw, and with a crash the deluge engulfed them. There remained nothing but a swirling flood through which the lifeboat emerged bottom up, amid a tangle of oars, gratings and gear.

Men rushed into the water, and the next roller pounded them back upon the marble hard sand. There came the sound of splitting wood, and then a group swarmed in waist deep and bore out a dripping figure. It was a bemopen headed seaman, who shook the water from his mane and grinned when his breath had come.

A step farther down the beach the bystanders seized a limp form which the tide rolled to them. It was the second sailor, his scalp split from a blow of the gunwale. Nowhere was Wheaton.

Glenister had plunged to the rescue first, a heaving line about his middle, and, although buffeted about, he had reached the wreck, only to miss sight of the lawyer utterly. He had time for but a glance when he was drawn outward by the undertow till the line at his waist grew taut, then the water surged over him and he was hurled high up on the beach again. He staggered dimly back to the struggle, when suddenly a wave lifted the capsized cutter and righted it, and out from beneath shot the form of Wheaton, grimly clutching the life ropes. They brought him in choking and breathless.

"I got it," he said, slapping his streaming breast. "It's all right, Glenister. I knew what delay meant, so I took a long chance with the surf." The terrific ordeal he had undergone had blanched him to the lips, his legs wabbled uncertainly, and he would have fallen but for the young man, who thrust an arm about his waist and led him up into the town.

"I went before the circuit court of appeals in 'Frisco," he explained later, "and they issued orders allowing an appeal from this court and gave me a writ of supersedeas directed against old Judge Stillman. That takes the litigation out of his hands altogether and directs McNamara to turn over the Midas and all the gold he's got. What do you think of that? I did better than I expected."

Glenister wrung his hand silently, while a great satisfaction came upon him. At last this waiting was over and his peaceful yielding to injustice had borne fruit—had proved the better course after all, as the girl had prophesied. He could go to her now with clean hands. The mine was his again. He would lay it at her feet, telling her once more of his love and the change it was working in him. He would make her see it—make her see that beneath the harshness his years in the wild had given him his love for her was gentle and true and all absorbing. He would bid her be patient till she saw he had mastered himself, till he could come with his soul in harness.

"I am glad I didn't fight when they jumped us," he said. "Now we'll get our property back and all the money they took out—that is, if McNamara hasn't salted it."

"Yes; all that's necessary is to file the documents, then serve the judge and McNamara. You'll be back on Anvil creek tomorrow."

Having placed their documents on record at the courthouse, the two men continued to McNamara's office. He met them with courtesy.

"I heard you had a narrow escape this morning, Mr. Wheaton. Too bad! What can I do for you?"

The lawyer rapidly outlined his position and stated in conclusion:

"I filed certified copies of these orders with the clerk of the court ten minutes ago, and now I make formal demand upon you to turn over the Midas to Messrs. Glenister and Dextry and also to return all the gold dust in your safe deposit boxes in accordance with this writ." He handed his documents to McNamara, who tossed them on his desk without examination.

"Well," said the politician quietly, "I won't do it."

Had he been slapped in the face the attorney would not have been more astonished.

"Why—you"—

"I won't do it, I said!" McNamara repeated sharply. "Don't think for a minute that I haven't gone into this fight armed for everything. Writs of supersedeas! Bah!" He snapped his fingers.

"We'll see whether you'll obey or not," said Wheaton, and when he and Glenister were outside he continued:

"Let's get to the judge quick."

As they neared the Golden Gate hotel they spied McNamara entering. It was evident that he had slipped from the rear door of his office and beaten them to the judicial car.

"I don't like that," said Glenister. "He's up to something."

So it appeared, for they were fifteen minutes in gaining access to the magistrate and then found McNamara with him. Both men were astounded at the change in Stillman's appearance. During the last month his weak face had shrunk and altered until vacillation was betrayed in every line, and he had acquired the habit of furtively watching McNamara's slightest movement. It seemed that the part he played set heavily upon him.

The judge examined the papers perfunctorily, and, although his air was deliberate, his fingers made clumsy work of it. At last he said:

"I regret that I am forced to doubt the authenticity of these documents."

"My heavens, man!" Wheaton cried. "They're certified copies of orders from your superior court. They grant the appeal that you have denied us and take the case out of your hands altogether. Yes, and they order this man to surrender the mine and everything connected with it. Now, sir, we want you to enforce these orders."

Stillman glanced at the silent man in the window and replied:

"You will, of course, proceed regularly and make application in court in the proper way, but I tell you now that I won't do anything in the matter."

Wheaton stared at him fixedly until the old man snapped out:

"You say they are certified copies. How do I know they are? The signatures may all be false. Maybe you signed them yourself."

The lawyer grew very white at this and stammered until Glenister drew him out of the room.

"Come; come," he said; "we'll carry this thing through in open court. Maybe his nerve will go back on him then. McNamara has him hypnotised, but he won't dare refuse to obey the orders of the circuit court of appeals."

"He won't, eh? Well, what do you think he's doing right now?" said Wheaton. "I must think. This is the boldest game I ever played in. They told me things while I was in 'Frisco which I couldn't believe, but I guess they're true. Judges don't disobey the orders of their courts of appeal unless there is power back of them."

They proceeded to the attorney's office, but had not been there long before Slapjack Simms burst in upon them.

"Hell to pay!" he panted. "McNamara's taking your dust out of the bank."

"What's that?" they cried.

"I goes into the bank just now for an assay on some quartz samples. The assayer is busy, and I walk back into his room, and while I'm there in trots McNamara in a hurry. He don't see me, as I'm inside the private office, and I overhear him tell them to get his dust out of the vault quick."

"We've got to stop that," said Glenister. "If he takes ours, he'll take the Swedes', too. Simms, you run up to the Pioneer company and tell them about it. If he gets that gold out of there, nobody knows what'll become of it. Come on, Bill."

He snatched his hat and ran out of the room, followed by the others. That the loose jointed Slapjack did his work with expedition was evidenced by the fact that the Swedes were close upon their heels as the two entered the bank. Others had followed, sensing something unusual, and the space within the doors filled rapidly. At the disturbance the clerks suspended their work, the barred doors of the safe deposit vault clanged to, and the cashier laid hand upon the navy Colt's at his elbow. "What's the matter?" he cried.

"We want Alec McNamara," said Glenister.

The manager of the bank appeared, and Glenister spoke to him through the heavy wire netting.

"Is McNamara in there?"

No one had ever known Morehouse to lie. "Yes, sir." He spoke hesitatingly, in a voice full of the slow music of Virginia. "He is in here. What of it?"

"We hear he's trying to move that dust of ours, and we won't stand for it. Tell him to come out and not hide in there like a dog."

At these words the politician appeared beside the southerner, and the two conversed softly an instant, while the impatience of the crowd grew to anger. Some one cried:

"Let's go in and drag him out," and the rumble at this was not pleasant. Morehouse raised his hand.

"Gentlemen, Mr. McNamara says he doesn't intend to take any of the gold away."

"Then he's taken it already."

"No, he hasn't."

The receiver's course had been quickly chosen at the interruption. It was not wise to anger these men too much. Although he had planned to get the money into his own possession, he now thought it best to leave it here for the present. He could come back at any time when they were off guard and get it. Beyond the door against which he stood lay $300,000—weighed, sacked, sealed and ready to move out of the custody of this Virginian whose confidence he had tried so fruitlessly to gain.

As McNamara looked into the angry eyes of the lean faced men beyond the grating he felt that the game was growing close, and his blood tingled at the thought. He had not planned on a resistance so strong and swift, but he would meet it. He knew that they hungered for his destruction and that Glenister was their leader. He saw further that the man's hatred now stared at him openly for the first time. He knew that back of it was something more than love for the dull metal over which they wrangled, and then a thought came to him.

"Some of your work, eh, Glenister?" he mocked. "Were you afraid to come alone, or did you wait till you saw me with a lady?"

At the same instant he opened a door behind him, revealing Helen Chester. "You'd better not walk out with me, Miss Chester. This man might—well, you're safer here, you know. You'll pardon me for leaving you." He hoped he could incite the young man to some rash act or word in the presence of the girl and counted on the conspicuous heroism of his own position, facing the mob single handed, one against fifty.

"Come out," said his enemy hoarsely, upon whom the insult and the sight of the girl in the receiver's company had acted powerfully.

SUNSHINE FURNACE

And Coal Economy

COMBUSTION taking place in the dome or top chamber of furnace fire-pot is the result of air and heat mingling with fumes. This combustion produces heat-energy, which the radiating surfaces above and around fire-pot absorb or draw in and then deflect or throw off. Incoming cold air receives this heat-energy, the result being heated air. Now, if the combustion takes place at a faster rate than the radiating surfaces can absorb and deflect, the surplus heat-power will pass up the chimney or into cellar—a waste of coal.

There is no waste of coal in "Sunshine" Furnace. Circuit of radiator is so complete, and air-circulating space so large, that every bit of heat-energy is quickly absorbed and quickly deflected on the circulating cold air, which is thus quickly heated and ascends through the hot-air pipes to rooms above.

The check-draft of a furnace is situated on the smoke-pipe. When this draft is closed—especially on an "ordinary" furnace—heat particles can escape up chimney. When check-draft is opened the incoming cold air from the cellar drives all heat particles back into furnace proper. If the grates and fire-pot of furnace are not constructed properly, there's a clogging and gathering of ashes, and fire does not burn up readily. If no provision is made for gas escape, the check-draft must be left closed indefinitely—a waste of coal.

There is no waste of coal in "Sunshine" Furnace. No clogging can take place in the 4-piece grate, no ashes can gather on the straight fire-pot walls, and the Automatic Gas Damper makes every provision for the escape of gas; consequently, check-draft can be opened shortly after coaling and all heat-energy saved for radiation.

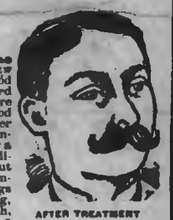
BEFORE TREATMENT



AFTER TREATMENT

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been inflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish." W. Dear Sir,---We beg to acknowledge receipt of cheque for $2,500.00 in settlement of fire loss, Policy 8,645,879, Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company.

We note in connection with this settlement a most unusual feature. They are legally entitled to 1% of stated sum for payment prior to due date. No business man would for one moment question their right to this amount. But they do not take it. Instead they have purposely waived their priveleges and presented us with this additional amount.

We are gratified to note this remarkable action. To adjust and settle a loss within twelve days is noteworthy, but to add to this magnanimity in refusing to take advantage of their discount privileges places this company in a most favorable position.

We congratulate you upon representing a company of such superior standing.

Yours very truly,
CANADA FLAKES CO. Limited

"SEEIN' THINGS AT NIGHT."

Explanation Is Found In the Special Conditions of Night Vision.

Every one must at times have asked why familiar objects in a dim light tend to assume fantastic and oftentimes alarming appearances, says a writer in the British Medical Journal.

The explanation is to be found in the special conditions of night vision. The pupils are widely dilated and, as in the photographic lens with a large diaphragm, the apparatus of accommodation can only focus for one plane. As the faculty of estimating distances is in great measure lost in the obscurity we cannot focus with precision, and a blurred, uncertain outline is thrown upon the retina.

Then, too, colors viewed in a fading light lose their distinguishing hue in a fixed sequence until a point is reached at which everything becomes of one uniform gray tint.

It follows that the images which are transmitted to the visual centres are profoundly modified in color and outline, and as they enter the eye through the widely dilated pupil at an altogether unusual angle the movement of locomotion gives them a peculiar mobility.

Now, one relies on experience for the interpretation of sensorial impressions, and when these present themselves suddenly in an unusual form they create a feeling of insecurity which finds expression in mental perturbation and more or less violent motor impulsion. In fact, the subject finds himself in the position of a horse which sees a rapidly advancing automobile for the first time and does not know what to make of it.

Imagination aiding, these blurred, mobile and uncertain images are susceptible of the most phantasmagoric interpretation, and in persons who are not accustomed to control sensorial impressions by the exercise of the intelligence the impressions are accepted as realities and acted upon accordingly.

Gamekeepers and others who are accustomed to night work make allowance for phenomena of this class and correct the visual deficiency by the aid of other senses, such as hearing, which are not dependent on light.

JOHN MORLEY.

One of the Ablest and Best Beloved of English Statesmen.

No man in the public life of England enjoys a greater popularity than John Morley, the friend and biographer of Gladstone, the Secretary of State for India in the Cabinet of Premier Asquith and now a member of the House of Lords, having been ennobled by the King at the time of the reorganization of the Liberal administration consequent upon the resignation of the late Campbell-Bannerman. Although a statesman of high rank, and a man who has compelled the respect of friends and foes alike by the independence and fearlessness of his character, yet his first interests are literary rather than political. One of his most valuable contributions to English literature is his biography of Gladstone.

Mr. Morley is an advanced radical and has steadfastly adhered to the home rule policy of Gladstone. In fact, it was Mr. Morley who converted Gladstone to the policy of home rule for Ireland. He is a man who possesses fairness of mind and fairness of purpose. He has not acquired great wealth either from literature or politics; in fact, he is, relatively, a poor man. He is now 70 years old. His knowledge of public questions and his training should make him a valuable factor in the House of Lords.

Jenny Lind's Piety.

Jenny Lind, who gave her first £2,000 to the poor, continued throughout her life a series of charities and pieties. In regard to the latter we have the assurance of a friend that this greatest of singers deliberately cut short her own public career while her voice was still in perfection. It was Lady Taylor, wife of the author of "Philip Van Artevelde," who found Jenny Lind sitting toward evening on a south coast beach just after her withdrawal, with a book in her lap. She spoke of her resolve. "I found that this"—the setting sun—"was becoming less to me and that this"—the book in her lap was a Bible—"was becoming nothing to me, and I knew then that I must check myself and change my life."—London Standard.

Mexican Lottery Tickets.

Nearly $100,000 is spent in the City of Mexico every week in lottery tickets, and in the same period about $70,000 is paid back in premiums. On the weeks immediately preceding the big drawings the sale, of course, mounts up to great sums—as, for instance when the $200,000 drawings are held there are 20,000 tickets at $40 each sold on the streets, and practically every ticket is disposed of, most of them during the last two weeks before the drawing. But as a general proposition, on an average, $15,000 a day is spent by the people of the City of Mexico on the lotteries.

The Open Window.

Children brought up with open windows appear indeed to be about fifteen times more likely to contract adenoids than those who sleep with the windows shut on cold and damp nights, or at least than those who sleep with closed windows throughout the greater part of the year.—Dr. Sim Wallace in Medical Press.

Dew.

Teacher—How do you account for the phenomenon of dew? Boy—Well, you see, the earth revolves on its axis every twenty-four hours, and in consequence of this tremendous pace it perspires freely.—London Tit-Bits.

Mean.

Burton—Mean man, isn't he?

Robinson—Mean? He's capable of going into a barber's shop for a shave and then getting his hair cut just to keep other people waiting.

Nothing is so burdensome as a secret.—French Proverb.

A GHOST STORY.

The Spectral Horseman That Visits Wycollar Hall.

This ghost story is contributed by a correspondent of an English magazine: "Wycollar Hall, near Colne, was long the seat of the Cunliffes of Billington. They were noted persons in their time, but evil days came, and their ancestral estates passed out of their hands. In the days of the commonwealth their loyalty cost them dear, and ultimately they retired to Wycollar with a remnant only of their once extensive property. About 1819 the last of the family passed away, and the hall is now a mass of ruins. Little but the antique fireplace remains entire, and even the room alluded to in the following legend cannot now be identified. Tradition says that once every year a specter horseman visits Wycollar Hall. He is attired in the costume of the early Stuart period, and the trappings of his horse are of a most uncouth description.

"On the evening of his visit the weather is always wild and tempestuous. There is no moon to light the lonely roads, and the residents of the district do not venture out of their cottages. When the wind howls loudest the horseman can be heard dashing up the road at full speed, and, after crossing the narrow bridge, he suddenly stops at the door of the hall. The rider then dismounts and makes his way up the broad oaken stairs into one of the rooms of the house. Dreadful screams, as from a woman, are then heard, which soon subside into groans. The horseman then makes his appearance at the door, at once mounts his steed and gallops off.

"His body can be seen through by those who may chance to be present; his horse appears to be wild with rage, and its nostrils stream with fire. The tradition is that one of the Cunliffes murdered his wife in that room and that the specter horseman is the ghost of the murderer, who is doomed to pay an annual visit to the home of his victim. She is said to have predicted the extinction of the family, which, according to the story, has been literally fulfilled."

An Exception.

"I think," said the merchant, "I'll have to fire your friend Polk. I never saw any one quite so lazy."

"Slow in everything, is he?"

"No, not everything. He gets tired quick enough."—Exchange.

Easy Enough.

"I cannot live but a week longer wizout you!"

"Really, duke!—Now, how can you fix on a specific length of time?"

"Ze landlord fix on it, miss, not I."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

WOMEN AND GIRLS HELD BY ANAEMIA

Unless the Blood Is Made Rich and Red Health Cannot be Restored

Throughout Canada there are thousands of growing girls and women held in the deadly clutches of anaemia. Slowly but surely a leathly pallor settles on their cheeks; their eyes grow dull; their appetite fickle; their steps languid. Daily they are being robbed of all vitality and brightness. Their sufferings grow more acute if neglected, until the signs of early consumption become apparent. If your wife or daughter or sister complains of weakness, pains in the side, headaches or backaches; if her appetite and temper are uncertain and she is often low spirited anaemia has her in its deadly hold. What she needs is new, rich, red blood. Give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People without loss of time, for they actually make new, red blood. They make girls and women well and happy, impart an apetite and steadily bring back the charm and brightness of perfect, regular health.

Miss Carrie McGrath, 26 Fenwick street, Halifax, N.S., says:—"I believe Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life. Three years ago I suffered from anaemia in a severe form. I was all run down and as pale as a sheet. I could scarcely eat anything, and what I did take did not seem to nourish me. My hands and feet were much swollen and the least exertion would leave me breathless and my heart beating violently. I seemed to have pains and aches all over. I was so weak I could not even sweep a floor. At different times I was under the care of three doctors, but did not get any better. One doctor said I had dropsy and that my blood had all turned to water. My friends thought I was in a decline and that I had but a short time to live. I was completely discouraged myself, when one day a lady friend called to see me, and told me Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had cured her daughter of anaemia and urged me to try them. I decided to try them, and in the course of a few weeks felt somewhat better. I met the doctor one day and he remarked how much better I was looking. I told him it was not his medicine but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that were helping me, and he told me I had better keep on taking them. I continued to do so until I had taken another half a dozen boxes, when my health was perfectly restored. I am more than grateful for what these pills have done for me and strongly recommend them to all weak girls."

Thousands of men and women, now well and strong, praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for having cured anaemia, general weakness, indigestion rheumatism, neuralgia, nervous disorders, paralysis and the ailments of girlhood and womanhood. These Pills do this by making new, red blood which feeds the starved nerves, drives out disease and strengthens every organ in the body. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BIRDS' TONGUES.

Why the Parrot Is Able to Imitate Human Speech.

One of the government naturalists at Washington has recently gathered some fresh information concerning the tongues of birds.

Many people suppose that woodpeckers use their sharp pointed tongues as darts with which to transfix their prey. It is true that the woodpecker, like the humming bird, can dart out its tongue with astonishing rapidity and that its mouth is furnished with an elaborate mechanism for this purpose, yet, according to the authority mentioned, investigation shows that the object of this swift motion is only to catch the prey, not to pierce it. For the purpose of holding the captured victim the woodpecker's tongue is furnished with a sticky secretion.

Considering its powers of imitating speech, it is not surprising to learn that the parrot's tongue resembles that of man more closely than any other bird's. It is not because the parrot is more intelligent than the other birds but because its tongue is better suited for articulation than theirs, that it is able to amuse us with its mimicry.

The humming bird's tongue is in some respects the most remarkable of all. It is double nearly from end to end, so that the little bird is able to grasp its insect prey with its tongue much as if its mouth was furnished with a pair of fingers.

THE ANT EATER.

A Harmless Animal That Will Fight Hard When at Bay.

A peculiar looking animal is the ant eater, which is closely allied to the sloth family. Its head is drawn out into a long, tubular muzzle, at the end of which is a tiny mouth just big enough to permit the exit of its long, wormlike tongue, which is covered with a sticky saliva.

This tongue is thrust among the hosts of ants with great rapidity, coming back laden with the tiny insects. To obtain its prey the ant eater breaks open the ant hills, when all the active inhabitants swarm to the breach and are instantaneously swept away by the remorseless tongue.

The jaws of the ant eater are entirely without teeth, and the eyes and ears are very small.

There are several species of ant eater, the largest kind being about four feet long and having a tail covered with very long hair, forming a huge brush. The claw on the third toe of each fore limb is of great size and is used for breaking open ants' and other insects' nests.

Generally speaking, the ant eater is a harmless animal, but at times when at bay it will fight with great courage, sitting up on its hind legs and hugging its foe with its powerful arms. —London Express.

The Perfumed Cloud.

The dentist's sleeve was smeared with a pale dust. He beat it with his palm, and a perfumed cloud arose.

"Makeup," he said, laughing, "the day's usual harvest of makeup. Why the deuce, to front the fierce white light of a dental chair, will women come to me with makeup plastered thick on their pretty faces? They all, or nearly all, do it. Their lips are reddened, their brows pencilled, their cheeks rouged, and in a few cases the tiny network of veins in the temples is outlined in blue. Pegging away at their teeth, I mop up all that makeup on my coat sleeve. I smear red over white noses, black over pink cheeks. Phew! Look out!"

And, brushing his cuff again, he leaped back to escape the sweet smelling cloud that filled the air. —Exchange.

Difficult Feats.

"Here are some extracts from a few modern popular novels," said an author as he took down a scrap book. Then he read:

"'The worthy pastor appeared at the manse door, his hands thrust deep in the pockets of his loose jacket, while he turned the leaves of his prayer book thoughtfully and wiped his glasses with a distraught air.'

"'After the door was closed a stealthy foot slipped into the room and with cautious hand extinguished the light.'

"'Fitzgibbon lingered over his final lemonade, when a gentle voice tapped him on the shoulder, and, turning, he beheld his old friend once again.'

"'The chariot of revolution is rolling onward, gnashing its teeth as it rolls.'"

Greedy Little Salmon.

Little creatures may be very greedy and yet not be able to eat much because of their size, as was illustrated, for instance, in the case of a batch of about 20,000 little Chinook salmon that were hatched out at the aquarium. These young fishes, each about two inches long, would eat so much that their little stomachs fairly stuck out, and yet to feed the whole 20,000 took daily only one pound of liver and a quart of herring roe, both chopped fine.

The Best Man

By EMELINE BARR.

Copyright, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

For the first time in his life John Amidon found himself in New York. It was a warm spring day—much too warm and too glorious to spend in visiting a round of stuffy offices. He would make a holiday of it and let business wait until tomorrow.

An inspiration seized him, and after some search through the various compartments of his leather wallet he drew out a dingy visiting card.

"H'm," he mused. "That's funny. I was sure I had his address. 'Richard Malloney,' that's all it says, though, that's sure."

He put the card back thoughtfully.

"It was something about Washington," he reflected.

But the "something" had eluded him impishly. He drew a map out of his pocket and studied it carefully. With an air of triumph he at length pounced upon the words "Mount Vernon." He had it!

Should he consult a telephone directory? What was the use? It would be more fun to give Dick a surprise. Dick was just the kind of fellow to enjoy the unexpected. On the way out on the train Amidon indulged in pleasant reminiscences of college days when he and Dick had been such jolly good chums. Was it possible a whole ten years had gone since they had seen each other?

"But Dick's all right," he soliloquised. "It's a great thing to be sure of a welcome. He'll be just as glad to see me as I will"—

"Mount Vernon!" shouted the conductor, and Amidon got off hurriedly.

"Can you tell me where Mr. Richard Malloney lives?" he asked the first person he happened to run into at the station. Before the person addressed had time to reply a six-year-old boy piped up:

"I can."

"Is that so?" returned Amidon genially. "Well, suppose you show me then. Will you?"

For answer the knowing one turned to lead the way importantly. When he came to the end of the station platform he stopped beside a shining automobile.

"Get in," he said to Amidon hospitably.

Amidon hesitated.

"Why, thank you, young man," he replied. "You are very kind, but if you'll just be good enough to tell me where Mr. Malloney lives I'll walk there."

"But we're going right there," persisted Amidon's personal conductor. "Mr. Richard Malloney is my father. I'm Richard Malloney, Jr., you know."

In spite of his amazement Amidon was alert enough to be conscious of the chauffeur's silent chuckling. Richard Malloney, Jr., was proving a most unexpectedly sprightly pilot. It might be well before committing oneself irrevocably to his management to ask a few definite questions. So Amidon addressed the amused chauffeur.

"I arrived from town on this last train," he stated. "Can you tell me if Mr. Malloney is at home?"

"Very sorry, sir," returned the chauffeur civilly. "He's just started for town himself."

"And—Mrs. Malloney?"

"She went with him, sir."

Amidon reflected a moment.

"Barbara's home," volunteered Malloney junior.

Amidon's face lighted instantly. Barbara—that was Dick's sister, of course. He remembered, but this was no time for reminiscences.

"Is she, indeed?" he exclaimed jovially. "Then I will run out." And he jumped in beside Richard.

"Let's see," he mused, hardly conscious that he spoke, "how old must Barbara be now?"

"About thirty," Richard suggested.

Amidon glanced at the chauffeur. He was quite sure he was chuckling again.

"About thirty?" repeated Amidon. "It doesn't seem possible."

"She's grown up awful fast," Richard commented. "She was only just a girl when she went away to school, but now she does her hair up and stays up evenings. I wish I was thirty."

This yearning was accompanied by a very genuine sigh, but Amidon had quite forgotten to listen to the child's prattle. His own thoughts were more absorbing.

Had he or had he not met Dick's sister? So many fellows at college had sisters! If so, what had she looked like? She must have been very young—and to think of Dick's being married and never letting him know—more than that, to think of there being a Richard Malloney, Jr.!

"Here we are," exclaimed the boy, "and there's Barbara on the porch. Hoo-oo!"

Barbara came to the top of the steps, looking at Amidon curiously.

As for Amidon, he was seized with a panic of misgivings. Surely, if he had ever in his life seen that girl, no matter how many years ago, he would never have forgotten her.

But he must say something, for young Richard had already climbed out of the machine and announced, "Here's a man to see you, Barbara," an introduction that certainly needed elucidating.

Amidon braced himself.

"I am John Amidon," he stated simply, standing below her, with hat in hand. "Your brother and I were friends at college. I hoped to find him here."

To his astonishment Barbara burst out laughing, revealing two very beautiful dimples in her glowing cheeks. She recovered herself with evident effort.

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Amidon. There must be some mistake. You see, this is my only brother," she said as she lifted Richard junior off his feet and then let him down again with a suddenness that evidently tickled that young man's fancy.

"Well, it couldn't have been your father!" ventured Amidon.

At the absurdity of this suggestion Barbara and John both laughed heartily. Then Barbara had an idea.

"Why, of course, you mean Cousin Dick. Are you a Harvard man?"

John nodded. "Ninety-eight," he informed her.

"How stupid of me not to have thought of that at once!" Barbara accused herself. "But, you see, '98 is a pretty long time ago, and Dick has been abroad nearly ever since he left college."

It was all such a ridiculously mixed up state of affairs—the idea that Cousin Dick was married and that Richard junior was his son; that Barbara was Dick's sister—when in reality, as it turned out, Dick had no sister; that, most comical of all, Barbara was "about thirty"—well, what was there to do but to laugh and laugh about it?

"But how," suddenly broke out Barbara, "did you happen to find us here in Mount Vernon? Dick's family lives in New York, you know."

"What part of New York?" asked John.

"Washington square."

And then followed more explanations and more laughter.

When Mrs. Malloney returned from town at luncheon time she found Barbara and John in the midst of an exciting tennis match.

"Who's playing with Barbara?" she questioned Richard junior after several futile attempts to recognise the young man.

"A man I brought from the station," Richard informed her boastingly.

"Richard, what are you talking about? What's his name?"

"Barbara will tell you. She likes him. They've been laughing lots."

The introduction, with its subsequent explanations, at last over with, Mrs. Malloney was all charming hospitality.

"Of course you'll come out and stay with us while you're here, Mr. Amidon. The city is so disagreeable in warm weather. It's a great privilege to be able to do anything for Dick's friends. We're all most fond of him, but he gives us very little chance to show it. You will make this your headquarters, won't you?"

John Amidon had to hold on to himself good and hard. He was so happy that he feared he would appear overzealous in accepting the invitation.

Of course John Amidon fell head over heels in love with Barbara. Of course he decided to spend the whole summer in the east, and, of course, at the end of the summer he wrote to his chum, Dick Malloney, commanding his congratulations.

"You're going to marry Barbara, aren't you?" asked Richard junior, bobbing abruptly out from under the hammock where the lovers were sitting one evening at twilight.

"You bet I am!" exclaimed John, catching him up affectionately.

"What will I be then," queried the puzzled Richard, "your cousin or your son?"

"You? Why," said John, laughing, "you'll be my best man, of course."

The Cruelty of Thoughtlessness.

Most of the cruelty of the world is thoughtless cruelty. Very few people would intentionally add to another's load or make his burden in life heavier or his path rougher. Most of the great heart wounds are inflicted by thoughtless thrusts, flung out often in a moment of anger, when perhaps we were too proud to apologize or to try to heal the grievous wounds we had made.

Can anything be more cruel than to discourage a soul who is struggling to do the best he can, to throw stumbling blocks in the path of those who are trying to get on in the world against great odds?

No life is just the same after you have once touched it. Will you leave a ray of hope or one of despair, a flash of light or a somber cloud across some dark life each day? Will you by thoughtless cruelty deepen the shadow which hangs over the life, or will you by kindness dispel it altogether? No matter how you feel or what is disturbing your peace of mind, never allow yourself to send ont a discouraging, a cruel or an unkind word or thought.—Success Magazine.

A Lost Dime.

A man one day called upon the first John Jacob Astor with a business proposition which demanded an investment of $100,000 on his part. While listening to the plan he kept groping and feeling about on the floor for something he seemed to have dropped. When the plan had been explained he said readily: "All right. I'll furnish the money." At that instant a man entered to tell him that one of his buildings had burned down.

"That happens nearly every day," he said, with the utmost unconcern, and went on feeling about with great care for that something on the carpet. Finally the visitor was curious enough to inquire what he had dropped.

"I dropped a dime here a moment ago," he replied, "and I can't find it. If a man's buildings burn down they are gone, and he can't help it, but a man who deliberately throws away 10 cents because he won't take the trouble to look for it is not to be forgiven."

The more you think over it the more you will see the good sense in that piece of philosophy.

Advantage of Credit.

"My big sister has a beau."

"So's mine, but I don't like him."

"Know what my sister'd do if I didn't like her beau?"

"No. What'd she do?"

"She'd send him back and get him changed, 'cause we've got a charge account at the store he comes from."

Changing Places With Jimmie.

By W. F. BRYAN.

Copyright, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Jack Morewood stood upon the piazza tapping the floor with the tip of her daintily booted foot and slapping at her habit skirt with a silver mounted crop.

It was a perfect day for a ride. The sun kissed the peaks of the low chain of hills to the west, and in between was the bright green of early summer. Nature was in her kindliest mood, but Jacqueline did not share it.

The groom was slow about bringing her mount around, and while she waited a dozen couples had cantered past waving their hands gayly to Jack But no cavalier waited to assist her and no smart cob whinnied impatiently over the delay in the appearance of her own horse.

Presently the groom would lead he horse to the block, he would assist he in the saddle with the perfunctory car of a hireling, and she would go canteing off alone to her ride.

It was this fact and not the slowness of the stable hands that brough the frown to Jacqueline's face. Fo the first time in her life she was tire of being the boy of the family.

When stalwart John Morewood ha leaned over the cradle to look down into the blinking eyes of his firebor the baby had seized the proffered fin ger in sturdy clasp and her father ha chuckled with delight.

"She's shaking hands like the littl gentleman she is," he declared. The and there he had named her Jacqu line that he might call her Jack He seemed to find comfort for his di appointment in her sex by making hi little daughter as boyish as possible.

In her youth, thanks to his training she had been given over to tomboy tricks. When she was thirteen and baby brother came to share her reig she regarded the newcomer's appear ance with contempt.

"I'm the best boy," she declare with emphasis, and she took pride i her father's assurance that she was indeed. Jimmie became his mother' pet, while Jack still chummed wit her father, and as the boy grew u delicate and pallid Jack seemed t gain mannishness by contrast.

She was the golf champion of th country club, not in the ladies' clas but by virtue of having beaten all th men. She could ride wherever a ma went, could shoot straight and handl a cue. She was voted a "good fellow, but now, on the eve of her twenty-se ond birthday, Jack turned rebellious.

Her thoughts were interrupted b the appearance of the groom with he horse, and presently she was canterin down the drive to the highway. Onc on the road she eased the horse into trot. The cliff road was accounted on of the most beautiful in the state, bu Jack gave no heed to the beauty o the scene.

Phil Minturn had cantered past wit Bess Farley just before she had stam ed out, and his careless greeting ha wounded her.

She had been good chums with Ph ever since she was a little girl, an he had always given her the sam careless greeting of fellowship, but thi morning it had jarred. She knew tha he did not really care for Bess.

He had said so more than once, bu Mrs. Farley would not let Bess rid unless there was some one with he who could keep a watchful eye on he mount, so Phil, being a neighbor, ha come to the girl's relief.

As with Phil, so it was with th other men. They were all good chums but they were only chums. Jac could not recall a tender speech eve made to her, and, carrying her introspection further, she did not blame th boys for regarding her as one of them selves. Even in the evening her thick dark hair was severely done and her dress was in keeping.

It came upon her with all the sud denness of a revelation that she had missed the pretty speeches which she had pretended to despise and that her heart clamored for the rights of young womanhood.

With lips that pressed hard together she turned her horse's head toward home. She scarcely recognized the people she passed, and it was not until she had almost reached the house that her attention was attracted. She heard her brother's voice raised in appeal, and through sheer force of habit she prepared to come to his rescue.

The boy never had been permitted to fight his own battles, and in younger days Jack had sometimes come to his assistance with her own sturdy fists. Now she reined in her horse and drew near the hedge which separated her from the little boys.

There were a dozen of them, sturdy, tanned youngsters with dirt on clothes and countenances, and in their midst stood Jimmy, immaculate in blue velvet, with long golden curls.

"It's not my fault," he said in aggrieved tones. "I'm not old enough to buy my own clothes yet. You fellows might let me play with you."

"G'wan!" was the unfeeling response. "We don't play with girls."

"I'm not a girl," asserted Jimmie. "I tell you it's not my fault."

"Boys don't wear velvet dresses," reminded his tormentor. "Come on, fellers. Lady Jane's going to cry."

With a burst of derisive laughter the boys ran off. For a moment Jimmie made as though to follow them, but he knew as well as the others that pursuit was impossible.

Jimmie had never had a chance to toughen his legs in exercise. With quivering lip the boy turned toward the house, and Jack urged her horse closer to the hedge.

"Jimmie," she called warningly, "if you dare to cry I shall spank you. Go swe your pony and come back to me."

"What are you going to do?" demanded Jimmie.

"Never mind," she said. "You do what I tell you. Do you want really and truly to be a boy?"

"Do I?" repeated Jimmie, sniffing at the folly of the question. "I ain't either a boy or a girl."

"Neither am I," said Jack. "Hurry up, dear."

She waited beside the road until her brother joined her on his pony, and together they headed for the town. It was long after luncheon hour before the two returned, and Mrs. Morewood was pacing the veranda in an agony of apprehension.

She had no fears for Jack, but she lamented that at times Jimmie's pony had shown signs of wildness, and the two grooms were already scouring the country, while the mother was promising herself that the boy should be attended on future rides.

Mr. Morewood said nothing, but there was a white line about his lips where they were pressed firmly together to hold back the words of apprehension.

He was afraid for Jacqueline, and when the children were seen turning into the drive, followed by a groom on whose usually impassive face there appeared a broad grin, Morewood gave a sigh of relief.

Mrs. Morewood shrieked with horror when they came closer and she was able to see that Jimmie's hair had been cropped close to his head, while the velvet suit had been replaced by a stout corduroy. But as they slipped to the ground Jack took the boy's hand and led him to his father.

"Dad," she said simply, "here is your son. I am your daughter. It has been all wrong until now. I've never had a sweetheart, and Jimmie's never had a fight. We've come to the conclusion that we have both been cheated out of what belongs to us, and we've changed places."

She stooped to kiss her father's bearded face and whispered, "And your daughter loves you more than ever, dad." Morewood clasped her to his heart, for he understood the transformation even while his wife bewailed her darling's lost curls.

That evening at the Country club Jacqueline was the sensation of the dance as she entered with her hair loosely waved instead of tightly knotted. In her dress, too, there was a subtle suggestion of femininity which caused the men to gasp and tell themselves that they had never before realized what a stunning girl Jacqueline Morewood was.

"You are radiant tonight," murmured Minturn as he held out his hand for her dance programme.

"I'm tired of being father's boy," she explained. "I've changed places with Jimmie," and as Minturn calmly appropriated three waltzes and returned the programme she read in his eyes approval of the change.

Fever and Wet Clothes.

General Baden-Powell in his book, "Scouting For Boys," writes of the dangers that come from wet garments and of the best way to dry one's clothes: "You will often get wet through on service, and you will see recruits remaining in their wet clothes until they get dry again. No old scout would do so, as that is the way to catch fever and get ill. When you are wet take the first opportunity of getting your wet clothes off and drying them, even though you may not have other clothes to put on, as happened to me many a time.

"I have sat naked under a wagon while my one suit of clothes was drying over a fire. The way to dry clothes over a fire is to make one of hot ashes and then build a small beehive shaped cage of sticks over the fire and hang your clothes over the cage, and they will very quickly dry; also in hot weather it is dangerous to sit in your clothes when they have got wet from perspiration.

"On the west coast of Africa I always carried a spare shirt hanging down my back, with the sleeves tied around my neck. So soon as I halted I would take off the wet shirt I was wearing and put on the dry, which had been hanging out in the sun on my back. By this means I never got fever when almost every one else went down with it."

Sacred Birds of the Aztecs.

Imagine a bird the size of a pigeon, its back, head, wings and breast dazzling metallic green with golden sheen, its entire lower parts vivid scarlet, a soft, recurved crest curling over the bill and fercy, curved plumes, lapping over the wings, while two or three slender green feathers a yard or more in length extend over and beyond the glossy black and white tail. Such is the Quetzal, or resplendent Trogon, sacred bird of the Montezumas, national emblem of Guatemala and the handsomest and most striking of all the gorgeous Trogon family. Although found in nearly every republic of Central America, this superb creature is confined entirely to the heavy oak forests of the higher mountains. In these localities his shrill scream may be heard at any time, yet it is a difficult matter to even catch a glimpse of his brilliant form as he flits from tree to tree, and far more difficult is the task of securing specimens. Apparently fully aware of their beauty and value, these royal birds are exceedingly shy and suspicious, keeping entirely to the topmost branches of the tallest trees, frequently far out of shotgun range. This statement is no exaggeration, for the trees often attain a height of 300 feet.—Outing Magazine.

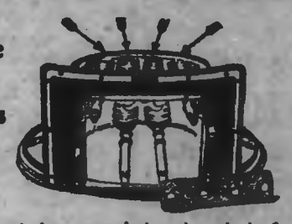
Alas, how oft speech fair and sweet
Doth but proclaim the grafter!

You shake down the ashes —not the coal—in the

"Hecla" Furnace

There are four grate bars in the "Hecla"



Each one can be shaken separately.

You don't have to shake the whole fire to get out the ashes around the edges of the firepot.

You don't shake down a lot of good coal with the ashes.

You don't have to use a poker at all.

The "Hecla" Triangular Bar Grate allows you to shake just the part of the fire where the ashes are, without disturbing the rest of the coals.

Naturally, one grate is easier to shake, than four all geared together. That is why people find the HECLA "no trouble to look after."

Fused Joints—a patented "Hecla" feature—keep the house free of gas, smoke and dust.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

The questions on the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. Linscott for the International Newspaper Bible Study Club for Sunday, July 12th, 1908, are as follows:—

Saul Chosen King. 1 Sam. x:17-27. Read the ninth and tenth chapters.

Golden Text—He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God II Sam. xxiii:3.

What is the first essential in order to be a success, in ruling over either children or men?

What steps had lead up to the choice of Saul as the King of Israel? Chapter 9.

For what qualities did God, Samuel and the people, select Saul as King?

If the asses of Kish, Saul's father, had not been lost, and if Saul had not been seeking them and come into the land of Zuph where Samuel lived would Saul have been chosen King of Israel?

Did God have anything to do with the going astray of the asses of Saul's father. (Chap. ix:3.)

What part do circumstances play in the hands of God, in causing nations and individuals to carry out his purposes?

Verse 17—What does the calling of the people "unto the Lord" mean?

What idea did they have, in those days, as to where God was? and what was the idea of Jesus? and what does science teach to-day concerning God's presence?

Where was Mizpah, and what were the people called there for?

Verse 18—What had God done for Israel in the past?

Had the Israelites any reason from the experience in the past to fear their enemies?

How do you account for it that in view of all God had done for them in the past, they had doubted him for the future?

Verse 19—In what way had they rejected God?

When we have more confidence in circumstances, or in an arm of flesh than we have in God, do we reject him?

What is the thing to do so that we can see, and hear, and obey God, and to have a faith which will not change with circumstances?

Verses 20 21—What method did they probably adopt to select their king?

Does God hear and answer the prayer for guidance of all who seek such guidance?

When a company of godly men seek to know the mind of God, may that mind be found by a ballot or by the casting of the lot, or is there a better method? (See Acts 1:23-2 6; xiii:2.) (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

What kind of a king did Israel want?

What kind of a man do the people in this community crown as king?

Verse 22—Did Saul know that he was to be selected as king? and why did he hide himself?

Verse 23—Is there any merit in being a big and powerful man?

Verse 24—Did the people rejoice more in Saul than in God?

Verse 25—What did Samuel probably say as to the manner of the kingdom?

What are the practical lessons to be learned from this lesson?

Lesson for Sunday, July 19, 1908—Samuel warns Saul and the people. I Sam. 12:1-5... 13-25.

THE BLARNEY STONE.

An Old Legend Tells How It Found Its Way to Ireland.

THE MAGIC OF KISSING IT.

Origin of the Quaint Belief That It Imparts to the Lips That Touch It the Power to Utter Honeyed, Coaxing and Delusive Speeches.

The blarney stone takes its name from the village of Blarney, in County Cork, Ireland, near which stand the ruins of the famous Blarney castle, dating back to the fifteenth century, and the groves of Blarney, which enjoy an equally wide reputation. A rivulet flowing through them bears the same name. The name Blarney is from the Irish "blairne," a little field, the Gaelic form being "blair" or "blar," a plain. The village is four miles northwest of Cork and has a few hundred inhabitants. In the groves of Blarney stands the ruined castle, in one tower of which is the world famous stone, the kissing of which is reputed to endow one with the gift of coaxing, wheedling and flattering.

The true stone is declared to be one in the castle wall, a few feet below the summit of the tower. To reach and osculate it it is necessary for one to be held over the parapet by the heels. But so many persons traveling in the Emerald Isle desire to report that they have kissed the real blarney stone that one in the top of the wall is held to be sufficiently near the real thing for the fiction to be maintained that it is the true stone with all the powers of the original. And even to aged and infirm persons one near the castle entrance is declared to be the original. On the true stone, near the top of the tower, a half effaced inscription reads, "Cormack McCarthy Fortis Me Fieri Facit, A. D. 1446."

Of the blarney stone Father Prout, the Irish poet, declared that it was the palladium of liberty for Erin. He describes the stone and relates a number of legends regarding it, one that it was brought to the island by the Phoenicians, who are reputed to have colonized the region, and that it had long been in the custody of the Carthaginians, who from it gained the reputation for insincerity which is transmitted in the phrase "Punic faith," and that before that it belonged to the Syrians, who were credited with speaking with double tongues after kissing it. According to the story, some Carthaginian adventurers became enamored of the stone and appropriated it. They set sail for Minorca, but, being overtaken by a storm, were driven into the harbor of Cork and left the stone in that vicinity until it was made use of in the construction of the donjon tower of Blarney castle.

As to the origin of the belief in regard to the qualities secured by kissing the stone, Crofton Croker says that in 1602, when the Spaniards were urging the Irish chieftains to harass the English, the owner of the castle, Cormack McDermod McCarthy, who then occupied it, concluded an armistice with the lord president on condition of surrendering it to an English garrison. But he put him off from day to day with specious statements, fair promises and false pretexts until the lord president became the laughingstock of the ministers of Queen Elizabeth, and the honeyed and delusive speeches of the lord of the castle became known as mere "blarney."

The word found its way into literature in the last century. In the "Journal" of Caroline Fox, which appeared in 1835, there is this use of the word: "Mme. de Stael was regretting to Lord Castlereagh that there was no word in the English language which answered to their 'sentiment.' 'No,' he said, 'there is no English word, but the Irish have one that corresponds exactly—blarney.'" Samuel Lover wrote "The blarney's so great a deceiver" in one of his Irish novels. President James Buchanan wrote. "The general has yet to learn that my father's countrymen (I have ever felt proud of my descent from an Irishman), though they themselves do blarney others, are yet hard to be blarneyed themselves." Washington Irving in "The Traveler" wrote, "So be blarneyed the landlord." James Russell Lowell in "The Fable For Critics" says:

The cast clothes of Europe your statesmanship tries
And mumbles again the old blarneys and lies.

The name of the old time castle and town has added a noun, a verb, an adjective and a participle to the language. The most comprehensive definition of the noun "blarney" is "exceedingly complimentary language; flattery; smooth, wheedling talk; pleasing cajolery." As to the origin of the word, one lexicographer quotes Grote as crediting the derivation of it from the phrase "licking the blarney stone," "applied to incredible stories told of climbing to a stone very difficult of access in a castle of that name in the county of Cork, Ireland." But he added that Dr. Jamieson derives it from the French "balwerne," "a lie; frivolous talk," and defines it "gross flattery; unmeaning or vexatious discourse (Low)." But the word seems to have outgrown this restricted meaning since the latter part of the eighteenth century. Every Irishman south of the Liffey is popularly supposed to have kissed the blarney stone, and if, moreover, he has had a dip in the Shannon he is reputed to have the requisite amount of impudence, or what the natives call "civil courage."—New York Tribune.

A Touch Of Olden Times; Deer Frightens Team Of Horses In Douro Hayfield

A report was received last night that while Mr. Michael Sullivan was mowing in his hay field yesterday in Douro, about nine miles from the city, a deer ran up through the uncut section and frightened the horses. They became almost unmanageable and in an effort to get away the machine was somewhat damaged and the driver had a narrow escape. The occurrence is indeed an unheard of one, especially in this late day when the former lords of the forest have practically all been driven back to more remote wilds. The deer had been seen in the vicinity before but not at close range.

C.P.R. Section Man "Stung" In The Old Mother Hubbard Style

"But when she went there
The cupboard was bare."

So runs the jingly nursery rhyme in which Old Mother Hubbard is related as having opened the larder door only to find the shelves empty. But in the case of the several C.P.R. sectionmen yesterday, when they lifted the lids of their dinner pails at noon hour they were chagrined to find themselves staring at the circular bottom and cylindrical sides. Their food had disappeared and they were perforce compelled to return home unexpected for the mid-day meal.

The men referred to are employed on the section of the C.P.R. extending east from the station. They had gone out with the handcar in the morning and left it on one side of the track. Their work took them away from the immediate vicinity, but they did not suspect anyone of emptying their pails. The handcar was not far east of the bridge and there are always a number of tramps to be seen loafing, and some of them are held responsible for stealing the food. At any rate, they showed their thoughtfulness in returning the pails, even though they were empty.

There were three pails on the car and only two of them had been cleaned out. The problem that presents itself is, were there two tramps in the case or did only one aimless Ambrose regale himself on the two full dinner pails?

Composite Company To Go By Special Train To Ancient City

The composite company of the 57th Regiment which will go to Quebec has been steadily drilling twice a week in ceremonial drill and is now in good condition and will make a very creditable showing. Arrangements have been made by which the company will leave by the C.P.R. on Saturday evening, July 18, at 9 o'clock. They will go by special train which will start from Toronto with the composite regiment. A wood den ther upholstered car is in reserve for the Peterborough company. The train will be in charge of Mr. W. Mellroy, local agent of the C.P.R., who will accompany the train from Toronto to Quebec.

Peterborough Indian Victor In Twenty Mile Trial Race

Lou Marsh, writing from London, says that a final twenty-mile trial by the Canadian Marathoners held yesterday was won by Simpson, the Peterborough Indian, with a half mile to spare. The time was one hour fifty-eight minutes. Cotter, Goldsboro, Lawson, and Caffery came next in order. The time was excellent. The trial was made during a strong rain and wind storm.

Sherring and Crocker are delighted with Simpson's showing. He was always in front, and ran with judgment. Sherring says he will beat Longboat.

Another Call May Be Made On Ontario Bank Shareholders

"I may say that there is hardly a doubt that a call on the double liability will be made on the shareholders of the Ontario Bank," said Hon. A. B. Morine, K.C., solicitor for the liquidator, in Toronto yesterday. "This will probably be done in September. As to the proportion it may be anywhere between 25 and 50 per cent. The $300,000 stock that the bank bought in will be a dead loss, reducing the capital to $1,200,000.

The amount of the call would range between $300,000 and $600,000 on a 25 to 50 per cent basis.

Police Arrest Man With Some Fines Registered Against Him

A young man named Fred Burleigh against whose name there are several fines registered at Police Court and who has been casting the light of his countenance in Toronto and other cities, blew back to Peterborough this week and found that the police had not forgotten him or failed to remember that it was up to him to cash in towards the city's finances. Burleigh was arrested last night at a house in the company of a young woman, whom, it is said, he had introduced as his wife, but who turned out to be Mary Young, a seventeen-year-old girl who, with Burleigh, appeared in court this morning on a charge of vagrancy. They were remanded until Monday and will spend the interim in Castle Nesbitt.

Rainbow Ran On A Sunken Pier In Rice Lake And Was Delayed

The steamer Rainbow which had been chartered by the Park street Baptist Sunday school for their picnic yesterday, did not arrive in the city until 10.30 a. m. It was due to take the excursion from the Wolfe street wharf at 8.30 o'clock but nearly all those who had purchased tickets took the cars to the southern terminus of the street car line and waited until the Rainbow arrived two hours late. The committee in charge had received a message telling them of an accident to the boat. On Thursday it had taken an excursion from Hastings and was returning across Rice Lake on its way to Peterborough to be ready for the Park street party. Just where the old Cobourg railway runs out from Harwood there is a sunken pier and on this the steamer ran and was unable to back off for several hours. No damage was sustained.

The 218th Anniversary Of The Battle Of The Boyne

To-morrow, July 12th, is the 218th anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne. The battle was really fought on July 1st, 1690, but so that Dominion Day celebrations would not conflict with Orange celebrations the twelfth of July was chosen as the Orangemen's day.

On account of the twelfth falling on Sunday, Peterborough Orangemen, with those of the surrounding districts, will celebrate on Monday.

EXAMINER PRIZE FOR LARGEST 'LUNGE

Must be Captured in Peterborough County Waters—A Complete Trawling Outfit for the Lucky Angler—Now on Exhibition

One Trawling Line
Two Double Star Spoons
Two Willow Spoons
One Pearl Spoon
Two Single Star Spoons
A Landing Net

These will be presented by the Examiner to the Fisherman in Peterborough County, landing the largest Lunge between July 11th and October 1st.

Read the accompanying conditions

The Conditions in Connection With the Offer—An Excellent Opportunity for the Hopeful Fisherman—The Competition Ends on October 1st.

Others have offered and given prizes for the best field of grain, the most clever pupil in a class, or the prettiest woman in town, but the Examiner has now something to offer to disciples of that oft-quoted individual, Izaak Walton.

It is a well-known fact that Peterborough county stands among a few in the Province that can offer something attractive for fishermen and tourists who desire to forget the daily grind in their houses of business or offices for a time and live with nature.

Peterborough county presents one of the finest fields for fishermen in search of the gamey 'lunge of any in the Province. Specimens of this particular family have been brought up from Peterborough county waters that would rival those of any other of the inland lakes or streams.

The Examiner has decided to present to the fisherman or fisherwoman who catches the weightiest 'lunge by trawl, with a complete trawling outfit of the most modern type. There will, of course, be a number of conditions necessary to fulfil. Only maskinonge captured in lakes, rivers or other streams within the boundaries of the county of Peterborough, including all boundary waters, will be eligible. They must be caught by the trawl in a strictly legitimate manner. Any bait, hooks and line may be used. The fish must be weighed accurately by a responsible person. This would include municipal officers of the various townships, Justices of the Peace or any other thoroughly reliable business men. Competitors are requested to send in to the sporting editor of the Examiner a statement of the situation of the locality in which the fish, entered in the competition, was caught, the date of the capture, and the exact weight, certified to over the signature of any gentleman of known responsibility, and of two witnesses.

Fish caught by fishermen's guides while they are acting in this capacity will not be eligible for the Examiner prize.

This offer holds good this season from July 11, 1908, to October 1, both days inclusive.

Any 'lunge speared, netted or captured in any way other than on the trawl will not be allowed in the competition.

As intimated above, the prize will consist of a trawling outfit — the best that can be secured. It will include a trawling line, six baits to be selected by the winner at his own discretion, with as many sets of hooks, board reel for the line, and landing net.

This is a splendid opportunity for any fisherman who is hopeful of landing a big one and who has the desire and ambition to pursue the "monsters of the deep."

Peterborough has some excellent waters for fishing. When one thinks of the Kawartha chain, the Otonabee River and Rice Lake, the waters of Belmont, Burleigh, Methuen and Chandos, he cannot imagine better fresh water fishing grounds in the Province. Those who compete for the Examiner prize will have not only the pleasure that always accompanies that tugging sensation on the line that sets the heart a-throbbing twice as hard, but he may also have the opportunity of securing a handsome and serviceable outfit with which to begin next year's fishing.

The prize is now on exhibition at Banks' Sporting Goods House, George street.

BEAUTIES OF THE OTONABEE AND RICE LAKE ENJOYED

By Those Who Attended the Business Men's Excursion—Football Game and Other Sports

PLEASURE EVERY MINUTE

Picturesque in its summer beauty and encircled by nature wrapped in its prettiest garb, Rice Lake and the winding Otonabee were yesterday enjoyed by more than a hundred of Peterborough's prominent professional and business men, who enjoyed an outing to Idyl Wyld on the occasion of the Business Men's Excursion. Seldom is it that such varied and attractive scenery as meets the eye from the banks of the old Otonabee, and on the shore of historic Rice Lake, is seen in such a short voyage. Woodlands, fields of ripening grain and the deep green banks follow in pleasing succession, and to the visitors especially—and there were many on board the steamer Otonabee yesterday—paradise could scarcely be more ideal.

These conditions, happy in themselves, were enhanced by the complacent smile of the weather man. Not a cloud covered the sun all day long and the balmy breezes from the west cast their hy-notic spells over the company, and "all went merry as a marriage bell."

Leaving the Wolfe street dock sharp at one-thirty o'clock, and calling at the street railway wharf at two, the steamer glided rapidly down stream and in good time landed the excursionists.

The sail through Rice Lake is worthy of especial mention and pleasant memories of it will certainly remain long in the minds of those who were fortunate enough to be present. With such historical and picturesque points as Jubilee, Hiawatha, Harwood and Gore's Landing skirting the shore, the voyage was glorious but all too short.

A football was taken on board and a number of experts chased it over the island, and on no occasion was there a mis-kick into the lake. A match was arranged between the benedicts and bachelors. The result was as one would expect—no score, although some close shaves. Some new athletes in the 100-yards matched race were brought above the horizon, who might yet outrival a McGrath or a Bobby Kerr. The jumping contests were watched with interest, but as no records were smashed the winners and their distances were not kept by the officials. Some wheelbarrow races completed the games.

Supper was served about six o'clock and as the sun sank the steamer moved off on the homeward cruise. Music there was—and music always sounds sweeter on the water. Songs in abundance were sung from the old time favourite "John Brown's Body," including that famous old chorus, "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah," to the more modern, "In the Evening by the Moonlight," and the one just out, "We're Here Because We're Here." Duets, quartettes and step dancing constituted the remainder of the delightful programme.

The boat steamed into port shortly after ten o'clock, and an afterjoyed by Peterborough's business men on board was brought to a close.

Notices of Births, Marriages and Deaths, 25 cents each insertion in either the Daily or Weekly Examiner.

Trustees Of St. Peter's T.A.S. Looking For New Grounds To Purchase For Picnic

The Board of Trustees and a few of the other members of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society went down the river a few days ago for the purpose of looking over new grounds which will be purchased for picnic purposes. Mr. T. Hooper and Mr. T. Meredith had very kindly offered to take them down in their launches, and the offer was gratefully accepted. There were about twenty in the party.

The grounds used by the society this year for the annual picnic will probably be never used again. It was felt that new grounds had to be secured and the society is loth to putting off the matter until next spring. They looked over a number of different grounds bordering on the river but no selection was made. It is very likely that the new park which will be purchased will be farther down the river. The committee was pleased with a number of groves, and a choice will likely be made before long. The T. A. S. picnic has apparently come to stay, and the officers will only be satisfied when the society possesses its own grounds.

Stacey Is In Fine Shape For Big Relay Race On Monday

Great interest is being taken in the walking matches to be held in Brook street rink on Monday. In the afternoon at 4 o'clock there will be an hour's walk for the championship of Peterborough county, in which only residents of the county may start. A large number of entries have been received and a good race is assured.

The chief attraction, however, is the relay match in the evening in which Jim Stacey, the lanky Toronto walker, who is regarded as the only man in Canada who can give Hourland an argument, will walk 20 miles against a relay of five local men to be selected by the sporting editors of the local papers. The Peterborough quintette will consist of Jim Harrison, Chas. Stevens, J. Guerin, W. Spencely and another to be chosen, and a great contest should result.

Free Tuition For Institute Pupils Residing In The City

In the report of the Supervision Committee of the Board of Education published on Wednesday there was possibly an ambiguity in connection with the statement that the first year's tuition would be free. This only applies to pupils residing in the city of Peterborough and not to those from rural districts. The annual fee for them is $25, to be paid in three instalments—$10 in September; $7.50 in April, and $7.50 in June.

Socialist Addressed An Open Air Meeting Yesterday Evening

Mr. Wilfrid G. Gribble, Provincial organizer of the Socialist party, who is in the city for the purpose of organizing a branch in Peterborough, addressed an open-air meeting at the corner of George and Brock streets last night. Shortly before 8 o'clock Mr. Gribble, accompanied by a retinue of half a dozen local believers, arrived on the scene and began his address. He was soon the centre of a large audience who for the most part gave him a quiet, if not enthusiastic, hearing. There were a few interruptions from the crowd, one man ordering them to move on and not block the streets, but Mr. Gribble kept right on emphasizing the principles of Socialism and the necessity for its existence, from the viewpoint of the workingman. He is a fluent speaker and made a good impression upon his audience.

A Swimming Youth Almost Run Over By The Steamer

Lindsay, July 11.—(Special.) — A young boy had a very narrow escape from being run over and perhaps fatally injured by the "Esturion" this morning, and it was only by the prompt action of Capt. Johnston that a serious accident was averted.

As the "Esturion" was running slowly along opposite Madison Williams' foundry, a boy supported by a life-preserver, swam out directly in front. The passengers in the bow shouted to him to get out of the way and the engineer was signalled to stop, as the suction from the paddle wheels would have drawn the boy into them.

The paddles missed him by about a foot.

FRIDAY'S SESSION AT CHEMONG

Many Interesting and Helpful Addresses Presented—School Gaining in Interest

PROGRAMME FOR SUNDAY

Examiner Special

Chemong Park, July 11.—After the song service yesterday the Bible Study was continued by Rev. E. N. Baker, M.A., D.D., his subject being "Christian Perfection." In the course of his address, he quoted numerous passages from both Old and New Testaments to prove that if we sought for perfectness in our own characters we would have not only peace and joy and happiness within ourselves, but we would find our own devotional exercises a pleasure, not a task, and we would be anxious to do service for Christ and our fellowmen. Dr. Baker closed with a very forcible appeal for deeper work of grace, and in response to this appeal several young people manifested a desire.

This has been the best Bible Study session up to the present.

The round table conference conducted by Rev. W. G. Clocke, B.A., of Port Hope, should be very helpful to the representatives in their home leagues.

The interest in the mission classes has been steadily increasing. Discussion is becoming more general and bespeaks a lively interest in the final session Saturday morning.

Afternoon Session

Mr. Fred R. Foley, president of the Conference Epworth League, then gave us an illustrated and object lesson on "Models — Lessons from the Potter." This address was very unique. A duet was then well rendered by Mr. Herbert Turney of Trenton, and Mr. R. Kemp of Trenton. After which a short address on "The Layman's Movement" was given by Judge Deroche, chairman of this session.

The evening session opened with Rev. S. S. Cruikshanks as chairman. After the usual prayer and praise service, Rev. E. A. Pearson, B.A., of Peterborough gave a very splendid address on the Adult Bible Class work of George street Methodist church of Peterborough. His address was full of encouragement for all interested in adult Bible class work. This was followed by an address by J. M. Denyes, B.A., principal of Newburgh High School. This was filled with thought and inspiring sentiment.

A solo was then well rendered by Miss Chasty of Peterborough.

The school has been gradually gaining in interest and spiritual momentum, and we are looking forward to the richest and ripest results on Sunday up to its close.

The programme for to-morrow is:

Morning Session 10 O'clock

Devotional exercises.

BEAUTIFYING THE CITY.

No movement in any department of activity on aesthetic lines can be successfully carried forward without co-operation. The actions of the Horticultural Society in promoting a love for the beautiful, through encouragement of the culture of flowers has had, and is having, a sensible effect, because popular co-operation has lent its aid. If the work of beautification is to continue and increase the public co-operation will have to continue and the co-operation of the civic authorities will have to be enlisted. The interest of the civic authorities in the adornment of the city can hardly be regarded as a known quantity; they do not seem to recognize the work of beautifying the streets of the city, the domain in which their authority is paramount, as part of their duties. The Horticultural Society, if it puts its mind to the work, can create, or promote the creation of, a public sentiment which will exercise a compelling influence upon the municipal authorities. An effort in this direction is certainly worth while. As the Examiner has often pointed out there is no urban community in Ontario so plentifully dowered with magnificent street trees, as is the city of Peterborough. As a rule these lines of trees flank beautiful lawns, well kept, and each one a beauty spot. But unfortunately the streets in front of them are not all well built or well kept, are not kept clean and tidy. Thus the beauty of a street is marred by untidy highways, rough, unkempt, disfigured with weeds, and actually, in some case, hideous in contrast with the beautiful lawns along which they pass. This general indication of the indifference of the civic authorities must be overcome and to the Horticultural Society naturally falls the duty of leadership in the warfare against street ugliness. It can influence the civic authorities. With general co-operation the best results must ensue, and Peterborough, will become, as it is capable of becoming, not only one of the most, but the most beautiful city in the Dominion. Some indication of the manner in which the Society can effect its mission in the regard suggested, is afforded by the course adopted by the Cobourg Horticultural Society. In the report of the Horticultural Societies of Ontario for the year 1907, appears an able paper on the subject—"What can Horticultural Societies do to Promote Civic Improvement?" read by Major W. J. Snelgrove, M. A., Ph., B., Cobourg, president of the Ontario Horticultural Association, at the second annual meeting. After demonstrating the duty of the authorities to reorganize civic life in harmony with the idea of John Ruskin, that the exterior of our homes is not private property unless we build in a wilderness, Major Snelgrove outlined the general method employed by the Cobourg Horticultural Society in conducting a civic improvement campaign, as follows:

"At the annual meeting held in January a publicity committee and a look-out committee are appointed. The duty of the former is to contribute paragraphs to the columns of the local newspapers, offering suggestions touching every feature of the development of the aesthetic and civic side of town life and showing that the character of the community is formed by the surroundings which even the humblest citizen maintains about the threshold of his home; also illustrating from time to time how efforts to beautify will induce every tenant in the block to follow suit. People who will allow weeds to grow luxuriantly about their premises are occasionally "written up" as a sort of "horrible example." The effect of this publicity is often magical.

The town is divided into wards or districts which are assigned for purposes of observation to the different members of the look-out committee. For two or three months this committee goes about quietly taking note of all eyesores and offenses against the sense of sight, and noting how much better the town would look if certain improvements were made with the common property of the municipality. In the spring a meeting of the committee is held, at which notes are compared by the members and a report prepared for transmission to the town council. Through the Chairman, the Mayor is requested to call a special meeting of the council, when a typewritten report of the committee is presented and discussed clause by clause. A committee of the council is then appointed to co-operate with the directors of the society in carrying out as far as possible the recommendations of the look-out committee, which are handed out to the local press for publication. The effect is marvellous, the natural impulse for civic improvement manifesting itself in a general attempt to clean up and fix up throughout the town.

In undertaking this work, we should not undertake to remake the town in one year. We do not purpose meddling officiously with the work of our municipal bodies or offensively dictate to them what they should or should not do. Appreciating their responsibility, we approach them deferentially, and politely offer to co-operate with them for the good of all. Every town official who has an eye single for the public good should certainly welcome the co-operation and co-relation of our influential societies for bettering municipal conditions.

Will the Peterborough Horticultural Society in addition to all the good work it has done, broaden the scope of its endeavour, so as to bring the Society, the people at large and the people's civic representatives into harmonious co-operation "to exile ugliness and deformity and untidiness and enthrone beauty in the common interest. • • • Public beauty is the dominating idea of the twentieth century." Peterborough's business places are models of embellishment, where man alone does the work; our lawns show the co-operation of nature and refined taste; our streets alone leave too abundant scope for improvement.

HOSTILE ANIMUS.

Conservative journals, like the wolf in the fable, are bound to find some fault with the Laurier Government. The Toronto News, while acknowledging that Ontario, as a right, cannot claim any portion of the territory of Keewatin, blames the Government for not giving Ontario a fair deal in dividing the territory between Manitoba and this Province. It complains that Ontario gets a stretch of country along Hudson Bay without a natural harbour? What is the grievance? Will not Ontario have free access to Fort Churchill harbour? What is to prevent Ontario crossing the territory of Manitoba to get into Churchill? Manitoba is not a foreign and hostile country, but, like Ontario, is a part of Canada. The port of Montreal is entirely within the Province of Quebec, but that does not prevent it from being the ocean outlet for the whole of Canada. The Dominion Government has doubtless done what it considers right in making the division of the territory it has made, or proposes to make. Why should it, as the News prints, be hostile to Ontario more than to Manitoba? Both are opposed to it, politically, as far as Provincial representation is concerned. The News strains a point to make an attack on the Laurier Government. But, lacking legitimate grounds of criticism, pin-pricks will serve.

FORESTS OF MAIN.

Maine is the typical spruce state of the United States, and it is also the state on which Americans rely most for their supply of pulpwood. In fact, it has been estimated by Mr. E. E Ring, the State Forester, on the strength of statistics prepared by the American Government, that Maine contains one-third of the spruce wood of the United States. This shows its importance to the American pulp and paper industry, and likewise its interest for Canadians in connection with the pulpwood problem. Fortunately, too, there is abundance of figures and data of various kinds about the forests of Maine, which have bene carefully gone over and estimated.

Mr. Ring, the Forester of the State and a lumber expert of considerable reputation, has estimated the stand of spruce in Maine at about 21,250,000,000 feet, and the annual increase at about 700,000,000 feet. The estimate for the stand of timber was based on elaborate calculations for each separate township, and is regarded by lumbermen as being a very fair one. As regards the rate of increase, there is some difference of opinion. Mr. Ring places the percentage of growth under average conditions at about three and one-half per cent; while some of the leading lumbermen and limit-owners declare that this is altogether too high, and that the average growth would certainly not be above two per cent. And this view is held by men who are operating large limits, and who have, therefore, every opportunity of studying this question.

The consumption of spruce in the State of Maine is, as might be expected, a very large one. Mr. Ring estimates that no less than 800,000,000 feet are used annually, being about equally divided between lumbering and paper-making. At this rate, it is clear that at least 100,000,000 feet a year are being taken out of the forest capital of the state. And there are other considerations, too. This large annual cut is not spread out over all the lands of the state, but is limited to certain sections on the great river systems, the Androscoggin, Kenebec, Penobscot, and St. John. These sections are being very closely cut over, so that every year the lumbermen must go further and further back into regions where the timber is poorer and of more difficult access. In this way, the cut of 100,000,000 feet annually in excess of the natural growth means more than the figures would at first suggest, as it is the finest lands which are being cut out, while the poorer and less accessible remain. Besides the annual consumption is being continually increased in accordance with the greater demand and higher prices for spruce, so that, though the forests of the state are becoming every year less able to meet the demands on them, these demands are continually growing. The danger of this situation for the prosperity of the state is arousing alarm there, so much so that preparations are now being made to bring in a bill into the State Legislature to restrict the cut of timber. And this is all the more striking that the timber lands of Maine are entirely in private hands, and are therefore very difficult to subject to Government restrictions.

Another and even more striking proof of the approaching failure of Maine forests is the large and rapidly increasing quantity of pulpwood sent there from the Province of Quebec. In 1905, about 28,000 cords were sent; in 1906, about 97,000 cords, and now it is estimated that so much as 225,000 cords go into that state to the large pulp and paper mills every year from Canada. These figures make it clear that without a supply of wood from Canada, the forests of Maine would last but a very short time. It is true that the limit-owners of the state are, as a rule, exercising greater and greater care in the management of their lands, but the prices for wood are going steadily higher, and promise soon to reach the famine stage. Besides the portable sawmill has done irreparable damage in stripping whole sections of their wood. Altogether, it is certain that the State of Maine, far from becoming a great future source of supply for the American paper industry, is already on the decline, and will in a few years suffer from the same timber shortage that is now felt in the once well-wooded States of New York, New Hampshire and Vermont. There is a lesson in all this for Canadians.

WHAT WAR HAS COST THE U.S.

It is over forty years since the Civil War ended in the United States, and still the country has not even yet recovered from the disastrous effects of that tremendous conflict. The immediate consequences were without parallel in modern times. As summarized by Prof. Alderman of the University of Virginia, in an article in the World's Work for June, the South alone lost a tenth of its population and three and a half billions of its wealth—equal to three times the value of all the farm property of Ontario, including land, buildings, live stock and implements. Following this was the even greater economic damage due to the rule of Northern carpet baggers, and negro domination. So enormous were the combined losses caused by war, and the irresponsible government following upon war, that it was not until the beginning of the present century that the South recovered the per capita wealth held when the struggle began. The North, while escaping the ravages of invading armies, sustained almost incalculable injury in other ways. To-day, with grey hairs on a generation which has grown up since the strife, the whole country is paying $163,000,000 in pensions, almost the whole of which goes to pensioners of the Union Army. This, however, does not by any means represent all the harm sustained by the North, and by the Republic as a whole. The corruption, tariff, and other evils to which the conflict gave rise will be felt long after those now living have ceased to exist.

May the time never come when this continent will again be the scene of such a calamity as that following upon the firing on Fort Sumter.—Sel.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Authorities agree that Canada this year will have the greatest harvest in its history. The harvest is the barometer of national prosperity.

The Canadian Courier says that it does not need to wait upon the Dominion Government and ask for new territory to conquer. The opening up of inaccessible regions by railways is equivalent to enlargement.

The Canadian Courier, Conservative in inclination, heartily approves of the immigration policy of the Dominion Government. It points out that the policy that develops agricultural operations must result in the benefit of the industrial population.

Now is the season when girls and boy graduates return to the parental roof with their diploma. What are they going to do with it? Some will make it into rounds of the ladder to help them climb higher. Some will take the wrong view of regarding a graduation as a finality. It is not; it is just a beginning, only the foundation. A college or university course derives its chief value from the fact that it is an equipment for further progress in gaining knowledge. The graduate has simply been taught how to study, and incidentally he has learned a few facts, picked up a little knowledge. He is, however, only at the gateway of the field of knowledge, which his college training has taught him or her to till to advantage.

SMITH TOWNSHIP CROP OUTLOOK

General Conditions Gratifying — Many Farmers Erecting Silos.

From the Canadian Dairyman

Ed. The Dairyman and Farming World,—As requested by you, I have been visiting the homes of farmers in the west and north end of Smith township. The general outlook in this section is excellent, the rain lately having improved the crops to a great extent.

There is every indication that there will be an extraordinary good yield of fall wheat; spring wheat also is showing well. There has been a surprisingly good catch of clover all through the county. On several farms preparations are already being made for cutting. Timothy is likely to be above the average yield, plenty of farmers expecting to get in over a ton and a half an acre, the recent rainfall having helped it on.

All roots, with the exception of mangels, will be above the average. The mangels, in some instances, will have to be plowed up, as they are making a poor showing. Farmers generally are slaughtering bull calves as there is no money in raising veal at present prices, but there is a tendency among them to raise more heifer calves this season than before. Taken altogether there is every promise of a good harvest.

There is a growing feeling in favor of the building of silos. Mr. Thos. J. Cullen of Smith township, has just completed a fine new barn, 83 x 46 x 35 high, on 7 ft. 6 in. concrete walls, 13 inches thick, and has room for 45 head of cattle. The building cost $1550, including a fine root house. Mr. Cullen's barn is stocked with up-to-date machinery. "I don't think that a farm is complete without a silo," said Mr. Cullen, "and I intend building one as soon as possible. It will be 30 x 13 feet." Mr. Cullen has one of the most up-to-date farms in the county. Mr. W. J. Stillman, a neighbor of Mr. Cullen's, is also seriously thinking of building a silo. He intends making alterations and improvements to his barns, and, at the same time putting up a silo.

"I do not think that there is anything so necessary on a dairy farm as a silo," said W. E. Stewart, of Smith township. "I have one 14 x 28 feet, and I can cut enough corn to fill it in two days. I cannot see why silos are not more generally used, in view of the fact that farmers by their use get so much better results from stock than when hay is fed." Mr. Stewart, who sells his milk in Peterboro, keeps 18 cows and 7 horses.

Mr. James Stothart informed me that he built the second silo that was erected in the township. It has been in use for 40 to 50 years, and, although made of wood, is still in good condition. Mr. Stothart now has two silos, one 12 x 22 x 20 feet high, and another 15 feet square. "When I built my first silo," said Mr. Stothart, cement silos were unknown. Both my silos are made of wood, and I would not do without them for any consideration. I have 26 pure-bred Holsteins, and although I fed them silage all winter, I still have five feet of silage in the bottom of each."

I find a considerable number of the farmers in his section are subscribers for The Canadian Dairyman and Farming World. They are greatly pleased over the fact that the paper is now established in Peterboro. Quite a few farmers not taking the paper gave me their subscriptions and many have promised to subscribe this fall when their subscriptions for other papers run out. Those who have been taking the paper expressed their appreciation of the improvements that have been made in the paper this year.

This week I purpose visiting the farmers in the northern portions of Smith township.

"I know Peruna will do just what you say it does. I cannot praise Peruna too highly, as it has done so much for me. I hope my letter will reach other sufferers."

Mrs. S. J. Kounts, 1015 Seavel street, Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"I have had a very bad cough nearly all my life, and I am forty-five years old. I have taken almost every kind of cough medicine that has ever been made, but none did me much good. I would have spells of coughing that I thought I would cough myself to death. I took Peruna, and last winter and this winter I have had no cough and I know that Peruna cured me."

JOINED HAND-IN-HAND

THE TWO RACES ARE WORKING OUT CANADA'S DESTINY.

Quebec Pageant as a Peace Compact —Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux Writes of the Tercentenary—No Legacy of Sadness or Bitterness to This Generation in the Battlefield at Quebec —Champlain Made 30 Voyages.

There are two distinct ideas running side by side throughout the great movement that will culminate in the magnificent pageants now so near at hand—first, the celebration of the Tercentenary; second, the nationalization of the Quebec Battlefields, writes Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, in The Standard of Empire. The one carries the mind back for three centuries to the actual origin of Canada as a separate community, to the very day when the adventurous and chivalrous Champlain planted the flag of France on the mighty rock which Kipling has so well described as "the eastern pillar of Canada"; the other takes us back to a point precisely midway in our three hundred years of history, when Destiny, after long coquetting with France and England by turn, as if uncertain into whose hands a gift so rich as our fair Canada should fall, gave it in keeping for all time to the English race, though, as if in gratitude for what the children of France had done in planting here the foundation of civilization, leaving to the French race also its share of hope and duty in the building of the new nation that should inherit the ideals and attributes of the two parent lands.

The Tercentenary celebration, while appealing to all who love the picturesque and romantic in history, affords a special opportunity to those who are of Champlain's tongue and blood to recall the unflinching courage, the indomitable perseverance, and the statesmanlike prescience of the man who may be said to have literally started Canada on its course. Of these qualities I need cite no other evidence than the two facts: first, that Champlain *made no less than thirty voy*ages back and forth between France and Canada in the interests of the new land with which he had identified himself; voynges, be it remembered, accomplished in wretched little sailing ships of from fifty to one-hundred tons burden only, with all imaginable dangers and discomforts of such travel, and, second, that his far-seeing eye perceived, not only the abundant resources and possibilities of Canada, but, roving over the new world at large, and foreseeing something of the greatness that must come to it, caused him to be an earnest advocate early in the seventeenth century of the construction of that trans-isthmian canal which our neighbors, the Americans, are engaged in building to-day. The memory of Champlain truly deserves all the honors that we of this generation may pay it.

So it is that of the many battlefields of Quebec, that which witnessed at once the transfer of the vast Empire of Canada to Britain, and the deaths of two great and gallant soldiers, is that which makes the most powerful appeal to the emotions, and which it is especially desirous to rescue from neglect and mistreatment.

And what shall be the outcome of it all? It is much more than one hundred years since the last battle was fought at or around Quebec. There is in these battlefields no legacy of sadness or bitterness to this generation. The two races of Canada have long since joined hand in hand in working out the great destiny of their common country. Americans and Canadians, too, are regarding each other from either side of the boundary line with ever growing good will and fraternal feeling. The British Empire is becoming more and more a mighty instrument for peace. Let the setting apart of the Quebec battlefields, then, become a seal upon a compact making peace for all time between the nations whose dead lie buried there. The compact need not be the less real because it may remain unwritten. Let us do each our share in bringing this about, and the Quebec Tercentenary will not have been in vain.

Barefaced Swindle.

The following paragraph is from The Standard of Empire, June 6: "We have received the following from the Canadian emigration office: Early this year a certain smooth-tongued individual, while visiting Liverpool, induced an English family to invest £200 in a "fake" scheme, which was to give them a share in a dairy in northwest Canada, in which this person professed to have no interest, whatever. He also appears to have borrowed £40 from another Englishman, whom he promised to train for work on a ranch.

The Canadian Government had had the matter investigated by the police officials, and cannot at present locate the man, but desire to do so with the assistance of the press. They hope that this statement will serve as a caution to prevent others from falling into any financial trap set by the same individual.

It may not be regarded as part of the official business of the Government to protect individuals against their own voluntary acts, but wherever possible the Canadian Government will make an example of any such barefaced attempt to extort money without giving value.

Rules For Life In Flats.

A remarkable clause is contained in the will of a wealthy landlord named Bournitz, who died recently in Berlin. The testator bequeaths a large number of flats to his heirs on the condition that they do not let them to persons keeping servants or having children, dogs, cats or birds. Tenants may not be engaged in night work which will cause them to return home while the other occupants are sleeping.

One musical instrument is permitted in each flat, but no flowers may be placed on the window sills, and the tenants must sign an agreement to wear silent slippers indoors.—London Mail.

London Smoke.

The smoke of London in certain states of the wind is found condensed on the sea as far away as Devonshire, blackening the water for miles.

LIABILITY OF EMPLOYERS

COMPENSATION BASED UPON THE WAGES RECEIVED.

Practically Every Foreign Country of Any Importance Industrially Has by Legislation Recognized the Principle of Compensation For Injuries Received From Accidents While at Work.

In an article on "The Legal Liability of Employers for Injuries to Their Employes in the United States," Lindley D. Clark discusses at length the more important principles of the common law as generally applied to the subject of employers' liability in that country, together with such variations as appear in certain states. The article also reproduces the laws of those states which have passed enactments on the subject and presents the construction put therein where they have been reviewed by the superior state courts or the federal courts.

In striking contrast with conditions in the United States is the position of the foreign workman who is injured by accident in the course of his employment. Practically every foreign country of any importance industrially has by legislation recognized the principle that the workman is entitled to compensation for injuries from accidents received in the course of his employment. Twenty-two foreign states have enacted such legislation—namely:

Austria, Belgium, British Columbia, Cape of Good Hope, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Luxemburg, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Queensland, Russia, South Australia, Spain, Sweden and Western Australia.

While there is some variation in the provisions of the foreign laws as to the circumstances under which workmen are entitled to compensation, as a rule compensation is not payable unless the injury causes disablement for a specified number of days or weeks.

The employer may usually be relieved from the payment of compensation if he can prove that the injury was caused intentionally or by willful misconduct or in some countries by the gross negligence of the injured person or during the performance of an illegal act. In none of these twenty-two countries does ordinary negligence on the part of the injured employe work a forfeiture of the right to compensation.

The industries usually covered by the laws are manufacturing, mining and quarrying, transportation, building and engineering work and other employments involving more or less hazard: In Belgium, France and Great Britain the laws apply to practically all employments. In a considerable number of countries only workmen engaged in actual manual work and in some cases those exposed to the same risks, such as overseers and technical experts, come within the operations of the law. These countries are Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, Germany, Italy, Luxemburg, Netherlands, Norway, Russia, Spain and Sweden. On the other hand, in France, Great Britain, the British colonies and Hungary the laws apply to salaried employes and workmen equally. Overseers and technical experts earning more than a prescribed amount are excluded in Belgium, Denmark, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Luxemburg and Russia. Employes of the state, provincial and local administrations usually come within the provisions of the act.

The entire burden rests upon the employer in all but four of the countries, Austria, Germany, Hungary and Luxemburg, where the employes also bear a part of the expense. The laws in every case fix the compensation to be paid. In all the countries but Sweden the compensation is based upon the wages of the injured person. It consists of medical and surgical treatment and of periodical allowances for temporary disability and annual pensions or lump sum payments for permanent disability or death.

In most countries employers may contract with state or private insurance institutions for the transfer of the burden of payment of compensation. In a number of countries such transfer is obligatory. Provision is usually made for the protection of the beneficiaries in case of insolvency of employers.

The acts of nearly all of the countries are framed with the view of obviating the necessity for instituting legal proceedings. The laws are so specific with regard to the compensation allowed and the regulations for its payment that agreements are usually amicably made between the employers and the victims of the accidents. If disputes arise, however, the law specifies the necessary procedure for their settlement either by special arbitration tribunals or by the ordinary law courts.

Achieved Truest Success.

He has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often and loved much; who has gained the respect of intelligent men and the love of little children; who has filled his niche and accomplished his task; who has left the world better than he found it, whether by an improved poppy, a perfect poem, or a rescued soul; who has never lacked appreciation of earth's beauty, or failed to express it; who has always looked for the best in others, and given the best he had; whose life was an inspiration; whose memory is benediction.

Early Clocks.

Many clocks with weights and wheels were in use in England during Chaucer's time, and most of the monasteries of the fourteenth century possessed clocks, though these were used to show the astronomical movements as well as the passage of hours. Throughout the fifteenth century clocks were made mostly by armorers and blacksmiths, and they were constructed of iron and steel.

Roller Skates.

The first roller skate was patented by a Frenchman in the year 1819, but since that time scarcely a year has passed without some improvement in wheel skates.

FINED A FRANC.

What That Meant to an American Who Was Living In Paris.

When you are fined a franc in Paris it means that you pay 12 francs 73 centimes, or just over half a sovereign. This is the only conclusion to which one can come after reading the curious experience of an American citizen who is staying in Paris to complete the education of his sons. He lives in an apartment near the Arc de Triomphe, and the other morning one of his servants committed the imprudence of shaking a carpet out of the window after 9 o'clock. A lynx eyed constable saw her and immediately climbed the stairs, rang the bell, entered the apartment and drew up a summons against the tenant. The American was called and gave his name.

"I did not know it was a breach of the law," he said. "But as I have broken it I must pay. How much is it?"

"You will be fined 1 franc," replied the policeman.

"There you are," answered the American, and he held out the coin.

But the "agent" refused to take it.

"Later on," he remarked as he withdrew, "you will be summoned before the justice of the peace."

Some days later the delinquent was invited to appear before the "juge de paix" and obeyed the summons. He was obliged to wait three hours in an antechamber. Then he was admitted.

"Do you admit," asked the magistrate, "having broken the law?"

"I do," was the reply.

"Good. You are fined 1 franc."

"There you are, then." And the American again held out the franc.

But the magistrate would have none of it.

"You will pay the sum later. You will be advised when. You may withdraw."

The American took his departure, considerably surprised at so many formalities in connection with a franc fine. A few days later he received a stamped paper inviting him to pay, first of all, 1 franc, the amount of his fine, plus 25 centimes, the amount of the decimes, plus 11 francs 48 centimes, the amount of the costs, making in all a total of 12 francs 73 centimes. The American paid, but as he left the police court he remarked:

"In America a law which forced a citizen to pay $12 when he had only been fined $1 would be considered a hypocritical and dishonest law. And we would not tolerate it long, you bet!"—London Globe.

HE HAD TO PAY.

Half a Dollar That the Traveling Man Hated to Spend.

"The 50 cents I hated most to spend," said the traveling man, "went to the Canadian Pacific railroad. I don't mind paying for things I get, but this particular expenditure couldn't be indorsed 'for value received.'

"A number of us got into St. John, N. B., one night just in time to catch the night train for Boston. We got aboard only to learn that the train didn't carry a diner. Now, a long night ride without dinner isn't a pleasant prospect, so we besieged the conductor.

"'Why don't you start on the Montreal, which pulls out just ahead of us?' he said. 'It carries a diner, and we can pick you up at Fredericton Junction.'

"'No danger of your passing us?' we asked, and he assured us that he couldn't very well, as there was only one track. So we all piled out after leaving our baggage in our Pullman berths.

"It was surely a fine scheme we thought as we dined at our leisure in the Montreal train. After dinner we sought the nearest smoking compartment in a sleeping car and prepared to wait in comfort for Fredericton Junction.

"Then along comes a much uniformed official and demands 50 cents each for the privilege of eating a meal and having a smoke aboard his train. We explained carefully that we belonged on the other train, had given up the price for Pullman berths, and, furthermore, that we had been sent aboard this train for the sole purpose of getting our dinner. 'Didn't the Canadian Pacific run both trains?' we asked.

"But it was no use. We had to pay."—Washington Post.

Bismarck's Appetite.

Bismarck, the Iron Chancellor, had an enormous capacity for eating and drinking. He once told a friend that the largest number of oysters he ever ate was 175. He first ordered twenty-five; then, as they were very good, fifty more, and, consuming these, determined to eat nothing else and ordered another hundred to the great amusement of those present. Bismarck was then twenty-six and had just returned from England.

Persons belonging to the higher walks of life are to be seen promenading in short jackets and chimneypot hats without the slightest symptom of awkwardness or shame.—London Tailor and Cutter.

GRIDLEY'S LEAVE.

Touching Scene When the Brave Captain Left the Olympia.

On the morning of the battle of Manila Bay Captain Gridley was so ill that the little commodore offered to excuse him from duty, but gallantly, as is characteristic of the man, he replied, "Thank you, Commodore Dewey, but she is my ship, and I will fight her." And he did, although, figuratively speaking, he was a dead man before he went on the bridge, and days had strung themselves into but few weeks when he was ordered home on sick leave. He came up out of his cabin dressed in civilian clothes and was met by the rear admiral, who extended him a most cordial hand. A look of troubled disappointment flitted across the captain's brow, but vanished when he stepped to the head of the gangway and, looking over, saw, not the launch, but a twelve oared cutter manned entirely by officers of the Olympia. There were men in that boat who had not pulled a stroke for a quarter of a century. The stars and stripes were at the stern and a captain's silken coach whip at the bow, and when Captain Gridley, beloved alike by officers and men, entered the boat it was "Up oars!" and all that, just as though they were common sailors that were to row him over to the Zafiro. When he sat down upon the handsome boat cloth that was spread for him he bowed his head, and his hands hid his face as First Lieutenant Reese, acting cockswain, ordered: "Shove off! Out oars! Give away!"—St. Nicholas.

MOUNT ETNA.

Its Wonders as Revealed in Tales of Travelers.

Mount Etna has furnished more material for travelers' tales than any other mountain on the earth. Astonished Englishmen of a century ago who fell into the fashionable habit of climbing to its highest peak—and some did so, to the amazement of the Sicilians, even in the dead of winter—have left on record in the exuberant language of their day the emotions that thrilled their soul. "The man who treads Mount Etna," wrote one of these, "is a man above the world. Every river on the island can be traced from its mouth to its source.

"The characters," the same writer continues, "of all the climates of the earth can be detected—the frigid close around one, the temperate with its belt of trees just underneath and the tropical at the base of the mountain, with its vineyards and luxuriant groves. The great ocean around, with the islands of Lipari, Panari, Alicudi, Stromboli and Volcano, with their smoking summits, appears under your feet, and you look down upon the whole of Sicily as upon a map."

In addition to all the climates, Etna is reported to have trees that rival the giants of California, lakes that never thaw, bottomless caverns and salable snow that kept many an ancient bishop well supplied with tithes.

The Camel.

Costing about as much as a good horse, the camel's speed is equally great, his life considerably longer and his ability to carry a load equal to that of three horses.

A Hole in Glass.

In making electrical apparatus it is often necessary to make a hole in glass. This may be done by surrounding the portion to be penetrated with wax and etching out the inclosed space with hydrofluoric acid.

When a vessel is on her trial trip she runs four times over a measured mile, twice with and twice against the tide. Her average speed is thus arrived at.

Drumheads.

The parchment used for drumheads is prepared from the skins of donkeys, calves, goats and wolves and that for writing purposes from the skins of sheep. The polishing is done with pumice stone.

Facts About The World's Largest Turbogenerator

What 20,000 Horse Power Means —Astonishing Figures Showing the Electrical Energy Produced by One Machine

IT IS A GIANT TURBINE

Electric News Service, Schenectady, N. Y., July 10.—On the ecsting floor of the turbine shop of the General Electric Company's plant in Schenectady stands the largest steam turbine generator in the world. Four of these mammoth machines, capable of producing 20,000 horse-power each, have been ordered, and two will soon be put in service at Chicago by the Chicago Edison Company, and two in New York City by the New York Edison Company. The first of these giant machines will be ready for installation early this fall, and once it is set up in Chicago the Edison Company's output will be increased by the work of twenty thousand horses, although the entire floor space occupied by the turbogenerator is only 440 square feet.

The Curtis turbo-generator is an electric generator mounted above a steam turbine engine and direct-connected to the same shaft.

To those not familiar with engineering problems it is difficult to comprehend what 20,000 electrical horsepower really means.

In this giant turbine one of the rotating disks, which carries the blades against which the expanding steam strikes, imparting its energy to the shaft, is 12 feet 8 inches in diameter and runs at 750 revolutions per minute. If it ran along the ground at this rate it would go 5.66 miles in a minute, or nearly 8160 miles a day, and would run from New York to San Francisco in 9 1-2 hours. This and the other four wheels which constitute the moving part of the turbine, together with the shaft and the rotating fields of the generator, weight some 180,000 and yet so freely are they carried upon a cushion of oil that this enormous weight can be revolved by one finger.

Even at the very low rate of 13 pounds of steam per hour per kilowatt this unit would require 182,000 pounds of water evaporated into steam each hour to supply it when running at its rated capacity. The day's supply would make a 41.2 foot or fill a pond 28 x 50 feet to a depth of 5 feet, and at the usual rate of $1.50 per thousand cubic feet would cost over $105.00 per day. As 75 pounds of condensing water is necessary to condense one pound of steam it would require 4202 cubic feet per minute, or as much water as would issue in a jet one foot in diameter, with a velocity that would carry it to a height of 123 feet; or as much water as would flow naturally over a weir or dam in a sheet a foot thick and 21 feet wide.

Supposing one pound of coal to evaporate and superheat 84 pounds of water. It would take 520,000 pounds, or 260 tons of coal per day to make the steam to run this turbine. This would make a pyramid 40 feet square on the base and 22 1-2 feet in height, and would take a train of ten 30-ton cars for its transportation. It's cost delivered would be, for the ordinary case, somewhere around $1000.

If all applied to lighting, the 14,000 kilowatts, (or 20,000 horse-power, which this unit will generate, would maintain about 250,000 16-candle-power incandescent lamps, which, if hung in a stright line, would supply ample illumination to 600 miles of hallways 10 feet wide; or would supply 31,000 arc lamps, which, if spaced 150 feet apart, would illuminate 900 miles of ordinary streets. Using the output of this unit for fan-motor service, 150,000 of these little machines could be kept going. The energy delivered at the terminals of the generator during a day's run at full load would be sufficient to melt a cone of copper 21 feet in diameter at the base and 100 feet high, or 400 miles of copper rod one inch in diameter.

It will take only two men to operate this wonderful machine and all its auxiliaries, not including the boil-

INFLUENCE OF THE DIRECTOIRE GOWN ON CANADIAN FASHIONS

The special autumn number of the Dry Goods Review has been received by its subscribers, and among other excellent articles, it contains one on the new and much talked of Directoire gown, which made its debut in Paris, France, a short time ago. The article is as follows:

The three Lowthamps merveilleuses have set the world and his wife a talking about the new Directoire gowns. These gowns are claimed by their wearers to be modelled upon the fashions of about 100 years ago, and the chief objection to them seems to be their very tightly clinging skirts, worn with no under-petticoat and also that they are open at the side revealing jewelled anklets and silken hose.

These gowns have not the beauty of line—they have not the artistic effect of those worn in 1795. Neither are they so sensationally transparent. The women of that date wore only a mere belt of a corset, and the figure had almost perfect freedom.

The present very sheathlike gowns will only become popular with the minority and will have their greatest vogue on the stage, where there is more scope for the display of exaggerated styles.

Gowns of the Directoire type, however, are safely launched in Paris, and at all fashionable functions many of this class are seen. London has also taken them and they are frequently seen there. The Empire gown has certainly prepared the way for the more extreme Directoire and as the Empire has obtained a footing in Canada, no doubt the newer style will follow. There will, however, be many modifications before these gowns came into popular wear, and the upshot will be that long, clinging, narrow skirts, with the high waisted bodice will be worn. Already some features that are distinctly copied from this style have appeared one of the most popular of which is the high collar, surmounted by a wide frill and jabots will also be very fashionable. Frills at the wrist are another development that may be expected, also the narrow sash and draperies weighed with tassels and drops. Other features are closely fitting, either plain or rucked sleeves, wide revers, high coat collars covering the back of the neck, and cut-away coats with vests and long gos. fillons. The hats worn with this type of costume are immense, and the influence of Directoire fashions will be distinctly in favour of large hats. The Corday hat belongs to this period.

As the fashion calls for extreme slimness the corset will be a very important factor. It must be very long, so that it will have to be extremely well cut to make it at all comfortable. The pressure now must be on the hips, but since the waist is larger, matters are equalised. The manufacturer has in the past always been equal to the occasion, and there is no reason to doubt his ability to deal effectively with the new fashion.

After all the new Directoire gown in its less extreme and more wearable form is only an evolution. The first note was the wrinkling of the front in the Paquin skirt last fall. Now draped skirts of many soft folds long trailing draperies, and side slashes—though not without a skirt under, are an assured fact.

This brings soft satins and Oriental silks to the fore, as well as sheer woollen fabrics. Our old friend, voile, is back in great strength in Paris, and many gowns of this fabric have appeared during the last few weeks.

Transparent fabrics are worn over a skirt of the very softest and lightest of taffetas. Some times this skirt is of a contrasting colour. The tailored form will call for a trained circular skirt with the seam up the centre of the front; the coat with turnover collar at the back, large revers, vest effect and long postilions. Tight sleeves often with a lace frill and jabot to match completes the costume. The Review is illustrating this costume, also one worn at Epsom. It was made of Nankin blue Shangtung, the skirt opening below the draped sash, on the left-hand side. The opening was outlined with a bull fringe, in tarnished silver. A feature of this gown was the dragon embroideries in shades of dull green, blues and golden brown that appeared only upon the back of the clinging skirt and very short waisted bodice. This bodice was made of the blue Shangtung and opened over a vest and rucked sleeves of old lace coloured chiffon. The high rucked collar, the cuffs and the sash were of the softest of golden brown satin. Kilted frills of the chiffon turned back the sleeves and finished the collar. The large picture hat was of the same blue silk as the gown. The crown completely covered with frills of old lace, and trimmed with a cluster of golden brown feathers.

CIRCUS ELEPHANT EATS $235

Owner of Roll Sues Show Proprietors for Value of Devoured Wad

Spokane, Wash., July 12.—Upon their arrival here this season, Norris & Rowe, the circus proprietors, will find a damage suit for $235 awaiting them.

Charles Garretson, plaintiff in the case, attended one of the Norris & Rowe performances last season. His wife accompanied, and as they were passing through the animal quarters she inquired whether he still had his pocketbook safe.

"Don't worry about me, my dear," Garretson replied. "I can take care of my money all right."

As he spoke he proudly produced a wallet containing $235. An elephant standing near by seized the roll of money and calmly placed it in its capacious mouth. Before the keeper could rescue the greenbacks they had been chewed and mutilated beyond redemption.

THE ANT

Facts About One of Natures Most Industrious Creatures

When spring comes with all its wealth of opening buds and new flowers, the ant is preparing for a season of profitable industry.

It comes out of its winter quarters and locates a new home where it can store away during the summer months the sustenance for the long winter days.

Just as industrious as the ant, but in a different way, are the countless, infinitesmal germs which burrow into the scalp and eat away at the roots of the hair.

As they burrow away, Dandruff forms, and if the germs are not all killed, Baldness results.

Newbro's Herpicide is the only known remedy that kills the germs.

FRIENDS MEET AFTER MANY YEARS

Mr. Chas. Clarke, Louisville, Ky., Visiting His Brother

Just twenty years ago Mr. Chas. W. Clarke, now of Louisville, Kentucky, was a Peterborough man. He is now in the city after that lengthy lapse of time, visiting his brother, Mr. F. R. Clarke, the jeweller, whom he had not seen for almost a quarter of a century. He arrived in the city on Tuesday, and it is a peculiar coincidence that on the same day an old friend of the Clarke brothers, Mr. Jas. O'Donnel, Portland, Oregon, came also. The latter has not been in Peterborough for thirty-five years.

Mr. Charles Clarke is an assorter of cigar leafs, in which work he is very proficient. He is also agent for a cigar leaf house in Memphis, Tenn., and a packer of cigars as well. Although he has travelled through thirty-three States of the Union, he declares that he has never been in a town or city with beauty that could compare with that of the "old home-town."

For fourteen years Mr. Clarke has never seen snow. He was in Buffalo last February when he witnessed a downfall of the beautiful.

CHARACTER AND SHOES

A writer in the Revue Graphologique professes to be able to judge a person's character from the manner in which he wears his boots. If the heels are the first to show signs of wear the owner of the boots is sanguine, active but mistrustful of himself. To wear the sole first signifies a lymphatic temperament and a tendency to be a dreamer. If the vamps become worn, it denotes a pronounced sybaritic temperament, and a sole worn in the middle, hollowed out as it were goes with a bilious, reserved, egotistical and contemplative character. If the boot is worn much at the toe nervousness and energy are to be looked for in the wearer, while if it is worn all over, it denotes that the person's chief characteristic is simplicity bordering on foolishness.

EPIGRAMS

Pessimism is moral indigestion.

The worst fault a human being can commit is to be faultless.

Facts are apt to be brutal; even facts about the state of holy matrimony.

One's deserts are the last thing one hankers after in this world—or the next.

God made man first; then he made woman; then he felt so sorry for man that he made tobacco.

If a man is fool enough to put a woman on a pedestal, he is bound to pay price for his folly in the long run.

The rules of good breeding must first be mastered before they can be gracefully transgressed.

The woman who clings to white muslin and sensibility after she has attained years of discretion is lost.

A woman's sense of honour is rarely her strongest point. Put her heart to the test and you put it against the question of time.

Bachelors know better than anyone how to make themselves—and everybody else—comfortable. I would always depend on a man's judgment from the choice of furniture to the selection of a hat.

Provision Of Fuel In Canada Becoming Important Problem

Central Canada Dependent on Imported Coal—The Possibilities of Peat Production

NORTHERN EUROPE RESULTS

No subject is of more importance to the people of Canada than that of the provision of ample supplies of fuel. Our coal deposits are confined to the eastern and western provinces, so that the central of the Dominion is dependent for its fuel largely upon coal imported from the United States or upon wood, wich is, after all, the chief fuel of the bulk of our people. It is estimated that Canada burns at least seven and a half million cord of wood each year, as well as over 15,000,000 tons of coal, so that it can be easily understood how important it would be if some substitute could be found for either.

Such a substitute lies within our grasp in our peat deposits, which are roughly estimated to cover no less an area than 37,000 square miles. This figure is given by Dr. R. Chalmers of the Geological Survey; but it is quite evidently below the mark, as up of the present time no systema t i nvesti at on o. the p at b gs has been undertaken and there are undoubtedly many which have not been included in that es.imate.

Several attempts have been made in Can.da to manu acture peat fue, but in most cases results have been financial failures which have caused a certain distrust among capita i ts and the general public in everything connected with peat and the utilization of the peat bogs. With the view, however, of learning from the experiences of other countries which have utilized their peat deposits, Mr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, last year instructed Mr. Erik Nystrom of the Mines branch to proceed to Sweden, Norway, Finland, Denmark, Germany, Holland and Ireland to study the report upon the peat industries in those countries. Mr. Nystrom has just completed his report, and a most valuable volume it is.

He shows clearly that if our people will but learn from the experience of the peat bog owners of Northern Europe, there is no reason why we should not develop these natural stores of fuel to advantage of our fuel consumers and with profit to the capitalist. Modern methods, must of course, be adopted, but with their use he shows how peat fuel could be produced at a cost of two dollars a ton, which on an investment of $37,000 for a 500 acre bog, would give yearly profit of $3,000. The peat industry is aided substantially by most of the Governments of Northern Europe, and it might be a good policy for the Dominion Government to consider whether it shall follow in the same course. If peat is a p of t his competito with coal on the other side of the Atlantic, and the facts prove that it is, there is no reason why it should not be the same in this country. The Russian Government is anxious to make Russia independent of imported fuel, and gives to private persons or companies erecting peat plants a loan of forty per cent. of the cost of the plant. This loan can be paid back in peat products. In Holland peat fuel has been used for centuries and at present the production is over one million tons per year. The worked out peat bogs are excellent for agricul u al purposes and annually about one thousand of such lands are gained. The Government always uses peat fuel in its buildings, and although coal could be cheaply obtained from England and Germany, the Hollanders prefer to use the peat fuel.

Why should not Canada follow their example?

LOCAL GUM FACTORY TURNING OUT AN ARTICLE WHICH HAS BEEN PRONOUNCED FIRST-CLASS

"Fruitlets" and Spearmint Gum are Now Selling Rapidly in This City and Others — Employing Ten Girls—Modern Equipment

MANY ADVANCE ORDERS

Have you tried Fruitlets yet, or Spearmint pepsin gum? It is not generally known that the gum factory which a local company has been equipping is now turning out as dainty a confection of this kind as is made anywhere. An Examiner representative visited the plant to-day and was agreeably surprised at the progress that has been made. It is situated on Park street, north of Weller street, and not only is the machinery and equipment of an improved type, but the quality of the gum is a feature. In taste and flavour it could scarcely be improved upon. It does not crumble in the mouth as does some that is sold, it retains its flavour and possesses all the qualities looked for in good chewing gum.

Two Forms

It is manufactured in two forms. One kind is known as Spearmint pepsin gum. This is turned out in sticks, five in a package, of the size ordinarily made. The flavour is obtained from pure mint, and this company is the only one in Canada using it. It is a new flavour here, but is held in general favour on the other side of the border. On each package is the company's trade mark, a blue spear. Anyone using it will want to try it again owing to its pleasant taste.

The other gume product is called "Fruitlets," this name having been registered and protected. It is prepared in small pastiles. The flavours only of a different shape. The flavours are pineapple, blood orange and strawberry. The coating is of pale lavender hue and a trial is sufficient to convince one of the quality of "Fruitlets." Already large orders have been filled in the city and some from outside. The factory will be run at full capacity beginning next week. Ten girls have been engaged, although only three have thus far been at work, as the finishing touches have just been completed in the equipment of the plant.

The Machinery

Some of the machinery was obtained through the A. R. Williams Company of Toronto, while some had to be imported from Philadelphia. The large coating pans were prepared by Mr. A. E. Micks of this city. A C.G.E. motor has been installed and the plant is ready to go ahead on Monday at practically full capacity.

The Manufacture

The process of manufacture was explained, different machines being used to turn out the Fruitlets and Spearmint. The ingredients and flavourings are pure in every respect, and it is the aim of the company to turn out wholesome and delectable gum that will appeal to the public. The drying process of the Fruitlets is done with cold air, where steam is used more generally. The former method is a new improvement, and a special fan is used in the work. The finished Fruitlets are very appealing in appearance, but are even better when tasted. The fact that the company is composed of local men is of special importance, and success is practically assured in this enterprise. The outside orders have not yet been completely filled owing to the local demand, but the increased output in the near future will enable the company to fill the numerous orders already on their books.

Shippers Win Over Railways; Switching Charges Reduced

Three Local Industries Benefitted —Substantial Cut Made at Manufacturer's Request

TO BE NO DISCRIMINATION

The fact that the interswitching charges on railways will be reduced by order of the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners will be welcome news to three Peterborough industries, at least—The Sandstone Brick Company, the Peterborough Lumber Company and the Matthews Pork Packing Company, Limited.

A reduction of approximately 80 per cent. of the present interswitching charges has been ordered by the Board in favour of all shippers throughout Canada. The charges themselves have been reduced about 30 per cent., from 25 and 30 cents a ton to 20 cents a ton, and further the contracting road has to pay the carrying railway one-half of the reduced cost of interswitching.

The complaint regarding the charges which was heard in Toronto in November last and again at the sitting of the Railway Commission in May of this year, was made by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

For Additional Service

As regards traffic destined to consignees located upon or reasonably convenient to the tracks of the contracting carrier, or which may be so consigned as not to indicate clearly the delivery required, and which subsequent to shipment is ordered by the shipper, consignee, or the agent of either for interswitch delivery involving an additional service by another carrier, and which is so interswitched, the Board orders the contracting carrier may charge and collect in addition to its freight charges the interswitching toll of the carrier which performs such service, which toll shall not be more than 20 cents per ton for any distance not exceeding four miles.

Upon traffic consigned to consignees located upon or reasonably convenient to track sother than those of the contracting carrier, or to consignees who have customarily required such other carrier's delivery, the contracting carrier may for the interswitching service rendered necessary for such delivery charge and collect an additional toll of not more than 10 cents per ton for any distance not exceeding over four miles, the distance to be computed to or from the nearest point of interswitching.

Empties Included

The tolls include the empty movement of the car to and from points on which it is received by the interswitching carrier.

Traffic interswitched at the point of shipment shall be subject to the same conditions as also traffic consigned to order.

All carriers are required to reduce their tolls for switching within terminals on all traffic. The contracting carrier is required to pay 50 per cent. of the toll of the carrier which performs the interswitching of such traffic as originates at non-competing points.

Where There's No Competition

Heretofore a manufacturer located at a point where there was only one line of railway was discriminated against in his rates to the extent of the switching charge. While the order does not place him on an equal footing with the shipper located where there are competing roads, it places him in a much better position than heretofore. The contention of the Manufacturers' Association has been that the carriers should afford shippers at local points, who are compelled by reason of their location to ship over one line of railway, the same facilities for doing business as the shipper located where there are several lines of railway. This was not completely granted by the Board, but a gain of 80 per cent. is welcomed by the association and shippers generally with glee.

Fire Chief Asks For Some Repairs At The Fire Hall

Fire, Water and Light Committee Met Last Night—Tenders Are to be Asked for Uniforms for Fire Brigade

THE PETITIONS FOR LIGHTS

At a meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee last night there were present Ald. Johnston, chairman, the Mayor, and Ald. Turner and Buller.

On motion of Ald. Buller and Turner, the chairman and Ald. McIntyre were authorized to locate a hydrant on George street between Argyle and Hillier streets, as requested by the Water Commissioners, if they, on examination, deem it advisible.

Ald. Turner moved, seconded by Ald. Buller, that no action be taken at present on the request for a light on Park street, south or Romaine street.—Carried.

On motion of Ald. Buller and Turner, the petition for a light at the corner of Mark and Sophia streets was referred to the chairman and Ald. Turner to examine and report.

A request from Mr. H P Kennedy for more light at the corner of Aylmer and Sherbrooke streets was laid over.

The chairman was authorized to procure the books required by the chief of the fire department, and also postage stamps, and the treasurer was authorized to issue cheques for stamps for the fire department on the order of the chairman of the committee.

Ald. Turner moved, seconded by Ald Buller, that the fire chief furnish the clerk with a description of the chemical tank required, and that the clerk write for quotations.—Carried.

On motion of Ald. Buller and Turner, the clerk was instructed to write to clothiers for tenders for the supplyof uniforms for the firemen.

Chief Howard's report was presented as follows:

Gentlemen,—I beg leave to present report No. 2 of the Fire Department as follows:—

I took charge of your Fire Department at 12.05 a.m., July 1st, and immediately took stock of the building and equipment. You will please find attached to this report a stock sheet of the apparatus, equipment, and supplies as I found them on July the first.

I trust the Committee will scrutinise the stock sheet and by so doing avoid any misunderstanding that might occur in years to come. I also attach to this report a list of articles for purchase that will be necessary to make an appropriation for, over and above the ordinary running expenses.

The list referred to is not put in the way of a demand, but merely as a guide to assist your Committee in speedily bringing the Department to state of efficiency.

Three Important Matters

I wish to draw your attention to three important matters, that should be acted upon immediately.

1. Your No. 1 hose waggon is in a bad state of repair, and in my opinion should receive a general overhauling. The box of the waggon is in splendid shape, but the gear is not substantial enough. I would suggest that the present gear be replaced by a heavier set, with Archibald wheels, and roller bearings, and that the old gear be equipped with a common box and made into a supply waggon. In cities it is customary to use the supply waggon for exercising the horses.

2. That your new hose waggon be equipped with a 50 gallon chemical tank, with interchangeable fittings.

3. It may be necessary to replace two of the horses some time in the near future as they show signs of playing out.

I also wish to report that as yet I have not received the books belonging to the Fire Department, nor have I been able to obtain possession of the keys of the Bell Tower.

Some minor repairs are required at the fire station. The roof of the building is leaking, and the eavetroughs are broken at the rear of the building.

There is another matter that I would like the Committee to take up at once. I refer to the passing of bylaws governing the storage of combustables, and the inspection of public buildings, as I would like to take up the work of inspection, as soon as possible.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

I have the honour to be, sirs,
Your obedient servant,
W. A. HOWARD,
Chief Fire Department.

Peterborough, July 10, 1908.

MANY HITS AT BAND CONCERT

Red Coated Musicians Delighted Large Audience Last Night

It was a choice programme that the 57th Regimental Band under the skilful direction of Mr. [illegible] presented to a very large crowd at Victoria Park last night, and the audience showed its appreciation of the numbers by the hearty applause which followed each number. Sergt. Hughes' cornet solo was one of the hits of the evening, and of the band numbers the most popular probably were the selection from the "Merry Widow," and from "Floradora," and the medley of new songs, including "Afraid to Go Home in the Dark," and "Pride of the Prairie."

WAS SUED FOR $13 FOR WAGES DUE

Judgment Given Against Geo. Stevens This Morning

Geo Stevens, the well known promoter of walking races int his vicinity, appeared before Magistrate Dumble at police court this morning on a charge of non-payment of wages to Geo. Bell. The latter claimed $13 as the amount coming to him for work done, while Stevens claimed that this was counter-balanced by coal and other things which the plaintiff had obtained from him. The Magistrate gave judgment for $13 in favour of the plaintiff whose interests were looked after by Mr. G N Gordon, while Mr. R E Wood appeared for the defendant.

FIREMAN THOMAS BURKE RESIGNED LAST NIGHT

THE USE OF HAY FORK BY FARMERS

These Labour Saving Devices Becoming the Order of the Day

From the Canadian Dairyman

For the last 10 years, we have used the return rope and pulley in connection with our hay fork cars and have found it to be an excellent device. This return device should be on every car, for then the carrier comes back readily by weight, with no human energy wasted. It is well not to use a cast iron weight or stone for this purpose, a sand bag being much preferable, as it is safer in case it might touch any person in its descent. For this reason, we always advocate the use of a sandbag sufficient in weight to draw the car back.

Labor-saving devices are becoming the order of the day and as men are becoming wise to these facts to a very large degree, accounts for the enormous trade being done in these lines of goods. It is much better for the horse to do the work instead of the men as in the old way, which is a great consideration to anyone who values time and has no desire to do things by main strength and awkwardness, at the loss of a lot of flesh. —Tolton Bros., Wellington Co.

WELLINGTONS ALMOST WON OUT

Concluding Innings Nearly Gave Them a Victory

The Wellingtons and Y. M. C. A. played off their protested game and the kids trimmed them in the four innings played, by 5 runs to 10. However the first 5 played some time ago resulted 9—5 in favour of the Y.M.C.A. who thus won out by 11 runs to 10.

Our Success

Every day brings to our office patients who have satisfied themselves as to our ability in the examination of the eye, the fitting of proper frames and lenses, and our most moderate charges.

There is a Reason

In the first place we have the necessary skill, knowledge and experience, and always give satisfaction where others fail.

Secondly: We have the most complete factory in a retail optical store in Canada.

Thirdly: We buy from the manufacturer only and pay prompt cash for our purchases

Lastly: We make our selections personally, buying in large quantities, saving big discounts, thus we are enabled to offer values that will never be challenged. We invite inspection.

AMERICANS LEADING IN SHOOTING

England Second and Canada Fourth at Bisley.

KERR MAKES GOOD SHOWING

Toronto Man Is Eighth In Individual International Olympic Scores—Half of World's Contests Are Now Over With England 10 Points Behind the Leading Team — Sweden Third—Individual Standing.

Bisley, July 11.—The American marksmen made the best showing yesterday in the Olympic games shooting contests. Besides capturing gold and silver medals they have also a useful lead in the international team matches.

The chief interest of the day naturally centered in the international match in which the Americans have the top score at three ranges, the 200 yard, 500 yard and 600 yard, which comprise the first half of this contests. The concluding three ranges are to be shot over to-day and the winners, in addition to securing the coveted gold medals, will be acclaimed the champion marksmen of the world. When the teams left the butts yesterday the American team led with a score of 1,291, with England second with 1,281 and Sweden third with 1,229.

Canada came fourth in the day's shooting events in the Olympic contests for international teams. Kerr stood highest of the Canadians coming eighth in the individual scores.

In these scores the standing of the Canadians was as follows: Kerr, 8th; Upton, 9th; Crowe, 10th; Brown, 12th; McInnes, 17th; Morris, 24th; Freeborn, 27th; Elmitt, 31st; Jones, 33rd; Martin, 34th; Rowe, 36th; Steele, 38th. There were 49 competitors.

Williams of Annapolis, N.S., made a remarkable showing at 500 yards with 14 bullseyes out of 15 shots.

Pardon Comes 18 Years Late.

Columbus, Ohio, July 11.—Eighteen years after George Swanson completed his one-year sentence in the penitentiary for violating the United States pension laws, having been sent up from Youngstown, a full and complete pardon arrived at the institution yesterday, signed by Benjamin Harrison, then President of the United States, and Wm. F. Harton, his acting Secretary of State.

The original letter containing the pardon was received here Thursday from St. Louis. It is dated at Washington, Sept. 3, 1890. It was stamped at Columbus, Sept. 4. It is probable that the letter has been lying in some postoffice for years.

Greeks Get Confederated Bill.

Toronto, July 11.—Confusion reigned in the Greek colony in the eastern end of the city yesterday [illegible] out of the travels of a Louisiana $50 bill. Two warrants and one arrest was the net result.

Peter Ilia, Milan Demetero and Christo Steinhoff passed it around among them for several days in ignorance of its worthlessness. When Steinhoff presented it at the bank it was refused. So he got out warrants.

Coal Boat Ashore.

St. John's, Nfld., July 11.—The big steamer Regulus, five days from Philadelphia, coal laden, ran on the Stopper Side shoal near Petty Harbor Thursday evening in a dense fog at slow speed. The forward part is 12 feet on the rocks, and the amidships 18 feet. The forehold has eight feet of water.

Navajos In Revolt.

Bisbee, Ariz., July 11.—An uprising of Navajos in New Mexico is reported to have occurred and thirty soldiers with machine guns have been despatched from Fort Huxehues to Fort Wingate, New Mexico, for the purpose of aiding the troops stationed there in quelling the outbreak.

Bush Fire at Eaglehart.

Kingston, July 11.—A bush fire at Englehart has destroyed the railroad camps of William Baby. He lost his entire outfit. Two houses were destroyed. The damage is estimated at $12,000.

Drowning In Muskoka.

Port Sandfield, Muskoka, July 11.—H. Chambers, son of a Redwood farmer, was drowned by the upsetting of a canoe three miles from here. He was an expert canoeist and swimmer.

SUMMER COMPLAINT.

One of the Commonest and Most Dangerous of Diseases.

Everyone Should be Prepared for it with a Bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Very few people escape an attack of Summer Complaint. It may be slight, or it may be severe, but nearly everyone is liable to it.

You cannot tell, when it seizes on you, how it may end.

Let it go for a day or two only, and see how weak and prostrated it will leave you.

There is only one safe way to cure it and that is by DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY. It has been on the market for sixty-three years and has been proved and tried so you are not experimenting when you buy it.

Do not accept a substitute or imitation, as many of these are positively dangerous to life and health. Insist on having DR. FOWLER'S.

Mrs. Norman H. Eisau, Ship Harbor, N.S., writes: 'Last summer my baby was very bad with Summer Complaint. I tried most everything for him, but nothing seemed to help. One day a neighbor called in and told me to try DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY, so I got a bottle and after a few doses my baby was cured. I shall always keep it in the house."

FIRE IN GRAND FORKS, B.C.

One Dead and One Missing In $300,000 Blaze.

Grand Forks, B.C., July 11.—The worst fire in the history of this city was started early yesterday morning, supposedly in the Square Hotel, which was vacant.

Two blocks and a half were completely burned out, and the approximate loss, which cannot be accurately ascertained at present, will reach nearly $300,000, with possibly 25 per cent. insurance.

Barnaby Mola, who was stopping in the Valhalla Hotel, was killed, only his charred remains being found in the ruins. One other person, a miner named Buckman, is missing.

Three hotels, telephone exchange, C. P. telegraph and Dominion express offices and Eastern Townships Bank are among the buildings destroyed.

GENEROSITY IS BALKED.

Citizen Will Fight Ottawa's Battlefield Contribution.

Ottawa, July 11.—The City of Ottawa will probably not give the $1,000 granted to the Quebec battlefields fund. A citizen renowned for his keen watch on illegal expenditures of the council and who has instituted many successful injunctions, will stop the payment by legal process.

Meanwhile the check is ready for payment, but the city auditor will not sanction payment until the city council passes on it again; then the injunction will fail if the legal gentlemen are smart in the race to stop the contribution. If they pay it by some underhand way proceedings against them will follow.

Reciprocal Trade.

Ottawa, July 11.—D. H. Ross, the Canadian trade commissioner in Australia, writes that the Commonwealth Government will this summer take up the question of a reciprocal trade agreement with Canada. In his report to the Department, Mr. Ross says that in an interview with Premier Deakin last month with reference to proposals submitted on behalf of the Canadian Government for a reciprocal tariff, the latter stated that as the new Australian general and British preferential tariffs had only been finally dealt with on May 29 last his Government had been unable to [illegible] Canadian proposals. Premier Deakin, says Mr. Ross, again expressed his personal sympathy towards the improvement of trade relations with Canada, and intimated that during the Parliamentary recess the question would be carefully gone into with a view of having the matter dealt with at the next session of the Australian Parliament, which will probably commence early in October.

Mystery Is Unravelled.

Montreal, July 11.—The names of murderer and murdered in the Chinese opium den on Tuesday last have come to light. The dead man was James E. Enright, and he was slain by his pal, Frank Smith. Another of Enright's partners, Frank Lennox, and another named Paul, is being held by the police.

Paul is said to be the head of a bad gang of pickpockets, sneak thieves and burglars, to which the principle in Tuesday's tragedy belonged. Smith is declared to be in hiding in Montreal at the present time.

The murder was the result of a row over the divisions of loot taken from the pocket of a passenger on one of the boats. The gang was on its way to Quebec.

Graves Washing Away.

Chatham, July 11.—The attention of local and county authorities is being directed to the condition of Dolson's cemetery on the banks of the Thames river. The portion of burial grounds which faces the river is being gradually washed into the river and many skeletons are exposed to view. This has made the cemetery a mecca for relic hunters. Fully 15 feet of the original cemetery is exposed to view.

The place never had a keeper, and when the river is high students from the nearby colleges flock to the place to carry away the skulls and bones.

Ex-Archbishop O'Conner Honored.

Toronto, July 11.—The presentation yesterday of a testimonial and the sum of $1,200 to former Archbishop O'Connor was an event of no little interest in connection with the annual "retreat," which has been in progress several days at St. Michael's College, and which was brought to a conclusion yesterday. Sixty priests have been in attendance at the ceremonials and Rev. Father Brie, C.S.S.R., St. Patrick's Church, delivered four sermons daily. Archbishop McKvay also addressed the gathering.

French Treaty to Delayed.

Paris, July 11.—(C. A. P.)—At the customs commission yesterday the Minister announced from the agricultural view point the convention might be adopted without damaging the national production and promised to provide the commission with certain statistical documents dealing with the agricultural produce of Canada. Under the circumstances it is not likely the convention can be discussed in the Senate before the end of the session.

Two Boys Drown.

Kingston, July 11.—Kenneth, aged 11, and Rose, aged 15, sons of Henry Davey of Enterprise, were drowned in the creek there. No one saw the accident. It is believed that one was drawn into a hole and that the other, in an attempt to make a rescue, took cramps and sank. The bodies were found together.

LAND FOR THE CANADIAN VETERANS

Men Not in Canadian Corps Should Share, Says Hughes.

GRAIN ACT IS DISCUSSED

Suggestion Is Made That All Canadians Who Enlisted In Any Corps Be Granted Land — Aylesworth Will Introduce Bill For Additional Judges — Government Will Build Hudson Railway.

Ottawa, July 11.—The bill amending the Manitoba grain act and the bill authorizing a grant of land to Canadian volunteers who served in South Africa occupied most of the time of the House yesterday. In the discussion on the latter measure it was suggested that the grants should be extended to all Canadian volunteers who had served in South Africa, whether in Canadian corps or not. The section defining the beneficiaries was allowed to stand, and progress was reported.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Aylesworth a resolution was carried and a bill introduced providing for the salaries for an additional county court judge in Manitoba, and for two additional district court judges in Ontario.

Col. Sam Hughes thought Canadians who enlisted in Britain or South Africa should also be included, while Messrs. Bickerdike and Schell (Oxford) spoke for the Fenian Raid veterans.

The resolution carried and the bill taken up. Again Col. Hughes pressed for recognition of men who went to South Africa to enlist, "including if you like," he said, "Col. Sam Hughes."

Mr. Oliver intended that, but thought it would be impossible to draft a clause covering all cases.

Mr. Borden suggested a clause, but E. M. MacDonald objected. This country should recognize only those men who enlisted in Canadian corps.

Col. Hughes instanced the case of Col. Hamilton Merritt of Toronto, who served with Gen. Brabant's Horse, "and I," said the colonel, "couldn't go to South Africa because of the tyranny of an English officer who happened to be a servant of the Canadian Government."

The clause was allowed to stand.

Dr. Barr proposed that war correspondents be included and Mr. Martin (P.E.I.) suggested nurses and chaplains. The Minister said the suggestions would be considered.

The grant is to consist of two adjoining quarter sections and the grantee or his substitute is to fulfill homestead duties and make his entry by Dec. 31, 1910, and begin residence on the land six months after that date.

In regard to substitutes the bill now provides that a substitute must be of the age of 18 years and a British subject, or one who has declared his intention of becoming a British subject, but no patent shall issue to anyone until he has become a British subject.

Yesterday afternoon's sitting of the House was devoted to consideration in committee of the Manitoba grain act.

There was a good deal of discussion of the clause permitting the mixing of grades at Winnipeg.

Messrs. Lake, Sehaffner and Staples on the Opposition side, and Mr. Cowan on the Government side, voiced the objection to this clause.

The latter moved an amendment to extend the privilege of mixing to terminal elevators, but this the Minister refused to accept.

Among the amendments adopted was one designed to preserve the identity of shipments of grain while en route to the western and foreign markets.

Progress was reported.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux introduced a resolution declaring it expedient to prohibit the importation, manufacture and sale of opium for other than medicinal purposes.

The proposal was greeted with calls of "carried!" and a bill was introduced to give effect thereto.

The item in the supplementary estimates of $100,000 for a survey of the route of the proposed Hudson Bay Railway gives interest to the speculation which has been rife for days as to how the line is likely to be constructed.

It is now said that instead of arranging with the Canadian Northern Railway Co. to continue their present railway from La Pas on the Saskatchewan on to Fort Churchill on Hudson Bay, the road will be constructed by the Government and as a Government proposition, other railways to have running rights over the route.

For several days representatives of the C.N.R. have been in Ottawa endeavoring to induce the Government to give them the necessary financial encouragement to enable them to construct the Hudson Bay road. But all their efforts have been in vain, and a Government constructed and public-owned road is the policy of the Government.

Little England Ideas.

London, July 11.—The Evening Globe sees in the inability of the Government to give information re the all-red route, signs of its obedience to the Little England principles, regretting that the Government seems to have chosen this great scheme for the demonstration thereof.

All-Red Route Will Boom.

London, July 11.—(C. A. P.)—The Chronicle anticipates that the result of Canada's resolution regarding the all-red route will be an immediate move forward for the scheme.

It would be a tactical misfortune if the Home Parliament ended its session with nothing done.

Pyne Leaves For England.

Toronto, July 11.—Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, left for England yesterday. He will investigate industrial training conditions in connection with the projected technical schools for the province, and the technical training to be instituted in the public schools.

WILLIAM BRYAN WAS THEIR CHOICE

John W. Kern of Indiana Runs For Vice-President.

ONLY ONE TERM SAYS BRYAN

Silver-Tongued Nebraskan Is Nominated Amid Scene of Wildest Enthusiasm at Denver—Kern goes In by Acclamation—Gray and Johnson Bryan's Opponents For Presidential Candidature.

Denver, Col., July 11.—William Jennings Bryan of Nebraska was nominated for the third time for the office of President of the United States by the Democratic national convention at 3.40 o'clock yesterday morning, amid scenes of frenzied enthusiasm. The result came after an all-night session, which was kept in a constant state of turmoil up to the moment when the Nebraska leader was proclaimed the choice of the convention.

The nomination was made on the first and only ballot, the vote standing:

William J. Bryan	892 ½
Judge George Gray	59½
Governor John A. Johnson	46
Absent or not voting	8
Total	1,006

Late yesterday afternoon John W. Kern was nominated by acclamation for vice-president by the Democratic national convention, thus completing the work of the convention and sending to the country the ticket of Bryan and Kern.

The nomination was made without the formality of a vote all other candidates withdrawing. The result awakened a tremendous demonstration.

The convention adjourned amid scenes of enthusiasm.

The announcement of the vote on the Presidential ballot in the early morning was the signal for a wild demonstration, especially in turbulence if not in duration, the record-breaking display which on Wednesday afternoon greeted the first mention of Mr. Bryan's name in the convention. The scene within the amphitheatre at the moment of the nomination was of stirring animation. From pit to dome the vast building was packed with 10,000 people, thinned out in the remoter galleries after hours of waiting through the intense discomforts of a hot night.

Twice before the throng had been moved into a mad ecstacy, first by the speech placing the name of Bryan in nomination, and again when that of Governor Johnson of Minnesota was presented, but these manifestations paled before the culminating outbursts of emotion.

As the announcement of the Nebraskan's actual nomination was made, the whole assemblage rose en masse, waving flags, handkerchiefs, newspapers, hats and coats; anything, everything which hands could lay upon, to wave aloft or hurl into the air, while a bedlam of sound poured out from [illegible] throats in exultant whoops, while the added din of shrieking horns, the roar of megaphones and the strains of the band playing an exultant anthem.

New York Goes Solid.

When for a moment order could be secured out of this tempestuous chaos of demonstration, state after state which had at first recorded its vote for Johnson or Gray fell into line with the over-mastering column, and the nomination was made unanimous and by acclamation.

The taking of the vote had been followed with breathless interest. When New York was reached in the call of states, the announcement of Chief Murphy, "Seventy-eight votes for Bryan," brought out a wild outburst of enthusiastic approval, which for a time compelled the suspension of the roll-call. A further delay was caused by a demand for a poll of the New York delegation. On this poll many of the New York delegates, including Judge Alton B. Parker, the presidential nominee four years ago, remained silent, but the entire seventy-eight votes of the delegation were cast for Bryan under the "unit rule."

One Term Will Do.

Fairview, Lincoln, Neb., July 11.—The following statement was made by William J. Bryan when, at 4.34 a.m., he received the announcement of his nomination as the candidate of the Democratic party for President:

"The Presidency is the highest official position in the world, and no one occupying it can afford to have his views upon public question biased by personal ambition. Recognizing his responsibility to God and his obligation to his countrymen he should enter upon the discharge of his duties with singleness of purpose. Believing that one can best do this when he is not planning for a second term I announce now, as I have on former occasions, that, if elected, I shall not be a candidate for re-election.

"This is a nomination as purely from the people as can be, and, if elected, my obligation will be as purely to the people. I appreciate the honor the more because it came not from one person or a few persons, but from the rank and file acting freely and without compulsion."

A Lone Highwayman.

Spokane, Wash., July 11.—A lone highwayman attempted to hold up westbound passenger train No. 3 on the Great Northern Railroad near Naples, Idaho, Thursday afternoon. The highwayman got nothing, but fled after exchanging several shots with the crew and passengers of the train. He is thought to have been shot, as he was seen to fall.

Cigarette Bill Passed.

Ottawa, July 11.—The Senators yesterday adopted on a vote of 33 to 13 an amendment of Senator Power to reduce the age limit of cigarette smokers from 18 to 16 years.

The bill then passed.

Hungarians Go on Strike.

CANADA, OUR HOME.

There is a land of broad expanse,
Of boundless wealth and honored name;
Its landscape doth the eye entrance,
Its lakes and rivers give it fame;
A people of heroic blood
Within its lengthened borders dwells;
The progress of the passing years
With truth its noble history tells.

In this Dominion, side by side,
In harmony and friendship live
Gaul, Celt and Saxon, who with pride
All to one Sovereign homage give;
We all are Britons to the core
And Britons we will ever be;
From north to south, from shore to shore,
From centre to each bounding sea.

Should danger threat, or foe assail,
Strong hearts and hands would e'er be found
To bear the weapons that prevail
And face the evils that surround;
For God and right and native land,
For truth and liberty and light,
We would not fear to take our stand
But boldly rally to the fight.

Yet choose we not the gory field,
To peace and labor we incline;
We crave the honor toil doth yield,
The wealth of forest, farm and mine;
Let others rank and title seek
And win, through strife, the world's applause;
Give us a good Canadian home
'Neath Britain's flag and Britain's laws.

Ye men of every clime and tongue
Come, find a home 'mid pleasures rare;
We have rich treasures to bestow,
Enough for all and much to spare;
We love our country, King and Queen,
We love the banner of the free
And blend with yellow, red and green,
The maple leaf and fleur-de-lys.

A NOVA SCOTIA SCHOLAR.

Distinguished Career of Dr. E. G. Bill —Honored by Yale University.

Earl Gordon Bill of Wolfville recently received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in mathematics at the commencement exercises at Yale University.

Dr. Bill is one of the most brilliant Canadians that has ever attended American universities, and Nova Scotia has reason to be proud of such a son, who will doubtless win greater renown in the future in his chosen subject of mathematics. Dr. Bill is only 24 years old. He was born at Billtown, in Kings county, and is the son of C. R. Bill, collector of customs at Wolfville. At 17 years of age he graduated from Acadia University, having taken honors in mathematics. He then spent a year at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston. After spending another year in the west, in engineering work, he went to Yale University to further pursue the full mathematical course. In 1907 he won the De Forest prize of $400. The past year he has been teaching in the university and also writing his Ph.D. thesis, which will be published in the transactions of the American Mathematical Society. During the coming year he has a permanent instructorship at Yale, and will also give a lecture course in the graduate school. His success as instructor and tutor has already given him very high standing at this university, so much so that although he has been asked to go to McGill University as teacher and lecturer, he was strongly urged to remain at Yale as a member of the staff.

Dr. Bill proposes in the course of two years to go to Germany and Italy and further pursue his mathematical researches and studies.

In the West.

The dark pines swarming up the mountain sides dripped fire tinged dews to the wet earth. The snows high up in the soft pale blue sky shone with a hard radiance. The little dew-drenched chapel and the wooden chalets scattered at the forest's edge smoked in the bright air. The only sound was the liquid ceaseless rush of a distant waterfall.

An Indian passed me on the narrow trail; his breath came from his mouth like an incense. For a mile I met nobody, and saw neither bird nor beast. I wondered if the earth had been more quiet and solitary for Adam. In the midst of my wonder I came upon an ancient dame, seated upon a mossy rock, busy with her needle. At a little distance from her, just where a tangled path sloped abruptly to the ravine three thousand feet below, strayed a child nursing a doll. The grandmamma looked up from her work. "Rose!" she called in a law voice; "Rose! do not go too far away."

I looked about me at the foreign grandeur of the scenery. I recollected that five thousand miles separated me from England. And then the miracle of the British race came home to my soul. Here, in this unhandseled forest, here in the uttermost parts of a New World, the language, the love and the old sweet motherly solicitude of England.—Harold Begbie in The London Chronicle.

Canadian Officer Dead.

Lieut. Walter Young, 67th Punjabis, attached to 57th Rifles, was wounded in the fighting with the Khoda Khel on May 20 and died the following day. The young officer, who was 25 years of age, was the son of the late Right Rev. Richard Young, D.D., Bishop of Athabasca, and of Mrs. Young, St. Michael's Rectory, Gloucester, Eng.

He was born at St. Andrew's Parsonage, Manitoba, and joined the Royal Marine Light Infantry as 2nd lieutenant Sept. 1, 1900, being promoted to lieutenant July 1, 1901. He transferred to the unattached list for appointment to the Indian army as 2nd lieutenant Sept 1, 1906, and only two months ago was gazetted lieutenant in the 67th Punjabis, with effect from June 1, 1904. He was attached to the 1st Batt. Lincolnshire Regiment before joining the 67th Punjabis.

He met his death in an attack on a stronghold of the Khoda Khel in the Bohal Dag.

All Very "Civil."

In certain sections of the country there are much favored words which are required to do duty with a wide variety of meanings. Such is the word "smart" among Yankees and up along the Labrador shore the word "civil." The following conversation between two natives was overheard by a traveler:

"We are goin' to have lots of dirt today," said one, glancing at the sky.

"Naw. It'll be civil," replied his companion.

"How did you get on with the captain?"

"Oh, he got civil to hunting deer by and by. When he went out he didn't know nothing, but he got civilized."

"Did you go down the Ketchee?"

"Naw. It's too civil for him. He wanted lots of rapids, so we went down the Boomer. Them's about as civil rapids as I want to see."—Youth's Companion.

Adhesive Eggs of Fishes.

Among the fishes which produce adhesive eggs are the little black head minnow (Pimephales promelas) and the goldfish. The male blackhead deposits the fecundated eggs singly upon the underside of leaves of water plants and watches them unceasingly until hatched. The eggs of the goldfish are deposited singly upon the weeds and mosses in a similar manner by the male fish. The eggs of the yellow perch are held together in narrow stripe or ribbons of a glutinous character. Adhesive eggs of other species, as the black bass, sunfish, catfishes, etc., are deposited in masses in shallow nests or depressions on the bottom, and still other species deposit their spawn in variously shaped adhesive masses upon water plants, roots and submerged objects.

Papyrus.

The papyrus of ancient times was made from the papyrus plant. The interior of the stalk of the plant after the rind had been removed was cut into thin slips in the direction of their length, and, these being laid on a flat surface in succession, similar slices were placed over them at right angles, and, their surfaces being cemented together by a sort of glue and subjected to the proper degree of pressure and well dried, the papyrus was complete.

Different Opinions.

"I see a man intends to let a rattlesnake bite him and depend on prayer for a cure. I call that faith."

"I call it cruelty to animals unless somebody's going to pray for the snake after it's bitten such a fool as that."

The Mute.

"She has no friends to speak of."

"Good heavens! What does she talk about?"

Whenever a man commits a crime heaven finds a witness.—Bulwer.

Drooping—Tired—Weary

You Feel Depressed, Dragged Out, and Sort of "All Gone" —Shake Off That Tired Feeling, Get Well and Strong, Fortify Your Nerves, Nourish Your Blood.

FERROZONE

You are getting pale and thin. You're dragged down with a "don't care" feeling that makes life most unhappy. Your strength is fleeting away, and weakness is creeping in. Every day your chances for cure becomes smaller.

Trouble is you don't assimilate your food, consequently the body is poorly nourished. The blood is thin, lacks those red corpuscles that denote health.

You can only prevent a total collapse by building up all the powers of the body with Ferrozone, which will surely make you well. Ferrozone creates tremendous appetite, increases the power of digestion, and insures perfect assimilation. Everything you eat is at once converted into nourishment.

FERROZONE makes rich, pure blood, a surplus of energy, new life for the nerves and all over-strained organs. Robust health will glow on the cheeks, jovial spirits, increased weight, and a clear, active brain will evidence a few of the benefits that follow Ferrozone.

The effect of Ferrozone is instant, yet permanent. For upbuilding and invigorating the listless and depressed it has no equal. It's the concentrated nourishment in Ferrozone that makes it so beneficial. We guarantee it contains no opiates, no alcohol, nothing but the most strengthening qualities known in medicine. Won't you use Ferrozone; it will surely make you well.

GAINED 15 POUNDS.

Mr. H. A. Thurston, of 236 Vermont St. E., Indianapolis, Restored by Ferrozone.

"A year ago I took the grippe. I was as weak as a child. I was no longer able to eat. My blood was thin. My cheeks were white and hollow. Doctors gave me all kinds of medicine, but none of them brought me strength. My friends said I was wasting away with some slow disease, and I bade them good-bye. Then I heard of the wonderful Ferrozone. After three days it gave me an appetite. I gained strength and became cheerful. Under Ferrozone I improved steadily. I am well to-day. I weigh fifteen pounds heavier than ever before, and feel like a new man.
(Signed) "H. A. THURSTON."

AN IMPROVIDENT RACE.

Queer Ways of the Native Black of Australia.

For bearing hardship, such as thirst, hunger, long hours in the saddle, etc., the black has far less endurance than the white man. In fact, a black fellow is uncomfortable if he goes for any length of time without water. And yet nobody is more improvident than he. Give him two gallons of water, twenty pounds of flour and two or three sticks of tobacco and tell him that he will get no more for three sleeps—viz, three days—he will deliberately settle down and not be satisfied till he has finished the lot. I have known a civilized and clothed black fellow who was traveling with me sit down after dark and wash his clothes (a most unusual proceeding) when he had only three gallons of water and fifty hours' riding before he could get any more, and this with the thermometer registering 112 in the shade.

This is not a thing that occurs once or twice, but always. The black man will not look five minutes ahead, nor will experience teach him. A gamble on a small scale is dear to the heart of every black fellow, and it is a common occurrence for one of them to swap a brand new suit of blue dungaree for an old frayed white coat, thinking that he will be able to sell or deal the latter away and make a profit simply because it is white, an unusual color with them. But one good point these black men have. They never complain when they find they have made a bad bargain. This is possibly because they forget with whom they made the deal.—Australian Cor. London Standard.

THE WART HOG.

It Is One of the Most Grotesque Animals in Existence.

To the naturalist who closely studies animal life it sometimes appears as if nature had either deliberately set to work to form weird and curious creatures or else had been engaged in experiments, for there are birds and animals which might be accused of being made up of odds and ends.

One of the most grotesque animals in existence is the wart hog of Africa, called by the Boers the Vlaktevark pig of the plains.

It stands about thirty inches in height, has a huge disproportionate head, with eyes set very high up, and large protruding tusks. These are exactly opposite those of other pigs, the upper ones being much longer than those in the lower jaw and sometimes attaining a length of over twenty inches.

But the most unusual feature of this curious looking creature and the one from which it derives its name is the great wart just below each eye, a smaller one appearing between each tusk and the large wart above it.

The body is almost hairless, except that along the spine and the neck long coarse hair hangs, and the whole effect of the animal is weird and grotesque. These wild hogs often take possession of empty burrows made by other animals, and when pursued they slew around sharply as they enter, making their way in hind first.—London Telegraph.

Indian Cure For Cancer.

The Chinese and Japanese surgeons cure cancer with a common weed. A small cone made of the dried leaves is placed on the diseased part, which has been previously moistened, and is lighted at the top, when it burns down with a temperate, glowing heat and produces a dark spot, the exulceration of which is promoted by the application of a small quantity of garlic. The ulcer is kept open or healed as the indications of the case require.

Apropos of this oriental cure, the American Indians undoubtedly came from China, crossing Behring sea, swooping down through Alaska and the valley of the Columbia and scattering over this continent. They must have brought the Chinese heat cures along. A medicine man was asked to cure a paleface of cancer. He said: "Indian no cure cancer; Indian cure burn." He was told to go ahead and do his best, as the white man was failing fast. So with a redhot poker he burned out the sore wide and broad and deep, then applied his remedies of herbs, etc., and quickly healed the wound. The patient recovered.

Arbitration In the Antipodes.

An agreement was recently reached between the New South Wales Typographical association and the employing printers and publishers of Sydney through the mediation of the court of arbitration of New South Wales. The secretary of the Sydney union is authority for the statement that the award is working to the advantage of all composing room employes; that more more are employed and all receive a little more for fewer hours than formerly. All machine composition is on a piece basis. A clause was inserted in the scale at the request of the employers which provides for a slightly reduced wage for those men who from old age or other causes cannot do the work required of the younger and more active employes. The publishers did not wish to discharge their old employes, men who had grown old in their service, so in this manner sought to provide for their continued employment.

Horses Shod With Leather.

In certain districts of Australia horses are now reported to be shod with leather instead of iron, the feet thus receiving better support. This novelty is employed only in regions where the ground is permanently covered with grass or fine sand.

GALWAY PICNIC WAS A SUCCESS

Interesting Game of Ball—Fine List of Sports—A Good Time

OTHER INTERESTING ITEMS

Galway, July 10—The picnic on the first of July proved a great success, although the crowd was not as large as usual owing to the smallpox fever, which has now subsided. The great event of the day was the baseball game between the C.M.B.A. and the parish. The general opinion was that the parish would beat the C.M.B.A., and sure was the case for the first four innings, but from first to the end the C M B.A. proved better, having practised more for some time previous. The teams and score were as follows:

C.M.B.A.—		PARISH—
W. Dolan,	1	B Walton	2
J Allen	1	S Pearson	1
F Doherty	1	D Pearson	2
E Allen	2	E O'Neil	1
E Delaney	2	W Allen	0
R Doherty	1	P Collins	1
S Doherty	1	C Smith	3
W Coben	1	L Collins	1
R Allen	1	A Coben	0

C.M.B.A. 11, Parish 8.

Umpire—W. J. O'Leary, of Indian River.

The other sporting events were won as follows:

Children's race—John Sheehan.
Girls' race—Miss Pearson.
Tossing cabor—S. Doherty.
Throwing shot—Martin Byrne.
Throwing baseball—Robt. Allen.
High jump—L. Hickey.
Standing jump—S. Doherty.
100 yards—S. Doherty.
Walking race—S. Doherty.
Potato race—S. Doherty.

Mr. J J Allen has moved his sawmill from here to Cavendish to saw the timber on lots purchased from M. Collins.

Mr. M. Collins has returned from the West, where he had gone to see about land purchased two years ago.

The C.M.B.A. are to be complimented upon their beautiful hall. The painting within and without has added much to its appearance.

Miss Johanna Allen and Miss Fanny O'Leary visited Galway on July 1 and enjoyed themselves very much at the picnic. They have made many friends by their visit.

Miss Mary O'Leary of St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, and Miss Fanny O'Leary of St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, spent a week with friends here.

ANOTHER MILL BLAZE IN LINDSAY

Mr. Brumwell, Formerly of Bridgenorth, the Loser

Fire of unknown origin utterly destroyed the saw mill owned by Mr. George J. Brumwell, Lindsay, and formerly of Bridgenorth, immediately east of the Wellington street bridge early yesterday morning.

The prevalence of fires in Lindsay which have unknown origin, would indicate that an incendiary has been busy in the neighbourhood. In a recent fire an eye witness stated that a man had been seen by him running away from the fire, whose actions were extremely suspicious.

The fire gutted the building and caused damage to the extent of $5,000, on which there was $2,000 insurance. The proprietor, Mr. Brumwell, bought the mill for the figure at which he estimates the loss.

TIMELY TIPS

By Suburban Reporter

A strange coincidence—that Merry Widow sts should be in vogue during a leap year. However, there is still ample time for some of the merry widows to become merry brides.

It is a peculiar fact that woman with her peek-a-boo waist and other articles of filmy wearing apparel is allowed the exclusive privilege of using a fan during a church service, while mere man must be cooked for an hour without any attempt to get relief. Perhaps custom has something to do in this case. There is no guessing as to why so many people prefer the cool fresh air of the parks on a Sunday evening. There are baseball fans football fans and other fans, but the fan that will introduce the use of the fan by men in church will be heralded as a hero by the male portion, of the church-going community. "Woman's rights" in this respect must be set aside or the churches must be properly ventilated. No insinuation whatever, that churches are purposely allowed to be quite warm, so that the idea of a certain warm place, may be easily implanted.

Blow, breezes, blow!

The roadbed o the city streets is in fairly good condition with the exception of those unpleasant little pitch-hiegs at the sides of the crossings. Cyclists, motorists, and drivers of horses can all testify that these "jumps" strongly remind them of the country roads last winter. While the subject is in the ink, a few words with respect to the country roads in summer will not be amiss. While the present statute labour system exists there will never be good roads throughout the summer months, because the roadwork must be done at a certain season when the farmers have the time, between seeding and haying. Then earth, sand, or coarse stones are dumped along the highway with the purpose of improving the road. In a very few cases some real gravel or crushed stone is put on the graded road and some of the art of road-making brought into use. But at this time travel is tedious and tiresome and the main thorofares are being left by some who favour the side roads where less roadwork is done. An instance is the great and only Chemong road where the big motor 'bus runs daily trips. This and other cars are seen at times on the road parallel to and east of the main line, although this quiet quiet and shady lane is supposedly reserved for people with spirited horses. With a proper system of road-making and road-repairing the work could be done when and where required and one commissioner could oversee and manage the operations of an entire township. As it is, there are a number of pathmasters who are carrying out their own little ideas and also experimenting at the public expense.

Whew! Smell the gasoline.

THE ROMANCE GONE

'Twas long ago! The night was dreamy clear,
And dancers flitted 'neath the lights of love
Like glow-worms do! Why, listening I hear
Her protest as I snatched her dainty glove—
I hear her sweet demurrer and, alack,
Her fair appeal: "O please, sir give it back."

'Twas long ago! And I was foolish then,
And pleased to think some sentiment was rife
That prompted her to ask her glove again;
But now I see! She's since become my wife,
I foot her bills and find (that gloves, I swear,
Like that I snatched, cost 'leven bones a pair!

HOUSE PASSES PENSIONS.

Old-Age Bill Survives Third Reading In British Commons.

London, July 11.—The third reading of the old-age pension bill was passed in the House of Commons last night. By this measure every man and woman of seventy or over who is not in receipt of an annual income of over £21 shall receive from the Government a weekly pension of five shillings. Persons in receipt of relief under the poor law will not receive a pension. It was intended at first that when two or more persons in receipt of pensions resided in the same house, as, for instance, a man and his wife, the pension should be reduced to 3s. 9d. weekly, but at the earnest solicitation of the Labor members and many others the Government decided to abandon the reduced pension. It is estimated that the cost of this concession will be £300,000. The sliding scale introduced by Mr. Lloyd George provides that for every £2 12s. 6d. which a pension income is in excess of £21 yearly, the pension shall be reduced by one shilling weekly. The total cost of the pensions to the country will be about £8,000,000 annually. The bill met with very little opposition in the House of Commons, but, of course, it must yet run the gauntlet of the Lords.

PRINCE WELL GUARDED.

Twenty English Sleuths Arrive to Watch Over Him.

Quebec, July 11.—The civic and provincial authorities are exercising all necessary discretion for the protection of the crowds at the tercentenary. The police force will be trebled, while a small army of detectives will do duty, and lessons are already being taught those of thieving inclinations by the arrest of suspicious characters on the slightest provocation. In addition to American and Upper Canada sleuths, no fewer than twenty picked English detectives recently arrived in the city, some of whose duty it will be to keep close to the Prince of Wales.

Want the Georgian Bay Canal.

Ottawa, July 11.—A deputation 100 strong, from Fort William, Port Arthur, North Bay, Sault Ste. Marie, Mattawa and various towns of the Ottawa Valley waited on Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. Messrs. Scott and Pugsley yesterday morning to urge the prompt construction of the Georgian Bay Canal, and that an appropriation of ten millions be set aside by Parliament, so that the work on the new waterway might be started immediately.

The Premier said that the report of the survey had been in the hands of the Government only a week. The report, he said, would receive the prompt and full attention of the Government as soon as Parliament prorogued. Senator David presented a memorial of the Montreal city council in favor of the construction of the canal.

Lusitania Breaks All Record.

New York, July 11.—Breaking all previous records over the long-distance course across the Atlantic of 2,891 miles, the swift turbiner Lusitania arrived at Sandy Hook lightship yesterday at 2.11 a.m., the time of passage being 4 days 19 hours and 36 minutes.

The Lusitania left Daunt's Rock July 5, at 11.35 a.m., her average speed throughout the trip being 25.01 knots an hour, which eclipses her previous day's average of 24.88 for the trip. She is now the only 25-knot steamer. The Lusitania on this trip also distanced her sister ship's record, the Mauretania, by 39 minutes. New four-bladed propellers were used on the trip. The best day's run, July 7, was 643 knots, beating the previous record two knots.

Cobalt Fines Total $2,000.

Toronto, July 11.—Two thousand dollars was the rake-off by the License Department at Cobalt in connection with the recent raid on the "blind pigs" there. Rudo Saunders, chief license inspector, returned yesterday from the mining town, where 27 convictions had been obtained, resulting in $1,800 of fines and $200 costs.

Most of the "blind pigs" were in the rear of cigar stores and similar resorts.

Ottawa, July 11.—The Senate banking committee yesterday morning, upon motion of Hon. J. H. Kerr, by a vote of 9 to 8, decided to report to the Senate that it was not advisable to pass the co-operative bill, because it intruded on provincial rights.

The Minister of Justice gave an opinion that with the possible exception of the banking provisions the objects of the bill were within the legislative powers of the provinces.

SIMPSON BEGINS TO GO EARLY NOW

The Reason Why He Won the Marathon Trial Friday

London, July 13.—Fred Simpson's early speed last Friday in the Marathon trial was the result of Trainer Billy Sherring's hard work. Sherring won't let him load, but keeps him going all the time.

Harry Lawson was bothered with his feet, and did not do himself justice.

Eddie Cotter finished strong and undistressed in second place.

Jack Caffery of Hamilton and W H Wood, of Brantford didn't try their best yesterday, reserving themselves for the real race.

Fred Noseworthy of Montreal broke down yesterday.

MR. BAILEY WRITES TO CHIEF ROSZEL

Asks About Two Dollars Which He is Said to Have Quixotically Contributed

Chief Roszel has received another post card communication from Mr. W A Bailey. It is as follows:

Peterborough, July 8, 1908.

Sir,—I find you have been making a great fuss about last year's poll tax, perhaps you will be equally energetic in returning to me the two dollars one of your employees, Mr. F. Newhall, obtained from me towar is paying the fine of Mme. Ayres.

Yours obediently,
W. A. BAILEY.

Mr. F. Newhall is in no way connected with the police department, Mr. Bailey, Chief Roszel has learned was one of the first to subscribe to th fund to pay the fine and the Chief has therefore nothing to do with the matter.

THE RETURN OF AN OLD CITIZEN

Mr. J. G. A. Wallace, Brighton, Had Not Been Here for 36 Years

Among the visitors in the city today is Mr. J. G. A. Wallace of Brighton, who was a citizen of Peterborough 44 years ago. Speaking to the Examiner to-day Mr. Wallace stated that he was wonderfully surprised at the growth the city has made since his last visit here 36 years ago. He lived here for seven years and was engaged during that time in the lumber business with Geo. Hilliard, William Snider, and Samuel Dixon. At that time the corner of Hunter and George Streets was known as the four corners. Four townships—Otonabee, Douro, Smith and North Monaghan—met there.

When Mr. Wallace left Peterborough times were hard, and it looked as if Peterborough was going backwards instead of ahead. It was therefore somewhat of a surprise to him to see such a flourishing city completely changed since the times when he was here.

A MONSTER MASKINONGE CAUGHT

By Mrs. Robt. Neill Near Her Clear Lake Cottage

On Friday, July 10th, the largest lunge of the season was captured by Mrs. Robt. Neill, near their summer cottage, "Clear View," at the head of Clear Lake. The fish weighed 21 1-2 lbs., was 45 inches long and beautifully proportioned; it was exceptionally gamey for so large a fish, so that the combination of weight and activity made a task wherein a novice would have failed. Although only one hook had taken hold in its cavernous mouth, yet the skill was there which could keep the hook in it's place and though the struggle was long and fierce, the lunge surrendered and is now at E Elcome's the taxidermist; later, it will be exhibited at the store of Robt. Neill, George street.—Com.

and satisfied customers are our best advertisements. A perfect correction is often spoiled by ignorance in fitting or selecting the frame. Great care and exact calculation is necessary in taking facial measurements, that the eye may look exactly through the centre of the glasses. A careful study of styles with cosmetical effect enables one with special skill such as we possess to select a satisfactory frame that improves, rather than detracts from the personal appearance of the wearer. 8,000 Orangemen Take Part In Monster Procession To-Day

Biggest Crowd That Ever Assembled in Peterborough Here for the Celebration of the Glorious 12th—All Roads Led to Peterborough

SOME OF THE VISITORS

Right gloriously has the 218th anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne been celebrated in Peterborough today by the largest assemblage of Orangemen and their friends that ever gathered in this city. From early morning this has been heard the music of the fife and the blare of brass as the lodges came into the city. The Orange brethren swarmed into the city by every train, and it was not long before the streets were occupied by a surging mass of brightly arrayed humanity eager to join in the celebration. All the regular trains had extra cars and were crowded to the limit, Lakefield, Lindsay, Havelock, Campbellford, Norwood, Port Hope, Cobourg, Baltimore and many other places in the surrounding counties sent big quotas, and in several cases heavily crowded special trains were necessary to handle the Peterborough-bound crowds. The Stony Lake boats brought excursions from Apsley and Dummer, while on the Otonabee the steamers were crowded from Rice Lake and vicinity. The crowd was probably the largest ever seen here, and the resources of the hotels were severely taxed to provide accommodation for the enormous gathering of visitors.

The lodges as they arrived were met at the stations by the local brethren and escorted to Central Park, where they were dismissed for dinner. The result was an almost constant procession of Orangemen and the crowd had plenty to look at during the morning. The Port Hope, Cobourg, and Baltimore contingent, which arrived at 11.30, was probably the largest of the day, over a dozen lodges being in line, and the visitors, especially the Port Hope quota, in their white duck suits with orange sashes, made a most favourable impression.

This afternoon a monster procession was held, the largest array of Orange brethren ever seen on parade here. The pageant was started at Central Park, and the route was by George street to Hunter, Hunter to Aylmer, Aylmer to Charlotte, Charlotte to George, George to Hunter, Hunter to Water, Water to London, London to George, and thence to Central Park, where addresses were given by prominent members of the Order. The procession, which was headed by W H G Armstrong of Peterborough County Master and Grand Marshall, included the Orangemen from the counties of East Durham, West Durham, Hastings, Victoria, Northumberland, East and West Peterborough. It is conservatively estimated that the number of Orangemen in the parade totalled between eight and nine thousand. The streets were thronged with thousands of people as the parade passed, and the scene will long be remembered. Every lodge had a fife and drum band, while many of them were accompanied by brass bands, among them being the Sylvester Band of Lindsay, the Ideal Band of Port Hope, the 57th Regimental Band in several sections, and many others. The air was filled with Orange tunes which resounded from one end of the parade to the other, and were heard long after the procession was over.

A big crowd gathered in Central Park for the speeches, and the remarks of the orators were enthusiastically received. Some of the visitors took in the Lindsay-Peterborough ball game at Riverside Park, while others visited the walking match.

Willie Taylor Dives For A Gold Watch And Recovers It

The recovery of a gold watch from the bottom of the Otonabee River is the latest accomplishment of Willie Taylor, the youth who about 2 years ago suffered the loss of both legs. While fishing from the old dredge south of Hunter street bridge, on Saturday afternoon about 3.30, Mr. Geo. Hutchinson lost his watch from his pocket in about 9 feet of water. Several boys were near and they all made attempts to recover the piece of jewellry but without avail. Willie Taylor arrived accidently on the scene in a punt and his services were soon engaged by the owner of the time piece.

In a few minutes he was exploring the bottom of the Otonabee and by four o'clock had recovered the watch for Mr Hutchinson. It was valued at about $20.

Had Not Seen Celebration Of The 12th For Forty-Five Years

Among the visitors in the city to-day were Mr. W F Shaw, of Port Hope, and his brother, Mr. T E Shaw, of Armoor, Dakota. The former is a member of one of the lodges and his brother came up to see the Orange celebration. They have been separated 38 years, having met only a week ago. Mr. Shaw from Dakota has been absent from Canada 45 years. He said that in Dakota they have no Orange lodges and he wanted to see the demonstration.

TRIPPED ON A MAT IN HER HOME AND FRACTURED HIP IN THE FALL

Havelock, July 13.—(Special.)—Mrs. Davenport, aged 70, tripped on a mat in the home of her daughter, Mrs. F J Orres, Ottawa street, yesterday afternoon, and had the misfortune to sustain a fractured hip. The old lady suffered from rheumatism and had to use a cane in walking, but was feeling particularly well on Sunday and could go without it. It was in walking across the floor that she tripped, and her hip was broken in the fall. She was taken to the Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, this afternoon.

KNOX CHURCH CHOIR HAD ENJOYABLE TIME

The choir of Knox church had an enjoyable outing on Saturday afternoon at Pacey Plains on the Otonabee, near Hale's Bridge. Allen's yacht, the "Teaisie" had been engaged and had about 30 in the party. A feature of the trip was the luncheon which was served.

Mr. Furlong Has Excellent Connections in the Old Country

An Examiner reporter in conversation with Mr. Howard, the local immigration agent, regarding Mr. W G Furlong, who was arrested a few days ago on suspicion of being the man with the evil eye in the Etta Kennedy case, but who was allowed to go free, learned that he had the very best of references. In fairness to Mr. Furlong, who is now engaged with an Otonabee farmer, it is learned that his recommendations are from clergymen and others in the Old Country and are most substantial. Mr. Furlong was a journalist, and previously a school teacher in England, but on the death of his wife he decided to come to Canada to learn farming.

A BIG WALKING MATCH TO-NIGHT

Stacey Meets Five Peterborough Men at Rink in Relay Match

There promises to be a big crowd at Brock street rink to-night when Jem Stacey, the crack Toronto ped., will stack up against five local walkers in a relay race of 20 miles, he to walk the entire distance, while the five will divide it into five relays of four miles each. Stacey is in good shape and confident of beating his adversaries, despite the handicap put upon him. An exciting evening's sport should result.

THE ALL RED PROJECT.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

The House of Commons and the people of Canada are to be congratulated upon the result of yesterday's debate in the House of Commons upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier's resolution endorsing the "All-Red" line of inter-communication between Great Britain and Australia via Canada.

It would have been regrettable, as well as remarkable, if the Parliament led by the man who brought the proposal before th Imperial Conference had accepted the counter proposal put forward by Mr. R L Borden, which, in effect, declared that the time was not opportune for the consideration and promotion of this great Imperial idea.

Of course there never was any danger of that eventuality; but the mere fact that the Conservative party placed itself on record, first, for a policy of delay and dilly-dally; and, secondly, in opposition to the whole project, will prove to our kinsmen across both the Atlantic and the Pacific that the policy of obstruction of the Canadian opposition is not confined to blocking of the Canadian estimates.

It was pitiful to see a party which, not so very long ago, prided itself upon being the "truly loyal" party in Canada, so dwarfed by mere partisan prejudice that, even in a matter of this Imperial importance, it could not adopt a patriotic stand and allow the world to witness the spectacle of a united and unanimous House of Commons in support of this proposal, which has fired the imagination of Britishers the wide world over.

Could any one imagine the Conservative party under Macdonald, Thompson, Bowell, or even Tupper, adopting such an attitude? Why, the very idea is enough to make the older members of the party rub their eyes and wonder where "they are at."

It was well that the resolution should be adopted by the record Liberal majority of 62. The people of the other colonies and of the motherland will know that the hearts of the great majority of the people of Canada, no matter whether English or French-speaking beat in unison in this matter, and that once having committed themselves through their ling the world with an all-British girdle they will see to its completion as soon as conditions shall permit.

EXTENDING THE BOUNDARIES.

(Montreal Herald.)

Instead of proceeding by means of a bill, which would occupi a good deal of the time of Parliament, and probably precipitate an aprimonious controversy, Sir Wilfrid Laurier has chosen to start the subject of extension of the boundaries of Manitoba, and Ontario with a resolution of Parliament. This treats also of the ownership of Dominion lands, but postpones consideration of other details to another session, and possibly to another Parliament. This latter will depend almost altogether upon the attitude of the Manitoba and Ontario Legislatures, for one or the other, or both, may object to the particular partition of territory indicated by the resolution, and in that case the whole project may have to be postponed.

Manitoba, it we may judge by what Mr. Roblin has already said, is disposed to hold out for the whole of the territory east of her present boundary and reaching to Hudson Bay and the Ontario boundary. He holds that Ontario is not upon any showing entitled to more than was accorded her by the famous boundary award which followed the long legal and political battle between Sir Oliver Mowat and Sir John Macdonald. Ontario on the other hand, strongly objects to being shut out from the deep-water shore line of Hudson Bay, and confined to the shallower waters of James Bay, and has hitherto demanded that it the harbour at Churchill is given to Manitoba the harbour at York shall be given to Ontario. By the terms of the resolution both York and Churchill are to go to Manitoba, but Ontario is to advance up the coast of Hudson Bay as far as the eighty-ninth meridian line. It there is place for a port on the shore line thus included, not much has been said about it yet. It will be seen, therefore, that if, with a desire to make trouble for the Liberal Government at Ottawa, or for any better reason, Mr. Roblin should commit the Manitoba Legislature to a refusal of the terms offered as to extension of territory or as to the control of lands, he has it in his power to put off the settlement. Mr. Whitney could do the same. It is probably as well that these two possible trouble makers are of one party in politics, for whatever they may be tempted to do from motives of partisan advantage will work injury to one or other, and so to the Federal friends of both.

As to Quebec it looks as though Gouin was to see the immediate realization of the second of his great projects. When he got the Dominion subsidy increase, much more quickly than anyone believed he would, he declared for the rounding out of Quebec by the annexation of Ungava. Now Ungava is to be annexed. He is very fortunate with his big projects.

Irish-Canadians will please note that it has remained for a Liberal Government to propose to honour the memory of Thomas D'Arcy McGee.

THE PROGRAMME AT QUEBEC

Landing of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales—Rehearsals of Various Scenes

WREATH FOR WOLFE STATUE

Quebec, July 10.— (Special.)— The offficial landing of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, will take place at four o'clock in the afternoon of Wednesday, 22nd July, after His Royal Highness will have received the Governor-General and other distinguished callers whose names are to be published later.

The Prince will sail at daylight on Wednesday, the 29th instant, taking leave on the previous night.

H.R.H. has graciously announced his intention of placing a wreath upon the Wolfe statue and one upon the monument "Aux Braves," on Friday, the 24th July, day of dedication of Battlefields, after the review.

The Pageants

Each evening the ample theatre which is fast approaching completion, on the Plains of Abraham, is the scene of increasing animation. Ladies and Gentlemen to whom have been assigned the portrayal of the more important historic personages, as well as those who will figure in roles, which, while less prominent, are equally essential, are to be seen grouped about the green sward discussing enthusiastically the scenes in which they are interested. The interest of the public generally in this important feature of the celebration is also becoming more manifest. This fact is emphasized by the attendance at the rehearsals, which is increasing nightly.

The "Dollard Scene" was scheduled for rehearsal at 6.30 o'clock last evening, but as the hour approached seven o'clock and certain of the principals had not presented themselves, the rehearsal had unfortunately, again to be put over.

The "Champlain Scene" was the first to be proceeded with, but in that scene also the absence of the ladies occasioned some disappointment, otherwise the results were satisfactory.

The initial rehearsal of the "Jacques Cartier Scene" was the evening finale. This scene was gone through with in its entirety and the cast exhibited a keen perception of their roles.

Numerous arc lamps have been placed in position on the ground, and for the future, no delay will be experienced through lack of light.

EAT WHAT YOU WANT

But Find the Way to Digest What You Do Eat.

The first thing to do in the case of indigestion or stomach weakness is to strengthen the muscular walls of the stomach and intestines, so that they will care for the food that is eaten. In no other way can this be done as well as by taking a Mi-o-na tablet before each meal. This restores strength to the stomach muscles and stimulates the pouring out of gastric juices, then the food digests readily and you begin to get the full benefit from what you eat.

Use Mi-o-na whenever you have sick headache, heartburn, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, spots before the eyes, sleeplessness and the many other symptoms that are the direct result of indigestion.

Wm. Madill gives with every 50 cent box of Mi-o-na a guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy cures.

SCHNITZ UND KLASE.

Treat the Gods Missed, but Procurable in the Mohawk Valley.

Something in the line of good things to eat the gods never had; consequently the gods missed a great treat. And, by the way, friend, have you ever hooked up to a dish of schnitz und klase?

No? Thought so. Few have in these times, and those who have been so fortunate have just cause to recall a delicious morsel time can never erase from the tablets of memory.

You can order schnitz und klase until you faint, famished, awaiting it. You will never get it in any public eating place. It isn't on the bill of fare and never will be.

The up to date chef would give you the laugh if you asked him to concoct it for you. Ten chances to one he'd not understand what schnitz und klase could possibly mean. Few know, but those who do know it know it well.

A good big ham bone is the central portion, light dumplings and dried apples. Anything else would spoil it.

The ham bone gives the dish a smoky flavor, the dumplings give it body, and the dried apples give it color and tartness as well as sauce.

Put the ham bone in cold water and open the flues and let the pot boil While the pot is getting into good and ready shape make your dumplings, and make them as light as possible.

Put the dried apples in a separate dish and stew them down to a nicety. When the pot with the ham bone bubbles and froths drop in the dumplings one by one. No; you do not stir the contents of the pot. That would spoil the consistency of the dumplings and make a mess.

Any one who has watched a pot boil knows when dumplings are done to a jot.

Take a deep platter, fish out the dumplings carefully with a drain spoon and place them about the ham bone in the center of the platter. Looks dry, but when you pour over all the dried apples and their nice sauce—wow!

That's schnitz und klase as you may have had it years ago when living with a German family in the Mohawk valley. You can eat it until your eyes start out and your waistband grips your middle. It will stay by you through a hard day's work, and if there is any left over you hit it again for supper cold.

Ever try it?

ONLY A GUESS.

But It Made Good Advance Information For the Reporter.

Nelis Olsen, who was for forty years a trusted employee of the New York Yacht club, was always courteous to newspaper men and glad to give them such information as he could with propriety make public. He was sorely beset by news gatherers while the Dunraven trial was going on, and often said to the reporters, with a smile, that he regretted his "ignorance." On the evening of Feb. 27, 1890, when the members of the club met at the old clubhouse in Madison avenue, there was much quiet excitement because it was well known that the question of Dunraven's expulsion would come up An enterprising reporter stopped Olsen as he came through the door and asked:

"Do you think they'll expel his lordship?"

Olsen said, "How do I know?" and then added, "Did you ever read this?" and handed to the young man a clipping from the Tribune which read:

For Dunraven, never tumbling, still is grumbling, still is mumbling,
In his lordly ancient castles over on the distant shore.
And his talks have all the seeming of a daft and jealous seaman,
And the X rays through him streaming show he's unfair at the core,
And because the Yacht club knows him—knows he's unfair at the core—
He will race here—nevermore.

Half an hour later the meeting was called to order, and within twenty minutes a resolution was adopted stripping Dunraven of his honorary membership privileges. When the reporter saw Olsen he said, "That was good advance information," to which he replied, "I never give information; that was a guess."

Only the Odd Ones.

Very few of the American tourists who come to England fail to visit Westminster abbey. The long history of the venerable pile appeals strongly to our visitors from the other side of the Atlantic. One lady student while within the abbey looked about with the particular object of inspecting the tomb of King Edward II. Failing to discover it after patient search, she at last asked the verger to direct her to it. "I'm sorry, madam," replied the officer, with a tone of deep regret, "but we 'aven't Edward II. here, as we only 'ave the odd numbers."—London Express.

Making a Show.

"A man has to draw it fine these days."

"What do you mean?"

"Staying ten minutes after office hours each day will probably make a good impression, but staying fifteen is liable to excite suspicion that you are monkeying with your books."

Cynical.

The Maid—Do you believe it's unlucky to get married on a Friday? The Abominable Bachelor—Certainly. Why should Friday be an exception?

The Denial Habit.

"Do you take this woman to be your lawful wedded wife?"

"No, sir; there's no truth in the rumor—that is to say, I do."—Pittsburg Post.

Punishment.

"Pop!"

"Yes, my son."

"Did mamma ever punish you?"

"Well, she married me, my boy."—Yonkers Statesman.

A COOL GUN FIGHTER.

Shot His Man and Then Leisurely Proceeded to Sip a Cocktail.

"When I went to Tombstone, Ariz., in 1880 to practice law, there were many desperate characters in that community," said Hon. Marcus A. Smith, who has been delegate in congress from that territory for the biggest part of the past twenty-two years.

"At one time I could have mentioned by name no fewer than thirty-five men who stood in the front rank of 'killers.' With one exception, I believe there was not one of the entire crowd who did not die with his boots on, slain by a bullet from a Colt navy six or a Winchester, in the same fashion he had himself meted out death to many of his fellows.

"It was the inexorable hand of fate that these semicivilized beings should get their quietus by violence. Yet some of them were as gentle in their ways as the veriest dude who strolls mincingly along Pennsylvania avenue and apparently as harmless. I recall a fair skinned, blue eyed young fellow—all your killers have blue eyes—named Harry Leslie. He was a Georgia boy and evidently the child of decent, well bred people.

"One day while in the act of taking a drink in a saloon in Tombstone some one whispered in his ear that an enemy was waiting just outside with a Winchester and swearing to kill him the moment he emerged from the barroom. Putting down his untouched liquor, Leslie walked to the door, whipped out his revolver and sent a bullet crashing into the brain of the intending murderer, who never even got his rifle presented. It was the most quickly acted drama I ever saw. As soon as he watched his man fall prone to the earth Leslie walked back as cool as if it were the most trifling detail of life and leisurely sipped his cocktail.

"I was his lawyer when he was put to trial for his life, and the jury acquitted him after being out only a few minutes."—Baltimore American.

Too Big For the Booth.

Diners in a Broadway restaurant the other night were amused when a young lady wearing an enormous white straw hat trimmed with flaring red wings walked up to the telephone booth in the corner and started to enter. She evidently had forgotten she was wearing her "Merry Widow," for she fetched up against the sides of the door with a bang, her hat failing to clear the opening by a good three inches on either side. However, the young lady was equal to the emergency. She calmly grasped the brim of her hat with both hands, tilted it to one side and glided through the door like a sailboat going through a drawbridge. Up to this time there had been smiles and grins, but when the young lady tried to draw the door to and found that it would not shut at all with her hat inside the room broke into a roar of laughter that shook up even the most imperturbable waiter.—New York Press.

A Book She Wouldn't Read.

"There is one book of Mr. Stevenson's that I myself have never read," said Mrs. Stevenson once. "I refused to read it and held to my refusal. I make it a rule never to read a novel the scene of which is laid in a bygone age. The author always deems it his duty to make his characters talk in what he considers the language of that period, and I am always sure that he doesn't know positively how they did talk, so I won't read such books. I would never read the 'Black Arrow,' and Mr. Stevenson thought it such a good joke that he insisted upon dedicating it to me."

Her Goodness.

Bridey—My wife is a very good cook. Wise—Get out! Her mother told me she was just taking her first lessons when you married her. Bridey—Exactly. She was good enough not to continue her lessons on me.

Mixed.

Mrs. Browne—She's forever complaining, but I think she merely lacks stamina. Mrs. Malaprop—Oh, no; she's got it; at any rate, that's what the doctor calls her disease. She can't sleep, you know.—Exchange.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" CAN BE HAD IN 25c. TRIAL SIZE

AS WELL AS IN REGULAR 50c. BOXES.

Everybody Can Afford To Give These Wonderful Tablets a Trial at Least And Prove Their Value.

"Fruit-a-tives" or "Fruit Liver Tablets," the wonderful medicine made from the juices of ripe fruits, have scored a remarkable success. The demand for them has grown in four years till it now extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Druggists at first bought them in lots of one dozen boxes—to retail for $6.00. Now it is no uncommon thing to receive orders from wholesalers for 100 gross lots (14,400 boxes)—to retail for $7,200.

There is only one reason for this great success—they cure sick people.

But still there are homes where "Fruit-a-tives" have not been tried—homes where they still suffer from Constipation, Biliousness, Kidney Trouble, Skin Diseases, Neuralgia, Rheumatism and kindred painful and weakening ailments — often because they have not cared to risk 50c. to try "Fruit-a-tives" when other medicines—supposed to cure —. could be had for 25c.

This last objection to trying "Fruit-a-tives" has now been overcome. We have put out a new trial size to retail at 25c. The price no longer stands in the way. Get a trial box and see for yourself that "Fruit-a-tives" will help you.

If your dealer has not the 25c. trial size, let us know. Give us your name and address and we will send you a booklet—free — containing valuable recipes and stories of what "Fruit-a-tives" have done. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

Canadians Arrested as Part of Big Detroit Counterfeiting Operations.

Windsor, July 13.—One of the biggest, best organized and most successful counterfeiting gangs that ever operated anywhere in the United States or Canada has been located in Detroit by the Federal secret service agents, and they have reason to be confident that within less than a week they will have at least five or six of the ringleaders of the gang safely landed behind the bars.

According to positive information obtained by the officers, the gang was composed of no less than 17 members, three or four of whom were engaged at different times in making the counterfeits, and the others in passing it. The gang has been operating for months and on a large scale, and thousands upon thousands of dollars of spurious coin have been floated.

The beginning of the unearthing of the gang was made when Fred Paquette, formerly of Amherstburg, Ont., and Fred Morneau of Windsor, were arrested recently. Paquette, who has served sentences in two other states for counterfeiting, was the leader of the gang, and made the dies and moulds.

Both have been indicted by the grand jury and Morneau has pleaded guilty to passing spurious coins.

Saved From Drowning.

St. Catharines, July 13.—Edward Begy and James Donnelly Sunday saved Frank O'Brien from a watery grave in the Welland Canal. As the yacht Navajo, on which O'Brien was employed, was entering Lock 8 in the new canal, O'Brien made a jump for the shore. Miscalculating the distance he fell against the stonework of the lock and slipped into almost 30 feet of water.

Donnelly called to Begy and together they threw out grappling irons. The first throw brought the body to the surface. After O'Brien had been ten minutes under water resuscitation methods were employed for fully ten minutes, when O'Brien began to revive. Before proceeding up the canal, J. W. Sherman, owner of the yacht, left $200 to cover all expenses for O'Brien's care.

Woman Was Murdered.

Troy, N.Y., July 13.—What was evidently a deliberate murder and an attempt to conceal the identity of the victim was developed on Saturday in finding the body of a young woman in a pond a few miles east of this city. The body had apparently been in the water at least a week.

The woman's skull was fractured and the coroner holds that death was due to concussion of the brain. The only clue to the crime is the fact that an automobile was seen to pass a road house in the vicinity on the morning of the 4th and proceed in the direction of the pond, returning in about the time it would take to make the trip.

It came back rapidly and took a roundabout road toward Albany.

Fireman Fight Maniac.

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 13.—Battling for their lives as well as for the safety of the occupants of a tenement house on Clay street, the members of engine company No. 7 had a terrific struggle with a demented man early Saturday. When they arrived at the burning building the firemen found a fire raging in two lower rooms, and in the midst of the flames was a demented man, armed with shears, defying them to enter. The firemen at first resorted to water as a weapon, but were finally compelled to knock him down with an axe handle before they could enter the rooms. The fire was then put out.

Launch Explodes; Four Die.

Marion, Mass., July 13.—Four prominent summer residents of this town and Falmouth met death through an explosion on board a 45-foot launch off here Saturday night. Two survivors were picked up yesterday, after having been in the water for 12 hours. The dead are: Roland Worthington, Boston; John T. Trull, Woburn; Joseph S. Beal, Milton; George Savory, Marblehead, captain of the launch.

The saved are: A. P. Tarbell, Marblehead; Edward Tucker, Boston.

Future of the West.

Woodbridge, Ont., July 13.—A public meeting will be held in the Orange Hall, Woodbridge, on Tuesday evening, July 14, and will be addressed by A. J. Robertson, M.P.P., High River, Alberta, and leader of the Opposition in the Alberta Legislature, on the future of the great Canadian west.

Revolutionists Condemned.

El Paso, Texas, July 13.—A code message to The Herald, which escaped the Mexican censor, says that 20 revolutionists who had been condemned to die, was removed yesterday from Casa Grandes to Chihuahua, where they were executed in the state prison later.

Will Contest Federal Seat.

Victoria, B. C., July 13.—Frank Sheppard of Nanaimo was nominated at the Conservative convention at Ladysmith Saturday to contest the Federal constituency of Nanaimo against Ralph Smith, Liberal, and J. H. Hawthornewaite, Socialist, at the next Dominion election.

Did They Violate Treaty?

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, July 13.—The Government of Honduras yesterday instituted suit before the Central American court of justice, which was formally opened at Cartago, Costa Rica, on May 25 of this year, against the Governments of Salvador and Guatemala, charging violation of the treaties signed by the states of Central America at Washington last winter, in that the Governments specified have promoted the revolution now under way within the republic.

Boy Is Drowned.

Ottawa, July 13.—Charles Laporte of the quarries, three miles from here, was drowned Saturday night. He was 14 years old. When taken from the water he was alive, but he was too far gone for resuscitation. Coroner Baptie will investigate to-day.

Etna In Active Eruption.

Rome, July 13.—Mount Etna is again in active eruption, and lava is flowing down its sides. There were earthquake shocks yesterday.

Prince Starts For Canada.

London, July 13.—Excepting the Victory's salutes the departure of the Prince of Wales from Portsmouth on Wednesday will be unmarked by any ceremonies. The Indomitable starts at noon.

Sir F. Hopwood Dudley, Governor-General of Australia, will accompany the prince.

The British fund for the Wolfe-Montcalm memorial now amounts to £10,000.

Prince Going to Washington.

Buffalo, N.Y., July 13.—Among the quota of celebrated secret service men and detectives from all parts of the United States and Canada who will form a personal bodyguard for the Prince of Wales on his visit to the tercentennial celebration in the city of Quebec, Canada, will be Detective Sergeant Thomas O'Grady of the Buffalo detective bureau.

O'Grady will leave Buffalo Monday and will accompany the Prince of Wales on the official visit to Washington, if the present plans for the itinerary of the visitor are followed.

Canal Is Open.

Cornwall, July 13.—The Cornwall Canal was opened all day yesterday, and nearly all of the waiting crafts have been sent on their way with the least possible delay.

HARD TIMES ARE OVER.

Trade Is Now on the Increase In All Industrial Centres.

New York, July 13.—The World says: Telegraphic reports received on Saturday night by The World from all of the business, industrial and agricultural centres indicate a slow but steady improvement in all lines, unless it be in the building trades. Crops everywhere are reported as being more than unusually bountiful. There is a marked decrease in the number of unemployed men in nearly all parts of the United States. Freight traffic, while only in a few instances normal, is shown to be nearing that desired point. The number of empty cars in storage is fast decreasing.

In the south the improvement is not great, but it is steady. In the east conditions could be much better, so far as the laboring class is concerned. In the west the outlook is most hopeful. In the northwest there are few, if any, idle, comparatively speaking.

Pity the Millionaire.

New York, July 13.—"In my opinion it is really harder for persons who have had an income of, say, $250,000, to come down to life on a $50,000-a-year basis than for a man who has been earning $15 a week to accustom himself to living on $10 a week."

Stuyvesant Fish said this on Saturday as he was boarding a liner for Europe. He believes that the relative suffering is greater in the case of the rich man. Then Mr. Fish, who is accompanied by Mrs. Fish on an automobile trip of the continent, continued: "The railroads this year will show big gross earnings, but the net profits will be small, this being due to the excessive wages demanded by labor. There are signs of splendid crops, but the farmers will get most of the profits."

March Against Indians.

Flagstaff, Ariz., July 13.—Five more troops of the Fifth United States cavalry were ordered to be sent to the Navajo Indian reservation under Col. Hunter, who will go north to the Chin Lee country.

Various rumors are prevalent as to what their purpose is, but it is no pleasure trip, as is indicated by the fact that a battery of gatling guns and forage for a two months' campaign is being taken. The Indians are reported heavily armed and excited over the proposed allotments of water holes and are apparently on the verge of an uprising.

It is thought that a display of armed force is to be made to prevent an outbreak.

Millionaire Fined For Whipping.

Chicago, July 3.—Samuel O. Kimberly, a nephew and heir of Peter L. Kimberly, who died a few years ago, leaving an estate valued at $10,000,000, was fined $50 in the Hyde Park Police Court, after he had pleaded guilty to horse-whipping his 10-year-old son.

Kimberly was arrested at the instance of the boy's mother, who told the court that her husband had been living in idleness since he received a legacy of $300,000 from the estate of his uncle.

Kimberly said the boy deserved the punishment, but the court decided that the chastisement had been too severe.

New Bill of Lading.

Washington, July 13.—A new uniform bill of lading, designed as a substitute for the bills now in use for the movement of miscellaneous freight and general merchandise, was Saturday approved and its adoption recommended to the common carriers of the country and the shipping public by the inter-state commerce commission.

It provides two forms, printed on the face side in different colors, one for "straight" and one for "order" consignments. The "order" bill will possess a certain degree of negotiability, while the "straight" bill will be non-negotiable.

Cobalt Fire.

Cobalt, July 13.—Fire destroyed the power-house at the Silver Queen at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. The building was a complete loss, but the plant can be repaired. Three eighty horse-power boilers, the new twelve drill compressor, engine and dynamo can be repaired, but mining operations will be greatly hampered for the next few weeks.

The origin of the fire is unknown. The Cobalt fire engine prevented fire spreading to the other buildings.

Fought Under Six Flags.

A remarkable soldier has just died at Budapest in the person of General Stephen Turr, one of the bravest revolutionary generals that ever lived. He commenced his military career as a lieutenant in the Austrian army. Then he fought for the Hungarian revolutionary government, helped to quell a German revolution and joined Garibaldi in his great struggle. On the outbreak of the Crimean war he served as a volunteer in Omar Pasha's army against Russia and finally received a commission in the British transport service. It was while buying horses for the British army at Budapest in 1855 that the general was seized by the Austrians as a deserter and sentenced to death. But both the British and French governments made such emphatic protests against this sentence that it was commuted to banishment. Finally the old soldier settled down in Paris.

Memphis on the Nile.

Memphis on the Nile, one of the greatest capitals of the ancient world, is buried beneath the ground which is now under cultivation by the villagers of Mitrahineh, who will have to be transferred to other plots and compensated before the contemplated work of excavation can proceed very far. It is estimated that an expenditure of about $15,000 annually for fifteen years will be required to excavate the temple sites, apart from the city. The unearthing of Memphis, which contained the finest school of Egyptian art, will be by far the greatest archaeological work of recent times and must result in a vast addition to the world's knowledge of ancient Egyptian history and civilization. The work will soon be begun by Professor Petrie, head of the British School of Archaeology in Egypt.

A Lazy Boy's Invention.

The long handled shovel has made over $300,000 for its inventor, and the inventor was a lazy, shiftless boy of seventeen named Reuben Davis, whose father lived in Vermont at the time. He set Reuben to digging dirt and loading it on a wagon, and the short, handled shovel made the boy's back ache. One afternoon when his father was away he took out the short handle and substituted a long one and found the work much easier.

When the father returned home Reuben got a thrashing, but after the old man had used the shovel himself he said that it was a good thing and got it patented. They are now manufactured almost by the million. That boy's backache turned out to be a good thing for the Davis family.

Quaker Oats Employees Held Their Sixth Annual Outing

Between 400 and 500 Took a Delightful Trip to Cobourg ---Spent a Pleasant Day in the Pretty Lake Ontario Town

The Quaker Oats employees and their friends enjoyed their sixth annual outing on Saturday at the picturesque old lake town of Cobourg for the second time. The pleasant remembrances of the happy summer outing which they had enjoyed there three years ago made Cobourg a favourite in the running for a place for their sixth annual event. The popularity of the outings held under the auspices of our big city cereal industry in the past has spread, and it was felt that to attend one there was a guarantee of a good jolly day, which the events on Saturday proved. This is the "growing time" for Quaker Oats, and from nearly every part of the Dominion comes the cheering story of the bright prospects and the abundant success that are crowning the efforts of the toilers who are building up our country's material greatness. We are going to have another good year. All the avenues of transportation are humming with preparations for the grain harvest. Factory and shop are getting ready to meet the increased demands that come to them, and Quaker Oats factories and mills are likely soon to be running all night as well as all day.

And this was the justification for one big day's combined outing by the employees of all the different departments before the stress and strain of the busy days coming.

With the "smile that won't come off," between four and five hundred excursionists boarded the train which left the Grand Trunk station at 9 10 Saturday morning. Married men with their wives and families, dapper single young men and bevies of single girls, mingled in the party. Conspicuous with their filmy summer sunshine skirts and short-sleeve waists were the spry, coy bunches of sweethearts with their sweet-williams.

"A raven curl—a brown-eyed girl,
A form of sweet, enchanting grace;
Imperious mien—a very queer,
Withal a roguish, smiling face."

These all combined to make a splendid representation of the busy working life inside the many-storied walls of the American Cereal Company's big factories and mills.

It only took fifty minutes to reach Port Hope, the excursion train with the right of way for that hour, spun along at a lively clip without pulling up at a single station. Arriving at Cobourg the train was, very thoughtfully, run down past the station to King street. This proved a great convenience by shortening the walk to the park, especially of those carrying lunch baskets, etc. The park which runs down to the shore of Lake Ontario, is lapped by the big blue waves which come rolling in, and is fanned by the cool breeze off the lake. Here, under the bright, clear, blue sky, with the song of happy birds among the trees and the noise of the dancing waters, the excursionists rested. Men and women, who had turned their faces from the thronged city and the busy factory for a day, forgot their labours, and let their hearts glow under the touch of nature.

After dinner, an exciting afternoon's programme of sports and games was run off as follows:

Committee of Management

The representative committee to whom were entrusted the arrangements for the day's programme did their work in a very satisfactory manner. To their efforts the splendid success of the outing was largely due. The cool, suave secretary, Mr J E Sullivan, who was the most active of the bunch, discharged his duties with a "brain and brawn" characteristic of the Quaker Oats. He was well assisted by Messrs M J Kirn, J B Edwards, O C Callender, Geo Carruthers and others. The following is a complete list of the names of the executive—

Chairman—Mr W H Denham.

Judges of games and sports—Mr T H G Deane, Geo Carruthers, A Miller, J Kirn, W J Copp and E Pukenham.

Committee on Arrangements—Mr Glean, comfortable condition. The lake and the sandy beach had a great attraction for the younger portion of the party and boating and bathing were enjoyed to the full.

A stranger coming into the town is impressed by the large number of Americans present at this season of the year, and whose headquarters appear to be chiefly at the Arlington and Columbia Hotels. Many tourists are summering here, and one of their chief pleasures is automobiling.

The Cobourg Golf links are in excellent shape and are being well patronized. A ladies' bowling club is also growing popular.

Among popular Toronto folks who registered here during the week are Mr John Dick, Miss Dick and Mr D. Dick.

Mrs. Daniel Manning, wife of the U S Secretary of the Treasury during the late President Cleveland's Administration, has taken apartments at the Arlington for the summer. Mrs. Mrs. G B Edwards, M J Kirn, Geo Carruthers, O C Callender, A Miller W Walsh, J E Sullivan, E Pukenham J Taylor, T J Grant.

Games and Sports—W E Perdue, J E Sullivan.

Basket Committee—Messrs C Gould M Serro, T Dineen.

The prizes for the different events were all good and were distributed to the lucky ones on the grounds.

Quaker Oats Gramiwations

The Citizens of Cobourg are quite hospital and the park accommodation which they afford is deserving of praise. Great pains was taken to show their appreciation of their visitors by having hot water ready and the tables and seats in the park in a Manning was the lady commissioner from the State of New York to the Paris Exposition, and was president of the Board of Lady managers of the Paris Exposition. She had the unique honour conferred upon him of Chevalier of the Legion of Honour of France.

Rev Mr. Shortly, who is stationed in Cobourg, visited the grounds during the day and spent some time fraternizing with his Peterborough friends. Both he and his family are well. Mr. Shortly goes to the coast in September as a member of the Methodist Board.

Mrs. Arguenea Rachael Kingdon, formerly of Peterborough, who has been residing in Cobourg, with her husband, who works in the car shops, and her friend Miss Thurston, of this city, were also in the grand renewing old acquaintances.

Crops are good—Oats are ripening—the "Banner" and "Saxon" brands have promise of a fine yield, and—What's the matter with the Quaker Oats employees—they're all right.

BIGGEST RUSH OF SEASON TO STONY LAKE ON SATURDAY; MANY VISITORS TO THE RESORT

Stony Lake, July 13th, 1908.

Saturday proved to be the heaviest passenger day of the season for the steamers, the three up-boats and especially that of the evening being well patronized by tourists, cottagers and weary weekenders.

The first service of the season was held Sunday morning, at the pavilion, and was attended by cottagers from all sections of the lake. The excellent service conducted by the Rev. Rural Dean Langfeldt of St. Luke's Church, Peterborough, was much enjoyed and appreciated.

The fishing continues good, especially trolling. Mrs. Carey and Miss Evelyn Carey on Friday evening landed a fine lunge which weighed over seven pounds.

Messrs. Harry Anderson and S. Park, who are guests at Victoria House, did a lively "stunt" on Saturday. Arriving on the afternoon boat about four o'clock they went to the hotel where they "Shot the duds," jumped into ducks and jerseys, paddled out on the lake and were back in a short time with a fine specimen of Maskalunge. Ask Harry, he knows where the big 'uns roost.

The work on the extensive improvements being carried on, under the management of the Cottager's Association, is progressing rapidly. Already the grounds have taken a parklike appearance, and although the work of clearing and underbrushing was no small undertaking a considerable section will be accessible shortly. A handsome flagpole has been purchased and will be erected on the point of the Island.

An Englishman who is employed by the Cottagers' Association flipped-the-flap from a canoe about midway between "Inglestane" and Juniper Island on Thursday afternoon. Several parties saw the accident and went to the assistance of the unfortunate young man who was none the worse for the "ducking."

Mr. E. Hutchinson, Peterborough, took the round trip on the "Water Lily" on Thursday.

Mr. J. Griffin and the Misses Griffin, Lakefield, came up to the cottage "Eagle's Nest" on Wednesday.

Mr. Chas. Plant, Hastings, is spending a few days at "Mount Royal."

Mr. J. A. Brown, Lindsay, came down on Saturday to spend a few days at Brown's Landing, Dummer Shore.

Dr. Middleton, Peterborough, who has been spending a week at Bobcaygeon and Pigeon Lake went down to the city Saturday afternoon.

Misses Gladys and Eleanor Seward, Peterborough, came up Saturday morning. Mrs. Seward and Miss Seward joined the party in the evening near Burleigh where they have taken a cottage for a week.

Mr. Levi Payne, Lakefield, came up to his cottage on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Govinlock and Mr. Paul Stanley, Toronto, came up on Saturday to spend a few days at "Edithena."

Mr. John Freeman, proprietor of the Victoria House, was down to Lakefield on Saturday.

Mrs. (Dr.) Bell, who has been spending a week at Peterborough, returned to her cottage Saturday.

Hon. J. R. Stratton joined Mrs. Stratton and party at "Strathormond-on-the-Lake" on Saturday.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.L.A., came up to his cottage, Minne-ha-ha, on Friday.

Rev. Rural Dean Langfeldt came up on Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Gordon Smith and Master Morson Smith, Paris, Ont., arrived on Friday and opened their cottage "Shota" for the season. Mr. Smith is expected about August 1st.

Mr. G. M. Roger, Peterborough, was among those who spent the week-end at the lake.

Mr. W. R. McCracken who now resides at Lakefield came up on Saturday to spend the week-end at the landing which bears his name. Visitors at the landing notice the great change coming by "Bob's" absence.

Mr. Chas. Rishor, Peterborough, spent Sunday at Boschink.

Mrs. S. S. Spence, Lakefield, is a guest of her brother, Mr. Levi Payne.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Crawford and Miss Cora Hunter, Lakefield, were guests of Mr. John Hunter on Sunday.

Mr. E. L. Roberts, Secretary of the Metropolitan School of Music, Toronto, came up to "Pepacton" on Saturday to spend the season.

Mr. Harry Anderson and Mr. S. Park, Toronto, are guests at Victoria House.

A party of young men from Toronto arrived on Saturday and are tenting at Gilchrist Bay.

Mrs. F. R. Tate, Lakefield, came up to the cottage on Saturday.

Mr. Gerald Rackham, Peterborough, was among those who came up on Saturday evening.

Mr. F. Adler and party of four of Rochester, N.Y., arrived at Viamede on Saturday.

Mr. E. McCracken, Cleveland, Ohio, is among the guests at Victoria House.

Mr. Harry Armstrong, Lakefield, spent Sunday at Victoria House.

The North Dummer Orangemen and their friends in large numbers went down to Peterborough on the morning boat to take part in the celebration of the glorious twelfth.

FOUR FOOTED THIEF AT RICE LAKE

Vegetables Disappear and Robber Eats Rope Fence—Peterborough People Enjoying Outings

SOME RECENT EXCURSIONS

Rice Lake, July 13.—(Special)—Mr. and Mrs. W E Talbot of Peterborough are encamped at Idyl Wild, and will spend a month there. They have their gasoline launch and are having an enjoyable time.

Peterborough business men had an excursion here on Friday and put in a delightful day. The firemen were down from Peterborough last Monday.

Some of the campers in the vicinity had an experience recently that they would not care to have repeated. Returning one day to camp, they found all their vegetables had disappeared. Evidences pointed to the fact that the thief was a four-footed one. A rope was accordingly arranged to fence off the tent, but coming back from a fishing cruise they found a horse tugging away at this. It is the opinion in that camp that even the bed clothing is not safe.

Mrs. (Dr.) Jelfs and Miss Jeanette, Toronto, have been holidaying with friends at Peterborough, Campbellford and in vicinity.

Messrs. Sidney Fitzgerald, R. Doyell, Norman Dunford, Percy Handley, Norm Lock and Harold Nattress are camping at Boyce's.

The "Bessie Butler" has been engaged the past week taking soundings in Rice Lake and in placing buoys in the Otonabee River to mark the steamboat channel.

Messrs. Jack Fraser, Chas. Cavanagh and Cyril Giroux of Peterborough are holidaying at Idyl Wild. They brought their gasoline launch with them, and are having a gay time.

Mr. and Mrs. J. McPherson, Warkworth, are spending the summer at St. Margaret's Island.

OBITUARY

MRS. CAROLINE TEWSLY ALLISON

At six o'clock yesterday, Sunday, July 12th, Mrs. Caroline Tewsley, relict of the late J. B. Allison of Napanee, passed away suddenly at her residence, 374½ Water Street, at the age of 73 years. The deceased lady had for a long time been troubled with a heart affection, but just previous to her death had been in rather better health than usual. On Sunday morning about 2 o'clock she was found unconscious in her bed; she did not regain consciousness but died peacefully at 6 o'clock. Mrs. Allison was a native of England, and came to Canada with the family at the age of one year and spent the earlier part of her life in Welland county, going to Napanee in the early seventies, where her husband died. She removed to Peterborough in 1890, and has since lived here. Mrs. Allison was quiet in manner, but of stately character, deeply religious. She was a model mother; left alone with a large family of young children she lived only for her family and to her care and devotion they owe a debt that cannot easily be appraised. Mrs. Allison leaves behind her, to deeply mourn her loss, two sons, Mr. Charles H. Allison of Chicago, Mr. F. O. Allison, city; two daughters, Mrs. Wiseman, Niagara Falls; Mrs. McGimsie, city, and a granddaughter, Mrs. Herbert Long, city. The funeral takes place at 374½ Water Street on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock p.m., to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Canadian Olympic Tteam

London, July 2nd.—The Olympic team have all been introduced to Lord Strathcona and we had all invitations to the Reception at Sports Club at Olympia, July 1st. It was a swell affair. Fred Simpson was taken for Longboat by all the big nobs. Fred didn't like it, but he soon got over it. He is going fine in his training. He came home first in a 10 mile trial on the Marathon course in 57 minutes on July 1st. We expect to do very good this time. We are all rigged up in clothes all the same, wearing white boots, white flannel trousers, white sweater coats, with Red maple leaf in the centres, white skull caps, with maple leafs on them. With 35 fellows together it looks fine.

Bobby Kerr cleaned up the 100 yds. at South London Harriers' meet at Stamford Bridge grounds. He did the final in 10 secs. and it was a very popular win. Barber, of Toronto, was second in standing in the broad jump. He lost by ½ in. The other men are not yet in shape. We are all entered in English championships, July 4th, at Stadium; we expect to win 100, 220 and pole vault. The men are all now rounding in good shape and we look for good results. We work out every day and it keeps us going some.—D. B.

Saturday was a great day for lunge captures in the Otonabee. In the evening several fishermen hovered around the C. P. R. bridge and landed a number of them. Mr. Sidney Rush was among the fortunate, while another got two and a third three lunge.

WORLD WIDE INTEREST

There certainly is world-wide interest in the coming spectacular celebration at Quebec, attended by the Prince of Wales, celebrities from all lands, and battleships of great nations.

The celebration will be unique, affording pictures never to be forgotten. The artists and historians who have seen the advance sheets of the Ter-centenary Souvenir Number of The Standard, of Montreal, say it will be an astonishing issue, full of the living spirit of the pageants. It will bring the whole celebration right into the homes, not only of Canadians, but of all people in all lands, who are fortunate enough to get a copy.

WEDDING BELLS.

HARVEY—ROSS

(Newmarket, July 13.—(Special.) — St. Paul's church was the scene of a very happy wedding, on Wednesday, July 8th, at the hour of high noon, when Miss Leila Euphemia, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C G Ross, was united in marriage to Mr. John Franklyn Harvey, of Peterborough, the ceremony being performed by Rev Canon Spragge of Cobourg, uncle of the bride, Miss Christina Barker, of Picton, acting as bridesmaid, and Miss Elsie Ross, sister of the bride, as flower girl.

The groom was supported by Mr. I D Ross of Renfrew, the bride's brother, with Misses. Lyall Scott of Toronto, and Norman L Rogers, of Newmarket, filling the duties of ushers.

The church had been most lavishly decorated with ferns and daisies for the occasion and was filled to overflowing with invited guests, friends and acquaintances of the contracting parties.

Mrs. Boswell presided at the organ with skill, and at the close of the ceremony Miss Barker sang most beautifully Guy D'Hardelot's "Because."

At the conclusion of the church services, a large party proceeded to "Rossmore," the spacious home of the bride's parents and, after tendering their congratulations to the bridal couple, partook of a sumptuous breakfast.

The house decorations consisted of roses, sweet peas and ferns, and the bride's dress of traditional white, was of crepe de chine, trimmed with pearls and point lace, the veil and orange blossoms being those worn by her mother at her wedding. She also carried a beautiful shower bouquet of bridal roses and lily of the valley. Mrs. Ross, the bride's mother, was attired in grey coliene with touches of lavender, and bonnet to match.

The bridesmaid and maid of honour were similarly attired in semi-empire gowns of white marquisette over taffeta. Their hats were white mohair, with white tulle pompons and green ribbons. Large bouquets of pink sweet peas were carried by each.

Amidst showers of rice and good wishes, the happy couple left by the southbound Grand Trunk train at 2 p.m., for a short trip. Their future home will be in the city of Peterborough, whither they go accompanied by the best wishes of their legion of friends in the vicinity.

PREACHED SERMON TO ORANGEMEN

Rev. Robt. Pogue's Address to Followers of King William at St. Paul's Church Last Night

AN ORANGEMAN'S DUTIES

A forcible and practical sermon, dealing with the memorial of the Battle of the Boyne of 1690, and what should be the relation of Orangemen to Roman Catholics, was delivered by Rev. Robert A. Pogue, at St. Paul's church last evening, when the Orangemen of Peterborough, attended divine service. It was an interesting and thoughtful discourse, not one denouncing Roman Catholicism, but rather one demonstrative of the fact that Roman Catholics might benefit from the liberties gained by William of Orange. The attitude of the Orangeman to the Roman Catholic Mr. Pogue said, should be one of love and prayerful communion. If results are to be accomplished, the Orangeman should not try to separate himself from his Roman Catholic brethren.

The large edifice of St. Paul's church was packed to the doors last evening, every available seat being taken. Chairs had to be brought in, and the people were even seated upon the steps in the aisles. The sermon was bright, and the singing was heartily joined in by the immense congregation. Miss Helen Davies sang in splendid voice, "The Holy City," and Mr. W. McIlroy sang in his usual excellent manner, "Hosanna."

Rev. Mr. Pogue took for the words of his text the latter part of the 6th verse of the 14th chapter of Joshua, "What mean you by these stones?"

In beginning the reverend speaker referred to the incidents leading up to his text. Moses had died but Israel had not been left without a leader. God never left his people alone. Joshua was chosen to succeed Moses. The Lord commanded Joshua to choose twelve men. Each man was told to take a stone that it might be a sign and a memorial to the children of Israel of the dividing of the waters of Jordan.

The speaker stated that the custom of erecting memorials was still adhered to. Monuments were still being raised to commemorate great things in the world's history and to the memory of noble men. Two striking illustrations of this were the way the fourth of July was kept in the United States and the manner in which the twelfth was observed. It was not with boastful pride that Protestants and Orangemen commemorated the Battle of the Boyne. The preacher thought that it was ignoble to rejoice over a fallen foe. The victory of William represented to Protestants religious liberties, which Roman Catholics ought also to enjoy. The speaker believed that if Roman Catholics would lay aside the hostility they held and would recognize the victory of William of Orange they would find much to be thankful for. Protestants and Roman Catholics alike joined in the first celebration in Derry over a hundred years ago.

Some people held to the opinion that it would be impossible to get Catholics to join in the 12th of July celebration. Rev. Mr. Pogue did not think that it would be an impossibility. He had recently read in a Philadelphia paper where members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians had been invited to join with them in a celebration. The speaker thought that this was a good move and a step to a better understanding between the two religious sects. The Orangemen should not perpetuate a feeling of bitter animosity. His relation to his Catholic brother should be of love and Christian fellowship.

Rev. Mr. Pogue stated that he desired to express a conviction that he strongly felt. He was opposed to the present method of the memorial of the 12th of July. He thought the 12th of July celebration should be abolished and all speeches of bigotry and partizanship should be withheld. If Orangemen were to influence Catholics and give them a calm and quiet review of the results of the historic events they commemorated, it was not to be done by finding fault with them and by the whistling of party tunes.

The eloquent speaker referred to two historic events, the Spanish Armada and the victory of King William. He spoke of the religious liberties won at the Battle of the Boyne. Protestants were free to exercise the convictions of their consciences. It was not a victory of king nor of Protestant over Roman Catholic, but it was a victory over despotism and of Protestantism over Popery.

The Orange Order was founded on the Bible. Every follower of King William should be a true Christian. Outside the church nothing could equal the principles of Orangeism. Orangemen should be temperate, and in this belief Rev. Mr. Pogue paid a glowing tribute to the excellent work of the Catholic T.A.S. Orangemen should all fall in line with them in this respect, and the speaker concluded by hoping that they would.

The service was closed by the singing of the National Anthem.

THE DELECTABLE SINKING ROOM

A Persian diplomat, seated on the bench, fanned his moist brow with a Panama.

"The February sun is hot," he said. "It recalls faintly to me the heat of Persia. But you have no need of sinking rooms here.

"Sinking rooms?" said the girl in white. I've heard of sinking funds, but ——."

"You use them in Persia—if you're rich enough—in the great heats," he interposed. "They're rooms of glass that sink down into the vitreous blue depths of Lake Niris. Niris the most beautiful of Persian lakes, is almost crowded with sinking rooms during the hot weather.

"They're very pleasant. You furnish them sumptuously—rugs and pale pale silk hangings, ivory carvings and mother-o'-pearl—and you take down with you singing-girls and dancing-girls and girls to serve the sherbert and to fill the hookahs."

He sighed.

"All this," he said, "is very pleasant, but I would gladly exchange the glare of this hot sun, the smell and dust and roar of these high-powered motor-cars, for Lake Niris's cool depths, the vitreous blue light, and the Circassian serving-girls' clear laughter."

Our Success

HUDSON RAILWAY GOES ON

Hon. Mr. Graham Providing For the Surveys — Government May Build the Road If It Is Deemed Advisable—Provincial Boundaries Bill to Be Dealt With To-day—Criticism Comes to Naught.

Ottawa, July 13.—The Commoners toiled till ten minutes before midnight Saturday. They disposed of the last items of the main estimates and then applied themselves rigorously to ten millions of supplementaries, a generous portion of which was voted.

On an item of $160,000 for surveys of the Hudson Bay Railway, Mr. Herron called upon the Minister of Railways to state the intention of the Government.

Mr. Graham said the road would be built without delay. The money voted would be expended in making a survey and whether the Government would build the road or give it to a company would depend on the result of the survey. The Government had not reached a decision on that point.

On Monday, Mr. Fielding announced, the provincial boundaries resolution will be taken up with some minor bills.

It was advisable, said Mr. Borden, to have accurate estimates of great public works before their being undertaken. Notwithstanding the boast of mountains of information, the Government was sadly misinformed. They boasted in the country that every indebtedness arising out of the construction of the transcontinental road could be provided for by the investment of $13,000,000. Now the Government placed the cost of the road from Moncton to Winnipeg at $114,000,000, and the Minister of Railways said the investment outlay would be 26 or 27 millions.

The only item which Mr. Graham could take exception in the calculation, he said, was one of $800,000, which ought to be struck off. Otherwise, the difference between Mr. Graham and himself was as to whether certain items were properly charged. There was no difference between them as to the Quebec bridge.

Mr. Fielding replied at great length. He characterized Mr. Borden's estimates of $250,000,000 as the cost of the railway as absolutely and monstrously misleading. His figures might be correct, but his grouping of them was absurd. He denied that Sir Wilfrid Laurier ever said the 3,600 miles of the N.T.R. Railway between Moncton and Winnipeg ought to be built for $13,000,000.

Mr. Borden retorted quoting from Liberal campaign literature, the expression, "a transcontinental railway for $13,000,000."

The Finance Minister insisted that the item of $14,000,000 for the Quebec bridge should not be charged to the N.T.R.

Labor Leaders Confer.

Denver, Col., July 13.—While Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell, John H. Lennon, Frank Morrison, Joseph Valentine, James Duncan and Max Morris were holding a conference on labor matters on Saturday Deputy Sheriff Thomas Lawson served them with papers to appear as defendants in a suit brought by the W. R. Thompson Marble Co. against them as leading officers of the Federation of Labor for 350,000 for alleged damages to its business by a strike and boycott.

These officers will have to appear before a commissioner July 17 to give testimony, and the action will keep them in Denver a week longer than they had intended staying. The trial had been set for August 4, and it will probably be necessary for the leaders to return to Denver at that time also.

KING EDWARD TO OPEN THE GAMES

His Majesty To-day Formally Officiates at Olympic Stadium.

WHOLE GLOBE REPRESENTED

Athletes to Be Reviewed by King and Queen, Kings of Norway and Greece and Other Royalty—The Magnificent Stadium to Accommodate Ninty Thousand—Preparations Are on a Gigantic Scale.

London, July 18.—Athletes from 20 countries are gathered in and near London for the Olympic games, which open to-day, and which it is believed will prove the greatest games of modern times. The competitors from the four corners of the globe constitute a small army in themselves, almost every country, following the example of America and Great Britain, having entered in the various events, the full quota of men allowed by the rules, in most cases, a round dozen.

There are 25 events on the program, the number of athletes taking part will total nearly 2,000, many of the men, of course, representing their respective countries in more than one event.

The opening day, the formal ceremonies, including a parade of the athletes before the King, will be held. Some of the preliminaries will then be run off, including the first heat of the 1,500 metre race.

In the parade, which will be the largest of its kind ever held, the representatives of the various countries will form into groups, according to the sports in which they are competing, and will carry their national banners.

The preparations are on a gigantic scale. The stadium will seat 68,000 spectators, and there is room for 23,000 more without seats.

By making use of a strip surrounding the stadium, standing room also can be found for 50,000 additional. There are three athletic tracks, a swimming bath, and dressing rooms for 2000 competitors.

One turf track for hurdle racing, the cinder path for running, and the concrete, banked for cycling, have been pronounced the best in England. Several records already have been broken on those tracks and it may be confidently predicted that more will go when the chosen athletes of the world meet there.

The athletes will be reviewed by the King and Queen, the King of Greece, the King of Norway and the Crown Prince of Sweden, most of the members of the British royal family and most of the foreign ambassadors and ministers in London.

The athletes of each country will line up at a quarter to 3 o'clock. The national representatives will bear their national flags.

After the parade before King Edward and the international committee and representatives, the King will declare the stadium open, and the national anthem will be sung, all the flags will be lowered to salute and the whole body of athletes will give three cheers for His Majesty.

Japan Too Poor to Fight.

New York, July 13.—J. C. Goold, a cotton merchant of Liverpool, arrived in this city Saturday from San Francisco, on his way home after a journey of 40,000 miles. At the St. Regis Saturday night Mr. Goold said that his stay in Japan convinced him that Japan is poverty stricken, that what credit she has is based upon fictitious values, and that she is in no condition to wage war upon any other nation, in the world.

Windsor, July 13.—Stabbed to death with a penknife which he held in his hand when he fell from a tree, little Walter Pennington, the 10-year-old son of James Pennington of this city was killed at Kingsville Saturday.

The boy left Windsor at noon on the street car to spend a short vacation on Lake Erie. His brother and sister found him a few hours after his arrival, dead at the foot of a tree. His death was instantaneous.

Plans National Expedition.

New York, July 13.—Upon his return from his present expedition in search of the north pole, Commander Robert E. Peary plans to organize a national American Antarctic expedition to explore the southern polar region, a project which he says has the approval of President Roosevelt. Peary, however, does not intend to accompany the party.

Drowned at Port Arthur.

Port Arthur, July 13.—A man named Woodland of Fort William was drowned Saturday evening as he endeavored to swim from the Canadian Northern to the Booth Dock. He took cramps and sank. Several people saw him, but before they could aid him he went to the bottom. The body was recovered.

Hangs Herself From Balustrade.

Belleville, July 13.—Mrs. James Pitt, a woman 52 years of age, residing in the Township of Tyendinaga, committed suicide by hanging Saturday. Mrs. Pitt fastened one end of a rope to the balustrade and the other round her neck. Temporary insanity is given as the cause. An inquest will be held.

A TORONTO MAN SHOT IN THE HEAD

The Missing F. A. Poehle Suicided at Niagara Falls.

THE CAUSE IS A MYSTERY

Roar of the Rapids Prevented the Report of the Revolver Being Heard—Body Had Pitched Forward and Lay at the Edge of a Dangerous Eddy — Did the Deed During Night—Will Be No Inquest.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 13.—The search for Frederick A. Poehle, who disappeared from his home, 375 St. Clarens avenue, Toronto, last Monday morning, came to an end yesterday morning with the finding of his body lying partially submerged on the shore of the second Sister Island, on the Niagara state reservation.

A bullet hole through the head explained the cause of death. The nature of the wound, the course of the bullet, etc., strengthens the suicide theory, but the inability of the police to find the revolver, which fired the shot, and the further fact that the ground all about the point at which the body was recovered was torn and trampled, seemed to indicate a scuffle.

Coroner Scott, who had charge of the case, was first inclined to hold a postmortem examination, but later determined it was unnecessary; the reservation police attaching little importance to the fact that the pistol has not been found. The body was lying at the edge of a deep eddy, where the water is turbulent, and the weapon might have fallen from the hand as Poehle pitched forward, and thus gone several feet out into the river and perhaps was carried some eight or ten feet down stream by the swift current before it reached the bottom. The water is too swift, and the point in too close proximity to the Falls, to make a search in the water for the gun at all likely.

The body was found by two waiters who were taking a stroll about the islands at 6 o'clock in the morning. They first came upon a coat and cap in the woods. A search revealed the body in the water, and the reservation police were notified. They, in turn, notified Dr. W. A. Scott, coroner, who took charge of the case, removing the body to undertaking rooms.

Chief of Police Shoebridge of the reservation force, and Chief Lyons of the city force, viewed the body and gave it at once as their opinion that the body was that of the missing Toronto man, every feature of the description tallying.

The body had not been in the water more than eight or ten hours, and it is the supposition of the police that the man died some time Saturday night. No one heard the pistol shot, but that is not strange, as the roar of the rapids would prevent the shot being heard, unless one were within a few feet of the point at which it was fired.

Poehle left his home in Toronto last Monday to go to his work. He was employed as confidential clerk to the firm of Barber & Ellis, wholesale stationers, at 63 East Wellington street. When he arrived at the office he said he had forgotten his glasses and would return to his home for them. He did not go home, nor did he return to the office, and he was not seen after that by anyone who knew him. On the Saturday preceding the day of his disappearance he painted his house and complained of feeling very tired after it. The day was very warm, and it is the opinion of the family that the heat affected his brain.

J. F. Ellis said that his accounts were perfectly straight, and so far as his brother knew he had no trouble whatever.

An $8,000 Fire.

Toronto, July 13.—One of the most stubborn "smudge" fires that the department has been up against in years occurred last night, when the great hayloft in the stables of the Hendrie Carthage Co., on Front street, took fire. Fifty tons of baled hay, 300 tons of baled straw and 3,000 bushels of oats provided food for the flames in the south wing of the huge building and the only way of getting water into the roaring furnace was through small square windows, set deep into an 18-inch brick wall, at wide distances apart.

The total damage is estimated at $8,000—harness (by water) $1,600; hay, straw and grain, $2,000, and building, $5,000.

The cause of the fire is unknown. Nobody had been in the building for half an hour before the blaze was discovered, and there was no cause for anyone to have been in that portion when the flames first burst out, at all.

Roosevelt May "Stump."

Denver, July 13.—The topic of conversation that overshadowed everything else Saturday among the delegates leaving for home was the report from the east that President Roosevelt will more than likely take the stump for Mr. Taft because of the attacks made upon him and his administration by Chairman Clayton in his speech as the presiding officer of the convention.

Douma Cheers Emperor.

St. Petersburg, July 13.—The Douma was adjourned Saturday morning by Imperial ukase until Oct. 28. The usual closing exercises were gone through previous to adjournment, and the deputies cheered the name of Emperor Nicholas with gusto.

Potter Is Slightly Better.

Cooperstown, N.Y., July 13.—Bishop Potter, who has been making no progress towards recovery for a few days, has had a comfortable day, and his physicians report that if any change has taken place it is in the direction of improvement.

Pills Instead of Food.

Denver, July 13.—For two days, while on a forced march of forty miles, soldiers of the third battalion of the Twenty-First Infantry, stationed at Fort Logan, lived on two pills each, one given them each morning.

PETES DECISIVELY WON FROM ATHLETICS IN A SPEEDY GAME; CLEMENTS HAD LID ON TIGHT

The Peterboroughs decisively defeated the Athletics in the second game of the second round of the Midland League series at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon by 5 runs to nothing, putting up a superior article of ball and winning without much difficulty. Clements was a puzzle all the way to the Athletics and kept the lid clamped down so not a man got past third. He was invincible with men on the bases and although several times the Athletics got basewarmers on second and third with none out, the Pete's box artist was always master of the situation. Only five hits were made off him and he had nine strike-outs to his credit.

He was given magnificent support by the team behind him who fielded in grand fashion, tightening up with men on bases with the result that there was nothing doing in the scoring line. Two double plays by the infield helped considerably in crimping the Athletics' scoring aspirations. The crowd was given a surprise when Fred Anderson, the big second baseman who played such sensational ball for the Petes last year, came on the field in a Peterborough uniform. He has been playing with Webwood in the North Shore League. Anderson filled up the hole around second in faultless fashion, figuring in two double plays and covering plenty of ground.

Quinlan was on the slab for the Athletics and pitched good ball, only six hits being recorded against him, while he fanned ten men. He had control and speed and had he received better support the score would have been closer. The Athletics made six errors and some of them were decidedly costly, being responsible for the greater part of the runs scored. They did not field nearly so well as the Petes and their mistakes came at critical moments.

A fairly large crowd saw the game which was a snappy, well played exhibition of ball. The fielding features were the two fast double plays executed by the Petes, and several pretty stops of hard drives by Chris Graham.

The Midland League official neglected to send an umpire and Mr. H R H Kenner was agreed upon, giving good satisfaction in the difficult role of arbitrator.

The Petes scored two in the second, two in the fifth and one in the seventh, the last run being the only earned one.

The box score follows:

Two base hits, Edmunds, Quinlan. Bases on balls off Clements, 2; off Quinlan 2. Struck out by Clements, 9; by Quinlan 10. Left on bases, Peterborough, 6; Athletics 7. Sacrifice hit Murphy. Double plays, Clements to Anderson to Lawson; Anderson to Maddock to Lawson. Shea to Mackrell. Stolen bases, Murphy 2, Burns, Maddock, Edmunds, O'Brien, Hawkins, Clements, Connors 2, Shea, Mackrell, Graham. Hit by pitcher, Shea. Umpire, Kenner. Time 2.10.

First.—Burns led off with a single through short. Murphy sacrificed him to second and he went to third on Maddock's out, Shea to Graham. Lawson fanned. No runs.

Second—Edmunds landed on one of Quinlan's fast ones for a beautiful two-bagger to left and stole third. O'Brien was walked and purloined the middle station. Graham made a pretty catch of Anderson's drive to first. Hawkins rolled one at Quinlan who threw to Graham, and the latter dropped the ball in trying to tag the runner on the line, and both Edmunds and O'Brien scored, the latter coming all the way from second. Clements hit to Shea, and Hawkins was caught between second and third, and finally tagged by Mackrell. Clements tried to make second on the play, but was nipped, being knocked out by a collision with Mackrell. Two runs.

For the Athletics, Mackrell, Heaslip and Flaherty fanned. No runs.

Third—Burns grounded to Shea. Murphy hit safely to left and stole second and third. Maddock went out on a grounder to Shea. Lawson fanned, but Rattray missed the third one. The ball went to the fence and Murphy started to walk home from third. The ball was returned to the diamond and he was tagged by Quinlan and pronounced out, although the Petes claimed that the fence was not 90 feet from the home plate, and that therefore it was a case of a blocked ball. No runs.

Callaghan singled between short and third. Quinlan hit to Clements, who threw wide to second. Callaghan thought the ball had been caught and ran back for first, with the result that he was an easy out at second. Connors rolled one at Clements who threw to second, and Anderson slashed the ball to first for a lightning double play. No runs.

Fourth—Edmunds drove one to right which Heaslip dropped, and the catcher went to second. O'Brien struck out. Anderson lifted one to Mackrell and Hawkins fanned. No runs.

Graham grounded to Hawkins. Shea hit to Anderson, but Lawson dropped the ball and the runner was safe. Rattray hammered one groundwards to Lawson, who threw to second, but Anderson failed to hold the throw. Chances looked bright for a score for the Athletics, but Mackrell hit a grounder to Anderson and the latter tipped the ball to second to Maddock, who whistled it over to first, completing another pretty double. No runs.

Fifth—Clements was given a complimentary and Burns singled. The two pulled off a double steal and Clements counted on a passed ball. Murphy struck out, but Maddock hit to Shea, who let it get away from him, and Burns scored. Lawson struck out and Edmunds grounded to Shea.

Heaslip and Flaherty fanned and Callaghan flew out to Murphy. No runs.

Sixth—O'Brien fanned and Anderson grounded to Mackrell. Hawkins struck out but Rattray missed the third strike and the runner was safe. Clements fanned. No runs.

Quinlan led off with a pretty drive to left centre, taking two bases when O'Brien allowed the ball to bound away from him. Connors fanned, but Graham was there with a neat single to right and stole second. With a man on second and third and but one gone, it looked like a counter for the Athletics, but Clements was master of the situation, causing Shea to hit an easy grounder to him and then fanning Rattray. No runs.

Seventh—The Petes got one in the seventh with two out. Burns hit a grounder to Graham and Murphy fanned. Maddock singled to left, stole second and came home when Lawson drove one over Shea's head. Edmunds grounded to Flaherty. One run.

Mackrell was safe when Murphy dropped his fly to left. "Fish" stole second and dropped his anchor there as the next three were easy outs. Heaslip flew out to Maddock. Flaherty skied to Hawkins and Callaghan grounded to Anderson. No runs.

Eighth—O'Brien flew out to Flaherty. Anderson fanned. Hawkins was safe when Mackrell fumbled his grounder, but Clements fouled out to Rattray. No runs.

Quinlan got a base on balls but was out stealing second. Connors singled to left and stole second and third. Graham flew out to Clements. Shea was hit by pitcher, but Rattray's best was a high fly which Edmunds got under. No runs.

Ninth—Burns grounded to Quinlan. Shea took care of Murphy's grounder and Maddock hit to Graham, who fielded it nicely. No runs.

Mackrell drove a liner right at Maddock, who held it safely. Heaslip struck out. Flaherty was walked, but Callaghan fanned, and the game was over.

THE LACROSSE GAME AT TRENTON

Port Hope Trimmed by Home Team by Score of 4-1

Lovers of the national game were treated to a very fast and strenuous article on Thursday when the first home game of the Trent Valley League was played between Port Hope and Trenton. It was one continuous round of excitement from start to finish, and resulted in a victory for our team by 4 goals to 1.

The clever team work of Trenton was highly appreciated by the spectators, and the boys are receiving congratulations from all sides for their extraordinary work. It would be hard to find a weak spot in any of their work. The combination displayed throughout the game was commendable, especially in the last quarter, which was an exhibition of fast work, never before witnessed in the town.

The teams—

SAYS FRED SIMPSON IS AN ENIGMA

Longboat's Erratic Obstinacy Absent in Him Says Star

The Toronto Star says: Fred Simpson, the Hiawatha Indian, who did so well in the Marathon trial yesterday is an enigma. He has none of Tom Longboat's erratic obstinacy and adds to his tractability a whole lot of good horse sense.

Simpson can run a great deal faster than he did in either trial Marathons in Canada. Instance his great showing in the Hamilton Herald race where he came from behind in the last six miles and ate up Lawson, Cotter and the rest of the bunch.

In the trial Marathons Simpson ran hard in the first part of the race, until he was sure he was in the first six, and then "mooched" along home, contented to get the place without killing himself. That he had plenty of reserve steam was shown by his 440 sprint at the finish of each trial. Simpson is a runner of sense and ability. He is long-legged, deep-chested, and carries no surplus weight. He has a flat-footed gait that is tireless. He has his bad periods, but tights gamely by the sore spot. He is good-natured, and easily handled.

STRATHCONAS BEAT THE LAKEVIEW TEAM BADLY

In a Loose, One Sided Game of Ball— Score Was 18-1

Saturday's City League game between the Strathconas and the Lakeviews resulted in a decisive victory for the leaders by the score of 18-1. The Lakeviews were not the same team at all that won from the T.A.S. just a week ago. Their playing lacked vim except during the first innings. During the second they went up in the air and the balloon failed to come down. They were badly handicapped by several of their players being away, and the six runs scored by the Straths in the second was like a millstone about their necks. Crowe and Adamson were not on and their absence was keenly felt.

Mahoney for the losers put up a good game, having nine strikeouts while he passed two men. Belleghem had six strikeouts and passed only one man. The Straths, however, got twelve hits, while the Lakeviews got there for eight. The difference in the teams was behind the pitchers. Allison and Shaw in the outfield covered all kinds of ground and raked in long drives that looked safe. There was a marked difference, too, in the infields. McWilliams, Kendry, Weatherstone and Graham did good execution. "Pete" at second got a drive in the second that was going like a meteorite. King at first for the losers played his usual clean game and could always be relied upon. Menzies and Wilson proved themselves two of the best catchers in the league. The teams—

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

A meeting of the City League is called for Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the Y.M.C.A.

• • • •

The editor of the Sporting Chronicle, London, yesterday, received a letter from Hackenschmidt, in which the great wrestler expresses his indignation at the rumours circulated last week that he was dead. He says the police at Aix-la-Chapelle received many reply-paid wires from America and England asking is the report was true.

He confirms his wire that he had recovered from the operation, but says his knee is just as bad as before. He has had the knee photographed by the Roentgen rays, and awaits Professor Marivelli's report.

The fingers on the left hand, which were partly paralysed, are not yet better, but he hopes they will improve. "Certainly," he adds, "the pains have gone, and I feel a longing again for some exercise." He desires to acknowledge the many sympathetic messages received from friends in England.

Colossus of Rhodes.

The accounts which we have of the height of the Colossus of Rhodes are various. The extreme statement is 157 feet. If faith is to be placed in these figures, the ancient statue standing at the water's edge without any pedestal would have overtopped the statue of Liberty in New York harbor about six feet.

Italy.

Italy consists of about 91,000 square miles mainland and 19,000 in the islands. This area is about equal to New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Pennsylvania combined.

A Cool Thief.

One summer afternoon an exceptionally well dressed stranger was seen to enter the front gate of a house in a wealthy neighborhood. He walked to the door and tried to open it with a key. As he could not do so he went around to a window and, pushing it open, climbed in through it. It was a suspicious proceeding, but as the man was dressed in the height of fashion the officer on the beat thought that it was the owner of the house, who, having forgotten his key, had used the window as his means of entrance. However, the officer thought it best to watch the place for awhile to see if anything ont of the way might occur. A short time later, emerging from the front door, the stranger stopped as if some one had spoken to him from within, and, saying "Yes, Bess, I have my key this time," he lifted his hat and walked slowly away. Some hours later, when the real owner of the house returned, the policeman learned that his first suspicions had been correct, for the well dressed stranger had walked off with the jewelry and everything of value that he could lay his kid gloved hands upon.—Chicago Tribune.

Milking the Cow.

"Milkmen have different ways of managing their cows, but generally they feed each cow and begin milking as soon as the cow begins to eat," says a dairyman. "The milker hurries to get through, too, because if the cow finishes her breakfast before the milker has done his work she extorts more feed by holding back her milk, so must be fed again to keep her in good humor. Some milkmen do their milking first and then feed immediately, and cows that are accustomed to this treatment generally give down their milk cheerfully, for they know that milking is a prelude to the feeding. It all depends on habit and the way the cows are treated, for a cow is much smarter than she looks and more grateful than most persons would believe. So long as the cows know they are not going to be struck or beaten they will neither kick nor hook. An experienced milkman will never allow any loud talking or excitement about his barns, for the quieter the cows are kept the greater the quantity of milk and the easier the work."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Greater Danger.

There was never a more conscientious young man than Eben Soule, and when he found how much absorbed he had become with the mere idea of playing in the town band he consulted his minister. "Do you reckon I could give up all that time to music without falling from grace?" he asked anxiously.

The good old Methodist had a saving sense of humor. He saw that his parishioner was much distressed between his wishes and his conscience, but the minister smiled on him nevertheless.

"It's the horn you're asked to play, I hear," he said. "Ever had much experience with it, Eben?"

"Never tried it but once, but I like the sound of it first rate," said the young man.

"M'm!" said the minister. "Well, I think you needn't be afraid of falling from grace on account of it, but I do hope you'll manage things so your family and neighbors won't have to pass through the fiery temptation of hearing you practice too often, Eben."—Exchange.

The Artless Red Indian.

The influence of the fur trader and the mission schools has had a marked effect upon the Ontario Indians. They have to a large extent adopted modern dress, and many of the young men can be found at work in the sawmills and as river drivers. The women, too, manage to keep step with their lords in this march toward civilized appearance. I have seen moccasined feet peeping from beneath the folds of velvet gowns of royal purple. On the bank of Rainy river I came upon a community of wigwams and tepees. About an open fire crouched three old hags, filthy and hideous, but in the door of a tepee not ten feet away stood a young squaw, perhaps a daughter of one of the hags, doing her hair with a curling iron.—Wide World Magazine.

Some Meteors.

One of the earliest known meteors fell in 204 B. C. in Phrygia, where for a long time it was worshiped. It was carried to Rome and was supposed to be a messenger from the gods. Livy describes a shower of meteoric stones. The people were greatly alarmed, and the senators were demoralised and declared a nine days' festival to propitiate the gods. There is at Mecca a meteorite which fell in 600 A. D. and is still worshiped by the faithful.

Sacrificed to the Nile.

The ancient Egyptians, if they did not worship the river Nile, held it in great veneration and even dread. The Nile had its appointed priests, festivals and sacrifices, and if its rising was delayed for a single day a beautiful young girl was thrown into its waters and drowned in order to appease the god's anger and secure his favors.

Waiting.

Jack—By the way, how is your suit with Miss Cashleigh progressing? Tom—Slowly. I'm playing a waiting game just now. Jack—A waiting game? Tom—Yes; I'm waiting for her to change her mind.

One Great Drawback.

I can stand the sultry season,
Though the perspiration flows
In a stream of clammy moisture
From my hatband to my nose,
But I shudder in my anguish
As the fellow heaves in view
With the old, eternal question—
"Is it hot enough for you?"

Though my collar's limp and wilted
And my shirt front is a lake,
Though my clothes are sticking to me,
I have no complaint to make,
But the horror of the season
Is to know the mutt is due
With the query on each corner—
"Is it hot enough for you?"

Called Strange Girl His Wife

Fred Burleigh was dismissed on the charge of vagrancy at Police Court this morning, but was sent up for ten days, not having the necessary "Williams" to pay a fine which was imposed in April of 1907 for disturbing a religious meeting. He arrived in the city last Monday and Thursday night called at the residence of an old gentleman who had always tried to help Burleigh and had done so many times. He awakened him and introduced as his wife the young woman who was with him. Teh old gentleman took him in for the night. At Police Court to-day the old gentleman told Burleigh it was a despicable return for his many kindnesses, and he quietly informed him that his good opinion of him was shattered. The girl went to Port Hope on the noon train to work with a family with whom she had been formerly engaged.

THE WEST POINT RIOT.

It Happened During the Cadetship of Jefferson Davis.

Closely connected with Benny Havens' was the great cadet riot of Christmas, 1826, in the middle of Jefferson Davis' third year. Before Christmas it was rumored through the barracks that Davis and other southern and southwestern cadets were going to explain to the other members of the corps the mysteries of eggnog. Cadets Davis, Tilghman and Temple were to get the necessaries from Benny's, but it seems that something prevented, and others had to get the materials. The authorities were suspicious and ordered the inspectors to stay up all night to keep order. This angered the cadets, and the preparations for the eggnog went on. In the dark of the morning of Dec. 25 the invitations were sent out. Robert E. Lee and Joseph E. Johnston declined. J. B. Magruder, Drayton, C. J. Wright and others accepted. Davis was extending the invitations when he heard a rumor that Captain Hitchcock was abroad. He ran back to No. 5 north barracks, where the refreshments were collected, called out, "Put away that grog, boys; old Hitch is coming," and looked up to find that Hitchcock was already in the room. Davis was sent to his quarters under arrest, fortunately for him, for after some hilarious noise he went to sleep and did not get into the riot which then began. The instructors and officers were chased out of the halls into their own rooms and there besieged. The cadets obtained arms and organized the Helvetian league to protect themselves against the bombardiers, who, they heard, were ordered out to subdue them. Davis' roommate, Walter B. Guion of Mississippi, was the leader of the Helvetians. He secured a pistol and tried to shoot Captain Hitchcock. Some of the officers were badly bruised with stove wood that the cadets threw at them. After an hour or two the riot wore out. Later nineteen cadets, among them Guion, were court martialed and dismissed. Davis, with others, was kept long under arrest and given demerits.—Professor W. L. Fleming in Metropolitan Magazine.

NEW ENGLAND WITCHES.

A Small Record Compared With That of Other Countries.

Yankees have so long and so loudly confessed their ancestral sins that the facts in the case are little known. So much is said about Salem that the execution of witches in Pennsylvania is overlooked. The scant score of persons hanged for witchcraft in New England causes more comment than the many thousands legally burned for that crime in Europe.

In all New England, according to Nathaniel Hawthorne, nineteen persons were executed as witches. One more was accused of the crime and for refusal to plead was pressed to death, after the custom of the day.

The facts concerning the widespread belief in witchcraft and the enormous number of witches killed may be found in any encyclopedia. Haydn's Dictionary of Dates says: "More than 100,000 perished, mostly by the flames, in Germany." Chambers' Encyclopedia says: "In England and Scotland the witch mania was somewhat later in setting in than on the continent, but when it did so it was little if at all less virulent, the reformation notwithstanding." "The number of victims in Scotland from first to last has been estimated at upward of 4,000." Dr. Sprenger in his "Life of Mohammed" computes the entire number of persons who have been burned as witches during the Christian epoch at 9,000,000.

Witchcraft persecutions in New England took place in 1692. They were all done in six months. In England they continued till well into the next century. In 1863 a reputed wizard was drowned in a pond at Hedingham, in Essex. Says Chambers, "It was considered worthy of notice that nearly all the sixty or seventy persons concerned in the outrage were of the small tradesmen class, none of the agricultural laborers being mixed up in the affair."

Welsh Names.

On the railway in Wales the brakeman has to announce such stations as Ffestiniog, Bettws-y-coed, Llandegai and Penmaenmawr. As in this country, tourists occasionally fail to understand what the man says.

Old Time Cradles.

Rocking cradles for babies were used by the Egyptians many centuries before Christ. Among the pictures copied by Belzoni is one of an Egyptian mother at work with her foot on the cradle.

A DANGEROUS THING.

Never Take Medicine That is Recommended by Friends.

It is a very common thing among women that they will take medicine which is recommended by friends and also give it to their children without investigating its formula.

They will have prescriptions refilled which another woman's physician has recommended for her particular case or take up what remains in her bottle.

This is a most dangerous practice and should not be continued. If a physician has written a prescription for his patient he understands her particular case and is not prescribing for any one else who wishes to take it.

He may not only give her medicine for what she thinks she needs, but may give her drugs which she needs and knows nothing about.

It may be something to strengthen the heart or other organ of the body, some drug which would be very harmful to another person, or opiates may be in the formula which would have an entirely different and disastrous effect upon another constitution.

It is a very dangerous practice for yourself, but in all common sense do not give such things to your children. If your child is sick and you do not understand what to do, call a physician and let him prescribe in the right way, even if it does cost more money.

By this it does not mean that the doctor has to be called for every small ailment of the child, but if the child is really sick you will know it. Do not risk the child's health by giving it things which you do not understand and which may be poisonous to it. You are running a terrible risk by doing it.

Kimberley.

Owing to the old system of digging out diamonds Kimberley proper is built around a hole big enough to contain the entire white population of South Africa.

Fan Mirrors.

The belles of England during the reign of Henry VII. carried little hand mirrors suspended from their girdles. The same custom prevailed in the time of Elizabeth and James I. They formed the center of many fans at that period and later.

Sierra.

The word "sierra" means "a saw," hence a mountain whose top is indented like a saw or a range of mountains whose tops form a saw-like appearance, as Sierra Morena, in Spain; Sierra Leone, in Africa; Sierra Nevada, etc.

CARRIAGE OCCUPANTS INJURED

Rear Seat Broke and Three Persons Fell Backwards

The escape from very serious injury of the occupants of a carriage coming to Peterborough yesterday from the north was nothing less than miraculous. Mr. Robt. Weaver of Lakefield was driving a double-seated carriage, containing two women, his mother and Mrs. Reid of North Monaghan, and his brother, Ward Weaver, on the rear seat. About half a mile out from Lakefield the seat broke and the three tumbled backwards to the ground. Mrs. Weaver, who is 58 years of age, was painfully injured across the breast, but the others escaped with only slight injuries.

THIS YOUTH RECEIVED HIS REWARD

But It Happened to be a Very Unpleasant One

That we are punished here for the wrongs we do was in reality the experience of a young man on George street last night. Accompanied by two young ladies he was moping down George street, and incidentally attempted to amuse his fair companions by tripping an Indian girl in front. On one occasion she suddenly turned around, struck the immodest youth in the face with the palm of her hand, and when she moved on she was unmolested. The subsequent situation was none too inviting for the young man.

Rev. A. H. and Mrs. Brace, while in the city for the celebration yesterday, were entertained by P. C. and Mrs. McIlarry. Rev. Mr. Brace left for Cobourg last night on the special, and Mrs. Brace leaves on Wednesday.

"Who Owns The Streets?" Is Ald. Morgan's Question

The Committee of the Whole Council Takes a Step in an Endeavour to Come to an Amicable Agreement With the Gas Company---The Isolation Hospital Again---Also the Public Library

WHAT THE COMMITTEE OF WHOLE COUNCIL DID

Listened to Mr. E. Heaton regarding an advertisement for Peterborough in a book known as the "Commercial Handbook of Canada."

Appointed a committee to confer with Mr. Larmonth in an effort to come to an agreement re the Gas Company's opening the streets to lay their mains.

Referred the abattoir question to the Property Committee to secure information to report later with a view to presenting the question to the people.

Considered the Public Library question and decided to wait for particular information from Mr. Richard Hall before action was taken.

Considered the matter of an Isolation Hospital. Referred to Property Committee.

Took no immediate action re increasing the salaries of the assessors.

The committee of the whole council held a meeting last night at which Mayor Rush presided with the following present—Ald. Phelan, Morrow, Buller, Neil, Johnston, Turner Gillespie, Morgan, Elliott and Bradburn City Solicitor Hall was also present.

Mr. Ernest Heaton was first heard. He asked the council to take an advertisement in the Commercial Hand Book of Canada. The city was anxious to secure factories, he said, and there was no guide book to be had by manufacturing houses wishing to locate in Canada. The book he was representing was also being issued in newspaper form with the technical parts omitted. Twenty thousand copies had been ofdered for distribution in Europe and an additional 10,000 copies in bound form would be circulated. Peterborough had taken a $5 "ad" before and Mr. Heaton believed better results would be derived if a more prominent display were secured in the book and paper. The town of Goderich through the direct instrumentality of the book, was now negotiating with two English firms and he believed it was likely to secure one of them. He suggested Peterborough's main street being illustrated in the book. On motion of Ald. Elliott and Bullar the matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

The Gas Co.

Mr. Larmonth was next heard in behalf of the Gas Company. He was accompanied by Mr. Peck, the Company's solicitor. The latter stated that they were present with reference to the little difference which exists between the city and the company as regards the opening up of streets by the latter for the purpose of laying their gas mains.

Mr. Peck stated that it was necessary for the gas company to open up streets in order to supply new customers who are being continually received. Both corporations should work in harmony. It was unjust Mr. Peck said, to deprive citizens of the use of gas when they desire to put it into their homes.

This would be the case he said if the company were not allowed to open the streets on which these residents live. No company would enter upon an agreement with the city under such conditions and Mr. Peck said it was not reasonable to expect the Gas Company to suffer it.

Ald. Turner said he considered that it was a want of common courtesy on the part of the Gas Company and if they requested the council for the right to open streets, not to begin work without notice, there would be no difficulty or trouble between the two corporations.

Ald. Phelan stated that he had never received notice as to when a street was to be opened.

Mr. Larmonth said that the company could tell in March what streets new mains were to be laid on, and could give notice that length of time ahead. For service into houses three days notice could be given and for leakages no notice at all. "People buy a gas stove in the morning and want gas connection in the afternoon Mr. Larmonth said."

Who Owns the City

The City Solicitor stated that the company seems to think that it has a perpetual franchise of the streets and the first thing that should be done was that they should give up that idea or settle the question in court. Mr. Hall then gave a history of the gas business in Peterborough. "The question is," he concluded, "did the present company get a perpetual franchise of the streets when the gas works was taken over."

Mr. Larmonth said that the company wished to be reasonable and to go to court would mean a useless cost to both parties. The franchise he said gave them authority to open any street they wished, but they would be willing to give notice of two months to the council in order not to be cutting up streets which the council had repaired.

Finally Ald. Morrow and Neill moved that Ald. Bradburn, Gillespie and Phelan with the City Solicitor confer with Mr. Larmouth and try and come to satisfactory agreement.

Ald. Morgan asked if this agreement would counteract the present state of affairs between the city and the company. In other words, he asked who owned the city, the Gas company or the city itself? We might as well know who's who now as well as later on" he said. It was felt that an amicable arrangement should be arrived at instead of court proceedings.

Mr. Larmouth agreed to open no more streets until he had conferred with the committee.

Public Abattoir

The abattoir question was passed along again to the Property Committee, who were authorized on motion of Ald. Bullar and Elliott to secure all the information necessary and to report at a later meeting of the council. It is likely that this question will be submitted to the people.

The public library question was introduced but no action was undertaken.

Regarding the isolation hospital, the Council is bent on taking some action or dismissing the matter for good. It was referred again to the Property Committee to bring in a report. It is suggested that a wooden building costing about $2,000 would be sufficient.

No action was taken for the present in regard to the increasing of the salaries of the assessors.

Other matters of less importance were discussed before adjourning.

A YOUNG LADY WHO PLAYED IN "CUPID AT VASSAR" NOW HERE

Miss Josephine Sproule of Baltimore, who is visiting her aunt, Mrs John Haggart, Brock street, played one of the important parts in Jules Murray's musical comedy, "Cupid at Vassar," during the past theatrical season. This successful humorous delineation of life in a lady's college met with most favourable criticism during the season and enjoyed a prosperous run. Miss Sproule had one of the leading roles, supporting Miss Florence Gear. The musical numbers possess the same dainty characteristics as the play itself, and several of them are popular hits. One of them is "The Poppy and the Pink," and another Miss Sproule herself sang. It is a waltz song entitled "I Only Want the Band to Play a Waltz for Me."

"Cupid at Vassar" commenced its run at Waterbury, Conn., on August 23, and played continuously on tour until June 1. The western, central, southern, and some of the eastern states were toured, and a short jaunt was taken into Canada, the company appearing in Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

This autumn Miss Gear will be seen in "Marrying Mary," and later in the season will bring out a new musical comedy which A. Baldwin Sloane is writing for her. Miss Sproule has not as yet decided upon her engagement during the coming season, but will return to New York the first week in August, when she will decide on her choice.

Aftermath Of Glorious Twelfth; Many Cases In The Police Court

As a result of incidents in connection with the Glorious 12th, yesterday, an over-crowded docket appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning and the city's finances received a boost of large proportions.

Geo. Taylor, of Hollyhill, pleaded guilty to assaulting Geo. Ridge, latter's ear being torn in the scrap. The Magistrate inflicted a fine of $5 to be paid in three days, and Taylor who is a farm labourer, promised to send the money down to-night.

Jas. O'Keefe, of Lindsay, pleaded guilty to a charge of inflicting damage upon a buggy belonging to Mr. G Walter Green. The latter testified that O'Keefe had driven his buggy against his own vehicle and smashed a wheel. It would cost $4.50 to repair the damage. The Magistrate fined O'Keefe $5 and costs and ordered him to pay Mr. Green $5, the whole amounting to $13.75.

Fred Conway pleaded not guilty to a charge of assaulting P. C. McIlarry in the discharge of his duty, and was remanded until this afternoon, as was Chas Steepe, who pleaded not guilty to a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

A local young man was fined $2 and costs amounting to $3.75, on a charge of being drunk and disorderly in the Dominion Chinese Cafe. The proprietors of the restaurant testified that the young man had used bad language and had threatened to hit them with chairs and dishes when he was refused a meal because he had not paid for others which he had there. The defendant contradicted the testimony but the fine was inflicted nevertheless.

Robt. Morrison pleaded guilty to being drunk yesterday and paid $2 with a shaky hand.

Joseph Smith, who said he hailed from Toronto, pleaded not guilty to a charge of vagrancy and was remanded until this afternoon.

Kate VanNorman, a young girl, pleaded not guilty to being a prostitute. She was arrested by P. C. McIlarry at 6 o'clock this morning at Burnham's Point in company with Joseph Smith and several other men who made their escape.

The Misses Luella Last of Toronto and Olive Anderson, of Lindsay, have returned home after visiting their friend Miss Sybil Kennedy, Sherbrooke street.

SUTHERLAND—ARMSTRONG

The formal announcement was made a few days ago of the marriage on July 6, of Mr. James Sutherland, Jr., son of Mr. James Sutherland, grocer, of this city, to Miss Louise Armstrong, daughter of Mr. James Armstrong, Hunter street. The wedding was solemnized by Rev. H. M. Manning, at the new Methodist parsonage, Crescent street. The bride was assisted by Miss E. J. Arnold, and Mr. H. E. Kemball acted as groomsman. The bride was very prettily attired in a cream poplin dress trimmed with rich white silk. She wore a wreath of white carnations in her hair and carried a bouquet of the same in her hand. The bride was the recipient of a number of valuable presents from her friends, by whom she was held in genuine esteem. After the event the wedding supper was partaken of at the home of the groom's parents on George street, where the newly-wedded couple will reside for the present.

WHICH IS THE BETTER ?

Mr. R L Borden presented a mass of figures to the House on Tuesday by which he attempted to prove that the cost to the country of the Grand Trunk Pacific would be $250,000,000.

Ever since this great national enterprise was entered upon by the Government with the distinct mandate of the people, the Conservative party has interposed objections, belittled the scheme, and created difficulties for the administration.

Obstructing National Enterprise

The obstruction to the enterprise has taken many forms. It was ridiculed, regarded as unnecessary, looked upon as an engineering impossibility. Then the obstruction took the form of alternate schemes and in this regard the Opposition were prolific in ideas. The last and most pernicious form of enmity to wards the undertaking is found in the estimate Mr. Borden now submits as the probable cost to the people before the railway is completed.

This latest attempt to embarrass the Government in the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific, is clearly aimed at the credit of the Government, and is designed to place difficulties in the way of raising capital for this vast undertaking, and in this regard the action is unpatriotic and unworthy a public man and leader of a great political party.

The value of any presentment by Mr. Borden of the cost of building this road, may be estimated after taking into consideration the historical fact that Mr. Borden entertained no less than nine different methods with regard to the building of the railway. They may be briefly described as follows:—

Borden s Patchwork Railway

1 To construct a railway from Coteau to Jacques Cartier Junction as a connecting link between the Intercolonial and the Canada Atlantic Railway.

2 To purchase the Canada Atlantic Railway.

3 To build a connecting link between the Western territories of the Canada Atlantic from Scotia Junction to Sudbury.

4. To buy that part of the C.P.R. from North Bay, around the shore of Lake Superior to Fort William.

5. To assist in improving the grades on the C.P.R. or the Canadian Northern or both from Fort William to Winnipeg.

6. To assist the Grand Trunk from Winnipeg to a point near Edmonton.

7. To build from Edmonton to the Pacific Coast.

8. To build a Colonization road from Quebec to Winnipeg.

9. To develop all the waterways and ports of Canada.

Involved Enormous Expenditure

This most extraordinary proposal, gravely presented to the House as an alternative policy to the Government's scheme, would necessitate the expenditure of over $160,000,000, in the acquisition of a patchwork batch of railways, joined together in places, by dinky roads upon which millions would have to be expended to bring them up to modern form. This was the Opposition idea of a National Transcontinental Railway. To prove that this was really the alternative scheme submitted by the Opposition extracts are given from Hansard in Mr. Borden's own words wherein he advocates everything alleged here. The numbers correspond with those given above.

Extracts From Borden's Speech

"1 and 2. If, however, the Canada Atlantic Railway commends itself to the judgment of experts and from what information I can obtain with regard to it, I should think it ought to commend itself, and I would think that the extension of the I.C.R. between Coteau and Jacques Cartier Junction, and the acquisition of the C.A.R. to Depot Harbour would place the I.C.R. in a much better position than it is at present." (1903, p. 8996.)

"3. I have suggested the extension of the I.C.R. to Georgian Bay:—If we acquired the C.A.R. we could build a line from that point to join the C.P.R. at or near Sudbury. By that means the I.C.R., besides being extended to Georgian Bay, could be joined by a line about 120 miles in length to the C.P.R. running north of Lake Superior." (1903, p. 8996.

"4. I say it would be a proper and wise thing for this Government to acquire that railway from North Bay to Fort William, and make it a national highway of Canada, giving to the Grand Trunk Pacific, the Canadian Northern and the I.C.R., as well as the C.P.R., running powers over it." (1903, p. 8999.)

"5. The third point which I would submit to the consideration of the House as a sound policy is to assist in improving the grades of one or both lines from Winnipeg to Fort William, upon conditions that complete control of rates is obtained, and that the Grand Trunk Railway shall have running powers from Fort William to Winnipeg." (1903, p. 9000.)

"6. The fourth point upon which I propose this policy is this, it will assist the Grand Trunk Pacific on reasonable terms. If they guarantee to build a line north of the Canadian Northern Railway, and as far West as Edmonton or some adjacent point." (1903, p. 9001.)

"7. At some point this side of the Rocky mountains there should be a common point, a junction between the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, from that on to the coast, there should be one line. This line should be built by these companies, by such an arrangement as would give them joint control. Should there be any difficulty in coming to such an arrangement the Government should build the line itself and maintain control, and give these railways for a term of years, running powers over it." (1903, p. 9001.)

"8. I have some doubt as to whether or not that great northern country can compete as early as we would desire, with the great western country. But I am not disposed to minimize its importance in any way, and to my mind the rational way of dealing with that road from Winnipeg to Quebec is this: To thoroughly explore and understand it, and then to build that line from Quebec to Winnipeg as a colonization road, according to the requirements of the people and as colonization demands." (1903, p. 1902.)

"9. Mr. Borden advocated thorough equipment of national water ways and lake ports." (1903, p. 1903.)

These verbatim quotations from Hansard prove that Mr. Borden seriously presented this as a proposition to solve the transportation problem of the West. What was this patchwork affair to cost the country?

Cost of Patchwork Scheme

Montreal to Coteau	$1,295,000
Purchase of Canada Atlantic	18,000,000
Scotia Junction to Sudbury	3,600,000
North Bay to Fort William, to be purchased from C. P. R.	38,040,000
Fort William to Winnipeg, to be purchased from C. P. R.	15,638,000
Fort William to Winnipeg, to be purchased from C. N. R.	16,625,000
Reducing grade on C.P.R.	3,000,000
Reducing grade on C.N.R.	1,500,000
Winnipeg to Edmonton	13,000,000
Edmonton to Pacific Coast	26,640,000
Colonization road, Quebec to Winnipeg	28,000,000
	$159,338,000

The mileage and cost have been based upon Opposition figures. It goes to prove that Mr. Borden was willing to commit the country to a scheme which, while it had not one redeeming feature, would have involved an expenditure of $160,000,000 of the people's money.

Liberals' Business-like Methods

Compare this crazy idea with the sound principle upon which the Government have proceeded to build a substantial new and modern railway from ocean to ocean. It is true that Mr. Borden said (Hansard, 1903, p. 1903):—

"The people of the country are not afraid of spending money, if it is spent in a sane and reasonable way."

Would the people regard such a patched-up railway as justifying the expenditure of $160,000,000?

Would this be regarded by the taxpayers of Canada as a sane and reasonable way of spending money?

Would the people prefer to pay this colossal sum for a portion of old railways and short pieces of new line, or would they rather put their money into an up-to-date railway which would open up new territory and greatly increase the value of the public domain?

Six Different Policies

Mr. Borden, for the Opposition, submitted six different policies in the hope of finding something to attract the people and offset the statesmanlike policy to which the Government was pledged. These policies might be described as follows:

1—In 1903 there were the water routes by lake, canal and river.

2—The extension of the Intercolonial Railway to Georgian Bay and thence to Winnipeg.

3—To give assistance to the Grand Trunk Pacific.

4—Control of rates in return for reasonable public aid; also the extension of the Intercolonial as a Government road, and free it from Government control.

5—The extension of the Intercolonial across the continent, "owned and controlled by the people."

6—To aid the Grand Trunk to build from North Bay to the Pacific as they wished.

All these policies, if they may be so described, were advocated by the Opposition from time to time, and through it all the Government remained steadfast to the business proposition to construct a new road from ocean to ocean through new territory not previously served by a railway, and thus strive to solve the great problem of transportation and carry out the will of the people as expressed in the general election of 1904.

National Advantages Secured

The National Transcontinental Railway, as it is now being constructed, will prove of inestimable advantage to the country as a whole. One cannot point out all the advantages in a limited space, but there are some prominent features it would be well to remember. It will be a great Imperial highway, shortening the distance between Great Britain and the East by hundreds of miles. A few comparisons will make this clear;

Table of Distances

	Miles.
Now, Liverpool to Quebec	2,632
Now, Quebec, to Vancouver	3,078
Now, Vancouver to Yokohama	4,335
Now, Liverpool to Yokohama	10,045

What Grand Trunk Pacific Does

	Miles.
Liverpool to Quebec	2,632
Quebec to Prince Rupert, about	3,025
Rupert to Yokohama, about	3,360
Liverpool to Yokohama	9,517

When the Grand Trunk Pacific is completed it will shorten the distance between Liverpool and Yokohama by 528 miles. The new railway will not only shorten the distance between British ports and the East, but it will place the large centres of Canadian production hundreds of miles nearer the East, and thus promote trade which will be additional to that now enjoyed.

Advantages which must weigh heavily in its favour are that an immense extent of new country will be made tributary to railway connection, and millions of acres of land will receive an increment of value by the mere presence of the road. Millions of acres will also possess a substantial value that are now regarded as worthless from a financial standpoint. The completion of the road will induce colonization and settlement over a vast area of country which is at the moment uninhabited, but which possesses all the advantages of land to the south now served by railway communication.

Money Spent in Canada

An important feature not to be disregarded is, that whatever the road costs a proportion of the money will be spent in actual labour and supplies. Men must be provided with tools and food. What these items alone amount to is something enormous. Then, again, the amount paid in wages is all money expended in Canada. These items will account in a large measure for the total cost. The rolling stock, $20,000,000 or so, will go far towards accounting for the balance.

The whole of this immense sum will be divided among Canadians resident here and making their living in the country. Mr. Borden's scheme meant millions of dollars for the pockets of rich shareholders in existing railroads who lived, many of them, out of the country.

The greater part of the money involved in Mr. Borden's scheme would pass from the pockets of the people to the pockets of corporations. The greater part of the money spent by this Government in the building and equipment of the National Transcontinental Railway will pass from the pockets of the people back again to pockets of the people in another form. In other words whether the railway costs $13,000,000 or $100,000,000, the money is kept in circulation in the country, and only a small proportion of it passes out of Canada. The people participate in the expenditure of a large amount of additional money which is brought into the country for the express purpose of building the railway, and upon this money the actual cost to the people will only be the comparative small amount of interest, while they will be in the enjoyment of the principal.

Cheap at any Price

The relief to the congested districts of the west will be very great. Last year millions of bushels of wheat were stacked up on the prairies, even the elevators could not accommodate the crops that could not be moved by the railways, and the loss to the producer was heavy. With the completion of this road will come instant relief, for the population of the west is constantly increasing and the crops will be correspondingly larger, and the burden upon existing railways will be heavier in proportion.

Then there is the feature of new land opened up for the settler, with the knowledge that having raised a crop he can get it to market. The railway is located with a view to opening up new territory, and into this territory will pour teeming thousands of homeseekers who will cultivate the land and give additional value to what remains of the public domain.

Mr. Borden's figures are absurd, but even if they were true an expenditure for such a purpose could be abundantly justified. The increased value to Government land from the building of this railway will offset the entire amount. Placing upon one side the paramount duty of the Government to expend the money of the people in the interests of the people, even if some additional debt were incurred, yet the conditions created by the presence of another transcontinental railway will add so much to the wealth of the country as a whole that the price paid for such prosperity may be regarded as money well spent.

No man presumes to think that the National Transcontinental will cost anything like the amount named by Mr. Borden, yet even at that price, with such a railway as the Government is building, it would be money well spent in comparison with Mr. Borden's idea of buying up old railways with difficult grades, and the acquisition of which would neither relieve the congested conditions of transportation nor open up any new territory.

People Endorsed the Scheme

Sir Wilfrid Laurier submitted his enterprise to the good sense of the Canadian people. He said he would stand or fall by their verdict, and the verdict was go ahead and build the road, the country requires it and demands it, and the question of cost is not so important as the question of building the road.

Mr. Borden was quite right when he said the people of this country are not afraid of spending money if it is spent in a sane and reasonable way, and there can be no objection urged to the enterprise now under construction upon the ground that the money is not being spent in a sane and reasonable way.

RESOLUTION PASSED AND NO DIVISION

Premier Explains Proposal to Extend Boundaries.

DEBATE IN THE HOUSE

Alteration Does Not Necessarily Mean Change In Representation — In a Masterly Speech Sir Wilfrid Laurier Outlines Claims of Provinces —Amendment by Macdonald of Pictou, N.S., Adopted.

Ottawa, July 14.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's resolution for the extension of the northern boundaries of Ontario, Manitoba and Quebec, of which notice was given a few days ago, was carried in the House yesterday afternoon without division. An amendment moved by Mr. Macdonald of Pictou, N.S., was accepted. It provides that legislation giving effect to the resolution shall not impair the representation of any Province in the House. This does away with the fear expressed by a number of Maritime Provinces representatives as to what might happen in respect to representation when in future the new territory became well populated. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's address in moving the resolution was a masterpiece. He outlined the respective claims of Ontario and Manitoba to the territory north of them.

Sir Wilfrid said the extension had been requested by Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba. There could be no new province to the north because Ungava was quite unfitted for agriculture, Northern Ontario was the same and so was part of the district to be added to Manitoba. The timber and mineral resources, while very promising, were uncertain.

The B. N. A. Act provided for the extension Manitoba would be compensated for new lands. Ungava was logically Quebec's. As it would bring no population, the possibility of the larger Quebec affecting the basis of representation was remote, but the attention of Quebec would be drawn to the objection.

In view of the Hudson Bay Railway, which made municipal and provincial organization along the route necessary, Manitoba was entitled to the privilege.

W. F. Maclean said that as one coming from the Province of Ontario, he wished to say that while that province did not get, by the proposition before the House, all the territory which it thinks it ought to get, it would accept that territory and the responsibilities that go with it.

The Premier said that a bill passed here would not bind Manitoba and the other provinces if they did not accept it.

As to the representation problem, Sir Wilfrid said it did not matter to Quebec whether she was or was not the pivotal province. If this standard did not work well another could be adopted. These annexations could not for many years affect the electoral unit.

If settlers should come in it would be possible to correct the injustice. It was not well to burden the resolution with further conditions. Final action would not take place till next year, and the Stanfield proposition could then be presented.

Mr. MacDonald (Pictou) said the whole question of representation would have to be dealt with by the Imperial Parliament, and anything done at Ottawa would be useless. He moved as an amendment to the amendment to add the following: "And that any legislation to be introduced to give effect to the foregoing nothing be done to impair the representation of any province in this House."

A difficulty, Sir Wilfrid said, had arisen between Ontario and Manitoba. Manitoba wanted an extension to the longitude of the Mississippi. Ontario wanted an extension to the Churchill river.

"We could not agree to the claim of Ontario for a very obvious reason," he said. This was the Hudson Bay Railway, with its terminus at Churchill. If Churchill, was the boundary there would be a town in both provinces. "A fair conclusion," was that the boundary should be fixed as now proposed along the height of land, beyond the Severn river, but this had been impracticable, as that height of land was met by another.

Manitoba gets 180,000 square miles. The present area is 70,732 miles. As to Quebec, the territory of Ungava is 180,000 miles water and 266,000 miles land. The Ontario territory, Sir Wilfrid thought, was 140,000.

R. L. Borden objected that the Premier had, after all, mentioned no terms, and quoted from The Winnipeg Free Press to the effect that the separate school problem would be left to negotiation. As to Ungava, part of it might have been reserved for addition to Newfoundland, when that island should enter confederation.

Mr. Fowler of King's said Quebec's basis of representation would undoubtedly be affected, and asked that the Maritime Provinces be granted their original proportion.

Hon. Mr. Fielding made the suggestion that Quebec should get no representation from the new territory, while Dr. Daniel (St. John) wondered why, if the new country was barren, it was yet good enough for the G.T.P.

Discussing the debate on the resolution at the afternoon sitting, Dr. Roche accused the Government of procrastination. A memorial of the Legislature of Manitoba, passed last session and presented to the House, left the Government without excuse for delay. Compliance with this resolution would have given Manitoba not only a port on Hudson Bay, but one on Lake Superior.

Exporters.

Trade dull, only two loads being reported as bought for export purposes, and they were said to be the best on the market, and bought by Brown and Wilkeson of Galt, at $5.60 to $5.80; bulls, $4.25 to $4.75. George Rowntree bought some 1300 lb. steers, stall fed, for butchers' purposes, at $5.45 per cwt.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, July 13.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards' West End Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending July 11, were 4914 cattle, 605 sheep and lambs, 3317 hogs and 382 calves, while the supply for local consumption this morning was 1900 cattle, 700 sheep and lambs, 800 hogs and 100 calves.

A few choice bulls weighing from 1500 to 1800 lbs each, were bought at 4¾c to 5¼c per lb. The extreme heat tended to check the demand from local and outside buyers for butchers' stock and trade was somewhat slow, even at the reduction in prices, as the quality of the stock offered was not up to the mark. There were no choice beeves on the market and the top figures realized for the best were 5¼c to 5⅝c and the lower grades sold from there down to 2¾c to 3c per lb.

A weaker feeling has developed in the market for sheep and prices are ½c to ¾c per lb. lower than a week ago on account of the very discouraging advices of late from European sources, where prices have scored a sharp decline to 9c to 10c per lb., as against 12c to 14c some two or three weeks ago, consequently the demand here for sheep has fallen off considerably for export account and the outside price now for choice stock is 3½c and the culls are selling at 3c to 3¼c per pound.

The local demand for spring lambs is good of which supplies are none too plentiful and prices are maintained at from $3.50 to $5 each. Receipts of calves have fallen off very much of late and the undertone to the market in consequence is stronger and for the quality of the stock coming forward $5 to $7 each is being paid.

The market for hogs has ruled much stronger since last Wednesday and prices have more than recovered the decline noted on that day, as they were 25c per cwt. higher this morning, which was due to a lighter run and the continued encouraging advices from foreign sources for Canadian bacon. The demand was good from packers and dealers and an active trade was done with sales of selected lots at $7 to $7.25 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, July 13.—Cattle—Receipts, 3000; prime and shipping, steady; others strong; prime steers, $4.50 to $7; shipping, $5.75 to $6.90; butchers', $4.75 to $6.25; heifers, $3.75 to $6; cows, $3 to $5.25; bulls, $3 to $4.60; stockers and heifers, $3.25 to $4.50; stock heifers, $3 to $3.50; fresh cows and springers, active, $2 to $3 higher, $20 to $56.

Veals—Receipts, 1000, active, 25c lower, $5 to $7.75.

Hogs—Receipts, 10,500; active, 10c to 15c higher. Heavy, $7.25 to $7.30; mixed, $7.25 to $7.35; yorkers, $6.75 to $7.30; pigs, $7 to $6.90; roughs, $5.75 to $6.10; stags, $4 to $4.50; dairies, $6.75 to $7.20.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 2000; active, 25c higher; lambs, $5.50 to $7.75; yearlings, $5.50 to $6; wethers, $4.25 to $4.50; ewes, $3.75 to $4; sheep, mixed, $3 to $4.75.

FIRE IN WARDNER, B.C.

An Entire Block Burned, Including the Central and Union Hotels.

Cranbrook, B.C., July 14.—An entire block including the Central and Union hotels at Wardner were destroyed by fire at 1 o'clock yesterday morning.

The fire started in an unoccupied room in the Union Hotel and is supposed to have been incendiary. Loss $100,000.

Damaged by Lightning.

Strathroy, July 14.—One of the severest electrical storms that has visited this section this season passed over here at 6.30 yesterday. The barn of Mrs. John Dubois, who lives about a mile west of town, was completely destroyed, and three horses killed by lightning. The barn also contained 21 tons of hay. The loss will be practically covered by insurance. The barn of Wm. Smith, 8th concession of Caradoc, was also struck, and immediately caught fire, and was burned before assistance could be summoned to extinguish the flames.

The storm was of short duration, but was the worst experienced in years while it lasted.

Traveler Injured.

Stouffville, July 14.—While W. B. Screaton, commercial traveler, of London, Ont., was being driven from Stouffville to Markham yesterday afternoon, he was met by an automobile in charge of a Mr. Poole of Toronto. The horse became frightened and the driver lost control. The buggy struck the fence, throwing the driver and Screaton out. Screaton sustained a compound fracture of the collarbone and other injuries. He was brought to Stouffville in the automobile and attended to by Dr. Sangster.

Fell From Pier and Drowned.

Chicago, July 14.—While 100 men and boys sat or stood within a comparatively few feet of her son and in sight of nearly 1,000 others, an unidentified woman fell from the north pier at the mouth of the Chicago river and drowned.

Although she screamed repeatedly for assistance, not a hand in the crowd that watched her was lifted to assist her.

Instead, gazers stole the woman's hat and purse, which she had placed on the pier beside her, and fled.

Died From Hiccoughs.

Chatham, July 14.—After an attack of hiccoughs, lasting only a few hours, Francis Commo of this city died yesterday.

He was apparently in the best of health until yesterday morning, when suddenly he commenced to hiccough. He passed from spasm into spasm until the afternoon, when in a particularly bad attack he passed away.

Mr. Commo was well-known in the city, where he has managed a grocery store for many years. He was born in Montreal.

London, July 14.—Viscount Middleton, Lord Strathcona and the Lord Mayor were a deputation who waited on the Prince of Wales, who consented to hand over the £10,000 collected in connection with the Quebec tercentenary to Canada. The House of Lords contributed £1,700, the Commons £300. Nine regiments which served under Wolfe, every boy at Eton, Harrow and Winchester subscribed.

Fire at Michigan Soo.

Sault Ste. Marie, July 14.—Fire following an explosion at the Michigan Soo destroyed Blumrosens department store and then spread to surrounding buildings, several of which were gutted. The loss is probably in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Baby Stopped Car Traffic.

Chicago, July 14.—Street car traffic in Washington street was brought to a standstill for half an hour yesterday, when Mrs. John Ruloff, a passenger on an Armitage avenue car, while passing the city hall, gave birth to a girl baby. The woman was on the way to a hospital, accompanied by a nurse.

Heading off a Risk

Gas is liable to puff out of the front door of any furnace unprovided for gas escape.

"Sunshine" Furnace has Automatic Gas Damper directly connected with smoke-pipe. Gas pressure always damper sufficiently for it to escape up chimney (see illustration), but heat doesn't escape.

What does "Sunshine" Gas Damper mean to "Sunshine" Furnace? Means protection to the furnace parts against evil effects of gas.

What does "Sunshine" Gas Damper mean to "Sunshine" householder? Means furnace can be operated without fear as to "puffing" gas; furnace can be left without doubt as to whereabouts of gas.

What does "Sunshine" Gas Damper mean to "Sunshine" coal account? It means, instead of owner with "ordinary furnace" fear having to keep check-draft indefinitely closed to "let off" gas—when there's two-thirds parts of heat-energy to one part of gas passing up chimney—draft can with all safety be opened, and coal saved for another day's duty.

Quaker Oats Employees Held Their Sixth Annual Outing

Between 400 and 500 Took a Delightful Trip to Cobourg ---Spent a Pleasant Day in the Pretty Lake Ontario Town

The Quaker Oats employees and their friends enjoyed their sixth annual outing on Saturday at the picturesque old lake town of Cobourg for the second time. The pleasant remembrances of the happy summer outing which they had enjoyed there three years ago made Cobourg a favourite in the running for a place for their sixth annual event. The popularity of the outings held under the auspices of our big city cereal industry in the past has spread and it was felt that to attend one there was a guarantee of a good jolly day, which the events on Saturday proved. This is the "growing time" for Quaker Oats, and from nearly every part of the Dominion comes the cheering story of the bright prospects and the abundant success that are crowning the efforts of the toilers who are building up our country's material greatness. We are going to have another good year. All the avenues of transportation are humming with preparations for the grain harvest. Factory and shop are getting ready to meet the increased demands that come to them, and Quaker Oats factories and mills are likely soon to be running all night as well as all day.

And this was the justification for one big day's combined outing by the employees of all the different departments before the stress and strain of the busy days coming.

With the "smile that won't come off," between four and five hundred excursionists boarded the train which left the Grand Trunk station at 9 10 Saturday morning. Married men with their wives and families, dapper single young men and bevies of single girls, mingled in the party. Conspicuous with their flimy summer muslin skirts and short-sleeve waists were the spry, coy bunches of sweethearts with their sweet-williams.

"A raven curl—a brown-eyed girl,
A form of sweet, enchanting grace;
Imperious mein—a very queen,
Withal a roguish, smiling face."

These all combined to make a splendid representation of the busy working life inside the many-storied walls of the American Cereal Company's big factories and mills.

It only took fifty minutes to reach Port Hope, the excursion train with the right of way for that hour, spun along at a lively clip without pulling up at a single station. Arriving at Cobourg the train was very thoughtfully run down past the station to King street. This proved a great convenience by shortening the walk to the park, especially of those carrying lunch baskets, etc. The park which runs down to the shore of Lake Ontario, is lapped by the big blue waves which come rolling in, and is fanned by the cool breeze off the lake. Here, under the bright, clear, blue sky, with the song of happy birds among the trees and the noise of the dancing waters, the excursionists reated. Men and women, who had turned their faces from the thronged city and the busy factory for a day, forgot their labours, and let their hearts glow under the touch of nature.

After dinner, an exciting afternoon's programme of sports and games was run off as follows:

Mrs. Daniel Manning, wife of the U S Secretary of the Treasury during the late President Cleveland's Administration, has taken apartments at the Arlington for the summer. Mrs. Manning was the lady commissioner from the State of New York to the Paris Exposition and was president of the Board of Lady managers of the Paris Exposition. She had the unique honour conferred upon her of Chevalier of the Legion of Honour of France.

Rev. Mr. Shorey, who is stationed in Cobourg, visited the grounds during the day and spent some time fraternizing with his Peterborough friends. Both he and his family are well. Mr. Shorey goes to the coast in September as a member of the Methodist Board.

Mrs. Affleck, nee Rockhart Kingdon, formerly of Peterborough, who has been residing in Cobourg, with her husband, who works in the car shops, and her friend Miss Thurston, of this city, were also in the park renewing old acquaintances.

Committee of Management

The representative committee to whom were entrusted the arrangements for the day's programme did their work in a very satisfactory manner. To their efforts the splendid success of the outing was largely due. The cool, suave secretary, Mr J E Sullivan, who was the most active of the bunch, discharged his duties with a "broad and brawn" characteristic of the Quaker Oats. He was well assisted by Messrs M J Kirn, J B Edwards, O C Callender, Geo Carruthers and others. The following is a complete list of the names of the executive—

Chairman—Mr W H Denham.

Judges of games and sports—Mr T H G Denne, Geo Carruthers, A Miller, J Kirn, W J Copp and E Pakenham.

Committee on Arrangements—Messrs G B Edwards, M J Kirn, Geo Carruthers, O C Callender, A Miller W Walsh, J E Sullivan, E Pakenham J Taylor, T J Grant.

Games and Sports—W E Perdue, J E Sullivan.

Basket Committee—Messrs C Gould M Serro, T Dineen.

The prizes for the different events were all good and were distributed to the lucky ones on the grounds.

Quaker Oats Granulations

The Citizens of Cobourg are quite hospital and the park accommodation which they afford is deserving of praise. Great pains was taken to show their appreciation of their visitors by having hot water ready and the tables and seats in the park in a clean, comfortable condition. The lake and the sandy beach had a great attraction for the younger portion of the party and boating and bathing were enjoyed to the full.

A stranger coming into the town is impressed by the large number of Americans present at this season of the year, and whose headquarters appear to be chiefly at the Arlington and Columbia Hotels. Many tourists are summering here, and one of their chief pleasures is automobiling.

The Cobourg Golf links are in excellent shape and are being well patronized. A ladies' bowling club is also proving popular.

Among popular Toronto folks who registered here during the week are Mr John Dick, Miss Dick and Mr D.

THE INITIATION OF NEW MEMBERS

Of the Sons of Scotland at Havelock on Friday Night

Friday evening the Camps from Peterborough, Campbellford and Madoc will visit Havelock to assist in the initiation services, and an enjoyable function will be held.

IN OLD TIMES

People Were Content to Take Things Easier Than Now

If our forefathers could behold the modern locomotives, automobiles, and electric cars, they would hold up their hands in astonishment.

The stage coach was fast enough then—people were more content to take things easy.

They used to be satisfied with any sort of a hair lotion that came along—if it did not prevent Baldness they thought it was because Baldness could not be prevented.

It's different now. People know that germs cause Baldness, and that Newbro's Herpicide kills the germ, thus curing Dandruff and preventing Baldness.

About 200 in Peterborough—Train Was Crowded.

Examiner Special

Omemee, July 13.—The Omemee L. O.L. attended divine service at the Methodist church last night and listened to an excellent sermon delivered by the Rev. Mr. McCullough.

About 200 went to Peterborough on the flyer this morning from Lindsay and Omemee.

No. 41 L.O.L., Emily, which had the 57th Band engaged for Emily District were left and could not get on board the train as expected, owing to the crowd.

Three fife and drum bands each numbering 12 members, went to Toronto to see the celebration on Saturday and came home well pleased.

Elected President Of The Chief Constable's Association

Chief Roszel Honoured at Fourth Annual Convention Held Last Week in Quebec—Delivered an Address at One of the Sessions

NEXT YEAR AT NIAGARA

Chief Roszel returned home Saturday night from Quebec where he had been attending the fourth annual convention of the Chief Constables' Association of Canada, which held its sessions on Wednesday and Thursday of last week. He had the honour of being appointed president. Chief Roszel's election was unanimous. He thanked the members for the honour they had conferred upon him, and thereby on the city which he represented.

There were about sixty chief constables present from all parts of Canada, even as far west as Vancouver. The occasion not only afforded the members of the association an opportunity of assembling to discuss matters which are claiming their attention every day, but it also enables them to form intimate friendships which materially strengthen the association. This is bound to result in a force extending through Canada which will unite in coping with crime. Chief Roszel had a very pleasant time, Chief Tradel of Quebec and the city officials doing all in their power to provide enjoyable features for the visitors.

Chief Roszel's Address

On Wednesday morning a series of addresses were given by prominent members of the association. Chief McCrea of Winnipeg dealt comprehensively with the subject, "Anarchy." Constable Mereweather of Wellington County spoke on "Police Administration in the Rural Districts," Chief McCaskill on "The Police and the Public," and Chief Roszel on "The Chief Constable." Peterborough's chief dealt as follows with his subject, which is commendably referred to by the Quebec press:

We have, at meetings of this association, discussed the constable and other subjects, and I wish to direct your attention to some considerations respecting a chief constable and some of the qualities required for that position. In doing so I will not attempt to draw any person's portrait.

A chief constable should have a good working knowledge of the general laws which it is his duty to enforce, and of the laws of the municipality in which he serves. It is not necessary that he should be so familiar with them that he could draw an information or an indictment, but he should carry in his mind sufficient information to enable him to know what is a violation of the law and how he should act upon seeing or learning of such a violation. Frequently action has to be decided upon quickly, and he must therefore have the requisite knowledge. He should consequently be able to read and construe law, have good judgment, and be able with coolness and rapidity to decide what action is judicious.

A Disciplinarian

A chief must, of course, be a good disciplinarian. A police force without discipline would be an injury to a community, and the head of the force should be a man of such a character and so conduct himself as to be respected by the men, and to enforce discipline without having to resort to any higher authority unless in exceptional cases.

A chief should set an example to the men in the manner of carrying out their duties, consequently he should possess all the qualities of a good constable in a high degree.

One of the characteristics of a good chief constable should be complete independence — an independence by which he would not become identified with any section of the community as opposed to any other section. This is a necessity in the administration of the law, whether as judge or constable, so that there shall be no suspicion of prejudice or ill-feeling in its administration. For that reason a chief should not identify himself with a political party. He no doubt, as an intelligent man, will have his views of political questions, but he should not be a partisan. Neither should he allow any personal influence to sway him in the discharge of his duty. All citizens, whether personal friends or not, whether rich or poor, prominent or obscure, should be alike to him. He should not be engaged in any other business; such interests might sometimes clash with his duty and interfere with its discharge. And he must be strictly law abiding, for unless he implicitly obeys the law himself he cannot effectively enforce its obedience with others.

It will be seen that a chief constable should be a man of good intelligence, fair education, sound judgment, a good disciplinarian, and perfectly independent, and should devote himself entirely to his duties, and consequently he should be well paid.

"Trial by Jury" was dealt with by Chief Inspector Archibald of Toronto and "Suspended Sentence" by Chief Genest, of Hull, Que.

Made a Presentation

On Wednesday afternoon the party visited the Montmorency Falls, where luncheon was partaken of at the Kent House. St. Anne de Beaupre was also visited. On Thursday afternoon a trip was made by boat to the scene of the Quebec bridge, which is now merely a mass of twisted iron. During this outing Chief Roszel was called upon to make a presentation of a gold-headed ebony walking cane on behalf of the association to Chief Bissonnette of Montreal. It was in recognition of the latter's fifty-five years' service in the cause of law and order. The president, in making the presentation, expressed the hope that Mr. Bissonnette might bear it proudly for many years to come.

Concluding Banquet

The function which terminated the convention was a banquet at the St. Louis Hotel. Chief Roszel, as president, sat at the right of Chief Tradel, who presided. His name was coupled with the toast, "The Chief Constables' Association of Canada." Chief Roszel made a splendid speech, part of which is reported as follows: "I think we have all also found that in meeting together and knowing each other we have gained new inspiration and an increased ambition to perform our important duties zealously and with care and judgment. There are thus two things gained from these meetings — two things which work together for the improvement of the constabulary of Canada — an increased knowledge of the work and how it should be performed, and an increased desire to carry out our duties in accordance with the law and for the benefit of the community."

SOME SPEECHES GIVEN BY ORANGEMEN

Meeting at Central Park After the Big Parade

The Orangemen's parade yesterday was by far the largest that was ever held in Peterborough. It took the procession almost an hour to pass one point and it was estimated that 8,000 followers of Prince William were in the walk. At the conclusion of the parade the Orangemen assembled at Central Park where speeches were delivered by several members of the order.

The chairman was Bro. W. H. G. Armstrong, County Master for West Peterborough. In his opening address he extended a welcome to all and hoped they would go home with pleasant memories of the day spent in Peterborough. The other speakers were Bro. T. B. Collins, Millbrook Past Grand Master Ontario East; Bro. R. H. Holland, Port Hope, Past Grand Master Ontario East; Bro. George McCartney, Grand Organizer Ontario East, and the Rev. A. H. Ben Oliel, of Millbrook.

The programme in the park ended by singing God Save the King.

The Orangemen then dispersed for supper and later left on the several trains for their homes.

THE CRYSTAL A POPULAR SPOT YESTERDAY

Many Visitors Delighted With Moving Pictures—New Films To-night

There were great crowds at the Crystal yesterday. That popular amusement house was filled almost all day long and those who attended saw a choice selection of pictures. A large hand piano at the front of the Crystal in the afternoon proved quite an attraction.

To-night Mr. Edwards is putting a new film in his picture machine, which is said to be one of the finest ever seen in Peterborough.

CRICKET CLUB GOODS STOLEN

The Club Wants Sheets and Tent Pins Returned

There disappeared from the Nicholls Oval on June 25 a large sheet 10x12 feet in dimensions and about a dozen tent pins, the property of the cricket club. On that date the Warkworth Cricket Club played here, and the goods were stolen afterwards. The cricketers are very desirous of having them returned, and if they are not their disappearance will be investigated. Common decency alone should result in their return.

LADIES OF ALL SAINTS' SUCCESSFUL

Provided Dinner and Tea to Crowds Yesterday

The Women's Guild of All Saints' Church is one of the most industrious and persevering organizations connected with that church. Yesterday the ladies served dinner and tea in the market hall, receiving $300. Over fifteen hundred people were fed and the ladies provided dinner and tea second to none in the city. They wish to thank the Melagama Tea Company for providing the tea which needed only the ladies to prepare it to give it the delectable flavour that was remarked. The Women's Guild is one of the best contributors to the building fund.

DOMINION BANK IS A SOLID INSTITUTION

An Increase in Profits for the Half Year —Fortified for the Grain Movement

The half-yearly statement of the Dominion Bank is a document of great encouragement and confirms the view that whether times are good or bad the shares of our well-founded Canadian banks are excellent investments. The profits are $323,384 for the six months ending June 30th, compared with $297,505 for the corresponding six months last year. The rate of earning on the average capital is 16.75 per cent., compared with 17.60 for the same period last year, the small decrease being due to the increase in capital.

While the deposits naturally show a decrease compared with June 30th, 1907, they show a gain of $700,000 compared with December 31, 1907.

It is when an examination is made of the cash reserves and quick assets that the bank's strong, strategic position is disclosed. It has $10,187,444 in cash reserves against $7,966,991 this time last year and $16,668,784 in quick assets against $14,573,746 in 1907. Commercial loans have been gradually reduced within the year from $35,595,066 to $28,683,160. Call loans have declined by $500,000 only. The bank is in good shape for its good service in moving the large portion of the western crop which falls to its share.

INSPECTION OF THE COMPOSITE COMPANY

Drilled for First Time in Double Rank—Leave for Quebec on Sunday

The Composite Company for Quebec was inspected last night by Major Clegg in the absence of Col. Stevenson. The Company looked smart and drilled for the first time in double rank. The Oliver equipment was fitted up for the first time since its issue and gave the men who tried it on a very martial appearance. The time of departure for Quebec has been changed from Saturday night until Sunday afternoon. They will go by special C.P.R. with the 91st Highlanders, Hamilton.

C.P.R. NORTHWEST EXCURSIONS

—The next Homeseekers' excursion leaves on Tuesday, July 21st, by special train, leaving Toronto at 2.00 p.m., carrying through colonist and tourist sleeping cars. To catch the special intending passengers should take morning trains to Toronto. C. P. R. excursions are run by the new Muskoka route, making a considerable saving in time, and the advantage of travelling by a through-car line, without trouble of transfers and possible delays, is obvious. The local C.P.R. agent will be glad to furnish free booklet giving rates and full particulars. Reports from the West indicate early crops this year, and within the next two or three weeks announcement will likely be made of the low rate Farm Labourers' Excursions. 2d-164

EMILY LODGE HAD THE 57TH REGIMENTAL BAND

The Emily Orangemen were in the city yesterday and in the procession were headed by twelve members of the 57th Regimental Band. It was a very noticeable fact that the band was always in tune and it received its due recognition from the crowds that looked on.

KING EDWARD OPENS THE OLYMPICS

Brilliant Gathering Marks Beginning of Olympic Contests.

HOW THE CANADIANS FARED

Athletes From All Over the World March Past Royal Box—Rainy Weather Almost Causes Alteration of Program — Makeshift Shelters Are Erected — Tait of Toronto Wins His Heat Easily.

London, July 14.—When the City of London awoke yesterday morning it seemed as though the English climate, which was so kind to the sports held earlier in the year, was trying to show the 2,000 athletes assembled here for the Olympic games how disagreeable it could be. The past fortnight of unsettled weather, which has been a terror to the visitors who have been trying to get in the best form for the great physical exertions to make during the next two weeks, was followed yesterday morning by a downpour of rain which threatened to postpone the opening of the Stadium at Shepherd's Bush. Temporary shelters, however, were quickly erected to minimize the effect of the storm, and the inauguration of the Olympic games was carried out according to program.

Shortly after 3 p.m. the royal box commenced to fill up, the early arrivals including the Crown Prince and the Crown Princess of Sweden and their children, the Crown Prince and the Crown Princess of Greece, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, and the Duke and Duchess of Argyle. Soon afterwards the playing of the National Anthem by a band of the Grenadier Guards announced the arrival of King Edward, Queen Alexandra and Princess Victoria, with their suites, who had been driven in state from Buckingham Palace.

Anglo-Saxons Last In Procession.

As the King entered the royal box a bugler gave a signal, the gates leading to the competitors' quarters flew open, and the athletes marched out under the banners of their respective nations. The procession was formed in apple pie order, Australia leading, with the exception that the English-speaking races came last. This latter section was led by the United States team, the British colonies being directly behind the Americans, and at the end the United Kingdom as hosts.

As the procession came into the Stadium each country received applause, that for America and the colonies being particularly enthusiastic, as the audience which braved the elements to witness the opening of the great games included large contingents from across the seas.

As the day advanced the downpour gave way to a drizzle, which, however, soon passed over, and as the time approached for the opening the sun came out occasionally, and with the assistance of a light breeze, brightened up the Stadium decorations.

Cheered the King.

The athletes, including the single representative from Turkey, having taken up positions facing the royal box, the Americans in the centre, flanked by the Canadians and the Englishmen, Lord Desborough marched up with members of the executive committee and said:

"Will Your Majesty graciously declare the Olympic games opened?"

In reply the King said:

"I declare the Olympic games of London open."

At the completion of this ceremony cheering broke out from all parts of the Stadium. After the demonstration had died down the athletes gave three cheers for His Majesty and then marched past the royal box.

The men made a splendid appearance, though unfortunately the weather prevented all of the competitors from coming out in the athletic costumes.

At the last moment a change was made in the order of events. The first and second heats of the 1,500 metres (1,639.5 yards) run were placed first, and both J. D. Lightbody of the Chicago Athletic Association and J. P. Sullivan of the Irish-American Athletic Club were drawn in the first, and Melvin W. Sheppard of the Irish-American Athletic Club and J. P. Halstead of the New York A. C., in the second heats respectively, and in fact there will be two Americans in most of the eight heats of this event, to be run.

Results of Heats.

The first heat of the 1,500 metres run was won by J. P. Sullivan, Irish-American A.C., J. D Lightbody, Chicago Athletic Association, was second. Meadows of Canada was third. Sullivan's time was 4.07 3-5. Lightbody ran this event in the Olympic games at St. Louis in 1904 in 4.06 2-5.

First heat, 1,500 metres—1, J. P. Sullivan, Irish American Club, New York; 2, J. P. Lightbody, Chicago University; 3, Meadows, Toronto. Time, 4 min., 7 3-5 sec.

The second heat of the 1,500 metres run was won by Melvin W. Sheppard of the Irish-American A. C. J. P. Halstead, New York Athletic Club, was second. Sheppard's time was 4.05, two-fifths of a second inside the Olympic record made by Lightbody at St. Louis in 1904.

Butterfield, the former mile champion of England, was third in this heat.

The third heat of the 1,500 metres run was won by N. F. Hallows of England. Lunghi of Italy was second. F. H. Riley of the Irish-American Athletic Club did not finish. Time 4.03 2-5. The fourth heat in the 1,500 metres run was won by Lucy of England. Time, 4.08 2-5. H. L. Coe of the University of Michigan finished second.

In the fifth heat of the 1,500 metres Jack Tait of Toronto won easily by 30 yards. Time, 4.12 1-5.

The sixth heat of the 1,500 metres run was won easily by J. E Deakin of England. Time 4.13 3-4.

H. A. Wilson of England won the seventh heat in 4.11 2-5. Galbraith of Toronto was third. Wilson won ridiculously easy in 4.10 2-5.

In the eighth heat F. F. Crawford of England won in 4.09 1-5.

Yankee Swimmers Unplaced.

London, July 14.—The 400 metres (437.2 yards) swimming event, which is second on the program, was won by Battersby, United Kingdom. Lastoress of Hungary was second, and L. Budd Goodwin, New York A. C., was third. Time, 5.48.

The second heat was won by Foster, England. Time 5.04 4-5.

The third heat was won easily by Tartakover.

In the three-mile handicap, Fitzgerald was unplaced. In the half-mile cycle, Morton was unplaced in his heat.

In the half-mile scratch cycle race, Anderson and McCarthy were beaten in their heats.

Quarter-mile handicap—Sebert, with a start of 11 yards, won his heat in 52 seconds.

In the 400 yards handicap, Sebert was sixth.

In the five-mile cycle scratch race, McCarthy, Andrews and Young were unplaced in their heats.

RIDES TO SAVE CHILD.

Doctor Makes Record Run From Montreal to Ottawa.

Montreal, July 14.—Dr. Jas. Bell of Montreal, formerly of Ottawa, rushing to the bedside of a sick child in order to save her life, made a record run between Montreal and Ottawa.

As there was no train within several hours, the doctor hired a special and within 15 minutes was pulling out of the C.P.R. station in a car attached to one of the company's best locomotives and with one of their best engineers at the throttle.

The special was given a clear line and made the run of 112 miles in 114 minutes.

Six Persons Injured.

Louisville, Ky., July 14.—Six persons, five of them well-known society people of Louisville, were seriously injured in an automobile accident early yesterday at Smithville.

The party started across a bridge over Salt river, not knowing that a portion of the structure was recently blown away by a storm. The automobile dashed 25 feet into the river, turning completely over.

In some miraculous manner one end of the car rested on an obstruction, thus preventing the party from being drowned.

Drowns on Honeymoon.

Vancouver, B.C., July 14.—Mrs. A. S. Sheppard, aged 20 years, bride of a young Calgary real estate man, on their honeymoon, with Miss Florine Anderson, aged 18, while in bathing got into a hole, and both were drowned in the sight of hundreds, despite efforts to save them.

Dr. R. C. Reed rescued his little companion. Letz Reed, and nearly lost his own life in an effort to save the victims. Mrs. Sheppard's frantic struggles hindered the rescuers.

Four Accidents In Galt.

Galt, July 14.—Four serious accidents are the record of casualties within the past 48 hours. John Cooper, digging a drain, was buried in a cave-in and severely injured internally. Moth Shaver fell from a 25-foot scaffold at Kirkwall and fractured his leg. Arch Clemens fell down an elevator shaft at the Victoria Wheel Works and broke his leg. Harry Deakin, playing baseball, slide while stealing a base and sustained a fractured ankle.

Prince Attends Court In Sec.

Berlin, July 14.—Prince Zu Eulenburg, who is being tried on a charge of perjury in connection with the scandals revealed last year by Maximilian Harden, the Berlin editor, rested on an ordinary hospital bed with Dr. Gennrich sitting at his side, during the court proceedings yesterday. Dr. Gennrich informed the court that the prince might be stricken with apoplexy.

BEATEN BY AN INHUMAN TRAMP

Mount Forest Woman Is Brutally Assaulted and Clubbed.

HIRED MAN IS ALSO BEATEN

Mrs. Henry Harper Goes to the Stable and Finds Man Who Knocks Her Down and Chases Her With a Club—Her Condition Is Serious—Hired Man Also Clubbed —Culprit's "Pal" Arrested.

Mount Forest, July 14. Yesterday morning about 8 o'clock Mrs. Henry Harper, living on a farm two miles from here, hearing a noise in the stables close by the house, went out to investigate, and on entering the stable was assaulted and most brutally beaten over the head and body by an unknown tramp, who apparently had been sleeping in the stable.

Mrs. Harper turned and ran towards the house, closely followed by the tramp, who dealt her several blows with a club he picked up and knocked her down three times.

Mrs. Harper's screaming drew the attention of her daughter, who was in the field, but as soon as the tramp saw her coming he quickly took to the woods. Mrs. Harper's daughter notified the hired man, who was also working in the field, and the hired man at once followed the tramp into the woods and found him hid in a pile of brush.

A desperate fight followed, the tramp giving the hired man a fearful beating and then going away.

Search parties were immediately sent out by the farmers round about, and a tramp was caught. He is a man who has been looking for work in the vicinity during the past few days. The police are holding him because he is thought to have been with the man who made the assault.

Mrs. Harper is in a serious condition.

Fire at Belleville.

Belleville, July 14.—A frame building owned by Mr. J. C. Lake, and used by H. McInnich as a blacksmith shop, was yesterday afternoon destroyed by fire, also a small frame building adjoining, used as a summer restaurant. The steamer Annie Lake, which was anchored nearby, also suffered to some extent. The loss amounted to $500 or $600, with no insurance. The fire originated in the blacksmith shop, and is supposed to have caught from a spark from the forge.

Three-Year-Old Boy Hanged.

St. Catharines, July 14.—A little three-year-old boy, son of David Radford of Westchester avenue, was accidentally hanged about 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

His neck was caught in the rope of a small swing tied to a fence, and the little fellow was strangled before his position was discovered.

Dr. McDonald was summoned, and pronounced life extinct.

Brantford Township Farmer Killed.

Brantford, July 14.—William Prouse, a middle-aged farmer, residing in Brantford Township, was killed at Cainsville yesterday morning. He went to the village to make purchases and later sat down on the Grand Trunk tracks. It is thought he had a fit, to which he was subject, and that while lying unconscious on the tracks he was run over by a train.

Jumps From Train; Loses Foot.

Owen Sound, July 14.—Joe Walker of Markdale was brought to the Owen Sound General Hospital yesterday with his left foot almost severed above the ankle. Walker was asleep on a C.P.R. train and woke up thinking the train had passed his destination. He jumped and fell between the wheels.

Steamer on the Rocks.

Montreal, July 14.—The steamer Portsmouth, bound from Barry to Quebec, which is ashore near Cape Chatte lighthouse, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, has on board a cargo of 3,700 tons of Welsh coal, the property of the British Admiralty, which is being sent to Quebec.

Walkerville Youth Drowns.

Windsor, July 14.—John Chapman, the 16-year-old son of William Chapman of Walkerville, was drowned in Detroit river opposite Belle Isle yesterday. He was scarcely able to swim and became frightened when he struck deep water.

BABY HAD DIARRHOEA FOR SEVEN WEEKS

Thousands of infants die annually who could be saved by the timely use of DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY.

"There can be no doubt about it. Sixty-three years experience has proved this sterling remedy to be the best for Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Colic, Cramps, Cholera Infantum, Cholera Morbus, Summer Complaint, and all bowel troubles in both children and adults.

Many of the imitations sold are positively dangerous, as they often check the diarrhoea too suddenly and cause inflammation.

Always insist on the genuine DR. FOWLER'S. Sold at all medicine dealers at 35 cents a bottle.

Mrs. A. B. De Marchand, Bath, N.B., writes: "My baby was troubled with Diarrhoea for nearly seven weeks. I tried three different doctors, but none of them could do her any good. I was advised to try DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY and less than half a bottle cured her."

SENT TO THE ROCKIES FOR HEALTH. RETURNED HOME TO DIE.

The following should inspire every one who is discouraged on account of continued ill health to give Psychine, THE GREATEST OF TONICS, a trial before giving up hope even though physician and friends think and say your case is hopeless. Mr. Alex. McRae, of Sault Ste Marie, says:—"I was failing every day and had to quit work. I lost 40 lbs. in a short time and was advised to go to the Rockies or the Coast. I tried them both with considerable expense but I got worse instead of better. All hope seemed to leave me and I decided to come home to die. I tried Psychine and since starting its use I have gained from 119 to 141 pounds. I am now a well man and I cannot say too much in praise of Psychine. The strongest recommendation would be weak in view of the fact that I believe it has saved my life. It is without doubt the best remedy for run-down conditions and weak lungs. I sincerely hope that you will continue your good work of saving run-down people and consumptive from the grave."

Psychine improves the appetite and generally tones up the system. We would like every family to try it FREE (see coupon).

Dear Sir,—We beg to acknowledge receipt of cheque for $2,500.00 in settlement of fire loss, Policy 8,645,879, Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company.

We note in connection with this settlement a most unusual feature. They are legally entitled to 1% of stated sum for payment prior to due date. No business man would for one moment question their right to this amount. But they do not take it. Instead they have purposely waived their priveleges and presented us with this additional amount.

We are gratified to note this remarkable action. To adjust and settle a loss within twelve days is noteworthy, but to add to this magnanimity in refusing to take advantage of their discount privileges places this company in a most favorable position.

We congratulate you upon representing a company of such superior standing.

Yours very truly,

PETES MADE HOME RUNS AND THINGS AGAINST LINDSAY; WON EASILY YESTERDAY

The Lindsay Wideawakes proved to be little more than a light lunch for the Petes in the exhibition game at Riverside Park yesterday and the locals won hands down. Two home runs, a triple and several doubles were some of the things they did to Cinnamon and Hopkins, who occupied the box for Lindsay. The Petes secured 15 hits, while the best the visitors could do with Clements and Hawkins was three hits.

Clements pitched the first four innings for the Petes and Hawkins finished it out, both proving puzzles to the visitors. Bill Cinnamon, who is supposed to be a "spit" ball pitcher, started in to pitch for the Lindsay aggregation and the Petes drove him to the stable in the fifth, hitting the ball all over the lot. The winners fielded snappily throughout, while the visitors had several costly slip-ups.

A large crowd, including many rooters from Lindsay, was on hand, and spectators seemed to enjoy the fray.

Edmunds scored for the Petes in the first innings, and another came in the third on a triple by Anderson and an error by Hopkins at second.

In the fifth Hawkins drove the ball to the creek for a homer. Murphy was safe on Dobson's error, and then Edmunds planted one in the same place as Hawkins and made the circuit. In the sixth two more were scored on O'Brien's single, Craig's sacrifice and Clements' two-bagger. Singles by Lawson and Anderson were responsible for one in the seventh, and in the eighth there was another on hits by Murphy and Maddock.

The visitors' only tally came in the fourth when Hopkins hit to left for two bases and scored on Cinnamon's sacrifice fly to Murphy.

"Fish" Mackrell of the Athletics umpired satisfactorily. The score follows:

Stacey And Harrison Won The Relay Walking Match

Only a small crowd turned out to the walking match in the Brock street rink last night, but those who were there saw a good night's sport. It was to have been a relay match Stacy against Harrison, Stevens, J. Spencely, Wilbert Spencely and Guerin, but Stacy who has been suffering with quinsy ever since the Lindsay walk, was in no condition to walk last night, and although he pluckily went on and did five miles. He was forced to leave the track and Jim Harrison took his place against the other three. Stacy was on long enough to show the crowd that he is a marvellous walker and the opinion was advanced that a race between Stacey and Hoagland would be a clinker.

W. Spencely was sent out for the first four miles against Stacey and the latter succeeded in gaining a lap on the local lad. Stevens started in at the fifth mile and when Stacey was forced to quit at the beginning of the sixth mile, Harrison took his place and Stevens remaining together for the latter four miles.

When Joe Spencely came on Harrison quickly increased his lead from one to four laps Guerin, the last walker, did not alter the result any, although he pressed Harrison hard. The race was brought to a close at the end of Guerin's fourth mile with Harrison four laps in the lead.

In the afternoon in the walk open to the County of Peterborough, Wilbert Spencely won by two laps, travelling 6 miles and 4 laps. Chas. Stevens was second with 6 miles, 2 laps, with Guerin and Joe Spencely were third and fourth respectively.

ANCIENT BABYLON.

It Was Only a Village Compared With Modern London.

Another historical lie has been nailed to the counter by the German Oriental society, which has been engaged recently in uncovering the ruins of ancient Babylon.

In its report, just published, it states that practically the whole area of the city has now been laid bare and the foundations of the inclosing wall traced throughout its entire length.

The space occupied by the city was barely one square mile as compared with London's seventy, and the buildings were plain, unpretentious structures of sun dried bricks. The famous wall was about thirty feet high by four miles long and was pierced by four gates.

Herodotus made this same wall fifty miles long and a hundred feet high, with 100 gates. But then these old historians were prone to exaggeration.

They gave the world to understand, for instance, that the Colossus of Rhodes bestrode the harbor with its feet so wide apart that an hour's hard rowing was necessary in order to pass from one to the other. As a matter of fact, the statue was not a striding one, and its height was 126 feet only as compared with the 150 feet of the statue of Liberty which dominates New York harbor.

And as it is with this, so it is with most of the other wonders of the ancient world. Pompey's pillar, for example, would be dwarfed if placed alongside the Nelson column. The Albert memorial, erected in Hyde park by Queen Victoria in memory of the prince consort, is larger and more splendid than the temple tomb built by Queen Artemisia at Halicarnassus in honor of her husband, Mausolus. A score of Ninevehs could be contained within the area of modern London, while the palace of Cyrus, which we were gravely assured was cemented with gold, was quite an ordinary edifice by comparison with, say, the new war office in Parliament street.—Pearson's Weekly.

THE MAD DUCHESS.

Lady Catherine Hyde and Her Eccentricities of Dress.

Lady Catherine Hyde was the third daughter of Henry, second earl of Rochester and fourth earl of Clarendon, and a great-granddaughter of Edward, the first and famous earl of Clarendon. • • • One of the strongest of her caprices was to be unlike other people, and she succeeded admirably in the attempt. Bolingbroke nicknamed her "La Singularite;" Horace Walpole, more bluntly, "the Mad Duchess." This oddity was specially displayed in her dress. In 1747, after a good deal of intriguing, she had obtained permission to appear again at court, and in 1763 Horace Walpole tells Lord Hertford that she presented herself there in a gown and petticoat of red flannel. Making all allowance for male ignorance on such a subject and Walpole's tendency to embroider a story, it is beyond doubt that she deliberately courted the peculiar in her costume. She was fond of wearing an apron and appeared in one at court after this garment had been forbidden at the royal drawing rooms. Her entrance being opposed by one of the lords in waiting, she tore it off, threw it in his face and walked on. Beau Nash on a similar occasion took the law into his own hands, for when she attempted to enter the ballroom at Bath wearing an apron he promptly stripped it off and threw it among the ladies' maids, observing that none but Abigails appeared in white aprons. It was her fancy as she grew older to disregard the changes of fashion and to adhere obstinately to the dress of her younger days. Her attire at times was so weird that Lord Cornbury wrote, "She has been called 'sir' upon the road above twenty times."—Nineteenth Century.

THE MARINER'S COMPASS.

Influences That Draw It From Its Allegiance to the Pole.

Nothing in the navigational equipment of a ship has been the subject of more anxious research or receives more jealous care than the mariner's compass.

The popular notion of the compass needle always pointing north and south is—well, more inaccurate than even popular notions usually are. Even under the most favorable conditions there are only certain places upon the surface of the [illegible] where the needle does point north and south, and it is quite safe to say that such conditions are never found on board of any ship.

But we must go further and say that no more unfavorable position could be found for a compass than on board of a modern steamship, which is a complicated mass of steel, all tending to draw the compass needle from its allegiance to the magnetic pole of the earth, warring influences which must needs be counteracted by all sorts of devices which hedge round the instrument by an invisible wall of conflicting currents of magnetism.

And as if this were not enough there are now huge dynamos to be reckoned with, producing electric currents for all sorts of purposes on board. In the midst of these mystic currents the poor little compass needle, upon which the mariner depends for his guide across the trackless deep, hangs suspended like one shrinking saint surrounded by legions of devils.

Martian Life Dying.

A sadder interest attaches to such existence—that it is, cosmically speaking, soon to pass away. To our eventual descendants life on Mars will no longer be something to scan and interpret. It will have lapsed beyond the hope of study or recall. Thus to us it takes on an added glamour from the fact that it has not long to last, for the process that brought it to its present pass must go on to the bitter end until the last spark of Martian life goes out. The drying up of the planet is certain to proceed until its surface can support no life at all. Slowly, but surely, time will snuff it out. When the last ember is thus extinguished the planet will roll a dead world through space, its evolutionary career forever ended.—Professor Lowell in Century.

Doctors' Bills.

Who, having obtained an honest bill for the medicine, will wish to have particulars of the doctor's "professional services?" Imagine a bill made up with such nicety as this: "To counting pulse, sixpence; to viewing tongue, threepence; to asking four questions (three irrelevant), fourpence; to telling patients to say 'ninety-nine,' eightpence; to medicine, 1s. 6d.; to bottle, twopence; to label, 1 penny; total, 3s. 6d."—Yorkshire Observer.

Lacked Relish.

A good many of the Sac and Fox Indians do not talk much, and when they are in a store and see something they want they pick it up and pay for it. When Tom Hall was keeping a drug store an Indian woman entered it and picked up a can of varnish and paid for it. A few weeks later the same woman was in again and Tom asked her if she wanted another can. She said no, they couldn't eat the can she had.

WHERE TO GO FOR A VACATION

District Passenger Agent McDonald, of the Grand Trunk Railway System, has just returned from a visit to the charming Ontario Resorts of Muskoka, Lake of Bays, and Algonquin Park, and also made a trip to Kawartha Lakes, and reports that hotels and boarding houses are rapidly filling up, and all indications point to a splendid season. If visitors to Ontario, and even citizens of this city, only realized what delightful places there are in the "Highlands of Ontario," and how easily accessible they are by the splendid service of the Grand Trunk Railway System, many more extra trains would be needed. The beautiful Royal Muskoka Hotel, the finest summer hotel in Canada, has made their rates, including meals and lodging from $3.00 to $4.00 per day, and accommodation at hundreds of other hotels and boarding houses at lower rates, may be obtained, a little farther north, the Lake of Bays has good hotels, viz., Ronville, WaWa, and Britannia, the Magnetawan River can take care of some. The Algonquin Park, 2,000 feet above sea level, has new hotl, the "Highland Inn," just opened, at moderate rates. Temagami Lakes, farther north, with its 1,400 Islands, good hotels and splendid fishing, will repay you for a visit. Still nearer, the pretty resorts of Lake Simcoe, Barrie, Abberley, Orillia, Jackson's Point and the Kawartha Lakes with its Fenelon Falls, Lindsay, Sturgeon Point and numerous boarding houses, on Stony Lake, are well worth a visit. Illustrated booklets free, and all information at Grand Trunk ticket offices, or address J D McDonald, D. P.A., Toronto. 5d-1t4

SOUR SONNETS OF A SOREHEAD

Readers who have become familiar with the verses of James P Haverson in the columns of Toronto Saturday Night and other journals will be glad to know that they are now obtainable in book form under the title, "Sour Sonnets of a Sorehead and Other Songs of the Street," (McLeod & Allen, Toronto, 50 cents.)

The book contains additional material relating to the hard-times troubles of the picturesque and slangy "sorehead," together with many new pieces, and is tastefully gotten up, with page decorations in colour. It is just such a clever book as one would put in his grip for a week-end trip, but it has something more to it than the usual amusing type of book and is in many ways a work to be reread, setting forth as it does the author's belief in the fact that wisdom is to be found in the utterances of folk in the lowly walks as well as in the words of those who do not have to use slang, or who could not if they tried. One of the things that are not in slang deals with a newsboy in his manner:

A frowsy cap on his tousled curls,
A ragged coat on his lithe young back,
Worn old shoes that flit about,
Dodging, trolly and passing hack—
These are the things that you do not see;
These are the things that are not worth while
Once you have caught in the sordid street
All the warmth of his glad young smile.
Daily he peddled his papers there,
Set in the heart of the city's strife,
Gaily smiling and debonair,
Selling the sordid tales of life,
Calling the news that will sell the sheet,
All I know is his morning smile
Brightens my day in the dingy street.

It is profusely illustrated with sketches by Fergus Kyle, whose conception of the sorehead appears on the cover. The author has acquired his knowledge of the types dealt with through his work as a daily newspaper writer, and the book is appropriately dedicated "to newspaper men" by "one of them." Since being issued it has attracted a good deal of attention, and a Boston publisher has brought out a large edition.

HISTORIC QUEBEC

Ancient and Modern and its Accommodation

An announcement of no small importance to those contemplating a trip to historic Quebec to witness the Tercentenary celebration has just been made by the passenger department of the Grand Trunk Railway System, to the effect that they are officially advised by the directors of the Tented City Company, Quebec, that there will be plenty of accommodation for visitors provided in the Tented City and elsewhere. This, together with the liberal excursion fares that are offered by the Grand Trunk Railway System and the comfort and despatch which passengers using that line are assured of, will no doubt be the means of enabling all, even those of limited means, of enjoying one of the best educational and pleasant outings that has heretofore been provided for them. For information regarding fares, train service, etc., inquire at any ticket office of the Grand Trunk Railway System. 1d164—1w

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

Hot milk is even better than boiling water for removing most stains.

Books keep better when exposed to the air than when shut up in a bookcase.

Pearl knife handles should be cleaned with a rag dipped in fine salt, then polished with chamois skin.

To clean a spice mill grind two tablespoonfuls of rice through the mill, and all traces of the spice will be removed.

Sprinkle salt or cloves on the shelves of pantries where ants are troublesome, for both are objectionable to these insects.

Paint stains on floors may be scoured off by soaking them for a little while in turpentine or benzine and then rubbing them with pumice stone or glass paper.

To remove feathers from one pillow to another, take a tin can with both ends melted out, or, better still, make a large pasteboard tube, tie or sew firmly an end in each pillow and shake feathers through.

Steep some tea leaves in water for an hour, then strain them out and use the liquid for washing the varnished wood. This decoction gives the woodwork a cleaner, fresher look than when washed with only soap and water.

For whitening boards or cleaning marble take half a pound each of soda, powdered chalk and powdered pumice stone, stir together in a small quantity of water and then add half a pound of soft soap. Mix together into a paste and use as soap with a scrubbing brush.

Put a little powdered pumice stone between the layers of a folded piece of soft muslin and stitch round the edges to prevent the powder from falling out. Rub lamp glasses or window panes with this dry cloth and they will be clean and sparkling almost immediately. Enough powder will remain in the cloth for use many times.

A HUSBAND CURE.

Kisses Do Not Compensate a Man For Poor Cooking.

A woman, discussing how to feed a husband, said she soon cured her husband of fussiness and faddiness about his food. She said that he had to take what he could get.

Now, why should he? His work and money buy every scrap of food which enters the home. It is the husband's right that he should have the food he likes best properly cooked and served on the table he bought, in the house whose rent he pays, by the wife to whom he gives a housekeeping allowance as a trust fund.

He strives his very best to support his family in comfort and some degree of luxury. His wife should strive her very best to lay out the money he intrusts her with so as to secure health, happiness and content in the home.

It is a very clear bargain between husband and wife. If a man is "grumpy" at meals there's usually something the matter with the meals. The sourest tempered male begins to smile when the savory scent of an appetizing dish rises like incense before the altar of his appetite.

Kisses and sentiment do not compensate a man for poor cooking and monotonous catering.

A Golf Outrage.

The Earl of Wemyss was on a Fife golf course on one occasion accompanied by an old caddie. His lordship got his ball on one occasion so near the hole that to play it was, as it appeared to him, superfluous. So he simply tipped it in with the toe of his boot.

The caddie revolted instanter, threw down the clubs and looked horrified. When he found words to speak it was to say, "Hang it, me lord, gowf's gowf!"

Satin Ashes.

Small Nellie read aloud from her Sunday school lesson as follows: "And the king of Nineveh covered himself with sackcloth and sat in ashes."

This was a puzzler, and finally she said, "Mamma, what kind of ashes is satin ashes?"—Chicago News.

DOG WATCHES SLEEPER OVERCOME BY DRINK

Chases the Men But Fair Sex Pass Unmolested

A remarkable instance of the instinct of the animal occurred last night at Victoria Park, where a man on whom wine had exerted its somniferous influence lay fast asleep. His dog was with him and therein lies the tale. Whenever a masculine figure came near, the canine followed him up until he had passed the danger line. A few who went too near the slumbering man were even hurried away, but the dog did not attempt to exert his power over the ladies or little children. They were allowed to go unmolested. The sagacious animal had evidently been in similar situations and used his reasoning powers in discriminating between the sexes.

ST. LUKE'S EXCURSION TO JUBILEE

The congregation and friends of St. Luke's church spent a most delightful time at their annual Sunday School excursion which was held yesterday to Jubilee Point. After dinner the sports commenced, which gave much amusement to all. The winners were as follows:

The home-trip was commenced at 5, the excursion reaching Peterborough at 8 o'clock.

NEW SEATS WANTED AT CENTRAL PARK

These Seeking Rest Find No Place There —Suggestion for Change

Many citizens are complaining that there are so few seats in Central Park. Only about four or five are available, they say, and these are invariably occupied by boys who are either engaged in smoking cigarettes or making as much noise as possible, so that no person has an opportunity of spending a minute in comfort. It is further stated that at Inverlea there are seats which are scarcely ever utilized, and it was suggested that if a transference is possible it might be made and would be appreciated.

LOST AD. RECOVERED VALUABLE GOLD WATCH

It is often a great surprise to a person who has lost his gold watch, his valuable dog, or his best girl, to have the loss recovered. But the surprise part of the affair is diminishing rapidly since the people have learned to advertise in the "Lost" ad. columns of the Examiner. It becomes a matter-of-fact affair to see them returned. A lost gold watch was advertised in the Examiner the other day, and the following morning the jewellery was waiting at the Examiner office for the owner.

Yesterday three insertions in the "want" columns for a janitor were ordered, but one did the necessary and the remainder were eliminated. The moral is very plain.

YOUNG HANLON HOWARD UPSET CANOE AT DARK ON RICE LAKE

Report was received in the city today of the narrow escape of Hanlon Howard from drowning in Rice Lake on Saturday night. He is the son of Madden Howard of Hiawatha and a brother of the late Ben. Howard, famous as a runner. On Saturday evening he was upset on Rice Lake while canoeing. He called loudly for help and his cries were answered by his father, and his uncle, Jim Howard. He was rescued from his danger, and did not suffer any ill effects. It is not known how the young man's canoe was upset. The time of the accident was in the evening, just at dusk.

ONE YEAR IN THE MERCER IS FATE OF KATE VAN NORMAN

Kate Van Norman, the young girl who was arrested at 6 o'clock yesterday morning at Burnham's Point by P C Meharry appeared before Magistrate Dumble on a charge of being a common prostitute and was sentenced to one year in the Mercer Reformatory Toronto. P C Meharry testified to finding her in company of Joseph Smith of Toronto, and also stated that her reputation was bad and that she had been seen late at night in questionable places. P C's Newball and Meaghen corroborated this testimony as to the girl's reputation and as there was no defence, the Magistrate imposed the above sentence. Smith who was arrested with the Van Norman girl was charged with vagrancy and pleaded not guilty. He informed the court that he had come down from Toronto to celebrate the Twelfth, and was allowed to go on condition that he would get out of town as soon as possible.

SEES INDIANS SKINNING DEAD BEASTS TO DRIVE AWAY HUNGER

Mr. C. E. Pratt, formerly of Lakefield, but who has been residing in Vernon, B.C., for some time, passed through Peterborough to-day en route for Lakefield. Mr. Pratt speaks enthusiastically of the beauty of the western country, but is not quite so enthusiastic over the agricultural prospects for the present year. He says that the country is suffering from the worst drought it has experienced for twenty years, and that although the fruit is in fairly good condition, all classes of vegetables are having a severe setback through lack of rain. Land in the Okanagan Valley, he says, is selling at from $200 to $250 an acre.

Mr. Pratt was a witness of the smash-up at Indian Head, when eighteen cars were splintered into matchwood and forty-eight horses and cattle were killed. He says that it was a most picturesque sight to watch the Indians skinning and cutting up the animals preparatory to taking them away.

RETURNS AFTER SIX MONTHS' RESIDENCE AT LAKE ABITIBI

Mr. Will Grady returned to the city on Monday last after spending the past six months at Lake Abitibi, where he has been employed by one of the contractors of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Mr. R. O'Brien of Peterborough, who also spent the winter at the northern lake, accompanied him as far as Cobalt on the return trip, and will likely be here in a couple of weeks.

Mr. Grady states that things are rapidly becoming more civilized at Lake Abitibi. Steamers are now running on the lake, and he was enabled to come part of the distance home on one of these boats. He was fifty miles from a railway, and mail was scarce, and more than welcome on that account.

While on his way home, Mr Grady spent a few days at Cobalt, being there when the recent raid upon the "blind pigs" was made. He met several Peterborough boys at Cobalt, among them Arthur Graham, son of Mr Geo. N. Graham of the Oriental, and John O'Brien, son of the Separate School Inspector, and M J. O'Brien, all of whom are doing well in the north.

Disturbance On Lindsay Train Returning Home Monday Night

A gentleman who was in Lindsay yesterday reports that on Monday night the train from Peterborough to that town had to be stopped on the way owing to a disturbance caused by inebriates in one of the cars. A number of men began to fight, and a scene of indescribable confusion resulted. Articles were thrown about the car, fists were used freely, and a general uproar was the result. The train is reported to have been stopped and one of the noisiest was locked in the baggage car.

A number of young men received injuries and several arrests were made. Mr. J. J. Irwin of the G.T.R. and Constable Foster had their hands full in endeavouring to quell the disturbance.

BICYCLE SMASHED BY A HACK; THE DRIVER APPEARS IN COURT

Augustus McDonald, a 16-year-old boy, appeared in police court this morning on a charge of damaging the property of Samuel J Anglesey to the extent of smashing his bicycle as a result of being run over by the team which McDonald was driving.

Anglesey testified that he was riding south on George street near the corner of Simcoe street shortly after 5 o'clock on Monday evening. He was on the west side of the street and near an express waggon also going south. The hack which McDonald was driving, came around the corner of Simcoe street and smashed into the witness, knocking him from his wheel, which was smashed beneath the horses' feet, while Anglesey leaped for the pole of the hack, succeeding in catching hold of it. He was dragged across the street before the horses were stopped. The wheel was badly wrecked. Anglesey testified that he was on the right-hand side of the street when struck, and other witnesses corroborated his testimony.

McDonald swore that he was on the east side of the car tracks, and hence on his right side of the street when the collision came, and that Anglesey had wheeled directly in front of his team as he was turning the corner.

The magistrate reserved judgment in the case for one week, advising Messrs. Lee and Cavanagh, who owned the hack, to recompense Mr. Anglesey for the damage to the wheel, as he considered they were liable.

PARTY WITHOUT POLICY.

The Conservative party seeks to gain power by a campaign of misrepresentation and slander. If there had been anything in the policy of the government that might be assailed with any hope of success it is reasonable to assume that the Conservative party would have directed their attack in such a direction. The fact that this is not done is an eloquent tribute to the government of the day.

With an election within measurable distance, the time has arrived for the appearance of the usual deluge of Conservative campaign literature. The country is being flooded with a distortion and misrepresentation of departmental dealings, the evident object of which is to deceive the people as to the true state of affairs, and the Conservatives hope to ride into power upon a wave of misrepresentation.

It is not expected of a party that is out of power, that it will circulate an account of the good things done by a Government in power, but, common honesty would at least suggest the propriety of at least stating the truth.

Misleading Campaign Literature

The Conservative party is guilty of a grave inconsistency in this regard. Their campaign of abuse and innuendo has culminated in the production and wide circulation under Parliamentary frank, of thousands of pamphlets which are designed particularly to conceal the true facts, and set up a false condition of affairs which does not, and never existed.

A flagrant case was brought to the attention of the House last week by Mr. Turriff, of Assiniboia.

When discussing the administration of timber affairs and the methods adopted with regard to the receipt of tenders, Mr. Foster said that the commissioner of Dominion lands (them Mr. Turriff) put them in his side pocket, retired to a dark and secluded room and having locked the door, proceeded to award the tenders.

To this statement Mr. Turriff gave a categorical denial under oath before the public accounts committee, and the official record, therefore, gave the flat negative to the allegation of Mr. Foster. Nothwithstanding this, Mr. Foster caused his speech containing the original charge to be printed by the thousand and given wide circulation throughout the country. Mr. Turriff raised the question on a point of privilege in the House, and characterized the speech as "bristling with statements that were absolutely false." He charged Mr. Foster to his face with having deliberately sent out a speech which he knew contained false statements as to facts.

Foster the Quibbler

What did Mr. Foster do? Did he express any regret for having placed a member of parliament in a false position before the country?

Did Mr. Foster, having admitted that he referred to Mr. Turriff when he stated what was proved to be untrue, make any attempt to stop the circulation of the false statement?

Did Mr. Foster adopt the manly and honourable course and promise to withdraw the untruth from public circulation?

He did none of these things, but he raised a quibble upon a point of order, and preferred to secure any little advantage the circulation of an untruth would give to his party, even at the expense of honesty and the respect of his fellow-members.

This is a sample of Conservative literature. Literature based upon the speeches of Mr. Foster, who of all men in the House has less right to speak to the people on moral ethics until he has cleared his own skirts of the charge laid upon his shoulders by the Royal Insurance Commission.

Of all men in the House Mr. Foster is the one who makes wholesale accusations of wrong-doing, and poses as one having the right to criticise the doings of others. When his shortcomings however are touched upon, he cringes at once and appeals to the protestion of the Speaker. He is absolutely callous as to the feelings of others, but is particularly susceptible when his own record as a public man is touched upon.

Mr. Foster has one thing to learn and he is slow to acquire the information—This is it. He seeks to gain power by attempts to prove the unworthiness of those who now govern—applying the same test to himself, he has long forfeited any right to the confidence of the people. A leopard cannot change his spots, neither can Mr. Foster be expected to set a higher standard for himself in the future than he has done in the past, and measured by that standard Mr. Foster comes far short of the measurement of a man who should be entrusted with the affairs of the people.

The people of Canada remember that Mr. Foster was, by his own evidence found guilty of employing the funds of the widows and orphans of the Foresters in a manner contrary to law. His only defence was that when the funds went into the Union Trust Company they ceased to belong to the Foresters. This was nothing but a quibble. It is true he formed a company for the purpose of concealing the funds but the Insurance Commissioners decided that they could follow the money wherever it went, and they did so with the result that Mr. Foster was discovered speculating with it under the guise of the Union Trust Company.

This is the man who expects the people of Canada to make him finance minister. The man who increased the public debt by millions when in office. The man who had to borrow money to pay the ordinary running expenses of the country. It would be a sorry day for Canada should the man who played such a conspicuous part in the nest of traitors, ever be placed again in a cabinet position.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Our contemporary, the Review, rises in its wrath to remark:

We are very much inclined to think that the Kingston Standard (Conservative) is a wolf in sheep's clothing. When it criticises Conservative journals in the way it does, so as to give ammunition at the right moment to "Grit" newspapers, it is time to say: "Save us from our friends." The party press does not want any of those patronizing airs from the Standard, we can assure it.

It is gratifying to learn that there is at least one Conservative journal willing to tell the truth sometimes, and that they are not all as bigoted as the Review and its amateur editor.

The time has come for the people to reflect upon Canadian political history and look at the respective records of the men who govern Canada now and men who governed once and desire office again. Men who make serious accusations against the present administration and have been found guilty of the same offences are not fit to hold office. These charges were proved against the Conservatives. they have only been alleged, and not proved, as against the Liberals. No member of the Conservative party has ever mustered up sufficient courage to make a definite charge against any member of the Liberal Government, and the policy of the Government has never been even seriously criticised. The people know this and are satisfied.

An example of direct and malicious misrepresentation in campaign literature is to be found in a document issued by the Conservatives. In this it is alleged that Mr. Jackson of Selkirk, Manitoba, owes his seat to the fact that a number of Conservatives were disfranchised. Mr. Jackson promptly hurled the falsehood back in the teeth of Mr. Foster when he uttered it in the House, and Mr. Foster took it back, he was forced into a position where quibbling was impossible. Although the statement was false, and Foster admitted it so to be yet it is repeated in campaign literature and sent broadcast, as if it were the truth. The Conservatives hope to gain power by deceit. How would the business of the people be conducted if placed in the hands of men who have such small regard for truth that they knowingly circulate falsehoods in their desire to injure political opponents?

CANOES GROUNDED ON THE ROCKS

Yankee Bonnet After Dark is Dangerous to Those Unacquainted With River

More than one instance of apparent ignorance of the river has been evidenced thus far this summer by persons running on the rocks at what is known as "Yankee Bonnet." This is a rather dangerous part of the river and especially after dark and only the best channel can be used. There have been many reports received of parties who have run up on the rocks and had to remain there until assistance was lent them by others. Last night a party of up-town young men in their launch rescued a canoe, or at least, pulled it back into the water.

"SHOW ME" PROOF

That is What Hyomei Will do in all Forms of Catarrh and Troubles of the Breathing Organs.

It's not a question of Hyomei having cured someone else, but will it reach your own particular case. If it's Cold in the head, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Pneumonia, Croup or any affection of the breathing organs, Wm. Madill says yes, and will refund the money if it fails. No other preparation for the same purpose can successfully do this, because the Hyomei system of treatment is different from anything else.

You simply breathe and inhale its medication in dry air form which destroys the germ life that causes oppressed breathing, Nasal Catarrh, Throat Irritation and Lung Troubles. It brings to these suffering organs the balsam-laden air they would get in the Pine and Eucalyptus forests. The air that stamps out Bronchial troubles.

The prince of entertainers, Marshal P. Wilder, says: Hyomei is easy to use, and swift to cure. It insures against coughs and colds. It gives you pure air and kills the germ of disease. It helps the voice.

NAMES OF DANCES

Not one person out of a thousand of those who glide, hop or stumble, as the case may be, over the polished surface of a dancing floor have any idea of the real meaning of the names of the dances or whence they came. Dancing in itself is as old as history—probably as old as man—but most of the dances we know to-day are of comparatively recent origin. The position taken by the dancers gives the name of the "quadrille" — literal English for "a little square" in the French tongue. From the French we get also "country dances" which, as a matter of fact, has no reference to rural frolics. "Contredanse," which has reference to the position of the couples, opposite each other, is readily corrupted into "country dance" | "The polka" is a Polish dance, the name being derived from the Bohemian word "pulka," meaning half, and refers to the half-step which occurs in this measure. The old-time, and stately "minuet" derives its name from the Latin "minutus—small, applying to the short steps peculiar to this dance. The "waltz" is German—"waltzen," meaning to revolve—the circular motion of the couple easily explaining the connection. The "reel" is suggestively obvious. "Jig" is, of course, from the French "gigue."

Suicide Was Toronto Man.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 15.—Positive identification of the body picked up in Niagara river off Fort Niagara on Sunday morning last has been made by R. A. Campbell of Pembroke, Ont., who when he looked upon the corpse yesterday pronounced it that of his brother-in-law, John A. McNab of No. 18 St. James street, Toronto.

Mr. Campbell stated that McNab had for a number of years resided at Buenos Ayres, South America, where he was very successful in his business and had accumulated quite a large fortune. Then reverses came and he lost the bulk of his money. Disheartened, he returned to his wife and one child in Toronto.

After a year there he came to Niagara a week ago and took his own life. His wife and son are in Pembroke.

Toronto, July 15.—At 6.45 last night a mighty blowing of whistles from the engine-house at the island shaft of the waterworks tunnel under the bay, from the tug boat and from the engine-house at the city shaft, announced to the world in general that what a little army of men had been working on for almost three years was practically accomplished.

The brick and cement work in the top and sides still remains to be done for some distance. After that is done the floor will have to be evened up and concreted before the tunnel is really finished. This, it is expected, will all be done by the end of September.

Corporation Contributions Limited.

Fairview, Lincoln, Neb., July 15.—The Democratic National committee, in executive session yesterday, adopted a resolution outlined as follows:

"No contribution shall be accepted from corporations; no contribution over $10,000 shall be accepted. All contributions over $100 will be made public Oct. 15. Thereafter immediate publication will be given. Contributions under $100 will not be published; no money will be received after Nov. 1.

Killed at Barn-Raising.

Chatham, July 15.—Rodger Hucksley, a well-to-do farmer of concession 6, Dover Township, was crushed beneath a falling stick of timber Monday afternoon while helping to raise a barn on his premises.

Four ribs were broken and his left lung was pierced. When taken from beneath the stick of timber he was unconscious. He was brought to the General Hospital in this city. Slight hopes are entertained for his recovery.

Wanted to Stay Out Late.

Windsor, July 15.—Henry Morden, a runaway lad, aged 15, hailing from London, Ont., was picked up in Detroit yesterday and sent back home. The youth skipped out because he refused to obey his mother's orders to be in the house at 8 o'clock each evening. In his travels he visited Brantford, St. Thomas and Port Huron before reaching this district.

Fourteen Outlaws Killed.

Manila, July 15.—Lieuts. Burr and Whitney, commanding a detachment of the constabulary, attacked and stormed Cota, on the Island of Mindanao, which was occupied by the outlaw Pyan on Friday last. Fourteen of the outlaws were killed and two guns captured.

Toronto, July 15.—The city solicitor's department yesterday received from the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board the order whereby Deer Park is annexed to the city.

WHERE TO GO FOR A VACATION

District Passenger Agent McDonald, of the Grand Trunk Railway System, has just returned from a visit to the charming Ontario Resorts of Muskoka, Lake of Bays, and Algonquin Park, and also made a trip to Kawartha Lakes, and reports that hotels and boarding houses are rapidly filling up, and all indications point to a splendid season. If visitors to Ontario, and even citizens of this city, only realized what delightful places there are in the "Highlands of Ontario," and how easily accessible they are by the splendid service of the Grand Trunk Railway System, many more extra trains would be needed. The beautiful Royal Muskoka Hotel, the finest summer hotel in Canada, has made their rates, including meals and lodging from $3.00 to $4.00 per day, and accommodation at hundreds of other hotels and boarding houses at lower rates, may be obtained, a little farther north, the Lake of Bays has good hotels, viz., Ronville, Wa-Wa, and Britannia, the Magnetawan River can take care of some. The Algonquin Park, 2,000 feet above sea level, has new hotl, the "Highland Inn," just opened, at moderate rates. Temagami Lakes, farther north, with its 1,400 Islands, good hotels and splendid fishing, will repay you for a visit. Still nearer, the pretty resorts of Lake Simcoe, Barrie, Atherley, Orillia, Jackson's Point and the Kawartha Lakes with its Fenelon Falls, Lindsay, Sturgeon Point and numerous boarding houses, on Stony Lake, are well worth a visit. Illustrated booklets free, and all information at Grand Trunk ticket offices, or address J. D. McDonald, D.P.A., Toronto. 5d-164

SCRAP AT STATION RESULTS IN TWO MEN BEING FINED

Chas. Sleeps of Campbellford, got into a row at the G. T. R. station when the Orangemen were going home on Monday night and proceeded to hammer the side of the car with somebody's head. Unfortunately for Charlie, officers Newhall and Meharry were on hand and he was arrested. Yesterday afternoon he informed Magistrate Dumble that he was guilty and was fined 45 and $3.75 costs.

The incident also got a Lindsay man into trouble. The latter was charged with assaulting P C Meharry The latter testified that the man from the banks of the Scugog had struck him twice on the head as he was bring Sleeps through the crowd at the station, whereupon he had him arrested too. P C Newhall also testified to the assault.

The Lindsay man, who is a foreman in a factory, said that he had felt someone shove him into the crowd and may have struck the officer. He did not know that he was a policeman until afterwards, as he was in civilian clothes.

The Magistrate imposed a fine of $5 to be paid in ten days.

C.P.R. NORTHWEST EXCURSIONS

—The next Homeseekers' excursion leaves on Tuesday, July 21st, by special train, leaving Toronto at 2.00 p.m., carrying through colonist and tourist sleeping cars. To catch the special intending passengers should take morning trains to Toronto. C. P.R. excursions are run by the new Muskoka route, making a considerable saving in time, and the advantage of travelling by a through-car line, without trouble of transfers and possible delays, is obvious. The local C.P.R. agent will be glad to furnish free booklet giving rates and full particulars. Reports from the West indicate early crops this year, and within the next two or three weeks announcement will likely be made of the low rate Farm Labourers' Excursions. 2d-165

The Report On The Alleged Defective School Plumbing

Also Important Report by Mr. Hill Providing for a New Schedule of Salaries for the Staff of the Collegiate Institute---Reason Thereof---Meeting of Board of Education Last Night

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE SALARIES ELSEWHERE

Hamilton — Principal, $2,500; staff assistants, $1,900, graded.

Ottawa—Principal, $2,600; staff assistants, $2,000, graded.

Toronto—There are a number of schools in Toronto — Highest, principal, $3,500; staff assistants, $2,200, graded down to $2,100, $1,800, and even lower. Other principals receive $2,700.

Owen Sound — Principal, $2,100; staff assistants, $700, graded.

Peterborough — Principal and Public School Inspector, $2,400 (maximum). Assistants, $1,700 graded.

The Public School Inspector in Toronto receives $4,000, and his assistants $3,000.

A special meeting of the Board of Education was held last night when two important reports were presented. One dealt with a salary schedule for the staff of the Collegiate Institute, the other was the report of the Special Committee appointed to investigate the plumbing in the Queen Alexandra School and the new Collegiate Institute buildings. This was the direct outcome of charges made by Mr. E R Stocker, regarding the work which Mr. C A J Duranceau, the plumbing contractor, had done.

The following members were present—Messrs. R Fair, chairman; Dumble, Ackerman, Robinson, Nelson, Crane, Hill and Hayes.

Mr. Hill's Report

Mr. Hill, as chairman of the Committee on Appointments presented his report. In explanation he stated that the city had now a splendid Collegiate Institute building, but it was particularly necessary that the staff of teachers be as efficient as possible. During the past three or four years when the Board advertised for new teachers it was with great difficulty that they were able to fill the vacancies on the staff. The reason was that the salaries were below those offered in other cities.

Several excellent teachers had severed their connections with the local staff because of the better inducements they were offered by other Boards. It was necessary therefore, Mr. Hill said, if we maintain the Collegiate Institute as the citizens desired it—with a thoroughly capable staff—that the salaries be increased to the amounts that were being paid elsewhere.

Mr. Hill's report was as follows:

Gentlemen,—During the past school year several changes have taken place on the public school staff. In almost all of these it was found possible to secure the services of experienced teachers holding first-class certificates, and this was made possible by the salaries which we pay our public school teachers.

In connection with the vacancies on our Collegiate staff, the condition of affairs has been quite different. We have found it very difficult to secure men of ability and successful teaching experience.

We shall soon have ready a magnificent new building with a very expensive equipment but these will be of little use unless we have along with them a strong staff of teachers.

The only possible way to secure and retain the services of such men and women is to offer salaries such as are being paid in the leading cities throughout the province.

Your committee would therefore recommend that the following schedule be adopted to take effect Sept. 1st, 1908:

Salary Schedule

Applicable to the staff of the Collegiate Institute and to the Public School Inspector:

(a)—Public School Inspector and Principal of the Collegiate Institute—Minimum, $1,800; yearly increase $100, until the maximum $2,300 is reached.

(b)—Specialists who are honour Graduates and in charge of a department—Minimum, $1,400; yearly increase $50, until the maximum $1,700 is reached.

(c)—Assistants and Commercial Specialists—Minimum, $1,100; yearly increase $50, until the maximum $1,400 is reached.

Respectfully submitted.

WM. HILL,
Chairman Committee Appointments.

On motion of Mr. Hill and Mr. Dumble, the report was adopted.

Plumbing Report

Mr. Dumble presented the report regarding the plumbing inspection and on his motion seconded by Mr. Crane, it was adopted, as follows:

Report on plumbing in King Edward VII. Public School and Queen Alexandra Public School, and Collegiate Institute:

Your committee appointed to inspect and report on the plumbing of the above named schools beg to report as follows:

King Edward VII School

The contract as to this school has been substantially complied with. The workmanship was, by Mr. W Meadows, the Toronto City Inspector, declared good.

It appears that Mr. Pringle and Mr. McGregor had a settlement, the result of which was to leave a balance yet due McGregor, of about $29. The matter of the sewer connection is yet open, the sewer being evidently imperfect, but it is not advisable to touch it until vacation, or until the city sewer is made good.

Queen Alexandra Public School

The plumbing in this school has never yet been finally passed and taken off the contractor's hands.

The committee found that in the closets there were six seats instead of seven as called for. The contractor provided the seats but the space available was not long enough for seven seats, and by the Architect's directions six seats were put in. This was no advantage to the contractor, six seats are quite sufficient for the school—a like number being in the boys' and girls' toilet rooms. The boys' urinal was made twelve feet long instead of ten feet as called for. We have directed the contractor to put covers on the seats as called for by the specifications.

The architect and chairman of the Building Committee found that one six-foot drinking fountain in each hall was sufficient. The contractor will give the board two on hand, they were actually put in and removed by direction.

All soil drains and vent pipes not according to specifications will, as to difference in weight, be allowed as a credit to the Board.

In the city bylaw of Toronto all vent pipes are medium weight—not extra heavy. Our contract for this school only calls for medium quality in soil and vent pipe stacks, and such they are.

The vent pipe in cellar lavatories extend up 15 feet into the old Smead Dowl smoke stack and there is splendid draft in it, securing good ventilation.

Several vents from lead pipes, which the workman entrusted with the plumbing, led from the side instead of from the top, have been changed by the contractor.

The water tests have been applied by the city inspector; the smoke test has also been applied and the work found perfectly tight.

All joints are wipe joints, and the entire work as completed is a good job.

The report of Mr. Meadows has been carefully considered, and the work considered in reference thereto, and changes suggested by the report to make work comply with specifications and city bylaw, have been cheerfully made by the contractor; some of the work done was better and more costly than called for by contract.

Collegiate Institute

The soil pipes below the floor were stripped and found "extra heavy" as called for.

The 4 inch and 3 inch soil and vent pipes above cellar floor are medium weight, such as are used under the city by-law in Toronto and Peterborough.

The rain water branches have been made to 5 inch as called for by contract.

In every respect the contract is being complied with by the contractor save that in the soil and vent pipes above the floor the pipes are medium weight instead of extra heavy, which is wholly unnecessary. The contractor allows for the difference in weight in all pipes.

Mr. Meadows reported the workmanship of the work then installed as good except where the foreman in charge of the work had connected some vent pipes from the side instead of from the top—these have been remedied.

In reference to all the work in all the schools your committee with pleasure report that good and satisfactory work has been done, save in a few particulars where the foreman was to blame, and as to these the contractors have made good.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

D. W. DUMBLE,
Chairman.

WANTS TO KNOW ABOUT HIS TAX BILL

Thinks They Should be Delivered Six Weeks Before Time of Payment

To the Editor,—I notice that bills are posted around the town over the signature of our tax collector, notifying the citizens that the first instalment of taxes is due on August 1st, and other information along that line. But have the tax bills been delivered? I, for one, have not received mine, and therefore do not know what amount I will have to hand out to our civic authorities for the privilege of being a ratepayer in our fair city. One thing I am sure of, however, and that is that the tax bill will be large enough. Should not the ratepayers have a few weeks grace in which to gather together the shekels? If taxes are due on August 1st, should the bills not be distributed at least six weeks previous?

LISTS ARE DEBATED IN THE COMMONS

Discussion on New Elections Bill Is Resumed in Commons.

AYLESWORTH IS ASSAILED

Minister of Justice Is the Victim of a Cruel Attack by Messrs. Foster and Boyce on Account of His Deafness—Double Liability Bill —Railroad Subsidies and Guarantee to C.N.R. Announced.

Ottawa, July 15.—The fight over the Dominion elections bill was renewed in a sort of half-hearted manner by the Opposition yesterday, when the Ontario members, who sit to the left of the Speaker, acting, presumably, on behalf of the Provincial Government, entered a series of protests against the provisions for the preparation and revision of voters' lists in the unorganized territory under the supervision of a board of judges. The objections offered were that Ontario was being unfairly discriminated against by the Dominion Government, that no case had been made out for the legislation and that provincial rights were being infringed. The criticism of the Opposition was very effectively disposed of by Hon. Mr. Paterson, who, in one of his vigorous speeches, pointed out that the question really was whether, in the unorganized districts where there were no municipal lists, the work of preparation and revision should be entrusted to judges or to the partisans of the Ontario Government. The suggestion made by Mr. Foster and other Conservative members, that the legislation was intended to assist Liberal candidates in New Ontario was, the Minister of Customs, declared, a reflection upon the judges which could not be entertained for a moment.

A feature of the debate was a personal attack by Messrs. Foster and Boyce on the Minister of Justice, whose deafness was made the subject of bitter reproach. Mr. Boyce, in deplorably bad taste, went the length of demanding Mr. Aylesworth's resignation because of his infirmity, but he was sharply taken to task by Mr. Leighton McCarthy, and properly rebuked by the Prime Minister. Eventually, after seven hours' discussion the contentious first clause was passed, and the remaining sections were then taken up.

The House of Commons adjourned at 2.15 yesterday morning, and when it resumed at 11 o'clock in the forenoon Hon. Mr. Aylesworth introduced a bill to amend the criminal code by repealing what is known as the double liability upon railway employes. The bill provides that they shall not be liable to prosecution other than under the criminal code. There is also a clause relating to the use of trading stamps, and the obtaining of credit by false pretences or fraud is made a criminal offence. The bill was read a first time.

The House then went into committee on the Dominion elections bill. Mr. Bristol opened the discussion by protesting against the clauses relating to the preparation and revision of the voters' lists in unorganized territory in Ontario. He declared that the legislation proposed was unwise, impolitic and unnecessary, and that it was a discrimination against Ontario. There was not a tittle of evidence that the lists used at the last provincial election in Ontario were unreasonable or improper in any respect, and he regarded the bill, so far as it affected Ontario, as an infringement of provincial rights.

Mr. Boyce also objected strongly to the provisions relating to New Ontario, and challenged Mr. Conmee to prove that there had been any irregularity in the preparation of the lists at the last provincial election. He also devoted some time to a criticism of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's speeches on the election bill, and promised to keep up his protests until the Prime Minister withdrew the objectionable provisions.

The railway subsidies for the current fiscal year were brought down in the Commons yesterday morning by the Hon. Geo. P. Graham. The list includes re-votes of subsidies granted last session to 26 railways, aggregating 1,678 miles, and new subsidies to 44 roads, aggregating a total length of about 2,150 miles. In addition there is a bond guarantee of $13,000 per mile for 609 miles of Canadian Northern Railway in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

The revotes, if all earned, would amount to a little over five millions and new subsidies to about six millions.

In addition, subsidies amounting to $800,000 for bridges are provided for.

The larger items among new subsidies are the following: For line of railway from Montreal to a point on the National Transcontinental Railway not exceeding 200 miles; to the G.T.P. for branch lines of railway from the line of the National Transcontinental Railway to Port Arthur and Fort William, not exceeding 230 miles; to Algoma Central and Hudson Bay Railway Co. for a line from Hawkesbury to Ottawa, not exceeding 90 miles; to the Canadian Pacific Railway for a line from Moose Jaw, in a northerly direction, not exceeding 123 miles.

In the Senate, Hon. Senator Ferguson, in submitting his questions yesterday, respecting the depletion in November and December last, of the Government reserves in gold, said his object was not to criticize the banks. The improvidence of the arrangement and its futility were the points he had to deal with. He had also to refer to the secrecy and misrepresentation which mystified the transaction. Sir Richard Cartwright's statement in the Senate on Dec. 2, that it was not intended to reduce the reserves to be held, may not have been intentional misrepresentation, but it misled the country. Mr. Fielding's statement in the Commons on June 18, that the reserves had never been diminished, was inaccurate and misleading.

In further support of his contention, and as showing that the gold went out of the country, he quoted from the monthly sworn returns of the banks and the official Government statement of circulation and specie that the gold reserves with the Government and the banks decreased $5,490,086, between Oct. 31 and Dec. 31.

In reply, Hon. Mr. Scott said there was not five million specie withdrawn from the federal treasury as result of orders-in-council to authorize the increase in the issue of Dominion notes to aid the grain movement last autumn.

WITNESS LURED AWAY.

Essex Constable Disappears on Eve of Liquor Prosecutions.

Windsor, July 15.—James Smyth, license inspector for South Essex, came to Windsor yesterday to secure the aid of provincial detectives in locating Constable Saunders of Essex, who, Smyth says, has been spirited away because he is due to-day to give material evidence at Amherstburg in the prosecution of several hotelmen for alleged infraction of the liquor laws. Last Saturday night Inspector Smyth, together with Constable Saunders and Chief Kimball of Leamington, swooped down on the Amherstburg hotels, catching four in the dragnet. Complaints were duly lodged and the cases set for Wednesday. Inspector Smyth has discovered, however, that Constable Saunders is missing.

"I found out that a man named Frank St. Louis came to Essex from Windsor and paid a visit to Saunders," said Inspector Smyth. "I am told that St. Louis wanted Saunders to go to Cleveland to assist in a detective case, "and that Saunders went."

Smyth resorted to a ruse to catch the hotelmen. He had Saunders precede him and the constable was in one bar when a tip came from Harrow that the inspector had left there in a rig for Amherstburg. Smyth may call the Harrow hotelman.

TERRORISM REIGNS IN ANCASTER

Temperance Farmers in Ancaster Victims of Firebugs.

TOMATO VINES DESTROYED

Several Prohibitionists Who Fought For Local Option Are Sufferers From Revenge of Their Enemies — Insurance Refused Because of the Threats—Carries $12,000 Insurance—Council Offers Reward.

Hamilton, July 15.—The farmers in the whole Township of Ancaster are terrorised by depredations committed, it is alleged, out of revenge, because of the carrying of local option. Some weeks ago the barns of J. J. Lyon and John Lewis had been burned and the barn of M. E. Burton had been set on fire. All are ardent temperance workers and took a leading part in the campaign for local option. They had all heard threats that they would be burned out on account of the part they had taken in the fight for local option.

Following these outrages some 516 tomato vines on the farm of John Lewis were destroyed Monday night. T. P. Laidman and A. M. Shaver and other farmers who fought hard for local option say they have heard threats that their buildings would be burned.

Laidman was refused insurance when he applied for more protection on account of threats made against him and Shaver has been forced to carry $12,000 insurance.

All the farmers told their story to the county council yesterday and evidence was produced showing that a veritable reign of terror exists in the township.

The county fathers, after criticizing the constables, decided to offer a reward of $500 for evidence leading to the arrest and conviction of the firebugs and $200 reward for evidence leading to the detection of those guilty of destroying the crops and personal property of the farmers.

Lovers Agree to Die.

New York, July 15.—Sweethearts from childhood, Veronica Meehan, 18 years old, and William Wild, 22, lie dying in Bellevue Hospital, as the result of a suicide agreement. The girl, a pretty stenographer, was shot twice in the head by Wild, who then turned the revolver on himself.

A letter found in Wild's pocket, addressed to Mrs. Meehan, told how the two had decided to die together. There was no signature to the letter, but a postscript: "I was not crazy when I did this; I was only insane like poor Harry Thaw."

The girl had been on an excursion, and when she returned with several girl friends in the evening, she met Wild. Walking a short distance from the party the two talked earnestly for a few moments, when suddenly Wild drew a revolver from his pocket and fired twice at his sweetheart. She fell to the sidewalk, and then the love-crazed youth fired two shots into his own head before he fell.

Head Crushed In Bridge.

Welland, July 15.—At 5.30 yesterday afternoon the young son of Alfred Parks, residing on Burgar street, while waiting for the canal bridge on Main street to close, had his head caught between the bridge and the iron approach, crushing the life out of him instantly.

Scholes' Opponent Beaten.

London, July 15.—(C.A.P.)—Blackstaffe, by beating Stuart six lengths in 10 minutes 2 seconds, qualified to represent Great Britain in the Olympic sculling competition.

Bolt Pierces His Head.

Lindsay, July 15.—M. J. Mulvihill, foreman of the G.T.R. bridge gang, with the gang was loading some large iron tiles on cars by means of a derrick operated by a stationary engine, at Victoria Junction. In some way the engine and derrick capsized, pinning Mr. Mulvihill beneath it.

A bolt on the boiler pierced the unfortunate man's head, causing almost instant death. Dr. Jeffery was called, but could do nothing. The deceased was about 45 years of age, and leaves a wife and family to mourn his untimely end.

Reputation Saves Him.

Woodstock, July 15.—E. M. Martin, the young man of South Norwich, who was recently arrested on the charge of making and uttering a forged note for $900, was set free on suspended sentence, and the young wife of accussed, appeared in the room and asked leniency of the court for the young man, who admitted his offence. On consideration of all the circumstances the judge permitted him to go on the condition that full restitution be made to the parties concerned.

Battleships Arrive.

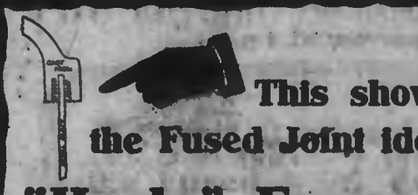
Quebec, July 15.—The advance British fleet for the tercentenary celebration swung majestically into the harbor at 7 o'clock last evening, and cast anchor in the river below the Citadel. There were five ships in the fleet, the battleships Exmouth, Albemarle, Russell and Duncan, and the cruiser Arrogant. The cruiser Venus did not come with the rest of the fleet, being still down the river, but will arrive later.

Dives Raided; $18,000 in Booty.

St. John, N.B., July 15.—At Calais Sturgis deputies made simultaneous descents upon six places where liquor was sold, and in every place the officers secured what they sought. Stands were stripped of everything, including glasses, pumps, mirrors, and slot machines. The booty of the raid amounted to about $18,000. Those in charge were arrested.

Prince Gets Old Horse.

Quebec, July 15.—"George," the mount used by the Prince of Wales in western Canada in 1901, in being brought down from Regina by the Northwest Mounted Police, at the request of the prince, who will use the steed during his stay here.



This shows the Fused Joint idea in "Hecla" Furnaces

No dust can escape through "Hecla" Fused Joints. They are absolutely tight and will remain so. That is what makes the "Hecla" the safest and most sanitary furnace to buy. It supplies only pure and fresh warm air, without a trace of gas or dust.

The "Hecla" is economical in the consumption of fuel. The Steel Ribbed (Patented) Fire Pots, which have twice as much radiating surface as any other style of fire pot, draw a great deal of heat from the fire that in other furnaces would be sent out of the chimney.

Our catalogue tells more about these and other exclusive features of "Hecla" construction. 59

Port Hope Plays The Petes Here On Saturday Afternoon Next

The Port Hope baseball team, always a stumbling block to the Petes will be here on Saturday afternoon to stack up against Cormy Burns and his merry men in a Midland League game that should prove a great contest. The team from the lake town generally give Peterborough a hard argument and succeeded in defeating the Johnstonites in a league fixture in Port Hope on Dominion Day, for which the Petes are anxious to exact revenge here on Saturday. With Denny McGuire of St. Mary's and Joe Hickey of the Park Nine the Hopers will be hard to beat and a great game should be seen.

The Petes management has decided to make a change in the tariff on prices. Henceforth the general admission to the grounds will be 15c, and a ticket can be purchased at the gate for 25c which will include admission to the grandstand.

LONGBOAT IS PICKED BY SHERRING

To Win Marathon—Canadian Runners Disabled

London, July 15. — Trainer "Billy" Sherring of the Canadian Olympic team has an article in the Daily Mail to-day, in which he picks Tom Longboat to win the Marathon on the 24th.

The English critics bank on Duncan, their champion 10 and 25 miler, but fear the Greek runner, Kautolakis.

Runners Break Down

Jack Caffery, the veteran Hamilton runner, has contracted rheumatism in the leg, and Frank Noseworthy of Montreal has strained a tendon in his leg. Both are Marathon runners, but will hardly be in shape for the big race.

Bricker off Color

Cal Bricker of Toronto, the Canadian broad jumper, is away off colour. The best he could do to-day in practice was 21 feet 6 inches.

R. C. Reed concedes Canada a chance only in the sprints.

Unlucky at the Traps

The Canadian trap-shooters lost the team competition through a fluke. The English team shot the first stage under ideal conditions, while the Canucks had a gale and a heavy rain to contend with. In the final they gained 10 out of a 12 minority, losing seven tying scores on questionable decisions. They should win the London shoot.

There is a big demand for Canadians for outside games.

WALTER JAYES' FINE PLAYING

Figures in Two Double Plays in North Carolina League

The Despatch of Wilmington, speaking of the work of Walter Jayes, nephew of Mr. John Jayes, city, who is playing for the Wilmington team in the North Carolina League, says: "Another feature of the game and which really assisted materially in winning the game was two double plays from Jayes to Kitt in which the clever little centre fielder covered himself with glory. Twice with men on third base did Kinston batsmen drive flies to deep centre field and Jayes each time made pretty catches, following them with lightning-like throws to Kitt at home plate, catching the runners both times when they attempted to score on the fly balls. His throwing was one of the prettiest exhibitions yet seen at League Park and Jayes was compelled to doff his cap each time in response to repeated cheering from the grandstand."

PORT HOPE HAS STRONG LINE-UP

Are Very Anxious to Beat Peterboros on Saturday.

One of the best games of the season will be seen here Saturday afternoon when the Petes will clash against Port Hope in a Midland League contest. The teams have broken even so far this season in league games, each winning one, and both are determined to win the rubber game. The Port Hopers, with O'Toole, last year with Grandview; Cruckler Dunn of London, Ont., Denny McGuire, captain of the St. Mary's, Toronto, and Joe Hickey of the Toronto Park Nine will be very strong, and the fans will see a battle royal.

The following players of the Wellington baseball team are requested to be at Nicholls Oval this evening at 6.45 o'clock to meet the West Ends: Patterson, Dickie, Henderson, Clithroe, S. Johnston, W Fallon, Russell, R Johnston, McCabe, O'Toole, Hawkins, Fitzpatrick, Kennealy Huard Primeau.

STRATHCONAS DEFEATED Y.M.C.A. LAST NIGHT

In four innings of a City League game at Nicholls Oval last night the Strathconas defeated the Y.M.C.A. nine, 9—6. It was a good exhibition although the cool weather that prevailed was not conducive to a stellar brand of baseball. It was considerable of a slugging match, the Y. M. C. A. having eight hits and the Strathconas seven for the four innings. Both teams got a run a piece in the first and second innings and then the Strathconas covered six tallies in the third. It was a bad period for the Y.M.C.A. nine, all the Strathcona men batting once during the innings, and one twice, Weatherstone. The Y's got two through good hitting in their half of the innings and got another pair in the fourth. The Straths got one more in the last innings.

"Jerry" Edmunds was umpire and gave every satisfaction.

The remaining five innings will be played to-morrow night.

LAWN TENNIS.

Last evening the ladies of St. John's A.Y.P.A. Tennis Club entertained the gentlemen members to tea at the Oval. Altogether about twenty-five ardent supporters of the club were on hand, and after tea some lively games were witnessed. The tea was served by Coleman Bros., whose catering is now so well known to all.

Members of the club are reminded that this evening, the 15th inst., is the last date for playing off the draws for the first round of the singles.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

A full practise of the T.A.S.S. ball team is called for to-night at 6.30 at the Charlotte street field. Everybody is requested to be out as the team still has a fighting chance for the lead. It is quite likely a trophy will be set up for second place so that will make things so much more interesting.

* * * *

Harry Young, who is one of Canada's representatives in the Olympic games, England, in the bicycle contests is an old Peterborough boy.

The remaining five innings of the Y.M.C.A.—Strathcona game will be played on Thursday evening at 6.30 o'clock.

A MAN FROM MANVERS HAS DISAPPEARED

Came to Peterboro to Celebrate Twelfth and Has Not Been Home

Wm. McMaster of Manvers came to the city Monday with one of the Orange lodges to celebrate the 12th and has not been home since. His friends have become uneasy and to-day his brother called at the police station to inquire if he had been seen. He knows of no reason why his brother should remain away, as he was expected home Monday night, and he thinks he must have gotten into some trouble.

An Enormous Blueberry Crop is Ready for Harvesting—Summer Girl, The Queen of the Lake

VISITORS ARE FLOCKING IN

Examiner Special

Stony Lake, July 15.—With everyone happy, loads of fun, summer girls seemingly innumerable, and seasonable weather, the days pass merrily on.

Of the many cottages on the lake, the number not inhabited is very few.

Considerable inconvenience was caused on Sunday and until noon on Monday by the "line of talk" being out of order between the main shore and Juniper Island shore. A lineman came up on Monday and repaired the break.

The blueberry crop is now ready for harvesting and is enormous. Many parties are taking advantage of the large crop and easily gathered fruit to "help out" with the store of supplies. The islands may be seen dotted with the sunbonnets of the pickers.

OBITUARY.

ANN MARIA CHERRETT

At one o'clock this afternoon Mrs. Ann Maria Cherrett, 428 Water street, passed away at the age of 75 years. She was born in England and on coming to Canada spent a number of years at Woodstock where her two sons, Edwin and Charles, now reside. She moved to Peterborough eight years ago and has resided here ever since. Her daughter, Miss Agnes, lived with her. Mrs. Cherrett was a faithful believer in the Christian Science faith. The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to the Little Lake Cemetery.

ELEVEN HOURS WITH THE STAGS DOWN THE WINDING OTONABEE

Some out-of-town visitors were on the steamer that carried the merry company of business and professional men down the Otonabee last Friday and one of them in a happy frame of mind has written the following—

What! Sir! Never did the Otonabee River trip, you say? Never scudded down to Rice Lake and back again with Peterborough's merchant princes? Lend me your ears, a la Brutus, or better a quill that I may give to posterity a sovereign antidote for milks. If Mons'r King, the medico, says your pulse will permit and "Doc" Hatton coonskins and loins your hip or ring cravat, tottel along on this perennial pleasure—not soon, but now, even if you go without the old guard.

The doctors credentialled for Friday last a healthy lot of jostling, jesting Britons, Franks and Celts; Greece sent a sprinter, your Uncle Sam was there and Russia's timber candidate did a stunt. These merry monarchs of the bartering business, with a fortunate few of the near-great, were off at 2 by all the clocks that were not running. We slid past amphibious boys and where the "lunge" is found through the aqua pura of Little Bay "just as easy" as peeling a bananna. I was under the chaperonage of the amiable and shapely Billy B——, who uncovered during the pilgrimage many an unctuous quip and kindly introduced me to the ring.

The Schooner "Ohad." was negotiating the jumps and missed a squeeze in the locks by a nose. In the crush on our craft someone asked "How long it would take a lady to eat a dish of icecream with a hat pin?" Steady Miss S S "Otonabee" donned fresh linen for the day and from witchful Cap. White down the gamut to that agreeable Scotchman in flannels at the engines all was precision and affability.

Swinging into midstream we did the serpentine and snake-entwine act sure, until beyond the great light at Sandy Hook. The optics of the tenderfoot begin to expand. We noted the "Hevidge" well tilled farms, and homes perched high. The bravest held his whist when we scrunged through Hale's Bridge and then a view of the boxwood hedge of the frog leg king's roost burst upon us.

Everywhere flew kingfishers, black birds and bob-o-links awthwart the landscape and each succeeding moment unfolded in panoramic fashion, an increasingly beautiful picture of placid stream and wooded slope. Cranes on the right and left irritated the sharpshooters without carbines and no license and they fell back content with stories of gigantic fish.

Conditions improved socially and things got busy. Australia had its exponent, who still loving Ontario, enlarged on the merits of Kangaroo-land to the tobacco leaf expert from Tennessee. Teeth tinkers mixed it up with the sticky fly paper man, the brewer prescribed for sawbones, and in every group it was, "Willie I hardly knowed ye." A very few engaged in the seductive game, "lost heir." The Kidd however, was on deck.

All repudiated that base employment labour under such circumstances, "with a shirt sticking to your back and the money sticking to the other fellow," and forthwith sauntered to the "kolo-kolo" counter.

The scene shifted continuously along the cork-screw course; tents, turtles, boats; more birds, followed by another batch of "Happy Burritt's stories", then presto, a fumigating cooling whiff from the bosom of that tranquil lake.

Genial Professor Ludwig McIlroy coaxed sweet and lively strains from the Steinway which tickled Clarke Brothers pedal extremities beyond control; they shook them well. The sport grew apace. 'Twas all hands round and those who couldn't dance at all were dancing with their slippers on." Oh such grace of movement, such bumping and dinge-ing of the anatomy! Surely Kris Kringle and Joey his pard, will not forget to wear bustles next time. Football was strenuously done by the company, but was not too dizzy to exclude the mesdames Armstrong, Giroux, Lynne, Rudkins, Lantar, &c, &c. and a bevy of debutantes.

A stout person christened "Mike" did high and lofty tumbling.

At the call to dine the cohorts advanced in unison; they did not even hesitate. What appetites; such good food and vigourous eating, and the comments—latter not chronicled. A sprinkling missed the fish and felt aggrieved, but dignity at the moment was a mockery.

That rosy, good natured "Mr Dooley," sometimes described as "Tooley" was the kernel of many fun bubbles, and as the medicine man in bloom at dinner, handled by that impresario and scribe, Mr. Hales, he bowled the awkward squads off their pins.

This aggregation of stags with horns in place reluctantly bade good night to the Island with agitations of emotion. Old "Solly" had laughed so violently at the monkey shines, he took his evening dip in the "brimy" with an awful red face, painting the ripening grain and peaceful rural neighbourhood with blushes—Oh me, Oh my.

Order, order—the golden voiced Mr Gough will accompany his educated feet and this he did in jig style, fully realizing the advanced notices. When that stalwart master of ceremonies with "tenor" aspirations whose name I have not, hushed the elbowing masses a mesmeric exponent forked out some elastic jabs and passes which mystified the concourse, but the meeting broke up in disorder and I fancy for a moment "Daniel thought he was again in the lion's den."

Mr. Meldrum's digestion was so good he enjoyed the humorous side of every breezy sally; he is a raconteur of new arrivals from the Scottish joke mill. Have him grind you out a sample—say, for instance—"getting a chance."

Mr Graham must be seen to be understood in that merry, musical antic to the time of the "pussey willow waltz." Bully boy. Too bad the anchor dropped on that soft corn which temporarily ruins the contour of his high instep.

As we steamed homeward the criticism brought to view along the banks, some gems in formation and colour with the inevitable canoe and lady momentarily silhouetted.

The entire 77 ere properly inoculated with the germ and the fun ceased not until the last ditch was reached. I attest the Merchants outing is synonymous with great enjoyment and friendliness.

Who else besides Dean Pousette could equal his musicianly accompaniment of the National Anthem.

Notices of Births, Marriages and Deaths, 25 cents each insertion in either the Daily or Weekly Examiner.

HALIBURTON IS FAMOUS FOR NEW EXPLOSIVES

Messrs. Oliver and Stevens Make Discovery—Crowds Witness Trial

Haliburton county is making itself famous for discoveries of new and wonderful high power explosives. Messrs. W. Oliver and A. Stevens of Gelert have discovered a new explosive which they have tried in the presence of large crowds, and the general verdict is that it has more power than anything they ever saw, is perfectly safe to handle—as safe as flour—and will burn without harm if fired in the open air. On Saturday evening they blew up a very large rock measuring about 9x7 feet with less than a quarter of a pound of the explosive placed in a 2 1-2 inch hole 12 inches deep, with only earth for packing to exclude the air. All that is necessary is to exclude the air and cause a spark to reach the charge when it is in place, and the results are wonderful. The compound is of a pinkish colour and looks very harmless.

Any person interested may call on the discoverers, who will be pleased to show what it is like and how it works.—Minden Echo.

Oats are placed at 90 with acreage 8,933,000 against 7,405,000 a year ago. The report will hereafter be issued monthly.

PECULIAR TRAVELS OF LIGHTNING

Takes Circuitous Route Through House Near Harwood

Harwood, July 16.—(special.)—During a severe electric storm, which passed over the vicinity of Harwood on Saturday morning last lightning struck the dwelling of Mr. Francis Johnston. Passing through the roof it entered the hall below, whence it turned, passing through the dining-room, thence to the kitchen, demolishing a cupboard and scattering the dishes in all directions. It then seemed to make its exit by the window, tearing off the casings as it did so. Mrs. Johnston, who was up at the time, had a narrow escape. Although not injured she was completely prostrated by the shock.

THANKSGIVING DAY TO BE CHANGED TO MONDAY

So Decides Dominion Government—It Assists Commercial Men

Thanksgiving Day this year will be held on a Monday instead of on Thursday, as formerly. The question came up yesterday in Parliament at Ottawa, and in reply to an inquiry by Mr. Kemp of Toronto, the Prime Minister announced that Thanksgiving Day this year will be held on a Monday. Representations in favour of a change from Thursday to Monday have been made from various organizations, especially from commercial travellers, and the latter have been officially informed of the intended change this year.

WIND TOO STRONG AFTER ONE ENGINE GAVE OUT

Steamer Has Some Difficulty in Getting Across Rice Lake

The steamer Otonabee had some difficulty in making the return trip across Rice Lake yesterday afternoon on the occasion of the Charlotte street Methodist Sunday School picnic to Lily Wyld. On leaving the wharf for home a coupling in the shaft of one of the twin propellers dropped out, leaving only the other propeller in use. The accident was one of those which are unforeseen and can scarcely be provided for. The Otonabee had to face a strong wind and tacked along towards Gore's Landing and then steamed north into the channel. In spite of the handicap, the boat made a determined effort to reach home in time and completed the trip in something over three hours.

On reaching the Peterborough wharf the Otonabee was taken to its dock at the East City landing where the repair was made and the boat is ready to make the Stony Lake trip to-morrow.

BEST OF THE SEASON

The Steamer Otonabee will run a special trip to Stoney Lake on Friday July 17th, Leaving Wolfe Stree wharf at 8 a.m. sharp, returning at 7.30 p.m. Return tickets 75cts. Children 40cts. 2d-165

AN EPIDEMIC OF SCARLET FEVER SPREADING AMONG FARM HORSES

Dr. Johnston States That He Has Attended Forty Horses in Last Ten Days—Two Died—A Few Cases in the City

STRANGE CIRCUMSTANCES

A strange and serious epidemic of typhoid fever has broken out among the horses in the country and a large number of cases have been reported and some fatalities.

(An Examiner reporter called upon Dr. Johnston this morning with a view to learning the nature of the outbreak.)

"This epidemic I first noticed," he said, "about a week ago Sunday and during the past ten or eleven days I have treated about forty cases, and have had two horses succumb. Both of these were in an advanced state when I was called and they died the same day I saw them. All the others are doing well, although there are some that are in a pretty bad shape."

A Strange Circumstance

A circumstance of a strange nature connected with the outbreak is the fact that there are few cases in the city.

"They seem to be all in the country, and at a distance further than five miles. I have not heard of one case" Dr Johnston said. He further stated that the epidemic seemed to be confined to a belt about five miles wide all around the city.

A Busy Time

"I've had a busy time of it since the outbreak and have had my hands full. I have not heard what the other veterinary surgeons in the city know of the epidemic. I've been in North Monaghan, South Douro and other places and symptoms are the same."

The first appearance of the fever is a dullness and loss of appetite in the animal. This continues for a few days. Diarrhoe sets in followed by lameness and stiffness of the limbs. Paralysis of the muscles of swallowing occur and a rapid emaciation ensues, the horse losing flesh in a short time. The animal's temperature is high.

The Cause

Dr. Johnston attributes the epidemic to the extreme heat. It sets up a derangement of the digestive system and the glands of the intestines become irritated, resulting in ulceration of the bowels. The outbreak is not quite so noticable as it was few days ago.

MR. S. J. SHERIDAN WAS IN WRECK OF COBALT EXPRESS; PASSENGERS NOT INJURED

Mr S J Sheridan, formerly proprietor of the roller rink here, who is in the city to-day, was a passenger on the south bound Cobalt train which was derailed by a spreading rail six miles north of Bradford, and in the wreck of which the engineer, fireman and express messenger were injured.

To the Examiner to-day Mr. Sheridan stated that it was a miracle that more were not hurt or killed. He was asleep in the second last car of the train when the accident occurred. He was awakened by the sudden stopping of the train and got up and dressed without realizing that a serious accident had taken place. On going out side he was astonished to find the engine broken up into scrap iron while the express car was upside down in a field, and all the cars were off the track with the exception of the last two. The track was furrowed like a ploughed field, while the ties were broken up and the rails twisted.

All the passengers escaped unhurt except for a slight shaking up. The coaches which left the track reclined to one side did not upset sufficiently to cause trouble. Garrett, the fireman and Meeking, the engineer, were rescued from beneath the over-turned engine and both were badly burned by steam.

Mr. Sheridan was returning from the Cobalt and Larder Lake districts where he has some claims which he was looking after.

Farmers In Midst Of Hay And Fall Wheat Harvesting; Crops In Splendid Condition

Mr. J J Allen of Douro, was in the city to-day and speaking to the Examiner gave some interesting news about the crops in the district in which he lives. The fall wheat, he says, will be almost all cut this week. The farmers are busy now dividing their attention between the cutting of the wheat and the harvesting of the hay.

Hay is not all cut yet but next week will see its finish. The crop is good. The farmers are delighted with the splendid fall wheat crop, which many of them claim, could not have been better.

Rye is a fair crop but there is not much of it grown. Some fields have been cut in Douro. Barley is ripening rapidly and it is expected will be cut next week. The crop is not extra good but much better than the farmers at first expected.

Oats that were sown early have headed out and they will most probably be a first rate crop. The later oats, however, need more rain before they will be of much use.

The root crop is progressing well, Mr. Allen states, considering the quantity of rain that has fallen. On the whole the crops in Douro and elsewhere are in splendid condition and the farmers have every reason to feel satisfied with the prospects.

A Quaint Journey By Sea In An Unsinkable Boat

London, Eng., July 16.—(Special.)—One of the most remarkable boats afloat, the Uraed, from Bergen, Norway, commanded by Captain Ole Brude, lies moored in the Thames, opposite the Houses of Parliament.

It is interesting for the following reasons:

It is shaped exactly like an egg.

It is impossible to sink it, short of smashing it to pieces.

It cannot capsize.

It can weather the roughest storm without shipping a pint of water.

It can be made airtight, and, if submerged for a short time, will rise again like a diving seagull.

It is a very small vessel, measuring about 14x6 feet, but Capt. Brude with a crew of two friends, has successfully crossed the North Sea in it, completing the journey from Bergen to London in 14 days.

The boat has seating accommodation for about 25 people, and may be launched in seas in which an ordinary ship's boat would not live for a moment. Its sliding keel prevents rolling or drifting.

Two manholes give entrance to the interior of the boat from the top, where there are a small railed-off deck and a lookout tower. The interior is very cosy.

Captain Blehr is enthusiastic over the boat. "It sails through the roughest seas," he remarked, "like a swan. If we left the manhole open in a hurricane we should not ship an ounce of water. The average speed of the boat is about six knots."

THOUSANDS OF FROGS FALL IN MONDAY'S RAINSTORM AT KEENE

Keene July 16.—(Special.) — Monday's rainstorm brought with it thousands of frogs, or, at any rate, they were not here before the rain and were very numerous immediately afterwards. They cannot be called a plague of frogs. They are instead rather a blessing to the angler as they provide bait and besides seem to bring lots of black and yellow bass into the river. Since the frogs came, good catches of bass have been made in the river.

The son is H C Bliss, M.D., of Cleveland, and the daughters are Mrs. C R Howell, of Omaha, and Miss Jennie Bliss, at home.

EDITORIAL NOTES

With an ever-increasing fleet of steamers, launches, boats and canoes, plying on the waters of the Otonabee, the danger to small craft is materially increasing. This was well exemplified last evening when two ladies, paddling a canoe in midstream in the vicinity of the Yankee Bonnet, found themselves suddenly wedged in by a couple of launches, running from opposite directions. Both motor boats were carrying lights, and the fault, if fault there was, was undoubtedly on the side of the ladies who would have been better advised if they had kept their frail craft in towards shore. The fact of the matter is, that paddling or rowing in midstream after dark, on the Otonabee is dangerous, for no matter how many lights may be carried by the different launches, unless each is equipped with a searchlight it is a practical impossibility for the naked eye to pierce the shadows that lie on certain reaches in the river. Launch owners, in order to avoid the weeds are obliged to keep in the steamboat channel. If skiff and canoe owners, who can paddle nearer in shore without detriment to their craft, would make a practice of doing so after nightfall such a close escape from an accident as was witnessed last night would not have to be recorded.

TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM.

(Brantford Expositor.)

The report of the president and chief engineer of the Montreal harbour commissioners on the result of their investigation of British and Continental ports, with a view to bringing about the further development of the port of Montreal, is being circulated by the commissioners in pamphlet form. It contains some valuable information in regard to the transportation problem, which, from a Canadian standpoint, is considered a most vital one, upon the development and efficiency of which depend the future prestige of our commerce. Attention is also called to the fact that within the next few years Canada will have three transcontinental railway lines from ocean to ocean within her own territory. Our canal system has provided a waterway from the great lakes to the head of ocean navigation at Montreal unequalled on this continent, giving a constant canal and river depth of fourteen feet. The only competing water route in the United States from the great lakes to the Atlantic is by way of the Erie Canal, which is but six feet deep, while the United States canal system is 345 miles in length as compared with the Canadian systems of 72 miles. Hence while the extreme cargo limit of the United States systems is 8,000 bushels, an unbroken cargo of 20,000 bushels, can be carried by the Canadian canal route.

Canadian enterprise has established from Montreal to the sea, by way of the St. Lawrence, a channel with an available depth of 30 feet, which is now actually in use by steamships of 12,000 tons, and in the course of about two years the channel will be available to Montreal for steamships of 18,000 tons. These waterways will be materially improved by the deepening of the Welland Canal or the building of a new waterway.

It is predicted that at the present rate of increase Canada during the present century will possess a population exceeding that now occupying the British Isles, and that if this country cultivates only one-quarter of its present wheat areas it will produce 800,000,000 bushels of wheat annually.

Two methods only of handling this ne business are considered possible—first, by increasing terminal facilities on Canadian soil; second, United States ports. The report therefore concludes that it is a national duty to equip Canadian sea terminals in keeping with the railway and commercial growth of the country, in order to preserve the national prestige of handling Canadian business through Canadian seaports.

The results of the development of water routes for freight are exhaustively dealt with in the report, which points out that very large expenditures have been made upon British and continental ports. For instance the city of London has spent $186,700,000. Liverpool $125,000,000. Manchester $90,000,000, Glasgow $40,000,000, Newcastle $80,000,000, Bristol $30,000,000, Cardiff $30,000,000, Antwerp $45,000,000, Hamburg $100,000,000, Rotterdam $33,000,000, Marseilles, $29,500,000 and Havre $24,000,000, but the returns have justified the expenditures.

The argument is advanced that in spite of the fact that Montreal is a thousand miles from the sea it is still a seaport, and that with a moderate expenditure it could be made one of the great shipping ports of the world.

What's the use of being bald? What sense is there in deliberately allowing your hair to turn gray?

Do you want to look old before your time? Give up the thought; old age will come all too soon.

Look after your hair. Parisian Sage will kill the dandruff germs, and is the only preparation, so far as we know, that is guaranteed to do so.

Why not go to Wm. Madill, corner of Hunter and George streets and get a large bottle to-day, it only costs 50 cents, and your money back if it does not cure dandruff, stop falling hair, or itching of the scalp. It will make your hair luxuriant, bright and beautiful, and it is the most refreshing, pleasant and invigorating hair dressing made.

THE Y.M.C.A. CAMP HAS OPENED

Boys are Now Enjoying Themselves at Beautiful Sandy Point

A number of boys left Wednesday morning by the Water Lily for the annual boys' camp at Sandy Point, Clear Lake. A small contingent from Port Hope went with the boys from the local association. None of the Lindsay boys were able to come yesterday, but it is expected that some will come in a day or two. A number went from here this morning, and it is expected a few more will go up to-morrow morning. The boys are all delighted with the camp, which makes quite an imposing appearance with its tents and cookery. A small addition has been added to the cookery, which serves as a pantry. Every arrangement is complete for the camp, and a pleasant and profitable time will be spent. Mr. Wright, the secretary, expects to go up again to-morrow. Any boys who wish to go may do so in his company. Call at the Y.M.C.A. for any information.

YOUNG'S POINT PEOPLE IN RUNAWAY

Have Narrow Escape From Serious Injury —How it Happened

Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Stuart and family of Young's Point, had a narrow escape from a serious accident one day last week. They were driving to Lakefield and had just alighted from the vehicle, when the horses bolted. The result was that the rig was badly smashed, the harness broken, and one of the horses so badly hurt that it may be found necessary to shoot it.

Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Stuart, and to be congratulated on having suffered no personal injury.

Emancipation of the Fat Folks

To have to sit through the hot weather quiet as a lot, scarcely daring to breathe simple because one is so fat that the least exertion will start the perspiration in a stream is not a very lively prospect. But it has been the lot of the fat since time began until now.

Fat folks have been emancipated from hot weather misery at last, by a home mixture; 1-2 ounce Marmola, 3-4 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, 4 3-4 ounces Syrup Simplex, of which they take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime until — which is not a very long time—they have lost all the fat they care to.

Simple and inexpensive (any druggist will fill it for a small sum, as this receipt is, the results it obtains are unexcelled. Some folks have lost as much as a pound a day within a week after starting. Yet, radical and delightful as such an effect is, there is no aftermath of wrinkles or stomach troubles; the mixture is harmless except to the fat itself.

THREE CANADIANS HAVE QUALIFIED

Galbraith, Meadows and Fitzgerald For Olympic 5-Mile.

LONGBOAT PROTEST TO-DAY

Americans Will Offer Objection of Irregular Presentation Against the Indian Runner—Canadian Team Drop Out of Relay Race—Britain Now Has Four Gold Medals and U. S. Two.

London, July 16.—Yesterday's program did not give Canada any great prominence in the Olympic games at the Stadium. They did not start in the team race, for which they were entered.

In his heat in the 100-kilometre bicycle, Anderson led for the first hour, covering 23 miles 1,200 yards. He dropped exhausted ten laps from the finish.

McCarthy punctured his tire, but remounted and caught the leaders, but was quite exhausted. Hanson of Sweden won. Time 2 hours 50 minutes 21 2-5 seconds.

In the second round of the 660 yards bicycle race, Andrews of Canada was fourth. He was beaten by two lengths. Johnson won. Time .50 1-5. Johnson eventually captured the final.

The weather held the crowd to 10,000.

The American protest of Longboat will be decided to-day. It is believed they will table it on the ground that it was not properly presented.

In the fourth heat of the five miles, Meadows of Canada was second. Murphy of England won easily. Time 25 minutes 50 seconds.

Canada did not compete in the team race.

In gymnastics, Keith of Toronto led his squad in four events of the six completed.

The gold medals went to Great Britain, France and Sweden as the winners of the finals of yesterday's events. Great Britain was a double winner and France and Sweden secured one first each. The United States had to be satisfied with one silver medal, symbolic of second place in the three-mile team race.

There were four finals assigned to the day, and of these England won the 660-yards cycling race and the three-mile team race, thus bringing the number of gold medals accredited to Great Britain to date up to four, as compared with two standing to the credit of the United States.

France captured her gold medal for a victory in the 2,000 metres tandem cycle race, and Sweden for Lemming's record-breaking javelin throw of 178 feet 7 1-2 inches, which topped the best previous throw by more than three feet.

Greece, France and Great Britain each gathered in a silver medal for seconds in the javelin throwing, 660-yards cycle race, and the 2,000 metres event respectively, while Norway, Germany and Sweden took the bronze medals in the same events.

The five-mile run, which is also down for Saturday, should prove a great race. The eliminating trials have left the following to fight it out for the championship: Svanberg and Landquist of Sweden, Hefferen of South Africa, Voight, Murphy, Robertson and Owen of England, Bellars and Carr of the United States, and Meadows, Fitzgerald and Galbraith of Canada.

Asquith Against Embargo.

London, July 16.—(C.A.P.)—A deputation waited on Premier Asquith yesterday asking the repeal of the cattle embargo.

Asquith said that if convinced live cattle could be admitted with safety he would favor the request. If an enquiry would serve any good purpose he would support one.

The Earl of Carrington, chairman of the agricultural committee, was present, and opposed the request.

The Mail declares no one now favors the embargo.

Constable Still Missing.

Windsor, July 16.—Three of the Amherstburg hotelmen, charged with violation of the liquor laws, pleaded guilty yesterday and were fined $40 and costs each. These were W. T. Gunn, Charles Thrasher and A. Lebert.

The case against George H. Holmes and his bartender had to be postponed on account of the absence of Constable Saunders, who assisted in securing evidence. License Inspector Smyth declares he will leave no stone unturned to locate the missing constable.

Steve Adams Acquitted.

Grand Junction, Col., July 16.—Steve Adams, member of the Western Federation of Miners, was yesterday afternoon acquitted of the murder of Arthur Collins. Adams' alleged confession of the crime was excluded as evidence by Judge Shackelford, and eight witnesses testified to an alibi for the accused man. Collins, who was manager of the Smuggler Union Mine at Telluride, was shot on the night of Nov. 19, 1902, while playing cards in his office.

Farmer Terribly Hurt.

Ingersoll, July 16.—While in the haymow Warren Simmons, a well-known Dereham farmer, met with a shocking accident. The hay fork dropped on him and he was nearly disemboweled. He may recover.

Ship's Boiler Explodes.

Yarmouth, N.S., July 16.—The explosion of a boiler on the Norwegian bark Ragna killed the carpenter and one seaman, blew one of the mate's legs from his body and scalded the fourth man.

Electricity Helps Wheat.

London, July 16.—(C.A.P.)—Sir O. Rodge, experimenting with the influence of electricity on corn growth, states that on an average an electrified acre yielded 35 1-2 bushels of Canadian red Fife wheat, while an unelectrified acre yielded 25 1-2 bushels.

Dead Chauffeur at Wheel.

New York, July 16.—Bicycle Policeman Carty saw an automobile with two men in its flash past him on Ocean Parkway late yesterday afternoon, and ordered the driver to slow down. When no attention was paid he gave chase. After a pursuit of many blocks he overtook it.

"You are under arrest," he said to the man sitting at the wheel. There was no response.

Carty climbed into the automobile and found the driver was dead. The other man in the machine was John DeLord of Jamaica, L.I. He managed to bring the automobile to a stop. The driver of the car, who had died during the chase, was Stephen W. Anderson of Brooklyn. He purchased the car he was driving earlier in the day, and this was the first time he had been out.

Bomb In New York.

New York, July 16.—A dynamite bomb exploding in the area way of a fashionable apartment house in West 140th street yesterday hurled scores of the occupants from their beds, shattered many windows and threw the tenants into a panic. No one was hurt.

Bank Clerks Burglars.

Brockville, July 16.—Three young men, two of them bank clerks, were brought before Magistrate Murphy yesterday morning and pleaded guilty to the theft of several hundred dollars from the G. T. R. express service. Two were released on bail, and the third was sent back to jail, but all will appear for sentence Saturday before Judge Reynolds in the County Court.

Their operations extended over a period of some months, but one of them leaving his hat in which a letter was addressed to his father, now on a visit to Scotland, gave the gang away, and the arrests followed.

Correspondent Captured.

London, July 16.—A correspondent of The Times at Tabris, under Tuesday's date, says:

"I arrived safely after some almost desperate vicissitudes, and find the situation here one of great gravity for the inhabitants, but there is no direct danger for Europeans. On my way to this city I myself was seized and carried four miles by Rachin Khan's horsemen, but was eventually released.

Desultry street fighting still continues, but the issues of this guerilla fighting are still indefinite."

Double Drowning at Halifax.

Halifax, July 16.—During a severe electrical storm yesterday afternoon a fatal boating accident occurred at the head of Halifax harbor. William Muir, aged 16, his sister Margaret, aged 12, and Una Roy, aged 17, were sailing in a dinghy. Muir and Miss Roy got entangled in the sailing gear and went down with the boat. Margaret was rescued in an unconscious condition, clinging to an oar, after being in the water an hour. Miss Roy was the daughter of J. H. Roy, a wealthy retired merchant.

TRAIN THIEF CAUGHT.

Negro Who Traveled Continually Blamed For Many Robberies.

North Bay, July 16.—The many mysterious robberies of passengers on C. P. R. trains west of North Bay during last month, which caused the railway company great annoyance, appear to have been solved in the arrest yesterday of a negro giving the name of Lamont.

Pinkerton Detective Murray of Boston has been working on the case for several weeks and chased Lamont to Moosejaw, his quarry doubling back from that point, and managing to elude the detective until yesterday, when C. P. R. Constable Williams nabbed him at North Bay and wired Detective Murray of capture. Murray identified the prisoner as the man wanted. Lamont has been traveling back and forth on night trains, sometimes displaying large sums of money, at other times being broke. When asked his reason for traveling so extensively, Lamont said he was just fishing. Several articles, including a ladies' purse, found on the prisoner indicate his connection with the train robberies.

Lamont was identified by C. P. R. officials as having made his headquarters at Schreiber, where he occasioned the company considerable trouble. Lamont was remanded to jail for eight adys. He has been under arrest at London and Toronto at various times.

COBALT SPECIAL WRECKED.

One Killed and Two Hurt In Derailment at Bradford.

Bradford, July 16.—The Grand Trunk Cobalt special, due here at 7.30 yesterday morning, was ditched six miles north of Bradford. Fireman Nelson Garrett of Barrie is dead and two others are injured.

The engine, baggage car, mail coach, two day coaches and two sleepers left the rails. The engine turned over on its side. The coaches bumped along the track, upsetting passengers from their seats and berths.

The injured men are Arthur Meeking, Barrie, the engineer, and Nathaniel Marshall, 83 Mutual street, Toronto, the express messenger. Garrett, who was badly scalded, died in the Barrie hospital later in the day. He was 22 years of age and unmarried.

Burglar Gets Five Years.

Port Hope, July 16.—John Malyea of Belleville was sentenced to five years' imprisonment by Magistrate Holland yesterday afternoon for attempt at burglary.

Early Tuesday morning Harold Corbett, a moulder at the Standard Ideal factory, discovered Malyea in his bedroom He pursued the intruder to the stairs, where the latter drew a revolver and threatened to shoot. Malyea had chloroformed the fierce collie dog, which was found in the dining-room. Malyea and James Whalen, a companion, also of Belleville, were arrested by Chief Bond. Whalen comes up for trial in the morning.

Plot to Kill Czar.

Berlin, July 16.—A news bureau received a private despatch from Sosnowice, Russian Poland, stating that a plot against the life of Emperor Nicholas has been discovered there.

The conspiracy, according to the despatch, was well planned, and had many ramifications. More than a hundred men and women were arrested at Sosnowice, charged with being implicated in the plot, and other arrests are pending.

Rain Worth $15,000,000.

Winnipeg, July 16.—Fifteen million dollars is the estimate W. B. Lanigan of the C. P. R. puts on the value of the rain which started falling throughout the three prairie provinces Tuesday.

He bases this on a five bushel an acre increase all the way round, or a total addition of 25,000,000 bushels to the crop, on a basis of 5,000,000 bushels seeded to wheat and at 60 cents per bushel.

Two Suffocated In Hole.

Lethbridge, July 16.—A double fatality occurred yesterday afternoon when two men, Fred Ruch, an Englishman, and George E. Thompson, from North Dakota, met sudden death by gas suffocation. A hole 30 feet deep had been sunk by the C. P. R. to test the foundation for a pier for the big bridge, and an abandoned entry at the Galt mine was found and work was discontinued on account of the gas.

Murderer Surrenders.

Montreal, July 16.—The man known as "crooked Neck" Smith, who shot and killed Eddie Lennox, a companion, in Chinatown, a couple of weeks ago, has given himself up.

He fled to New York after the murder, but detectives were so hot on his trail he finally decided to surrender. He arrive in Montreal last night and requested the clerk of the Russell House to telephone for the police.

Smith claims the shooting was done in self-defence, as Lennox had threatened to cut his throat.

Fires Threaten Pulpwood.

Sherbrooke, Que., July 16.—Forest fires in the vicinity of St. Elie d'Orford have assumed serious proportions and reached 900 cords of pulpwood, which will likely be destroyed. In immediate vicinity of the fire are some six thousand cords of peeled wood. Lumber camps have been destroyed, and the men are fighting the fire night and day.

Thanksgiving on a Monday.

Ottawa, July 16.—In reply to an enquiry by Mr. Kemp of Toronto, the Prime Minister announced that Thanksgiving Day this year will be held on Monday.

Representations in favor of a change from Thursday to Monday have been made from various organizations, especially from commercial travelers,

Shot Negro by Mistake.

Beaumont, Texas, July 16.—A posse of over 1,000 scoured the woods in this vicinity on Tuesday night in an effort to capture an unidentified negro, who attacked and beat into insensibility a 13-year-old white girl. They shot and killed an aged negro by mistake.

Furnace properly and carefully installed.

With great ease water is placed in water-pan, drafts opened and coal fire started. Fire soon burns up brightly, drafts are closed and check-draft opened. Immediately heat-power begins to penetrate dome and radiator surrounding dome. The incoming cold air immediately receives the energy of this heat-power, and by natural law ascends up the hot-air pipes, thence to rooms. No gas escapes into cellar or rooms because there is an automatic gas damper providing for its escape up the chimney.

III.

In the morning a gentle rocking of the lever removes all ashes from grates. No dust in operator's face, for he first opened damper into dust-pipe leading from ash-pit, then direct draft at smoke-pipe entrance, and all dust passed up dust-pipe to dome, then out chimney.

IV.

No need to shovel any ashes away. All nicely settled in ash-pan ready to be quickly and easily removed from pit. On coming upstairs operator finds that he requires no whisking off, and his wife don't scold him for "making everything white."

Operator is delighted. When asked the name of his furnace, he proudly said,

BOVINE HAD TO RECROSS THE RIVER

Goes Against Its Will—A Launch Party Witness Sport

A ludicrous episode was witnessed by a party in a launch down the river the other night a short distance below the Yankee Bonnet. In fact the scene was so amusing that the gasoline was turned off and the boat was allowed to rest on the water while the fun lasted.

One of the young cows in a herd belonging to an Otonabee farmer had swum across the river to hunt for greener pastures in North Monaghan. The farmer soon learned of the disappearance and went across. It was on the return voyage, that the trouble began. The cow refused to make the trip but the farmer and his assistants were more determined and finally the bovine was persuaded to join her friends again in Otonabee.

HALF THE FALL WHEAT CROP CUT

Farmers In The Midst of Their Harvest Around Peterborough

When overheated take a glass of iced "Salada" Tea. It will prove most refreshing. As delightful as a dip in the sea.

MERRY WIDOW HAT IN SONG

New Song Treats of the Good and Bad Qualities of the Big Hat

One of the song hits of the merry summer musical show, entitled "The Follies of 1908," which is breezily running along at the Jardin de Paris, New York Roof Garden, is "The Big Hat." The words are by Harry B Smith and the music by Maurice Levi. It burlesques the new hat in the following verses:

I

The Girls who have a passion
For following the fashion
Now carry all their burdens on their heads;
You see them out parading,
So gaily promenading
With hats about the size of folding beds.
There seems to be no limit
To things they use to trim it,
Whatever is the craziest will do;
They sing their Easter carols
In lids the size of barrels,
And then they stroll along Fifth Avenue.

Chorus

Big hats and bigger hats,
And the biggest hats of all;
The king of thing they wore last spring,
And the freak they'll wear next fall.
Hats with feathers, and fruits and flowers,
Of every hue and shade;
It's "Where did you get that hat?"
In the Easter Day parade.

II

When you go for a ramble
With Sadie, it's a gamble,
Her hat will reach half way across the street;
I saw a pair this morning,
Their two hats made an awning
That cast a shadow 'round for forty feet.
And if you go out riding
And try to get confiding,
To whisper love into her shell-like ear,
You'll find you'll need assistance,
You'll have to talk "long distance,"
The hat's so big, the girl you can't get near.

BAD STANDARD BANK BILLS FLOATING ABOUT

Many Have Been Worked Off on Toronto Store Keepers

Counterfeit ten-dollar bills of the Standard Bank of Canada have been very freely circulated the past few days in Toronto, and already about a dozen of them have found their way to the detective's office there. The bills have been turned into the department by keepers of small stores on Queen street west, where they were given in payment for small purchases by a young man who is busy passing them on unsuspecting citizens. While the police say they are very poor imitations of the genuine bill, no storekeeper has yet been found who has detected the bills and refused to take them. The counterfeit bills are all prints, are dated May 1, 1901, and are numbered either 160023, 21345 or 31024. An effort is being made by detective Moffatt to trace some of the bad money into the hands of the counterfeiters, who are believed to be making the notes somewhere in the vicinity or the city. The Standard Bank officials are also co-operating with the police in the attempts made to stop the circulation of the bad money and to arrest the counterfeiters.

Wholesale Destruction Of Insulators On The Canadian General Transmission Lines

Heavy Penalty May Be Imposed on Guilty Parties—Is A Dangerous Practice

MR. DUMBLE'S STATEMENT

The Canadian General Electric Co. have been having considerable trouble by reason of the breaking of insulators on their transmission line, presumably by mischievous boys with sling shots or rifles. Two months ago the company had to replace some thirty or forty, two weeks ago fourteen, and last week in three days seventeen more were destroyed. On account of the breaking of the insulators the lines short circuited and some departments in the C. G. E. had to close down until repairs were made.

Mr E G Patterson, the superintendent, has written to Mr D W Dumble police magistrate with a view to pointing out not only the destruction but the danger existing in such wanton work and the nature of the punishment in case of conviction. In part Mr Patterson wrote:—

"People who do this do not realize that they are causing us great loss when they shut us down, and the most serious thing I fancy would be that when a short circuit occurs and a line burns off, drops and hangs and a person comes in contact with it, it means sure death."

In response Mr. Dumble answered as follows, pointing out the nature of the penalty that might be meted out to offenders convicted of such an act—

E G Patterson, Esq.,
General Superintendent,
Canadian General Electric Co
City

Dear Sir—In receipt of your letter of the 13th inst. in which you complain of the wanton destruction of the insulators on your poles, and intimating that such acts frequently result in "short circuit" entailing great danger and broken wires, contact with which would insure certain death. I much regret that people should thoughtlessly and wickedly do such things. I may say that if they realized the heavy penalty which the Criminal Code provides for such offences they would be slow to put themselves within the reach of the law.

The consequences of this wilful injury to the insulators are so serious that the courts of the country will not deal lightly with offenders convicted.

I am, sir,
Your Obedient servant,
D. W. DUMBLE

Both Athletes And Visitors Wonder At Immense Stadium

Accomodation for 150,000 People —Every Part Absolutely Fireproof—To Stand 100 Years

OF REINFORCED CONCRETE

London, July 16. — The immense Stadium, rushed to completion by its promoters just in time to be used for the Olympic games, is the wonder of all the athletes and visitors. Adjoining the grounds of the Franco-British Exhibition at Shepherd's Bush, its location is sufficiently convenient to London.

The structure is built almost entirely of reinforced concrete. Every part of it is absolutely fireproof, and the builders have calculated that it will stand for one hundred years, with little need of any but the most superficial repairs. Some idea of the vastness of the Stadium may be gathered from the fact that provision has been made to accommodate more than 150,000 spectators, if necessary, although this, of course, includes standing room.

The actual seating capacity is something like 70,000. At first sight this would appear to be an extension of the structure to uncalled-for proportions. Athletics and sports in their various forms are, however, so popular in England that there seems to be little doubt in the minds of the promoters that the Stadium will prove a profitable investment. The attendance at the big Rugby and association football games, for example, has often ranged from 100,000 to 140,000. It is such crowds as these which the management is counting upon.

The walls of the Stadium rise to a height of 60 feet and are built in the conventional shape of a great oval, from which the seats slant down to the edge of the bicycle track. Underneath the great arches which support the structure are 100 rooms of various sizes for the exhibition of trophies and the quartering of the athletes.

Just inside the bicycle track is the running track, while the heavily sodded infield, 100 yards wide and nearly 250 yards long, will be used for other contests. Directly in front of the royal pavilion, and opposite the main entrance of the Stadium, is the swimming pool, 50 feet wide. The depth of the centre, where the high diving contests are being held, is slightly more than 12 feet. The cost of the complete structure was close to $400,000.

The Olympic programme includes every form of track and field competition, cycle racing, archery, lacrosse, football and open-air gymnastics. Such events as are unsuited for the Stadium will be conducted on the grounds of clubs adjacent. The automobile races are to be held on the Brooklands racing track at Weybridge, the motor boat races at Southampton, racquets at the Queen's Club and the ice skating contests at Prince's rink.

London overflows with the crowd of visitors who have come from every corner of the globe for the purpose of witnessing the great Olympic spectacle. From the North of England, where the sporting spirit is notably strong, many thousands of visitors have arrived during the last three days, while from all the country within a radius of 200 miles the influx has been enormous.

An indication of the crowded state of London is found in the fact that it is next to impossible to obtain motor cars or other sightseeing vehicles, nearly all of which have been booked up for weeks ahead by eager pleasure seekers. The hotels are overcrowded, their managers declare, to an unprecedented degree, and 40,000 of the late comers will find shelter in boarding houses and private apartments.

Regulations Respecting The Free Admission Of Animals For Improvement Of Stock

Into Effect on July First—Canadian Certificate to be Presented

THE CLASSES AND BREEDS

On July 1 there came into effect new regulations regarding the custom entry of animals imported into Canada for the improvement of stock. Heretofore all certificates of registration which were apparently genuine were accepted by customs officers for the purpose of free entry. Under the new regulations, either a Canadian certificate of registration or an import certificate as the case may be, must be presented:

Canadian certificates of registration must be presented at the port of entry for the following classes and breeds:

Cattle

Shorthorn, Ayrshire, Hereford, French-Canadian, Galloway, Aberdeen-Angus, Red Polled, Jersey, Guernsey, and Holstein.

Horses

Clydesdale, Hackney, Shire, Percheron, Thoroughbred, Belgian, and French-Canadian.

Ponies

Shetland, Welsh, New Forest, Polo and Riding, Exmoor, Connemara and Hackney.

Swine

Yorkshire, Berkshire, Tamworth, Chester White, Poland China, Duroc Jersey, Essex, and Victoria.

Sheep

Shropshire, Lincoln, Oxford Down, Dorset, South Down, Hampshire, and Leicester.

The Canadian records for all above mentioned breeds with the exception of that for Holstein cattle, are conducted under the Canadian National system in the office of the Canadian National Records, Ottawa. The Holstein record is located at St. George, Ont. In making application for the registration of an imported animal, the foreign certificate of registration, in addition to the usual application, must be forwarded.

There are from time to time animals imported into Canada of breeds for which there are no Canadian records, but which are recorded in books of record of one of the following recognized foreign associations:

Horses

Suffolk Horse Society, Great Britain; Cleveland Bay Horse Society, of Great Britain and Ireland; Yorkshire Coach Horse Society of Great Britain and Ireland; American Morgan Register Association; American Saddle Horse Breeders' Association; American Trotting Horse Register Association; Commission des Agriculteurs de France (French Draft); Commission des Stud Book des Chevaux de Demi-Sang (French Coach); Landwirthschaftlichen Hauptverein fur Ostfriesland (German Coach); Zuchtverband des Sudlichen Zuchtgebietes (German Coach); Verband der Zuchter des Oldenburger elegenten Schweren Kutschpferdes (German Coach); Verband der Pferdezutcher in den Holsteinischen Merschem (Oldenberg).

Cattle

Highland Cattle Society of Scotland. Kerry and Dexter Herd Book, Dublin, Ireland; Sussex Herd Book Society, Great Britain; Polled Durham Breeders' Association, United States; National Polled Hereford Breeders' Association, United States.

Swine

Large Black Pig Society, Great Britain.

Sheep

Suffolk Sheep Society, Great Britain; Kent and Romney Marsh Sheep Breeders' Association, Great Britain; Cheviot Sheep Society, Great Britain; Wensleydale Longwool Sheep Breeders' Association, Great Britain; Black Face Sheep Breeders' Association, Great Britain.

Goats

British Goat Society.

Asses

Societe Centrale d'Agriculture des Deux Sevres, France; Stud Books of Jacks and Jennets, of Spain.

To secure free custom entry for an animal so recorded it is necessary to forward to the Canadian National Records, Ottawa, the foreign certificate of registration. The accountant of the Canadian National Records will return to the importer the foreign certificate, to which will be attached an import certificate, which will be authority to the customs officer to admit the animal duty free. A nominal charge will be made by the National Record for this service.

If future information is desired, such will be supplied on application to the "Accountant," National Live Stock Records, Ottawa.

A Narrow Escape for Two Young Ladies Down the Otonabee

Accidentally caught between two launches after dusk yesterday evening, two young ladies in a canoe almost figured in an upset accident. The launches were travelling at a rapid rate, one either way, and they passed close together without seeing the fair ladies in the canoe. Suddenly the men at the helm heard a sharp cry and they then realized the dangerous position of the girls. But the peril was soon passed and everybody breathed easier.

WENT TO SLEEP; LOST HIS WATCH

Robert Wilson Tells a Tale of Woe at the Police Station

A man named Robt. Wilson called at the police station yesterday afternoon to report that he had been robbed of a silver watch for which he had paid seven dollars, and of a purse containing a small sum of money. Wilson stated that he had gone to sleep in the yard of one of the local hotels Monday afternoon, and when he woke up he found that his purse and watch were gone. He had no clue as to the guilty party nor did he know the number of his watch, but Chief Rousel promised to do what he could in the matter.

ART AND MUSIC AT THE TORONTO EXHIBITION

Especially Fine Paintings Collected—Three Hundred Musicians

Energetic efforts are being made to make the Canadian National Exhibition of Toronto, to be held this year from August 29 to September 14, one of exceptional merit, especially in the Educational Department. A collection of some of the finest paintings known to the world has been secured from the most famous Art Galleries in Europe and will form an Art Loan collection superior, it is believed, to anything that has ever been seen on this Continent.

Music is to be made a special feature at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, this year. A prominent attraction in connection with the usual spectacle will be an international Military Tattoo in which upwards of three hundred musicians will take part, including a number from the United States and also from Great Britain.

An Agreement Is Likely To Be Reached In Chemong Park Case

Dispute Over Esplanade Ownership Heard Before Magistrate Edmison—Gates to be Erected

LONG DRAWN OUT COURT

The litigation over the disputed ownership of the esplanade in front of the summer cottage at Chemong Park belonging to Mr. Guy Popham was practically concluded yesterday afternoon after almost a day and a half's duration. The case came up in County Police Court before His Worship Magistrate Edmison. It began on Tuesday afternoon and concluded yesterday evening.

Evidence on behalf of Mr. John Pope, path master, of the roads in the Park, and the prosecutor, was heard from Dr. Young, Messrs. W T C Heathcote, Alex Elliott, T A S Hay, W J Hopwood and W R Hartshorn, as well as Mr. Pope. But before any evidence was taken on behalf of the defence the Magistrate succeeded in getting the parties to come to an amicable agreement and they signed "consent minutes" to settlement. In the meantime the case was enlarged for one week pending the drawing up and the signing of the agreement.

Mr. Popham will be allowed to continue the fences across the esplanade providing he constructs (two gates 8 feet wide at either side. He takes a lease of the esplanade between his own property and the lake and becomes a tenant of Smith township by paying the nominal sum of 25 cents annually. He will also put up a fence on the boundary line between his lot and the esplanade and maintain notices at both gates to the effect that the right-of-way must only be used by residents, property owners in the park and their guests.

Mr. E A Peck represented Mr. Pope and the Smith Council, while Mr. L M Hayes acted for Mr. Popham. Mr. D O'Connell, of O'Connell & Gordon, represented Mr. Alex. Elliott, the original owner of the Park.

WILLIE NEVERTIRE DESCRIBES THE DOINGS AT Y.M.C.A. CAMP

Y.M.C.A. Boys' Camp, Clear Lake, July 15.—The boys of the Y. M. C. A. left Peterborough on a beautiful little white horse called the Water Lily about 8.40 a.m. We seemed to be a long time getting started, but soon got to the lift lock, where I saw the man push levers and turn cranks and do several stunts, and then we went rapidly up to the top of the lock, where we got a jim dandy view of the city. We let some more people got to the lift lock where we saw the steamed up the canal. I got awfully tired going through so many locks. I wished they were all lift locks, we got over the lift lock so much quicker. The men who run the boat must get awfully tired of it, but I suppose it has to be done. At last we reached Lakefield and there was a little excitement there. While we were getting some boats for the camp one of the boys went to the hotel to get a lunch for himself, and the boat nearly left without him. The rest of the sail was fine and we reached camp with a good appetite, and after unloading our numerous parcels, struck off for the dining tent. It is a good large tent with separate sides to it, and completely covers the tables. We had an awful time finding the butter, but at last it managed to get to us, and we ate till we were filled. When we went for a row on the lake in a skiff. I think I will soon be an expert rower if my appetite keeps up the way it is now. I certainly am having a time and was sorry the day was over so soon. I went for a swim after the row. The beach is fine, and I am swimming like a fish this year. The evening was lovely. I tried to stay up all night, but I guess I must have slept for a little while, for all at once the sun was shining into the tent, and I knew it was to-morrow.

Telephoned To Wedlock's; Had The Monarch Return For Trip

The Steamer Otonabee was unable to make its afternoon trip to Idly Wyld to-day owing to a mishap yesterday. Knowing that a larege number had made arrangements to take in this trip, General Manager Phelan was in a quandary. He had understood that the boat's repairs would be completed in time and the steamer Monarch had been allowed to start on its regular trip. About eleven o'clock however, he telephoned by long distance to Wedlock's had the boat stopped and was in communication with Capt. Harris.

The Monarch returned this afternoon to the street railway wharf, and made a trip to Gore's Landing. There was a large crowd and a pleasant outing must have been enjoyed.

Autos Exceed The Speed Limit Say The Baillieboro Villagers

Mr. Louis Byers of Baillieboro called at the Examiner office this afternoon protesting against the speed at which some automobiles travel on the Gravel road between Cobourg and Peterborough. Mr. Byers states that their rate is beyond reason and very much exceeds the limit. Yesterday a large touring car passed through the village and returned again, evidently between Cobourg and this city. The rate, Mr. Byers states, was easily over forty miles an hour. "A railway train moved slowly in comparison. It was going so fast that it was impossible to see the number, and a cloud of dust marked its course." Mr. Byers said it negotiated the hills with ease and maintained its high rate of speed. It would be next to impossible for a vehicle to escape a collision if met by the auto at the top of a hill.

Some of the autoists that use this road are good fellows and act as if they had a little respect for horses, and their drivers, but something should be done to those who race along at high speed."

The Gravel road is one of the best in this district and excellent time can be made on it. The route from Cobourg is around the end of Rice Lake, through Bewdley, Baillieboro, Centreville, Fraserville, and Springville to Peterborough.

Mr. Byers remarked that the road was too good, and loose gravel would be a splendid prevention. All the farmers are incensed, as they are apprehensive of meeting the fast car when driving.

EXCURSION DOWN THE OTONABEE

Charlotte Street Methodist Sunday School Have Pleasant Outing

Yesterday the Sunday school of the Charlotte street Methodist church took their annual outing, going this year by the steamer Otonabee to Idyl Wild and Jubilee.

The boat carried the largest crowd of the season and presented one of the most joyous scenes possible. Each passenger seemed anxious to make his companions happy, and the result was surely obtained. The general opinion expressed was that the trip was the most successful in the history of the school.

The Otonabee took the direct route to Idyl Wild, where dinner was served. The many tables there, so conveniently arranged in the beautiful grove, were admirably adapted to this purpose.

After dinner the party was conveyed to Jubilee Point where the afternoon was pleasantly spent in sports and games.

For the comfort and needs of the party, committees had been appointed prior to the trip. These gentlemen looked after the lunch baskets and other accessories, thus leaving the excursionists as free as possible from the slightest care.

WHERE TO GO FOR A VACATION

District Passenger Agent McDonald, of the Grand Trunk Railway System, has just returned from a visit to the charming Ontario Resorts of Muskoka, Lake of Bays, and Algonquin Park, and also made a trip to Kawartha Lakes, and reports that hotels and boarding houses are rapidly filling up, and all indications point to a splendid season. If visitors to Ontario, and even citizens of this city, only realized what delightful places there are in the "Highlands of Ontario," and how easily accessible they are by the splendid service of the Grand Trunk Railway System, many more extra trains would be needed. The beautiful Royal Muskoka Hotel, the finest summer hotel in Canada, has made their rates, including meals and lodging from $3.00 to $4.00 per day, and accommodation at hundreds of other hotels and boarding houses at lower rates, may be obtained, a little farther north, the Lake of Bays has good hotels, viz., Ronville, Wa Wa, and Britannia, the Magnetawan River can take care of some. The Algonquin Park, 2,000 feet above sea level, has new hotl, the "Highland Inn," just opened, at moderate rates. Temagami Lakes, farther north, with its 1,400 Islands, good hotels and splendid fishing, will repay you for a visit. Still nearer, the pretty resorts of Lake Simcoe, Barrie, Atherley, Orillia, Jackson's Point and the Kawartha Lakes with its Fenelon Falls, Lindsay, Sturgeon Point and numerous boarding houses, on Stony Lake, are well worth a visit. Music and Drama

NEW MUSICAL COMEDY

"The Merry Widow has a new rival in the light opera field in George Edwardes production of "Havana" at the Gaiety Theatre, London, Eng. The composers and librettists of the new summer production are the same as those who contrived the famous "Floradora."

A New York paper speaks of the new show as follows—

"For the first time Havana, with its dusky senoritas, sunlit market place and quays, and gay tobacco shops, is chosen for the depredations of musical comedy characters. The story recites the adventures of a party of English tourists who arrive in a yacht during an insurrection. Their vessel is mistaken for a filibuster loaded with arms for the insurgents, and all sorts of troubles ensue. The Hon. Frank Charteris finally charms Consuelo, the Mayor's daughter, and rescues her from a distasteful marriage, while Nix, the bo'sun, after frantic efforts to elude her, is finally caught by the wife whom he had deserted during a previous visit to that port.

More attractive than any of these native characters, however, is an octet of pretty English girls on an excursion to the Antilles as guests of a London newspaper. The son of the Mayor of Havana, impersonated by Lawrence Grossmith, falls in love with all of them. Any one, on or off the stage, might be calculated to do same thing, for a more delightful bevy of beauties is hardly imaginable. With Mr. Grossmith these lithe, graceful little sprites sing two charming numbers. The one in the first act is called "Hello, People! People Hello!" and the air occurs frequently through the piece. The other is a dainty little conceit, entitled, "Call up Cupid." It is a telephone number in which the wires are long ropes of flowers. Its swing would set even a man with wooden legs on tiptoe."

BOYCE FROM ALGOMA ON GRAFT

Algoma Member Sees Scandal in Sale Lands.

SPROULE OPPOSES SPORTS

He Thinks Olympic Grant Might Be Better Spent—Country Shows Too Much Interest in Games and Too Little In Profitable Labor—Early Morning Session Accomplishes Much Work.

Ottawa, July 16.—Considerable time was taken up in the House yesterday by Mr. Boyce of Algoma in airing an alleged scandal anent a sale of timber lands. The point seemed to be that the parties who bought the lands made a good profit in the resale. Mr. Boyce practically accused Hon. Mr. Sifton, who has not been in the House for several days, and who was Minister of the Interior at the time of the transaction, of making things easy in the way of assisting the parties, one of whom had formerly been his law partner, in putting the deal through. Most of the time Mr. Boyce talked to a very slim house, and his vehemence failed to arouse enthusiasm among even the few of his colleagues who were present. Hon. Mr. Oliver answered most effectively, though quite briefly. Towards the close of the discussion the House filled up, and the amendment moved by Mr. Boyce in connection with the matter was defeated by 100 to 51. During the morning sitting Hon. Mr. Fielding, answering Mr. Lalor, said there had been some pour parlers, but no official trade relations between Germany and Canada. Some discussion took place regarding the American scheme to construct a dam on the St. Lawrence near Cornwall. Hon. Mr. Graham assured the House that no steps would be taken in that connection until the scheme had been fully discussed in Parliament.

On motion to go into supply, Mr. Boyce started a long discussion of a question affecting the administration of the Department of the Interior. It had reference to the sale of timber lands in Fisher, Haviland and Tilley, in the district of Algoma, in April, 1900, when three Brandon gentlemen obtained, he said, 29,301 acres of land for $9,017.

Mr. Boyce said the land, which was Indian land, was sold by the Government while Hon. Clifford Sifton was Minister of the Interior for $9,017 to Mr. W. F. Wilson of Brandon. His associates were Messrs. A. E. Philp and D. A. Resor of the same city. Mr. Philp, Mr. Boyce said, was a former law partner of Hon. Clifford Sifton, and was still, he understood, associated with him in private business affairs. While the negotiations were proceeding between the Indian Department, of which the Minister of the Interior is the resposibile head, and Mr. Wilson, the latter and his associates were negotiating for the sale of the land to an American lumber company, and succeeded in doing so before the patents were issued. On the sale Mr. Wilson and his friends, according to Mr. Boyce, made a profit of not less than $91,813. Moreover, the conditions which had been embodied in the agreement as between the Department and Mr. Wilson had not only not been insisted upon, but the Department had aided in relieving them, so that there was no obstacle in the way of profit-making by the gentlemen named without effort on their part. Mr. Boyce concluded with an attack upon Mr. Sifton, who, he thought, should have been in his seat to hear the charges made against him, and moved a resolution condemning the transaction as a grave breach of trust on the part of the Government.

The Minister of the Interior replied. Mr. Boyce, he thought, was qualifying to succeed Mr. Ames, "the chief scandalmonger of Opposition." This expression was ruled to be unparliamentary and Mr. Oliver withdrew it.

It was no crime to sell land, argued Mr. Oliver. The Indians would rather have money than land, and it had to be sold somehow to someone at some price. The land was sold subject to a timber license, and the pine had been cleared off before the sale was made. The mineral was reserved and all the purchasers got was hardwood and surface rights. Mr. Oliver said that in the district anyone could get land for 50 cents an acre, including mineral rights. As a matter of fact, the Indians were getting a better price than the Ontario Government was getting to-day.

"It would [illegible] said Mr. Oliver, to cancel the license because it had increased in value. He instanced the sale of one million acres by Mr. Osler on behalf of a company, in which he was interested, for $1.62 an acre, this land immediately increasing in value to $10 and $15 an acre. Further, in the method of disposing of land the Government was following precedent.

Mr. Borden announced he was prepared to stay a few days longer to give Mr. Oliver an opportunity to go through the record and see if there was anything that would controvert the facts as stated by Mr. Boyce. The gravamen of the charge was that these lands were sold at a valuation fixed by an agent of the purchasers, on conditions, every one of which had been abrogated.

Discussing the statement that Mr. Osler had sold lands to Saskatchewan Valley Land Co., Mr. Borden said he had been informed by Mr. Osler that it was not until the lands had been sold that Mr. Osler had learned that the area from which the lands should be selected had been largely increased.

Mr. Turiff characterized Mr. Osler's statement as absolutely false. He claimed that Mr. Sifton wrote to a solicitor of Mr. Osler's company, sending maps defining over 10,000,000 acres additional lands.

Mr. Borden declared that he had gone carefully over all the papers, and found no such notice.

Mr. Boyce's motion of censure was negatived by vote of 100 to 51.

The bill to provide land grants to South African veterans was, on motion of Hon. Frank Oliver, amended so as to include among those entitled to land grants Canadians who enlisted, but who who did not participate in active service, residents of Canada who served in any British force in the South African war, and the nurses who went from Canada. The bill now stands for its third reading.

The bills restraining the use of tobacco by young persons, amending the judges act, and amending the Northwest Territories act were all read a third time.

The House went into committee at 12.40 to take up some bills. The bill authorizing a land grant to the volunteers who served in South Africa and the bill amending the Canada shipping act were both read a third time and passed.

Last evening Andrew Brodeur discussed the proposal to dam the St. Lawrence river near Cornwall. Such an obstruction would be a serious menace to navigation, he said, but Pringle (Cornwall) took the opposite view. The opinion of experts should be obtained. He denied that the dam would adversely affect navigation, but would rather assist, and be of great advantage to Eastern Ontario.

Dr. Reid protested against the scheme, and Mr. Graham said the Government had no intention of committing itself until full particulars had been laid before Parliament.

The House then went into supply, taking up the supplementary estimates. Amid cries of "Longboat," "Longbont," an item of $15,000 for the Olympic games was carried, but not before Dr. Sproule had characterized the item as "the height of absurdity." He said the country should give less attention to sports and more to profitable labor.

Great speed was developed by the House in putting votes through.

DOUKHOBORS RAIDED.

Twelve Ringleaders In Pilgrimage Get Six Months.

Yorkton, July 16.—Acting under instructions from the Provincial Government, to have the ringleaders of the Doukhobors who made the pilgrimage to Fort William, and who are now in camp at Arcadia under police supervision, committed to jail, ten constables made a midnight raid.

The Doukhobors fiercely resisted arrest and the entire band of sixty turned in to assist, using rafters, cordwood and any weapon that came handy. Only after three hours' fierce struggling did the police effect the arrest of six men and six women.

Each was yesterday sentenced to six months.

Fair Usurer Convicted.

Montreal, July 16.—Miss Julia Lalone was yesterday declared guilty of usury by Judge Choquette. Sentence will be given next Wednesday, and the judge intimated that he will feel bound to impose a sentence of imprisonment.

This is the outcome of the first prosecution brought in Montreal and tried in court, under the anti-usury act adopted by the Dominion Parliament.

The complainant led by an attractive notice, called at the address given, and found Miss Lalonde, who lent him $22.50. He signed a contract, transferring his wages from July 1 to August 1, to the extent of $35.

Train and Boat Collide.

Kingston, July 16.—The schooner Granger of Picton had her bowsprit over the wharf and was struck by a passing train on the suburban line. Considerable damage was done.

Trampled by Team.

Sedley, Sask., July 16.—John Ferguson, 20 years of age, was trampled to death by his team yesterday. The team ran away.

Nelson Moves Clock On.

Nelson, B. C., July 16.—The city council has decided to put the clock on here one hour, and next Sunday Mountain time in place of Pacific coast time will be adopted.

CROWDS INVADING QUEBEC

Hotels Are Beginning to Crowd Up—Favored Few Watch Rehearsals of Pageant—Prince Leaves London Amid Brilliant Gathering of Diplomats at Waterloo Station—Reception at Portsmouth.

London, July 16.—(C.A.P.)—The scene at Waterloo Station on the departure of the Prince of Wales for Canada was brilliant. Those assembled included the Duke of Connaught, Lord Strathcona, Whitelaw Reid, the United States ambassador, and Lord Crewe, the Colonial Secretary, with whom the prince conversed.

There was an enthusiastic send-off at Portsmouth and a lack of ceremonial. After a private reception by Sir John Fisher, Lord of the Admiralty, and other naval officers, the royal party boarded the cruiser Indomitable, which quickly swung out of the harbor Canada-wards, escorted by the cruiser Minotaur. The prince was saluted by the guns of Nelson's Victory as the Indomitable passed.

It is stated that the Prince of Wales carries a special message from King Edward, expressing an appreciation of the services of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and the offer of a peerage, made in 1902, may be renewed.

There has been some talk of the Indomitable, which is capable of doing 27 knots an hour, trying to give the trans-Atlantic liners a new record to emulate, but it is understood that if anything in this direction is attempted, it will be on the return journey.

A barge came into collision with the Indomitable in Portsmouth harbor shortly before the prince arrived. A little paint was scratched off the side of the battleship and the barge lost her foremast.

Five Warships Arrive.

Quebec, July 16.—Five British warships have taken up their positions opposite the city.

The vessels are the battleships Exmouth, bearing the flag of Rear-Admiral the Hon. Sir Assheton G. Curzon Howe, K.C.B., C.V.O., C.W.G., commander-in-chief of the squadron; Albemarle, bearing the flag of Rear-Admiral Sir John R. Jellicoe, K.C., V.O., C.B., Duncan and Russell; and the cruiser Arrogant. As the ships steamed up in front of the city the band on each played Canadian airs. When the Arrogant came opposite Wolfe's Cove a signal was given from the Exmouth, ad the starboard anchors of all the ships were dropped simultaneously. Many thousands of people assembled on Dufferin terrace to witness the arrival.

Lord Roberts and the Duke of Norfolk are expected to reach here on the Empress of Ireland Thursday evening at 7 o'clock.

Eighty additional police are watching the incoming boats and trains for suspicious characters.

The trains and river boats brought visitors to the city by the hundreds yesterday, and there was a big jump in the registrations at the hotels.

The arrival of two detachments of Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, one from Kingston ad the other from Toronto, an interchange of official visits between the officers of the British squadron and the Dominion, provincial and civic authorities, and, finally, a private rehearsal of the pageants, were features yesterday in the prelude to the tercentenary celebration which opens on Sunday. Advance parties of the militia force began to report this morning.

Only performers and officials were admitted to the rehearsal in the pageant enclosure last evening. Earl Grey, at whose invitation Mr. Lascelles came to Canada to take charge of the production, was, however, among the privileged few. Rehearsing started at 4 in the afternoon and continued until long after darkness set in.

Car Runs Amuck.

Leamington, July 16.—A car on the Windsor, Essex & Lake Shore Electric Railway ran off the track yesterday and crashed into a buggy containing Collingwood Foster, a Mersea farmer, and his two daughters. The horse was killed and the occupants quite badly injured. A passenger named W. W. Boynton of Buffalo was pinned between the car and a large brick building, into which the coach crashed with terrific force. Boynton is believed to be seriously injured.

Jeffries Of London To Catch For Port Hope On Saturday

Word was received from Port Hope last night that they are bringing their strongest line-up here on Saturday and that they are confident of beating the Petes and getting closer to the top of the league ladder. The result should be one of the best games in the league series. So far, the two teams have had an even break, each having won a league fixture, so that it will be seen that they are evenly matched. Jeffries of London, who has been playing in the International League, will be behind the bat for the Port Hopers, and the infield will consist of Hickey 1b; Denny McGuire, last year with Chaucer Elliott's Oswego, Empire State League, champions, 2b; Dunn of London, ss, and Jack O'Toole, of last year's Grandview, Manitoba League team, 3b. Tavia a team that will be extremely hard to beat, and the Petes, realizing that they are up against a stiff proposition, will place a very strong team in the field. The fans will see a splendid game of ball, and no doubt there will be a big crowd on hand.

The new schedule of prices will prevail. Tickets entitling the holder to a seat in the grandstand will be sold for 25 cents, and the general admission will be 15 cents.

THE WELLINGTONS BADLY DEFEATED

Lost to West Ends Last Night by 12 to 4 in Seven Innings Game

In a ragged and loosely played game, in which errors were the predominating feature, the West Ends easily defeated the Wellingtons at the Nicholls Oval last night by 12 runs to 4 in a City League contest. There was nothing to the game but the West Ends, who piled up six runs in the first innings and followed it up with another quartette in the second spasm. After the bad start, however, the Wellingtons settled down and played good ball, holding the gray shirts down to two runs. Fallon, who started in to pitch for the Wellingtons, was batted hard, and errors didn't help thing along any.

Dickie, who pitched the last three innings, was a puzzle to the West Ends, who failed to get a hit off him, and at that the Wellingtons finished up with two men short.

Halpin pitched the first innings for the West Ends while Cameron finished the game. Both were very effective, only one hit being made off Halpin, while Cameron did not allow a safety, although he walked four men.

The chief fielding features were the three double plays, one made by Russell unassisted. Dunnett made a pretty catch in centre and threw Russell out at the plate by a perfect throw.

"Ted." Maddock of the Peterboroughs umpired satisfactorily. The box score follows:

MAY RUN EXCURSION TO LINDSAY

Peterboro Lacrosse Club Play in Scugog-ville a Week From To-day

The Peterborough lacrosse club will play a Trent Valley League game in Lindsay next Thursday afternoon and arrangements are being made to run a special train to the Scugog town for the occasion. As it is on the weekly half holiday such an excursion should be well patronized and would prove very popular. The locals will have a strong team in the field. They had a good practise last night and will be out again tomorrow for another workout.

GAMES ARE BEWILDERING AS A THREE RING CIRCUS

The games in the Stadium at London are as bewildering to watch as a three-ring circus. At one time a dozen bicyclists were wheeling along the outer edge of the oval, while 20 runners were racing on the cinder path just inside of it; swimmers with bright coloured caps were splashing through the long tanks, while on the green sward within, members of the Danish and German gymnastic clubs, arrayed in flaring white uniforms, were performing spectacular feats on the horizontal and parallel bars, and giving exhibitions of calisthenic drills. Judges, scorers, trainers, timers, and rubbers of the many nationalities represented swarmed everywhere.

The Peterborough Cricket Club had a rattling practice at Nicholls Oval last night, a large number of players being out, and some good work was done with the bat and ball.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

For those who wish to figure out the exact distance represented by the Olympic games, announced in metres, it may be stated that a "metre" is equal to 39.37 inches.

A kilometre is 1,000 metres.

The Marathon will be run on Friday, the 24th, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The United States contingent won't run away—not much, not when they have an ace in the hole.

The Canadian fancy diver, Zimmerman, of Montreal, made a big hit with his screw dive. He was third in his heat.

Jack Tait and George Goulding were just outside the money in their respective events, both being fourth. They made a good showing amongst the best athletes the world can produce.

No professionals in the American team, eh? What about Ralph Rose? and Martin Sheridan? and Melvin Sheppard? and John Flanagan, and about fifty others of the United States that can be named who make a living on their athletic skill?

The United States alienated Canadian sympathy by the action in the Longboat case. Everybody here is pulling for England to lead the Nations.

Hamilton bookmakers have put up odds for the Marathon. Longboat is the 3 to 1 favourite, while Simpson, the Peterborough Indian, is at fives for first and even for third.

Bobby Kerr is the closest priced favourite of the bunch. The odds on him are only even for first in the 100 and 200 metre sprints. The quotations are:

	1st	2nd	3rd
Burn	40	15	6
Caffery	15	6	3
Cotter	10	4	2
Goldaboro	12	5	2
Lawson	8	3	3—2
Lister	25	10	5
Longboat	3	2	1
Meadows	20	8	4
Noseworthy	13	12	6
Simpson	5	2	1
Tait	40	15	6
Wood	15	6	3
100 or 200 metres—
Bobby Kerr	1	...	...

Tom Longboat's chances for the Marathon appear better than ever. English bookmakers are offering two to one against him, which proves that he is favourite even in England. Simpson, who has also a good chance, is quoted at 20 to 1. Tait's price is 10 to 1, and Lawson's is a little lower. All this goes to prove that the Canadians have really been making good time in their English trials. — Toronto News.

The New York Stock Market

(Furnished by J. N. Barber.)

New York, July 16th—Considerable activity attended trading at the opening to-day but as a rule stocks were lower. The market was not long in developing strength, which first made its appearance among the specialties. Westinghouse on reports of the satisfactory progress of the reorganization plan was very strong and Consolidated Gas continued its advance, while sugar, Central Leather and Colo. Fuel and the equipment stocks all did better. The steel issues easily made up their early losses and the common stock of the corporation rose to about the high point of this movement again while Rep. Steel was also strong. On the rally foreign houses sold steel and Harriman stocks and did very little buying in connection with their transactions of perhaps between 35,000 and 40,000 shares. Americans did better on the curb in London. Later in the day, temperature conditions were reported as again unfavourable to wheat and the market became soft.

We expect to see further bullish manipulation in the market with continued strength in the steel issues and better prices for stocks like Colo. Fuel, Rep. Steel, Sugar and the equipment issues. The copper stocks should also be bought on all recessions and held for much higher prices. Bull tip out to buy Reading. The closing was somewhat irregular and soft.

GRUESOME STORY OF A WELSH-WOMAN'S ILLNESS.

Trouble Had Puzzled Doctors — Two Uncanny Creatures Make Their Appearance — Had Horrible Eyes and Many Legs—Believed to Have Been Swallowed in Some Impure Water—Sucked Woman's Blood.

A gruesome story of a woman's mysterious illness comes from Port Dinorwic, in the slate quarry region of Carnarvonshire, where the wife of a quarryman farmer has vomited two uncanny "live creatures" measuring about three inches long. For the last two years Mrs. Roberts, the wife of a miner, has suffered from pains in the stomach. Dr. Edwards, of Port Dinorwic, has treated her for an ailment, from which she was undoubtedly suffering, but Mrs. Roberts continued to feel unwell, and frequently vomited blood and water, and the other day she ejected a mass of blood and water, containing some living creatures. In the meantime two horrible and unknown creatures were found, that were almost exact replicas of gigantic prawns, with large protruding eyes, eight or ten long legs and two or four small ones. As far as could be seen, there were no antennae. The color of the creatures was black in the main, though the underparts were a delicate pink. They were thinly shelled, much as a shrimp or a prawn is. They were three inches in length, and when first vomited were quite an inch and a half in circumference. They did not live long after being ejected from the stomach, and were afterwards taken away by Dr. Edwards and preserved. The report of the incident attracted hundreds of people to Penscoins and to Dr. Edwards' surgery, the former to see Mrs. Roberts and the latter to try to see the creatures. To her visitors Mrs. Roberts related her experiences. She said that she used to feel the creatures running up her gullet from her stomach whenever she put tasty food in her mouth, and then creep down into her stomach again as soon as she had swallowed the food. She avers that when she was trying to expel the second of the two things from her throat she distinctly felt it biting her. Color is lent to this statement by the fact that Mrs. Roberts has been vomiting blood more or less copiously ever since, and is now so weak that Dr. Edwards has forbidden visitors. Dr. Edwards, however, sees no reason why she should not recover now, unless there are more of the creatures inside her. Mrs. Roberts has the fear that there are, as she says she can feel them as before. Dr. Edwards has given her medicine which he hopes will destroy the creatures, if any are still left alive. The Robertses are tenants of Mr. Assheton Smith, and that gentleman the moment he heard of the occurrence proceeded to Dr. Edwards, and obtained the creatures, which he at once conveyed to his own medical attendant, Dr. Grey Edwards of Bangor, with a request that he would thoroughly investigate the matter, and obtain expert opinion on the nature of the creatures. The only theory at present put forward is that Mrs. Roberts must have swallowed the ovum or germ of these creatures when drinking water drawn from the usual supply adjoining her house, and that during the past two years these germs have developed. Dr. Edwards thinks their dark color is due to the fact that they lived by sucking the woman's blood.

Indian Detective Trick.

A very old Indian detective trick played its part in the arrest of the Bengali youth Khurdiram Bose, who threw the bomb which killed Mrs. and Miss Kennedy at Muzufferpore.

He was seated in the railway station at Waini, some 20 miles from the scene of the crime, and was seating a meal of rice, when two constables approached him. One of the constables noticed that the youth's saliva had ceased to flow, apparently through fright at the sudden appearance of the policemen; and that, in spite of his nonchalant air, he was unable to continue his meal. The constable toyed with his man for a while, and then, having his suspicions confirmed, seized him before he could fire the revolver with which he was trying to shoot himself. This system of detection, it is stated, is traditional among the Indian police.

A suspected person will be placed with others and a native inspector will mutter some gibberish over an old four-cornered rupee. Having thus worked upon the fears of his auditors he will give each of them a handful of rice and instruct them to eat it as fast as they can. The guilty one, it is averred, will be unable to eat, and the strike of the salivary glands is regarded as furnishing a prima facie case for arrest.

A Bad Guess.

John Hawtrey was one of England's famous whipping schoolmasters. At Eton in autumn the small boys used to buy chestnuts and roast them in a shovel over the fire. One day a boy named F., who was a great favorite of Hawtrey's, had a lot of chestnuts and as a special favor was allowed to make use of the pupil room fire while the boys were all studying. Hawtrey was going in and out of the room while we were working, and on one occasion, coming in rather quietly, he caught sight of F. kneeling over the fire arranging his chestnuts. The boy's position was irresistible to any lover of the art of chastisement. Not seeing his face and supposing it was one of the other boys stealing the chestnuts, John Hawtrey quietly took his cane from his desk and, creeping forward on tiptoe, gave the wretched F. a most tremendous whack. The boy jumped up with a yell, his hands clapped behind him. Then the tutor saw who he was and said, embracing him:

"Oh, my poor boy! I am so sorry! I thought it was another boy stealing your chestnuts."

We, of course, were all delighted and roared with laughter.—London Graphic.

Dear Sir,—We beg to acknowledge receipt of cheque for $2,500.00 in settlement of fire loss, Policy 8,645,879, Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company.

We note in connection with this settlement a most unusual feature. They are legally entitled to 1% of stated sum for payment prior to due date. No business man would for one moment question their right to this amount. But they do not take it. Instead they have purposely waived their priveleges and presented us with this additional amount.

We are gratified to note this remarkable action. To adjust and settle a loss within twelve days is noteworthy, but to add to this magnanimity in refusing to take advantage of their discount privileges places this company in a most favorable position.

We congratulate you upon representing a company of such superior standing.

Yours very truly,

LARGE DARK STREAKS FOLLOW NORTHERN LIGHTS

What Gazers at The Heavens Saw Two Nights in Succession.

A large number of citizens were interested on Wednesday night in the beautiful aurora borealis in the sky. Colour chased colour across the blue, and at times almost every colour on the spectrum could be seen, while long streaks of light wandered far up overhead into the sky.

Last night again another peculiar phenomenon was witnessed in the same place. Instead of the northern lights, black streaks separated by similar lines of blue reached along the sky. They were witnessed by many until they gradually diminished in size, and finally disappeared about 10 o'clock.

THE MASONS GRAND LODGE MEETS

An Historic Gavel Used—39,795 Masons Now in Jurisdiction—Growth of The Order.

DEPUTY GRAND MASTERS

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 17.—(Special.)—The 53rd communication of the Grand Lodge of Canada, A. F. and A. M., opened here Wednesday morning in the Olympic Rink, under Grand Master A. T. Freed of Hamilton, about 600 delegates being present.

When Grand Lodge was opened, the Grand Master used the old gavel that did service on the occasion of the initiation of John Graves Simcoe, first Governor of Upper Canada. He was initiated in Union Lodge, Exeter, in 1774. The gavel is the property of J. Ross Robertson, Historian of Grand Lodge. He gave a brief history of the gavel.

On May 31, 1907, there were on our rolls 39,795 Masons in good standing. During the twelve months about 2,700 were initiated and 600 affiliated—a gross gain of 3,300. Losses by death were about 200, by suspension 215, and by resignation 258, or 673 in all. So that our total membership at the end of our year was about 42,422. These figures are not final, as some of the returns have not yet reached the Grand Secretary.

During the twelve months the revenue on general account amounted to $38,754.80. The general receipts show an increase of $1,089.70 over the receipts for 1907; the interest on investments of $262.27, and the interest on bank balances of $136.47. The expenditures on general account have been $15,412.62, as compared with $14,201.72 in the preceding year; and the benevolent grants amounted to $21,956.30, an increase of $1,806.30.

Mr. Aubrey White, reporting on the condition of the order, said in part: "There are now on the roll of this Grand Lodge 396 lodges, of which 38 are duly warranted and nine are under dispensation. At the last annual communication the craft had a total membership in good standing of 39,795. From year to year your board has endeavoured to record in this report the details of the numerical growth of the craft, but great difficulty has always been experienced in obtaining the statistics from the lodges in time to enable it to do so. This year, owing to several District Deputy Grand Masters having been unable to send in these statistical tables, it is impossible to do more than approximate the number gained. The statistics available justify the board in estimating that nearly three thousand initiates have this year entered upon their Masonic career."

Among the D.D.G.M.'s elected were: District 12 — Ontario, J. Whitt, Whitby.

District 26—Ottonabee, A H C Long, Port Hope.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Grand Secretary — R. L. Gunn, Hamilton.

Grand Junior Warden—J. C. Burtram, Ottawa.

Grand Treasurer — E. T. Malone, Toronto.

Grand Registrar — D. Rutherford, Owen Sound, reclamation.

Board of General Purposes — A. Shaw, Kingston; A J Young, North Bay; S A Luke, Ottawa; W D McPherson, Toronto; John Hoodless, Hamilton.

A second ballot was necessary for Grand Senior Warden and Grand Chaplain. Mr. E E Fraser, M.P.P., Niagara Falls, was elected Grand Senior Warden, and Rev. Frank Harper of Barrie was elected Grand Chaplain. There was no election this year for Grand Master or Deputy Grand Master.

London was chosen as the next place for the Grand Lodge meeting.

SEATS ADVOCATED FOR SMALL PARK

At Corner of Hunter And Park Streets—Belongs to The City.

There is a pretty little park situated at the corner of Hunter and Park streets belonging to the city which is scarcely ever used, due, no doubt to the absence of seats. This was pointed out to the Examiner by a resident in that vicinity who believed that if two or three seats were placed there they would be appreciated. Ladies who wait for street cars have to stand on the crossing whereas if there was some place to sit down they could take their ease.

Telephone Apparatus That Is Similar To That Used Here Has Been Shipped To France

Installation Of a Complete Automatic Equipment at Lyons—It Was Made by Canadian Machine Telephone Company

SAME SYSTEM AT ROME

Examiner Special.

Toronto, July 17.—A shipment of more than usual interest to Canadians in general and telephone men especially, was made yesterday by the Canadian Independent Telephone Company, Limited, of this city, to Lyons, France. The shipment was one of automatic telephone equipment for installation in the city of Lyons. It was manufactured at the factory of the Canadian Machine Telephone Company, Dundas street. The installation at Lyons will be a commercial exchange of the Lorimer automatic telephone system, and will be complete in every particular, including the toll board for connecting outside lines with the automatic telephone plant in the city. The automatic switchboards are the most up-to-date that this company has turned out, being similar to the plant which this company has installed at Peterborough, but furnishing special automatic service for private branch exchange, a time limit service for subscribers and a complete supervisory and alarm system. The Canadian Independent Telephone Company has the contract for the complete plant and everything is being shipped from Toronto, with the exception of the storage batteries.

The order was placed here by the Societe Internationale de l'Autocommutateur Lorimer of Paris, France, and Mr. Israel, a representative of this company, has been in the city for several weeks past, watching the completion of the plant. He left last evening to return to the French capital, and was extremely well satisfied with the equipment that was going forward and the manner in which it had been handled.

It is understood that this installation at Lyons will have an immediate bearing on the French Government's future telephone systems throughout that country.

The Canadian Independent Telephone Company made a shipment early in June to Rome, Italy, where an exchange of the Lorimer system is also being installed.

The gymnastic competition final was won by Sweden, with a score of 438 points.

German Swimmer Wins

In the final of the 100 metre back stroke swimming Bieberstein of Germany, won. Time 1.34 3-5.

In the 5,000 metre cycle race heat 5 won Jones, England. Time 8.00 4-5. 6th by Kingsbury, England. Time 8.53.

This event is a distinct one from the 100 metre back stroke swim in the semi-finals.

Will be no Championship

London, July 17.—In view of the very violent protests by different nations, particularly America, against the English system of scoring points in the Olympic games, the British Olympic Association decided to-day to award no championship in either the Stadium or outside events. In explanation of the decision, Captain Jones said: "We have decided it would be unfair to award a championship in view of the system of scoring adopted. This system would have given England a walk over, as countries from far off, particularly America, could not be expected to send teams for many of the minor events that we started out to include in the championship competitions. The American teams, which appears strongest in the regular track and field events, has just cause for complaint. This team will probably now make good its claim to the championship. The Americans are jubilant over the result."

London, July 17.—100 metre back swim, heat 1, semi-final, Ruberstein, Germany, first, time 1.26 3-5.

Heat 2, semi-final, Harcsnape, England, time 1.28 1-5.

A SMOOTH PORT HOPE BURGLAR CHLOROFORMS BIG WATCH DOG; CAUGHT AND GETS FIVE YEARS

Port Hope, July 16.—(Special.)—A daring attempt at burglary was perpetrated at the residence of Mr. Harold Corbett, Peter street at an early hour Tuesday morning.

The two intruders made good their escape for the time as a result of one drawing a revolver on Mr. Corbett. They were unsuccessful in their attempt to secure booty. Entrance to the house was gained by means of removing a screen from a window of the bath room situated on the first floor.

The same day Chief Bond arrested the men who gave their names John Mulyea and James Whalen of Belleville. About a quarter to two o'clock Mrs. Corbett, who was awakened by a noise immediately aroused Mr. Corbett who thought that the noise was caused by the dog. However, on looking about, Mr. Corbett espied a man crawling on the floor about three feet from the bed.

Mr. Corbett jumped and followed the burglar to the top of the stairs, whereupon the latter drew a revolver and threatened to shoot if followed. Mr. Corbett returned for his shot gun but the intruder escaped through the back door which he had previously opened.

The other man who was watching outside, also got away. The burglars had chloroformed the dog which was found in the dining room. The prisoners were arraigned before Magistrate Holland yesterday afternoon. Mulyea who was identified by Mr. and Mrs. Corbett as the man who entered their house, pleaded not guilty. Whalen did not plead. Mulyea got five years.

Viamede Is A Favourite Spot For Bridal Couples

Viamede, July 17.—(Special.) — At present Viamede is crowded pretty much with tourists enjoying a quiet holiday and a fish. There are now over fifty guests registered, and next week Mrs. Graham expects a party who will fill the house, and she expects to have no more rooms to let for a week or two at the least. Viamede is more popular than ever this year, and there have been many guests registered there, and it is strange to say there appears to be no extra attraction there for bridal couples, as they have had nine different bridal parties on their honeymoon. It is also strange to say that Viamede is very popular this year from the standpoint of the dancers, and there is a great deal of dancing going on here. Fishing is exceptionally good in the vicinity of Viamede at present.

THE INCREASE OF EXPENDITURE.

A witty Frenchman once remarked that if one wants omelets he must break eggs. If Canada is to make progress she must be prepared to pay the cost. A great country means a great public service, and that cannot be carried on without corresponding expense.

There has been a large increase this year in the amount of money appropriated for various purposes by the Dominion Parliament. The appropriations are partly statutory, in which case they must go on from year to year until the prescribed time limit is reached, and partly a matter of annual vote, in which case they are subject to modification. It is in the supply appropriations that the great increase of this year has chiefly taken place.

Of the amounts voted by Parliament in Committee of Supply some are properly called expenditure on capital account, while others are set off against annual revenue. This year there is one very large item of capital expenditure, thirty million dollars for the construction of the National Transcontinental Railway. To this great work the country is thoroughly committed, however, and the capital outlay is therefore inevitable. The cost of construction will be much greater than was anticipated when the work was undertaken, but the new transcontinental line located far north of the Canadian Pacific, will be worth it all, and much more. It must be borne in mind that on the cost of constructing the Eastern Division the Grand Trunk Pacific Company has agreed to pay three per cent. for fifty years for the privilege of operating the whole system.

The increase of annual expenditure is due in part to the additional cost of the ordinary civil service; more public officials to be paid increasing salaries. This is due solely to the increase of public work to be done and the higher cost of living that makes large salaries an absolute necessity. No self-respecting people can afford to keep public officials on starvation allowances. The increase is due also in part to larger expenditure on public works and buildings. The public business is expanding and more buildings are necessary to accommodate it; more and larger post-offices, customs houses, railway freight sheds, docks, warehouses, etc. The country must stop developing if the expenditure is to stop increasing. The great thing to keep in view is to so spend the public money as to secure that the public shall get the benefit, and under the Laurier regime this has been reasonably achieved.

THE NATIONAL TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILWAY.

When the Liberals came into power in 1896, the Canadian Pacific Railway was the only transcontinental line from the Atlantic to the Pacific. At the most northerly point of the St. Lawrence system, namely, the north shore of Lake Superior, the Canadian Pacific Railway skirted the shore of the lake, leaving the country to the north entirely unprovided with railway facilities. No blame for this was attached to any person, because at the time the Canadian Pacific Railway was undertaken little was known of the country far in the interior.

In 1900 the Ontario Government found by actual surveys that a large area of arable land lay so far up to the north as to be over the height of land between Lake Superior and Hudson's Bay. This area has been estimated at sixteen million acres, and even if a good deal of deduction must be made from this statement, there is certainly enough left to make a very valuable industrial settlement. It was inevitable that sooner or later a railroad should traverse this newly-discovered country from east to west; and, therefore, it was not surprising that the National Transcontinental Railway was planned and provided for as early as 1903.

The scheme debated by Parliament and provided for by statute was to incorporate the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, with power to construct, operate and own the western division from Winnipeg to the Pacific; and authority to operate, but not construct or own, the eastern division from Winnipeg to the Atlantic. The National Transcontinental Railway Act provides that the eastern division shall be built by a Government Commission, and leased for fifty years to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company at three per cent. per annum on the cost of construction. During these five years the process of building this line has been carried on with great energy and, from the statement made by the Minister of Railways to Parliament, with a great deal of success. Within the contract period the line will be in operation throughout, with the exception of the bridge across the St. Lawrence near Quebec, which will be delayed by the calamity that happened last year.

It appears from the attitude of the Opposition in the House of Commons that the Conservatives are depending on the unexpected large expenditure on the line for a subject of attack against the Government. It is not at all likely that such a campaign will be popular. The country stands completely committed to the carrying out of this undertaking. At the time it was projected nobody could foresee what it would cost any more than the cost of the Canadian Pacific Railway could be foreseen. So long as no misappropriation of funds can be successfully charged the idea of the National Transcontinental Railway will remain popular with the people of the country from ocean to ocean. So far the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company has shown it is equal to the immense task to which it is devoted, and there is no reason to suppose that any kind of failure will result from the undertaking.

WM. DOYLE GETS TWO MONTHS

An old man named William Doyle, a frequent visitor at the police court, appeared before Magistrate Dumble at police court this morning, and listened listlessly while a charge of vagrancy was read against him. Mr. Dumble considered that he would be better in gaol and sentenced him to two months under the wing of Gaoler Nesbitt.

COMPETITION IS WAR.

Socialism Offers Peace and Friendship Instead of Conflict.

Our present system of society is based on a state of perpetual war. Do any of you think this is as it should be? I know that you have often been told that the competition which is at present the rule of trade is a good thing and that it stimulates the progress of the race, but the people who tell you this should call competition by its shorter name of war if they wish to be honest, and you would then be free to consider whether or no war stimulates progress otherwise than as a mad bull chasing you over your own garden may do. War or competition, whichever you may please to call it, means at the best pursuing your own advantage at the cost of some one else's loss, and in the process of it you must not be sparing of destruction even of your own possessions or you will certainly come by the worst in the struggle.

You understand that perfectly as to the kind of war in which people go out to kill and be killed—that sort of war in which ships are commissioned, for instance, "to sink, burn and destroy"—but it appears that you are not so conscious of this waste of goods when you are only carrying on that other war called competition. Observe, however, that the waste is there all the same.

Well, surely Socialism can offer you something in the place of all that. It can. It can offer you peace and friendship instead of war. We might live utterly without national rivalries, acknowledging that, while it is best for those who feel that they naturally form a community under one name to govern themselves, yet that no community in civilization should feel that it had interests opposed to any other, their economical condition being at any rate similar; so that any citizen of one community could fall to work and live without disturbance of his life when he was in a foreign country and would fit into his place quite naturally; so that all civilized nations would form one great community, agreeing together as to the kind and amount of production and distribution needed, working at such and such production where it could be best produced and avoiding waste by all means. Please to think of the amount of waste which they would avoid; how much such a change would add to the wealth of the world!—William Morris, British Manufacturer and Socialist.

Landseer's Valet.

Sir Edwin Landseer, the famous animal painter, had an old servant—his butler, valet and faithful slave—named William, who was particularly assiduous in guarding the outer portal. No one could by any possibility gain direct access to Sir Edwin. The answer would invariably be, "Sir Hedwin is not at 'ome." The prince consort himself once received this answer when he called, amplified on that occasion by the assurance that 'he had gone to a wedding," an entire fiction on William's part, as the prince found out, for on walking boldly in and around the garden he noticed Sir Edwin looking out of his studio window. This was the faithful attendant who, one day, when a lion had died at the zoo and his corpse came up in a four wheeled cab to be painted from, startled his master with the question, "Please, Sir Hedwin, did you horder a lion?"

Eggs Were Rigid.

In his early days it was suggested to Mr. Meredith, the novelist, that he should take up his residence with Rossetti at Queen's House, Cheyne Walk. The novelist agreed to take a couple of rooms, and one morning, shortly after Rossetti had moved in, Mr. Meredith, who was living in Mayfair, drove over to Chelsea to inspect his new apartments. "It was past noon," relates Mr. Meredith; "Rossetti had not yet risen, though it was an exquisite day. On the breakfast table in a huge dish rested five thick slabs of bacon, upon which five rigid eggs had slowly bled to death! Presently Rossetti appeared in dressing gown, with slippers down at heel, and devoured the dainty repast like an ogre." This decided Mr. Meredith. He did not even trouble to look at his rooms, but sent in a quarter's rent that afternoon and remained in Mayfair.

Fault Finding.

Nothing is easier than fault finding. No talent, no self denial, no brains, no character is required to set up in the grumbling business, but those who are moved by a genuine desire to do good have little time for murmuring or complaint.

Most people who rob Peter to pay Paul forget the last part of the contract.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

If when bathing you will put half a teacup of vinegar in either cold or warm water, but not hot water, it is very cleansing and bracing and will keep the skin in an active, healthy state. It is also an excellent thing for a foot bath.

An excellent hair wash is to take one ounce of borax and one ounce of powdered camphor and dissolve in a pint of boiling water, adding to cold water in a bowl. The camphor will form into lumps, but a sufficient amount will dissolve. This will strengthen the hair and preserve the color.

To make thin cheeks plump rub skin food in with the following movements: To treat the right cheek place the thumb of the left hand just beyond the corner of the mouth on the left cheek as a brace. Make rotary movements upward and outward, beginning at the corner of the mouth and making three diverging lines of manipulation over the cheek. With the right hand treat the left cheek. About six times over each cheek is sufficient.

It is impossible to dress to look one's best unless the toilet table has a brilliant light above it. It is mortifying to pass from a dim bedroom to a well lighted theater or a friend's house and to discover small wisps of straying hair and errors about one's attire which entirely escaped attention in the semi-darkness at home. A clever woman has her bedroom most cunningly lighted so that by means of another mirror opposite that on her dressing table she can see herself in every position. This is one reason why she is rarely seen with "yawnings" between bodice and skirt, glimpses at petticoats through plackets and the back collar badly adjusted.

Shears in the Kitchen.

Hang on a convenient nail in your kitchen a pair of sharp, medium sized shears and with them trim the rind from slices of bacon, clipping the edges as they fry to prevent curling. Trim the edges of your steak before cooking and cut out the bones with these shears. When lining pie tins with pastry, trim the margin with your shears; also cut openings in the top crust to let steam escape. Cut your leftovers of meat for meat pie in strips or cubes; your "croutons" from bread slices also cut with these shears, thus saving many a finger from a cut with a sharp knife when hastily used.—National Magazine.

TOM LONGBOAT IS INJURED

Collision With Farmer's Cart Forces Indian to Discontinue His Training —Yankees Score 15 Points to Britain's 8 In Yesterday's Contests —Canada Has Only One Point —Goulding Was Unplaced.

London, July 17.—The United Kingdom started yesterday with four first places to America's two, but the latter picked up in the earlier events and won all three prizes in the discus throwing and first and third prizes in the weight throwing. Horgan of the United Kingdom took second place in the latter event. This evened the score of the two countries, but England got another lead when Taylor made his sensational win in the 400-metre swimming contest, beating Jeaurepacca, the Australian crack, by a handsome margin. Scheff of Austria, of whom great things had been expected, was third in this event.

The rain of the morning continued throughout the afternoon, and everybody was drenched. The inclement weather kept away spectators, and the attendance was meagre.

Longboat, in trying to avoid a country cart, met with an accident. His training has to be discontinued ur a result of the accident.

George Goulding of Canada was unplaced in the 10-mile walk, second heat, which was won by G. E. Latner of England in fast time.

In the 1,000 metre bicycle race, Andrews of Canada was fourth and Young of Canada fifth. They both qualify for the final.

In the fourth heat of the 1,000 metres McCarthy of Canada was third. Flynn won in 1 min. 30 3-5 secs.

In the ninth heat Denangel trimmed Morton of Canada in 1 min. 35 1-5 secs.

In the gymnastic competition Keith of Toronto was 59th, with 170 points; Elliott of Canada was 80th, with 132 1-2 points; Braglia first, 317 points. Ninety-six competitors were mentioned.

Hundred metre, hack-stroke, Zimmerman, the Canadian, was third. Lewis won, 1 min. 31 secs .

CATTLE MARKETS.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, July 16.—The receipts of live stock at the city market as reported by the railways for Wednesday and Thursday were 81 carloads, composed of 961 cattle, 1973 hogs, 1292 sheep and lambs, 191 calves and 1 horse.

Exporters.

None offered, and had there been any on sale $5.50 would have been the outside price for the best export steers, while bulls would have sold at $4 to $4.75 per cwt.

Butchers.

Few good loads were on sale, and the best of them did not equal the prices paid at the Junction on Monday last.

Geo. Rowntree, who buys some of the best always, reports $5.15 the highest for picked cattle; loads of good, $4.86; medium, $4.25 to $4.50; common, $3.75 to $4; cows, $3 to $4, with a few at a little more money.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. and W. Murby in their report last week advised light deliveries, which the drovers obeyed to the letter, as few came on the market, and it was well that it was so, as few were wanted. The Messrs. Murby report having bought only about 60 of both classes, that is light feeders and stockers, weighing from 600 to 900 lbs. each at $3 to $3.75 per cwt. This firm stated that they would be open to handle a few loads of good during the coming week.

Milkers and Springers.

Montreal and Quebec dealers were on the market, which made it strong for good to choice quality cows, of which there was a larger number than for several markets. But there also was a large number of common light cows for which there was practically little or no sale, as the Frenchmen want the best cows or none.

The best cows sold from $45 to $55 each, with a few at $60 each. The average price of choice cows was given at $46. Common cows sold at $20 to $30 each.

Veal Calves.

The quality of veal calves was fairly good, showing the effect of the good pastures in which their mothers had roamed. Prices were firmer at $4 to $5.75, with a few of the new milk fed class as high as $6 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Altho there was a fairly large delivery, prices remained steady for sheep, and were firmer for lambs. Export ewes sold at $3.50 to $3.75; rams, $3 to $3.50; yearlings, $4.25 per cwt.; lambs, $7 to $8.25 per cwt., with some selected lots at $8.50 per cwt.

Hogs.

Nearly 2000 hogs were received on the market for the last two days, but prices did not weaken. Packers still quote $6.90 for selects fed and watered, and $6.65 f.o.b. cars at country points. Drovers quote $6.75 as being paid at many points to farmers, and $6.80, $6.85 and even $6.90 f.o.b. cars at country points.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 600 head; active; sheep, steady; lambs, 30c higher; lambs, $5.50 to $7.40; wethers, $4.25 to $4.50.

Chicago Live Stock.

Town Is Wiped Out.

New Philadelphia, Ohio, July 17.—The town of Baltic, containing 500 people, was practically wiped out yesterday by fire. Loss $100,000. The fire started at 9 o'clock Wednesday night and raged until early yesterday. Forty home and business buildings were destroyed.

Quebec, July 17.—The British cruiser Venus, which remained behind with the collier Portsmouth which ran ashore, arrived last evening. In coming to her anchorage she collided with the battleship Russell and was slightly damaged.

VILLAGES CUT OFF.

Bush Fires Destroy Communication With Three Towns.

St. John, N.B., July 17.—The villages of Back Bay, L'Etang, Letete and Masorene are completely cut off from St. George by bush fires. Communication may only be had by team, driving 40 miles around. Telephone and telegraph lines are destroyed, and people are praying for rain. Winds which prevailed Wednesday evening died down considerably, but still the forest fires are making rapid progress, and cannot be controlled, although all the able-bodied men in the district are strenuously fighting them.

At South Bay the fire has already swept over 3,000 acres.

Investigating Beef Trust.

London, July 17.—Pressed to take some action to prevent the American beef combine from obtaining control of the retail beef trade in Great Britain, President of the Board of Trade Churchill on Wednesday informed Lord Robert Cecil in the House of Commons that the operations of the six firms constituting the beef combine were receiving the careful attention of the Government.

Mr. Churchill said that his investigations thus far had not yet convinced him of the necessity of appointing a House of Commons committee of inquiry.

Masons Elect Officers.

Niagara Falls, July 17.—The following officers were elected yesterday morning by the Masonic Grand Lodge of Canada: Grand secretary, R. L. Gunn, Hamilton; grand junior warden, J. C. Bartram, Ottawa; grand treasurer, E. T. Malone, Toronto; grand registrar, D. Rutherford, Owen Sound (accl.); board of general purposes—A. Shaw, Kingston; A. J. Young, North Bay; S. A. Luke, Ottawa; W. D. McPherson, Toronto; John Hoodless, Hamilton.

London was chosen as the place for the meeting of the grand lodge next year.

Socialists Protest.

Wellington, New Zealand, July 17.—The Socialists in Auckland are threatening to hold a demonstration of the unemployed as a protest against the public expenditures incidental to the reception of the American fleet.

In the House of Assembly Wednesday night Mr. Holcomb, one of the members, said that there was danger that the visit of the American fleet might cause the colonies to place dependence on the United States rather than on the Motherland. He therefore regretted that the invitation had been given.

Descendant of Champlain.

Montreal, July 17.—A man in New York named Champlain, who claims to be a direct descendant of Champlain, the founder of Canada, has sent a letter to Major Howe, United States Consul-General of Montreal. The letter went into details of the claimant's genealogy, which seemed in perfect order.

The writer asked the authorities of Quebec to provide him with a place from which to view the celebration in honor of his ancestor.

Housekeepers Organize.

Chatham, July 17.—A housekeepers' combine is in formation here, the ostensible purpose of which is to boycott the alleged market combine, which has forced the price of commodities up to an unprecedented figure.

In spite of a plentiful crop and a plethora of farm products, prices of the market have been steadily maintained extraordinarily high. Housekeepers have accordingly agreed to boycott the civic institution in favor of the grocery stores.

New Equipment on Canal.

St. Catharines, July 17.—The work of installing the new electrical devices of the locks of the Welland Canal, in order to shorten the time of steamers in their journey from Port Colborne to Port Dalhousie, is progressing quite rapidly, and only three locks now remain without the equipment, and these will have it in a few days. The work will then be completed and the time will have been shortened over two full hours.

Advantage Jeopardized.

London, July 17.—The Standard's Berlin correspondent, respecting trade relations of France and Germany with Canada, says he is sure the advantage which the countries respectively would gain from agreements with Canada are jeopardized by the alluring but delusive hope of gaining some advantage from the United States.

WHERE TO GO FOR A VACATION

District Passenger Agent McDonald, of the Grand Trunk Railway System, has just returned from a visit to the charming Ontario Resorts of Muskoka, Lake of Bays, and Algonquin Park, and also made a trip to Kawartha Lakes, and reports that hotels and boarding houses are rapidly filling up, and all indications point to a splendid season. If visitors to Ontario, and even citizens of this city, only realized what delightful places there are in the "Highlands of Ontario," and how easily accessible they are by the splendid service of the Grand Trunk Railway System, many more extra trains would be needed. The beautiful Royal Muskoka Hotel, the finest summer hotel in Canada, has made their rates, including meals and lodging from $3.00 to $4.00 per day, and accommodation at hundreds of other hotels and boarding houses at lower rates, may be obtained, a little farther north, the Lake of Bays has good hotels, viz., Ronville, Wa,Wa, and Britannia, the Magnetawan River can take care of some. The Algonquin Park, 2,000 feet above sea level, has new hotels, the "Highland Inn," just opened, at moderate rates. Temagami Lakes, farther north, with its 1,400 Islands, good hotels and splendid fishing, will repay you for a visit. Still nearer, the pretty resorts of Lake Simcoe, Barrie, Atherley, Orillia, Jackson's Point and the Kawartha Lakes with its Fenelon Falls, Lindsay, Sturgeon Point and numerous boarding houses, on Stony Lake, are well worth a visit. Police Court Side Of Quarrel On The Train To Lindsay

Prisoner Says He Was Kicked in Stomach While He Attempted to Stop Row

OTHER CHARGES ARE MADE

Lindsay, July 17.—(Special.)—Mr. O. Armstrong appeared before Magistrate Moore yesterday charged with creating a disturbance by being drunk and disorderly on a train from Peterborough on Monday night, and pleaded not guilty. Mr. Fair said he was on the train when the fight happened and saw Armstrong and a couple of men fighting. He did not recognise who the others were, and they were falling all over the car and making it uncomfortable for the passengers. He thought Armstrong was drunk, and saw Mr. Irwin come in and remove him to the baggage car. It happened between Peterborough and Omemee on July 13.

Mr. J. Campbell was the next witness called. He was a brakesman and recognized Armstrong as being one of the fighters. He arrived in time to see Mr. Irwin remove the accused, but heard no swearing.

Mr. Crozier was then called and testified that he arrived when the fight had ceased, but heard some loud talking which was composed of some vulgar language.

The next witness called was Mr. Irwin, whose evidence was practically the same as Conductor Crozier's.

Mr. H. Scott was then called by the accused. He was sitting in a seat opposite the fight, and thought that a man named English had started the fight with Mr. Bates, and that Armstrong tried to stop them and thus got mixed in the fight.

The accused said he was sitting in his seat playing a mouth organ when two men named English and Bates began to quarrel. He got up to stop them, and a fourth party kicked him in the stomach, and then the onslaught began. He admitted he was drunk and had used some strong language.

The case was then adjourned until Saturday, when judgment will be given.

Another charge of disorderly conduct was brought against several others who were on the same train, and who were to appear this morning, but on account of illness one of the accused was unable to be present, and this case was also adjourned until Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

How Mrs. Payne Of Dummer Was Murdered By Brenton

She Was Clubbed to Death With a Pick Iron — Young Doughty's Throat Cut

THE STOLEN GOODS FOUND

The murder of Mrs. Payne, mother of Eliza Ann Payne who is now in the County House of Refuge, is told in a different way by the Stony Lake correspondent to the Norwood Register, from what appeared in the local press. The North Dummer scribe was on the ground shortly after the murder and recollected all that transpired. His story is:—

The woman was not shot, neither was the boy Doughty. When Mr. Payne left home in the morning he left Brenton fixing up a root house, the roof of which had partly given way. The boy had gone out to see what he was doing just after the dinner hour. The man enticed the boy inside and then cut his throat in the root house. Then he took the handle out of the pick that he was using and brought the handle to the house and set it up just outside the door and took the iron in his hand and went in. Mrs. Payne was still sitting at the table where she had been eating her dinner when she saw him come in with the iron of the pick in his hand. She got up and ran to the front door to get out, but just as she was going out of the door the struck her on the back of the head with the pick and broke her skull and she fell out of the door, for her feet were still on the door step. He had turned the body over and smashed her forehead into a pulp and then cut her throat. Such was the atrocity of that awful crime.

Mr. Payne was at a neighbour's at a threshing and the man went to the threshing to get Mr. Payne to go home with him, but he did not go. Brenton had taken the gun, a quilt, and a loaf of bread and these were found years afterwards by a neighbour who was clearing up a fallow, but the bed clothes were rotten.

FARMERS REJOICING OVER DOWNFALL OF RAIN TO-DAY

To-day's rain was a welcome one for the farmers, and especially those who had late crops and roots. The heavy rains during the seeding season had moistened the earth a little too much, and when the hot weather came the land was baked into hard lumps. Since that time there has scarcely been enough moisture to keep the earth in a good growing condition, and many farmers were beginning to despair of a fair crop of oats.

The wheat crop seems to be universally good, so far as Peterborough county is concerned, but few farmers grow much of it. They depend principally on the oats, and they therefore wanted rain. The downfall to-day will also be of untold benefit to the roots, potatoes and gardens. They had just reached that stage when moisture means a new lease of life.

Of course, there are fields of hay and wheat cut, but not under shelter, which will suffer somewhat, but on the whole the rain was a blessing.

"Just what we were praying for," remarked a farmer to the Examiner to-day.

Keene Man Breaks Collar Bone While On Visit Home

Farmers Entered in Field Crop Competition — Fourteen Pound Lunge Caught

FARMERS THROUGH HAYING

Examiner Special

Keene, July 16.—The following farmers are taking part in the Field Crop Competition held by the Otonabee Agricultural Society: — John Starke, Fred Speirs, F A Eason, John Lang, Jr., J H Fife, Alex Stewart, David Edwards, R Humphries, Thos. Thompson, Joshua Smithson, Peter Drummond, Robt. Weir, R A Nelson, W W Sheafer, John Miller, Mark Plunkett. The crop is white oats and the Agricultural Department will send an expert judge about the time they are nearly fit to be cut. Liberal prizes will be awarded and the competition, judging from the number of entries seems to be popular with the farmers in Otonabee.

The muskinonge fishing is not quite so good as the bass fishing, but some good catches are being made. Wednesday morning Mr. James Dickson, Sr., in 45 hour's fishing caught a fourteen pound and an eight pound lunge.

Most farmers in this vicinity are through haying. The crop is not nearly so heavy as was expected, in fact, many claim that it is very little better in this township than last year. A few farmers are cutting fall wheat this week.

Mr. J H Plunkett, Chicago, is visiting relatives in Chicago.

Mrs. Thos. Starke and Mr. Percy Green, Chicago, were the guests of Mrs. R Humphries Tuesday.

Mrs. Kempt, Lakefield, is visiting relatives in this vicinity.

Miss Kate McFarlane who has been in Whitby, arrived home Wednesday.

Miss Susie Calvert, Pickering, is the guest of Miss Annie Conrad.

Miss Bessie Read, Peterborough, is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. J R McIntyre.

We are pleased to state that Mr. Fred Taylor who is suffering from an attack of appendicitis, is much improved and a speedy recovery is hoped for.

Post Office Inspector Merrick was in the village inspecting the local post office Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Humphries, Asphodel, visited friends in Keene on Wednesday.

Mr. Gray, Bowmanville, is visiting friends in Otonabee.

Mr. James McFee, who has been visiting friends in the vicinity, left for his home in New Liskeard, Tuesday.

Dr. Howson, Kalazamoo, Mich., is visiting friends in Otonabee.

Miss McClelland and Miss Helen Denne spent Wednesday in the village.

Miss Lena McEwen, Toronto, is the guest of Miss Nellie McNevin.

Mr. Jonas Nelson had the misfortune to break his collar bone Monday evening while on a visit to a friend in Peterborough. He started to go out the back door in the evening and did not notice the steps. He arrived home Tuesday and had the bone set and although suffering much pain is doing as well as could be expected.

Miss Grace Harris, Rochester, N.Y., is the guest of Miss Annie Hore.

Master David Kempt is visiting friends in Toronto.

Miss Margaret Bolin and Master Allouse Bolin visited relatives in Hastings this week.

A crowd of huckleberry pickers drove out to Burleigh Tuesday morning to spend a couple of days picking berries.

Miss Emma McCamus was the guest of her brother, Mr. R J McCamus, Sunday.

The Keene baseball team will play Hastings in Hastings Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Thomas Campbell visited friends in the village Wednesday.

Mrs. T Eason and Mrs. Jennie Eason, Asphodel, were in Keene on Wednesday.

EARLY FISHERMAN GETS THE EARLY FISH

Black Bass However Disappear From the Refrigerator

Four o'clock is perhaps an early hour for a person to leave his bed of ease on such splendid sleeping mornings as we have been experiencing lately. But yesterday morning, nevertheless, a Walton disciple connected with a local amusement house had himself at a very early hour to the haunts of the black bass up the Otonabee. Unlike most fishermen he was successful in landing a few handsome black bass and he returned to the city wearing the Quaker smile.

The fish were stored away in the refrigerator but the door, through some neglect was left open. It was the story of the cat and the fish over again and the pleasant anticipation of the taste of the palatable black bass was never realized. The cat was just as good a fisher as the cook.

SMALL ATTENDANCE AT THE COTTAGERS' MEETING

At Stony Lake — Not Much Business Transacted—A New Piano

Examiner Special

Stony Lake, July 17.—The meeting of the directors of the Stony Lake Cottagers' Association, called for Wednesday evening, did not materialize. Messrs. Jas. Acton, president; S. Henderson, vice-president; John Nugent and N. L. Piper, directors, were all who responded to the notice. With such a small attendance, the business which was to have come before the meeting could not be transacted. It has been decided however, that a new piano will be purchased for use in the pavilion to replace the one now there, and the committee is now making the selection.

It is expected that work will soon be commenced on the new wharf, for which $1,500 was recently allowed in the estimates at Ottawa. These and the many other improvements completed and under way, will make this popular resort and meeting place still more popular. The efforts of the association will no doubt be greatly appreciated.

SHOPS CLOSE AT FIVE O'CLOCK

Lindsay Clerks Have an Hour Every Day Instead of Half Holiday.

Clerks in Lindsay stores have a slightly different method of taking a holiday to that in vogue in this city. It is learned that instead of the Thursday half holiday, the stores close at 5 o'clock every evening excepting Saturday, which is just the same length of time, but is an hour each day instead of an afternoon.

Healthy hens are the only kind that pay. The most healthy are those free from lice, and lice cannot exist where Empire Poultry Duster is used. At all druggists.

FISHERMEN SEE DEER GRAZING

Abundance of Bass at Cedar Lake—The Limit Each Day

Messrs. S. Fraser and B. Dench of Lakefield spent a few days last week at Cedar Lake, Burleigh, on a bass fishing expedition. They report the fishing to be fine at that place, catching the limit each day. Game seems to be plentiful, as they noticed deer grazing peacefully on the edge of the lake.

CAUSE FOR ALARM

Epidemic Influenza, Grippe, Catarrhal Troubles, Pneumonia Increasing.

A marked increase in troubles of the breathing organs is noted in many localities. If you will only have Hyomei at hand to use with the first attack of Cold in the head, Pneumonia, Colds, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Croup, in fact any respiratory affection, the trouble will be quickly overcome.

If the attack is neglected and becomes severe, speedy relief will come in most cases, and a persistant use of Hyomei will cure.

The directions for using it vary, but the principle is always the same, that of destroying all the germs in the air you breathe, and having it reach the air passages with dry medication from the Pine and Eucalyptus forests.

Remember that liquids or moisture are barred from the Bronchial Tubes and Lungs. It's the dry air of Hyomei that reaches the spot. Wm. Madill guarantees it.

Complete outfit, $1.

GREAT SCHEME ON FOOT TO ENLARGE THE QUAKER OATS ESTABLISHMENT IN THE CITY

What Mr. Stewart Proposes on Completion of The Trent Waterway---Toronto Engineers' Cruise Through The Canal---Beavers Build Dam That Engineers Planned

To-day's Toronto World contains the following on the trip of the Toronto Engineers' Club through the Trent Canal waters yesterday:

While on their annual outing yesterday the Toronto Engineers' Club learned that the Dominion Government have been spared an expenditure of $2,000 or more on the Trent Canal recently, owing to the industry of a colony of beavers.

Superintendent J. H. McClelland of the Trent Canal accompanied the party in the Government tug "Bessie Butler," and recounted this remarkable incident: The Government placed a dam across Gull River last autumn for the purpose of raising and conserving the water in Little Mud Lake, in order that it might be let loose into the waterway at times when low water threatened to hamper navigation or intertere with the operation of the many industries that are dependent upon the canal for power. When the dam was completed it was found that the water of the lake backed up and began running in the wrong direction, north.

Then it was decided to build a second dam at the northern outlet to contain the water, and operations in this direction were to have begun early this summer.

What was the amazement of everybody concerned to find when they went up this spring to make a survey that beavers had already done the work.

A perfect dam, 700 feet long and 7 feet deep, had been constructed during the frozen winter months. There was not a leak discernible and no likelihood of future leaks, at least for years to come.

Then Mr. McClelland ordered another stoplog to be placed upon the first dam, to raise the water yet another foot.

Again the water started flowing northward over the beavers' obstruction, and immediately the ambitious little animals set to work and added another foot to the dam. The beaver-dam answers the Government's purpose to a "T."

The only recounting vouchsafed by the astonished engineers was that the fine instincts of the animals told them that something was wrong, the current was not taking the course they had always been used to, and they must rectify it.

Big Enterprise for Peterborough

Many other items of supreme interest were picked up by the engineers.

One announcement that would appear to urge most strongly upon the Government the immediate necessity of rushing the work so as to provide an outlet for navigation into Lake Ontario was received with great enthusiasm, and that was that Robert Stewart, president of the American Cereal Company of Chicago, with a branch factory in Peterborough, declared lately that as soon as the work is completed he will build barges and guarantee to haul 6,000,000 bushels of oats and 4,000,000 bushels of wheat yearly into Peterborough to be made into "Quaker Oats" and flour, thence to be shipped in the company's boats to Montreal for export. All he is waiting for is a chance to make good his assertion.

Peterborough affords ideal facilities for such an enterprise—ample water-power being quite an item of consideration—and this district, tapped by the Trent Valley waterway for 100 miles straight going, is one of the finest grain-producing areas in Canada, capable of tremendous yield of finest quality. Then, too, with a comparatively light expenditure and by dredging and adapting the Severn River from Orillia to the Georgian Bay for a distance of 28 miles, a complete passageway could be provided from the Bay of Quinte to the Soo, and consequently to the north-west grain crops.

Thirty miles of work from Campbellford, and twenty-eight miles from Orillia to the Georgian Bay will complete the project and provide an entrance to the northwest harvests, 400 miles shorter than New York will have when the Erie Canal is completed. This will give the Canadian Government a continuous channel eight feet deep with the aid of a natural chain of lakes for $15,000,000 all told, as against $101,000,000, which the United States Government will have to spend to accomplish the same purpose.

Great Future in Cattle Raising

Should the American Cereal Company carry out its scheme of using 10,000,000 bushels of grain per year, it is believed that the whole Trent Valley district will become the greatest cattle raising field in Canada, owing to the cheap feed that will be obtainable in the offal from this great prospective mill.

In an animated discussion upon the subject Engineer W. J. Fuller declared that the opening up of this waterway from Lake Ontario to Georgian Bay was paving the way for the preservation, regulation and utilization of every bit of water in the hinterland for navigation, power and lumbering purposes, and would also result in the re-forestring of a vast area of the adjoining territory.

This year's outing of the Engineer's Club was an exceptionally pleasant jaunt under most delightful conditions during the whole twenty hours away.

In a special car a party of thirty-seven good-looking men left the union depot via C. P. R. at 10 o'clock Wednesday night, arriving in Peterborough sometime after midnight in the bbest of spirits. Hotel accommodation had been previously arranged, At 5.30 o'clock yesterday morning the party sallied forth to the Peterborough hydraulic lift lock, where Superintendent J. H. Mcclelland, with a party of invited guests, was already waiting to begin a 75-mile cruise in the pretty government tug "Bessie Butler," through the romantic Kawartha Lakes. Bobcaygeon was the destination, to reach which eleven locks must be passed through. From the height that little boat travelled, it sounds more like the journey of an air ship than a steel clad tug. When she wound up she was 350 feet higher than when she started. The first jump of sixty feet was accomplished in two minutes. The lift lock rode as smoothly as a passenger elevator.

In the first nine miles to Lakefield, five locks, one swing bridge, two overhead bridges and three hydro-electric power plants were passed. The latter were the projects of the Canadian General Electric Company (3000 horse power; the Otonabee Power Company (2000 horse power), and the Lakefield Portland Cement Power Company (1500 horse power).

In the next jump through the purling waters of Ketchiwanaka Lake to Young's Point, a second horse power house of the Lakefield Portland Cement Company, generating 1000 horse power, and the immense Young's saw mills were viewed. Clear Lake, supporting millions of feet of boomed logs and Stony Lake with the myriads of granite islands, were skimmed in the course to Burleigh Falls, where a dinner of fresh maskalonge or something equally palatable was enjoyed.

New Buckhorn Dam

Passing Lovesick and Deer Bay the inspection tug was locked for the eleventh time at Buckhorn, where she tied up for a brief space to give those who desired it, an opportunity to view the construction work on the new $100,000 dam and concrete bridge.

This work is in very close proximity to the summer residence of "Tom" Eastwood. It has the honour of being the most important bit of construction of the whole system, not even excepting the far-famed Peterborough lock. It controls the flow of water from Big Buckhorn, Little Buckhorn, Chemong, Mud and Pigeon Lakes—a matter of 50,000 square feet by an average depth of ten feet of water, which if once loosed by any mischance would sweep Peterborough and the intervening towns clean off the map.

Bobcaygeon was reached at 3.30 p. m., where the C. P. R. train with the same special car attached as carried the party to Peterborough, the night before, was waiting to whirl them back to Toronto by the Lindsay route.

Every detail had been carefully worked out, and the arrangements were eminently successful, reflecting much credit upon those who planned them.

Those in the party were: J. G. Sing, president; C. M. Canniff, P. L. Somerville, C. H. Heyes, W. J. Fuller, A. Pense, A. F. Macallum, W. Vandeleur, C. H. Hamilton, T. T. Block, W. A. Young, S. D. Chadseyd J. Williams, J. D. Shields, A. L. Merrill, A. W. King, D. D. James, L. J. Street, R. G. Block, A. Lemay, O. N. Scott, A. J. VanNostrand, A. T. Ward, C. R. Young, E. A. James, W. Rubidge, H. L. Bucke, R. A. Baldwin, W. A. Johnson; also, Messrs. Nasmith, Carter, Boyd, Stewart, J. H. McClelland and Mr. Symons, representing the "Canadian Engineer."

PRICE OF RASPBERRIES WILL BE MAINTAINED

Says Local Grocer In Speaking to "Canadian Grocer's" Correspondent

Saturday, July 11th, was one of the best days for business the Peterborough grocers have ever had. Monday, the 13th, was celebrated by the Orangemen from four counties, in addition to Peterborough County, and with 15,000 visitors to feed, as well as the same number of citizens, the hotels, boarding houses and temporary eating houses made big demands on the grocers. Saturday was, therefore, a great day for them. On Monday, however, it was different. There was nothing doing in the grocery line. Fruits sold exceedingly well.

The strawberry season in Peterborough is now passed. The sales were particularly brisk this year, the demand being a little better than the supply. Although there are considerable quantities of strawberries grown in this vicinity, the supply is altogether inadequate for local trade. One groceryman remarked that if the citizens of Peterborough had to depend on the supply here strawberries would have been 40c per box. Raspberries have taken their place. They are retailing at 15 cents per box, and the price promises to be high this season. The crop is reported to be good, but the great demand all over the country will tend to maintain a steady high price. This, at any rate, is the opinion of local grocers.—Canadian Grocer.

A Norwood Man In Chicago Has Perfected New Invention

System of Selective Calling and Bridging for Train Dispatching by Telephone

$1200 IN TWO MONTHS

Mr. Geo. C. Cumming, of Chicago, and formerly of Norwood, in association with a friend named Wray, has recently perfected a number of new telephone combinations and a system of selective calling by which by pressing a button you can ring a four-inch bell in any desired station without ringing any other station, or by pressing several buttons you can ring any group or number of stations up to 56 all at one time if desired or ring 28 stations in 30 seconds. The ring is, of course for them to answer on the despatcher's telephone. The bells can be heard all over the station and platform. When any way station desires to talk to the dispatcher all he has to do is to take down the receiver and say "Hello Dispatcher." The dispatcher being on the line all the time.

There are a number of systems of selective signalling which work satisfactorily for a few stations, and there are several systems which have been designed for a considerable number of stations and work to some degree of satisfaction when the line conditions are perfect. The principal defect with these systems is the method of signalling, which, in most cases, is a "step-by-step" method, which is not only slow but uncertain. In stormy weather the electrical discharges break up the chain of signals and consequently it is extremely difficult to reach the desired station. The dispatcher must find an interval of time between lightning flashes sufficiently long for him to operate his "step-by-step" signals, and on a line of considerable length this is no easy matter as it requires but a very small discharge to place an additional "step" in the signal, and as a result the wrong party is called.

With this system the dispatcher can call any or all stations with a single operation, while with other systems it is necessary for the dispatcher to go through as many operations as there are stations to be called.

Example — The dispatcher desires to speak with the agent at way station No. 7. He first operates key No. 7, and then presses the starting key which releases all the clock movements in the system, and as the brush passes over contact No. 7 on the dial at the dispatcher's office, the selector at station No. 7 has caused its commutator to revolve so that the contact point has come under the brush, thus the two selectors together complete the necessary circuits at the same instant and consequently the relay is operated, cutting the bell into circuit. This will continue to ring until the attendant answers. Should the dispatcher want a group or even all the station agents on the line at one time, he operates such station keys as he desires, presses the starting button and each bells starts to ring in turn, as the selector brush passes over the different contact points on the dial.

The inventors have arranged with a large electrical manufacturing concern in Chicago, to handle their device, and a few days ago received their first cheque for royalties. On their first sixty days business they cleared up $1,200.

Mr. Cumming is an old Norwood boy—the youngest son of the late James Cumming, and brother of Mr. Ira Cumming, proprietor of the Norwood machine shop.

Village Of Hastings Looms Up As A Summer Resort

Hotels are Crowded and Spare Rooms in Private Houses are Occupied—Fishing is Excellent

MANY AMERICANS THERE

A gentleman who travels extensively in this district was this morning discussing with an Examiner reporter the various summer resorts he has visited this season.

"You can talk about Stony Lake and Chemong and Rice Lake, but as far as fishing is concerned, the little town of Hastings beats anything I've seen in many a day. There are more fish caught there in one week than in any of the other three places during the entire summer."

Continuing, he told of a Toronto man who is spending his holidays there. A few days ago he was out still fishing on the river and caught thirty bass in two hours, and nearly all of them were "whoppers."

"The visitors down there," he said, "are not satisfied with one line from their boats, but fish with two or three. They employ guides to take them to the best fishing grounds, and they never seem to be satisfied unless they can get the limit."

Hotels Overcrowded

The gentleman said it is surprising how Hastings is fast becoming popular. The hotels have guests for all the accommodation they can supply. The proprietors have hired rooms in houses in the village, and the American and Canadian visitors sleep in these, but take their meals at the hotels. The place is thriving on the patronage of the tourists.

The American and Canadian fishermen present a decided contrast. The former love the sport of landing the fish, but generally give their catch away. The Canadian visitors, particularly from Toronto, ship their fish home to friends. Not only are they catching plenty of bass, but the lunge in the Trent are providing great sport, and the village is looking forward to making a name for itself, specially during the summer.

Cow Had Made Its Way Into Pantry Of Rice Lake Cottage

The boys at "Cosynook" cottage, Rice Lake, narrowly escaped losing all their provisions yesterday, according to a report that has been received. In the morning after breakfast they were enjoying a sunny siesta, when a strange noise was heard from the pantry, which is at the rear. On going through the house to investigate they found a cow quietly examining the shelves, but it was just half way through the door. It had knocked down a tin pan, thus attracting the boys' attention. After this the door will be barred at "Cosynook." The members of the party are Messrs. H. Quinlan, H. and F. Hickey and V. Sullivan.

BILL GOES THROUGH IN THE HOUSE

Election Measure Passes Its Third Reading in House.

PROROGATION ON SATURDAY

Conservative Members Hotly Attack Railroad Subsidies and Say Time For Grants Is Past — Country Must Be Developed, Says Laurier — Aylesworth's Railway Employes' Amendment.

Ottawa, July 17.—The election bill was read a third time and passed in the House of Commons yesterday, but not before several members of the Opposition had carried out their usual practice of making assertions reflecting upon members to the right of the Speaker, and had been compelled to withdraw them. Dr. Sproule was one of the offenders, and it was with every evidence of reluctance that he bowed to the ruling and withdrew a statement regarding Mr. Conmee, which that gentleman demanded should be retracted. During this incident the Speaker had to assert his authority with more vigor than perhaps on any other occasion during the session, and his words were uttered in sharp, commanding tones. Hon. A. B. Aylesworth's address during the discussion was strong and effective, particularly in showing up the inconsistencies of the Opposition's attitude on the measure. Many of the members to the left of the Speaker later in the day expressed opposition to the railway subsidies, though one blamed the Government for not providing for a line from Ottawa to Brockville, and another approved of the bond guarantees. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's explanation of the Government's idea on the matter was illuminating and satisfactory. A measure repealing the section of the Railway Act under which railway employes are subject to double liability for railway accidents was read a third time and passed last night leaving them subject only to liability under the criminal code.

After passing the bill amending the Manitoba grain act and the inspection and sale of grain act bill the House of Commons adjourned this morning at 2.30.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier denied that there was any discrimination against Ontario. The present condition of the law in Ontario places the Federal Parliament at the mercy of the Ontario Government, which could prevent the lists being revised from year to year, so that the Dominion election would have to be held on old lists or a special list made in a hurry. He knew the people of Ontario as well as if he had been brought up there. He could rely on the good sense of the people of Ontario; they would defend their rights when their rights were attacked; but they could not be gulled by any such pretence.

R. Borden attempted to secure a promise for simultaneous elections [illegible] Yukon.

Mr. Foster offered an amendment to make it a crime to offer public works to constituencies as an inducement to vote-getting, with an election impending, and Dr. Sproule proposed to strike out the marked ballot.

The Opposition members vigorously attacked Mr. Graham's railway aid resolutions yesterday afternoon, on the principle that the time had come to cease granting subsidies, except under very exceptional circumstances, and for the reason that there was not time before prorogation to enquire into the merits of individual claims. There was very little Ministerial support of the proposals, Mr. Emmerson being the only Liberal outside the Government to risk an opinion.

Mr. Graham pleaded that the new country must have railways to progress. He did not think Canada had arrived at a point when she could do away with granting aid to railways.

R. L. Borden said the resolutions were introduced seven months and 17 days after the House met. Would not the Government be forced to admit that all the delay of the session was due to their own neglect to bring forward their business. Either these resolutions were prepared two or three months ago or the Government was not ready till a few days ago to bring them down.

The total subsidies accounted for 3,965 miles of railway, equal to the Transcontinental Railway, and the proposal was not presented till within 48 hours of the close of the session. At $3,200 a mile the subsidies would amount to $13,024,000, of it the cost exceeds $15,000 a mile, the cost would greatly exceed this figure. It was not an exaggeration to say that the treasury would be pledged to no less a sum than $22,429,000, which, added to the bond guarantees, goes up to over $33,000,000.

Dr. Sproule said the people, especially of the agricultural class, were opposed to granting any more subsidies to railways. They would also be used as a bribing agency in many constituencies, and would be used as a means of securing an enormous campaign fund for elections. Liberal members who were supporting these resolutions strongly condemned the Whitney Government for passing the C. N. A. guarantee, but had no fault to find with the action of the federal administration.

David Henderson thought the time for aiding railways had not passed, but this aid should take the form of a guarantee.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier did not share the opinion of previous speakers that the time had come to cease bonusing railways. In fact, experience showed that the time was distant when the system could be changed. There were many portions of Ontario and some sections of Quebec so gridironed with railways that people there was inclined to think there was no need for further aid, but in many sections this was not the case.

Major Beattie protested against the vote to the Erie, London & Tillsonburg railway, which would parallel the London & Port Stanley Railway, built by the City of London. There were three railways serving that district.

Mr. Graham said the charter was for a road from Port Burwell to London, with a branch to Tillsonburg. It had been represented to him that, with an additional road, coal would be brought in more cheaply and a large district would be served. Major Beattie declared that the Minister had been deceived, as coal for London district was not brought in that way at all.

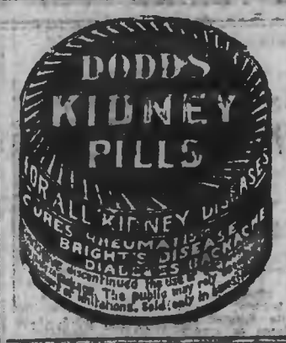
clause, but these were all declared lost.

Boyce's amendment, that the provincial lists of Ontario should be given equal validity with those of other provinces, thus avoiding discrimination against Ontario, was voted down by 99 to 60, Lorenz Robitaille being recorded with the Opposition.

Estimates were taken up last night. There will be some discussion on the report of the Quebec bridge committee to-day.

Prorogation will take place Saturday.

In the Senate yesterday morning Senator Lougheed gave notice that he would move that the civil service commissioners should not both belong to the same political party.



TENDERS ARE LOW.

Transmission Line Bids Are Well Under the Estimates.

Toronto, July 17.—Tenders to the number of 27 for the construction of the electric power transmission line were opened yesterday morning by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. Some of the bulk tenders, however, enabled the commission to announce that a saving of at least 10 per cent. on the estimates would be effected under the anticipated contracts.

On the right of way, the adoption of the easement plan, for which a large number of contracts have been signed, will result in a saving of 50 per cent.

Scandals In Portugal.

Lisbon, July 17.—The crowning scandal of the "Portuguese Panama" has been brought out by the publication of a long list of names of influential Government officials, generals, court dignitaries and members of the nobility, who, like the late King Carlos, received illegal advances from the state treasury. According to the newspapers Gens. Oliva, Costa and Lopes each received $50,000, and the Portuguese Minister to Pekin, recently recalled, drew twenty years' salary in advance. The total of these illegal payments reaches several million dollars.

Mining Promoter Wanted.

Toronto, July 17.—Extradition proceedings will be pressed by the Attorney-General's Department in the case of William Lockhart Russell, of the firm of Law & Co., mining promoters. Frank Law, the other partner, has been accepted as a crown witness, and he also offers to pay the costs of Russell's prosecution.

The Law firm is reported to have cleaned up $300,000. Russell visited England and France, and then returned to New York and Lima, Ohio. He is a brother of Archdeacon Russell of Rhode Island.

Chink Smugglers Baffled.

Buffalo, N.Y., July 17.—Chinese Inspectors Archbold and McCullough in a high power motor pursued a motor boat containing eight Chinamen and two white men in the harbor early yesterday, and after a chase of more than a mile drew up alongside of the smugglers craft. One of the white men, Thomas Roach, of 255 Genessee street, immediately went over the side and struck out for shore. He was hauled aboard the inspectors' boat by the use of a boat hook.

Caps Explode; Three Die.

Boston, July 17.—Two Government customs inspectors ad a wharf watchmen were killed and two longshoremen and two clerks injured in the explosion yesterday of a box containing detonating caps in an inspection locker of a shed on pier 47, Mystic Wharf.

CITY OF HAMILTON IS CONDEMNED

Municipal Power Cities Will Throw Her Out of Union.

CAN'T GET HYDRO AT ALL

Other Towns Will Petition For Right to Prevent Hamilton From Securing Co-operative Power If Contract With Cataract Company Is Signed — City Council Postpones Passing Agreement.

Guelph, July 17.—The City of Hamilton's action in dealing with the Cataract Power Co. was condemned at the meeting of the Western Municipal Power Union here yesterday.

In a set of resolutions to be forwarded to the Hamilton City Council the municipal representatives expressed themselves very strongly on the manner in which Hamilton was using the union to secure lower prices.

The resolutions said, in part:

"That the City of Hamilton applied for a supply of power from the commission, in co-operation with such other municipalities, the city should, in good faith, join in the contract between such other muncipalities and the commission, and we would respectfully suggest to the council of the City of Hamilton, that they submit the contract of the Hydro-Electric Commission, and the offer of the company to the electors.

"That unless either one of the representations above made be acted upon by the council of the City of Hamilton, this union will regard the action of the City of Hamilton as antagonistic to the union, and that, in view of the statement made on behalf of such majority of the council of the City of Hamilton above referred to, if such offer is accepted and any application is made in future by the City of Hamilton, to the commission for a supply of power the municipalities represented at this meeting will urge upon the commission that it would be inequitable for the commission to entertain the application, and such municipalities will protest against and resist any such application.

"That the commission be asked to embody in any further contracts with the municipalities (if found necessary), provision that no municipality which has failed to execute a power contract with the commission, shall be hereafter permitted to obtain the benefit of Niagara power from the commission, without the consent of the majority of the contracting municipalities, and, if necessary, that legislation be obtained for that purpose."

The following municipalities were represented: London, by Ald. G. W. Armstrong; Guelph, Mayor Newstad, S. Carter; Waterloo, Ald. Wedenham, Ald George Suggitt; Stratford, Mayor Gordon, City Solicitor Robertson; Ingersoll, Ald. Elliott; Berlin, E. J. Philip; St. Thomas, A. B. Doherty; Brantford, Mayor Boultbee, K.C., and Ald. Andrews; Galt, P. Radigan, Stewart, Scott; Preston, F. Clare; Woodstock, Mayor Sutherland. The mayor of St. Mary's missed the train and authorized President Fryer to act for him.

Toronto was not represented.

Council Considers Contract.

Hamilton, July 17.—The City Council found last night that the Cataract Power contract was too big a job for consideration in a single sitting so part of it was left over to be finished to-night. Mayor Stewart wanted an adjournment until Monday evening in view of the importance of the document but was outvoted 12—9.

The special committee's recommendation that a contract be made with the Cataract Power Co. for city lighting and power was passed 13 to 8.

When the resolution of the Western Municipal Power Union was read to the council a motion was made by a Cataract supporter to expunge the resolution from the records of the council. The motion was carried 13 to 8.

A motion was entered to pass the contract without considering it clause by clause, but it was agreed to consider it fully. Amendments are to be moved this evening.

Rich Iron Mines Found.

Montreal, July 17.—High C. P. R. officials announce that they have found within little over a hundred miles from Montreal, in the Laurentians, acre upon acre of iron ore which showed 60 per cent. of high-class iron. They refuse to give the location, but one of the highest officials on the road goes away to-day to follow up the find. He says that he believes the find is greater by far than Algoma or Sydney.

Rivals Fight; One Dies.

Sault Ste. Marie, July 17.—Tonie MacKi, who fought a knife duel over a woman with Isaac Saari at the Michipicoten Mining Camp, faces a murder charge, his victim having died yesterday. The men loved the same woman and engaged in a desperate fight after which doctors put 74 stitches in Saari. He lingered between life and death for two weeks.

Lad Taps Till.

St. Catharines, July 17.—Mrs. David Ramsay yesterday afternoon caught a boy 15 years of age, tapping the till in her bakery at Merritton. Before Magistrate Campbell Mrs. Ramsay pleaded for the lad's liberty, and he was let go on suspended sentence.

Launch Lost In Typhoon.

Manila, July 17.—A pleasure launch bound from Manila to Corregidor Island, carrying about 75 passengers, was caught in a typhoon yesterday and foundered. It is believed 26 of the passengers, including three Americans, were drowned.

Rail Mill Shuts Down.

Sault Ste. Marie, July 17.—The rail mill of the Lake Superior Corporation closed down yesterday afternoon for an indefinite period. The notice says the men will be notified when the plant is prepared to resume. No official statement was made, but the men at the plant say the reason for the shut down is lack of orders and scarcity of ore to run the blast furnaces.

Strathconas Have A Good Lead Over The Other Teams

Standing of the City League at Present—Each Team Plays Ten Games During Summer

SOME OF TEAMS BUNCHED

For the benefit of the players in the various teams of the City League the standing of the teams is given below. The league is in its last stages and while not absolutely settled there is room for a surmise, and things are pointing towards the Strathcodhas! They have still to play the Lakeviews and West Ends and should they win both they will cinch the cup. However, time will tell. The teams now stand as follows:

	Won	Lost	To play
Strathconas	7	1	2
T. A. S.	4	2	4
West Ends	3	3	4
Lakeviews	2	2	6
Y. M. C. A.	4	4	2
Wellingtons	0	8	2

Strathconas defeated Wellingtons May 23rd by 10—2; May 25th, Y. M. C. A. by 13—6; June 3rd, T. A.S. by 13—3; June 13th, West Ends, 16—7; June 30th, Wellingtons, 8—4; July 11th, Lakeviews, 18—1; July 16th, Y. M. C. A., 22—12.

The Straths were defeated by T. A. S., June 20th, by 21—14.

West Ends defeated Wellingtons, June 10th, by 11—2; T. A. S., June 24th, by 6—4; Wellingtons, July 15th, by 12—4. They lost to the Strathconas and to the Y. M. C. A. twice.

T. A. S. defeated Lakeviews May 23rd, by 13—9; Y. M. C. A., May 27th, by 15—14; Wellingtons, June 13th, by 11—7; Strathconas, June 20th, by 21—14. They lost to the Strathconas, West Ends and Lakeviews. The latter game was protested and is therefore not counted.

Lakeviews defeated Wellingtons, June 8th, by 12—3; Y. M. C. A., June 27th, by 13—5. They lost to T. A. S. and Strathconas.

Y. M. C. A. defeated Wellingtons June 26th, by 13—6; West Ends, July 1st, by 4—3; Wellingtons, July 9th, by 11—10; West Ends, July 6th, by 14—5. They lost to Strathconas T. A. S. and Lakeviews. They have entered one protest, which has not been considered.

The Wellingtons have played eight games, but have failed to land a victory, although some of their games have been close. (They are the smallest team in the league, but on all occasions have gone after their opponents with vim and with this year's experience should be strong next season.

With only a few more games to play it is up to the teams to play only qualified men. Each team has a guarantee deposit which they might as well regain instead of forfeiting, besides the conclusion will be more satisfactory if all six teams are in the game when all is over.

MILLBROOK CRICKETERS WIN FROM THE PETERBOROUGHS

By the narrowest possible margin, the Peterborough Cricket Club was defeated in a closely contested match at Nicholls Oval yesterday afternoon by an eleven representing Millbrook. The visitors won by 80 runs to 59, after a most interesting game which was enjoyed by spectators and players alike. That the grand old game is reviving in interest was shown by the number of people present to witness the game, a large attendance of the fair sex being noticeable.

W. G. Marshall of the local club was top scorer, putting on a faultless innings for 20, while T. Allen of the visitors contributed a useful 14. Had it not been for the stand made by Marshall, Peterborough would have been badly beaten. Six wickets had fallen for 29, and his steady batting his score consisting mainly of singles, was very useful.

Hill for Peterborough and Stephenson for the visitors both did good work with the ball, and in addition pulled off some pretty catches.

The visitors were entertained at dinner by the Peterborough club, and left for home on the 9.05 G. T. R. train.

Port Hope And Petes Clash At Riverside Park To-morrow

Local fans who appreciate a good game of baseball cannot afford to miss the Midland League game at Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon when the fast Port Hope nine will be here to try conclusions with the Peterboroughs. The meeting of the two old rivals should result in an interesting afternoon's sport, and a big crowd will undoubtedly be on hand for what promises to be a lively, cleverly fought contest. The new tariff of prices will be in force—45c. general admission and 25c. for a ticket including a seat in the grand stand.

Port Hope counts on its fast fielding, hard hitting infield supporting Farquhis' pitching to win for them, and they will be further strengthened to-morrow by Jeffries, who has been catching for London in the International League. They have a most formidable line up and expect to win without trouble.

The teams will line up as follows:

Peterborough.	Port Hope.
Burns rf.	McGuire 2b.
Murphy lf.	Bowden lf.
Lawson 1b.	O'Toole 3b.

THE PETES MAY ARRANGE GAME WITH TORONTO EASTERN LEAGUERS

Local fans may have an opportunity this season of seeing the Peterboroughs in action against the Toronto Eastern League team. Yesterday the secretary of the local club wrote President J. McCaffery, of the Torontos, with a view to arranging a game with the Eastern Leaguers here next month when the Torontos have two off days while playing at home. Such a game would create intense interest here and would attract a big crowd. The Peterboroughs are playing fast ball and would give the big leaguers a good game.

A series of the best two of three games for the amateur or semi-professional championship of Ontario is also being arranged with the Toronto Park Nines, winners of the Toronto Senior League. One game will be played here, another in Toronto, and if a third game is necessary it will also be played in Toronto.

Y.M.C.A. NINE BADLY BEATEN

Straths Made Their Record Seven Out of Eight Last Night in Loose Game

Y.'S MAKE MANY ERRORS

The Strathconas won the second part of their game with the Y.M.C.A. last night by 13—6, thus winning the complete match by 22 runs to 12 and giving them a commanding lead upon the city league championship. The Straths had an easy time of it last night, although they were out hit by the "Y". The latter, however, did some miserable fielding and as the Straths took all kinds of chances on the bases, they were enabled to run up a big score, while on the other hand, the Straths gave Belleghem gilt-edged support all the way through.

The winners broke up the game in the fourth innings when they made seven runs principally on wild throws and errors by the Y.M.C.A. infield who went completely to pieces.

Jack Oldham umpired the contest satisfactorily.

The score follows:

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

The athletic tourney in connection with the Exhibition at Winnipeg, developed a promising Marathon runner in the person of Cree, the Indian from Grenfell, who has already done some running which attracted attention. His supporters believe that in him they have another Longboat. In the three-mile-handicap he was scratch man, but finished 22 seconds ahead of any competitor, covering the distance in 15 minutes 56 seconds, and running in mocassins.

Big Dipper Mining Company Men From Buffalo Are On Their Way Home From Visit To The Mines

A party of Buffalo gentlemen interested in the Big Dipper Mining Company were registered at the National Hotel to-day. They were Messrs. Paul Strong, M. C. LaPort, Jos. Pauly, Jos. Knauff, John Holzer, Kirsch and Geo. Gressen. The latter is the auditor appointed by the stockholders of the company. They were returning from a two weeks' trip to the mines, which are located in Frontenac county, near Massanog Lake. A large new mill is now ready to handle the ore. The lumber, laths and shingles used in the construction were all turned out by the company's mills and they are now engaged in cutting lumber for farmers of the district. The different veins are showing up well. The Marsh vein, which is down about fifty feet, is particularly fine in gold, silver and copper. The first mentioned mineral is being mined almost exclusively at present. The party expressed their satisfaction with the output of the several mines and with the general condition of the plant.

Supper for Neighbours

Before leaving for home the party gave a supper and dance to the farmers and neighbours of the vicinity. There were 58 persons present, many coming from a distance of eight and ten miles. The hosts had scoured the country for fowl and delicacies, and a splendid spread was set in the old camp. Afterwards there was a barn dance which everyone enjoyed. John Bay, an Indian "fiddler," paddled and portaged a long distance to be present, and the occasion passed off most pleasantly.

A seven year old boy named Charlie Cook, who had abstracted a box of shipping bills from LeBrun's store, was brought to the police court this morning and after being lectured by the chief on the enormity of his conduct was allowed to go on his promise to be good in future. The little fellow has spent the past couple of days at the Children's Aid Society Shelter and yesterday tried to get away. Superintendent Henry, however, gave chase on a bicycle, and succeeded in rounding up the would-be escapee before he had gone far. He was a badly scared youngster when he was handed over to his mother at the police court this morning.

ON DENOMINATIONAL DIATRIBE

"D.T.C.", Writes the Examiner on This Question

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—There is never lacking a certain type of individual who in order to see his name in print, or to gain the applause of the multitude does not hesitate to indite epistles or make fiery speeches on political or religious matters. Questions of state may be discussed freely, and no particular harm result therefrom, but anything more conducive to the creation of bad feeling than the deliberate attempt of irresponsible demagogues to glorify themselves at the expense of members of other denominations can hardly be conceived. Surely, we live in a day when fierce diatribes on such topics are out of place, and when the utterers of them should be relegated promptly to the limbo of public contempt.

Yours, etc.,
D. T. C.

Whether the project would be carried out on the completion of the canal, he, personally, could not say.

MIND FLASHES OF SOME FAMOUS MEN

Cy. Warman: Canada has a great west, but none of it is woolly.

Sir. W. C. Van Horne: A full granary in the West means a full dinner pail in the East.

Agnes Dean Cameron: When the wheat's growing up you cannot keep our spirits down.

Elbert Hubbard: Character is the result of two things, mental attitude and the way we spend our time.

Mark Twain: No man ever pushed himself forward by patting himself on the back.

Sir Frederick Bridges: Slovenly rendering of church music is the rule and not the exception in thousands of churches, week after week.

Premier Roblin: Without the fostering power of self-reliance no nation, no cause, and no man ever made an hour's progress since the creation of the world.

Field Marshal Lord Roberts: The glory of war remains with those who die on the battlefield; and the horror of it with the survivors.

Chief Justice Howell: I cannot help thinking that a large number of present-day criminals are what they are because of the old system which sent young people to prison for long terms for minor offences.

Rudyard Kipling: I dislike the word "Colonies." If you will look through my verses you will find I very seldom use it. It is out of date and misleading.

Lord Strathcona: In Canada you will find that very many of the great commercial and industrial enterprises that you come across are owned by people who rejoice in familiar Scottish names.

D. A. Ross: Winnipeg is spending $600,000 on new schools this year. The child crop is the most important crop of all in the West, and parents are determined that it shall be well looked after.

George Bernard Shaw: The big, uncomprehending, stupid world, that loves nothing better than being led by the nose, is perpetually in the most abject fear of being led any faster than usual.

General Booth: All bachelors should in my judgment, be taxed, if not absolutely compelled to marry. Men who are unable to select a wife for themselves should apply to the Salvation Army.

STORY OF MANUFACTURE OF PRINT, THE FABRIC WORN BY THE WOMAN; IS A HIGHLY DEVELOPED INDUSTRY

Dry Goods Review Contains Interesting Facts About How the Cloth is Made at the Great Canadian Print Mills at Magog, Quebec

FACTS NOT WIDELY KNOWN

Progress From the Reception of Raw Cotton to Shipping of the Finished Product—An Almost Endless Variety of Processes

Most women wear print. It is a fabric of general wear, but there are few who know a great deal about its manufacture, about which some interesting facts are presented in an article in the last issue of the Dry Goods Review. It describes the cotton and print mills in Magog, Quebec, which were recently visited by Mr. M. J. Hutchinson, the editor. The article, which is probably more especially interesting to women and clerks in dry goods stores, is as follows:—

lows, and the Examiner is indebted to the Dry Goods Review for the accompanying cuts:

It may be taken as a tribute to the ability of Canadian manufacturers that discriminating buyers are unable to distinguish, even by comparison of samples, domestic prints from those imported. As a matter of fact, there is no place where more modern methods in the manufacture of cotton print are employed than in Canada.

The largest print mill in Canada is that at Magog, Que., owned and operated by the Dominion Cotton Mills Company, and two-thirds of the Canadian-made prints are produced there. It is a developing industry and should the demand continue to increase in the future in the same proportion as it has in the past, it will be but a short time before the provisions made for enlarging the capacity of these mills will have to be taken advantage of.

As to the manufacture of print—the object of this article—up to a certain stage in the process, the fabric is the same as the ordinary grey cotton. The cotton mill at Magog, supplying its sister plant, the print mill, employs almost identically the same methods as a mill making product for sale in the form of grey cotton.

The raw cotton is received at the mill in huge bales, weighing about 500 pounds, storage capacity for 6,000 bales being provided. The normal weekly consumption amounts to 120 to 140 bales, so that with the large storage capacity, it is possible to buy cotton in a favourable market, and use it as required.

While the cotton has gone through some preliminary cleaning processes before being baled, it still contains too much foreign substance to make it suitable for spinning, consequently further cleaning is necessary.

The quality of cotton is determined by the length of "staple," that used in the Magog mills being 1 1-16 to 1 1-8 in. of "staple."

The bales are opened in the raw cotton stores room, on the opposite side of the power canal from the mills, and thrown into machines called "preparers," the function of which is to feed the cotton in thin layers to large pipes, through which it is blown and drawn by air to the mills, where in Picker room it is further pulled apart, and passing through machines for the purpose, is made into rolls fifty yards long. It afterwards goes to intermediate pickers, and to finishers, where the same process is continued. Impurities are taken from the cotton and the fibre is straightened and pulled out. Coming from the finishers the cotton is practically the same as cotton batting in its commercial form. The sheet is about one-quarter of an inch thick and 40 to 45 inches wide.

In this form it is called a "lap," and these "laps" are taken to the carding room, where the form of the cotton is changed to a "sliver." In this mill there are 78 carding engines, on which the cotton is fed over wire cards, set to a ninety-five one-thousandths of an inch from the revolving cylinder. Impurities drop into the cylinder, and a "doffer" takes the good cotton and forms it into a string or "sliver," 163 yards of the latter to one yard of lap. In addition to extracting foreign substances from the cotton, the carding process brings the fibre of the cotton parallel, preparatory to going to the drawing frames.

The Engraving Room, where Designs are Engraved on Copper Rollers

The Drawing Process

From this stage until the yarn is made, the cotton goes through a succession of drawing processes, which were really commenced in the carding room, when the "slivers" were formed. The drawing is done for the purpose of securing a uniformity and evenness in the "slivers." In its natural state the cotton fibre is inclined to be kinky, and while the processes of picking and carding remedy this to a small extent, when it leaves the carding room it is still too uneven to make a satisfactory yarn, hence the necessity for the succession of drawings.

While the general direction of a majority of the fibres in a "card sliver" is with the length of the strand, actually they are considerably mixed up, crossed and doubled.

Before it is possible to produce a smooth even yarn the character of the "card sliver," the loose strand of cotton into which the lap is transformed in the carding process, must be changed in two respects.

First—Assuming that the card is fed with a "lap" that is absolutely even in thickness and weight, there would be slight unevenness in the weight of the card "sliver," due to inaccuracies in the work of the card itself. With a lap as even as it is practicable to make it, and a card properly adjusted, the "sliver" delivered will vary about 10 per cent. of its own weight. That is, if a "sliver" of 50 grains per yard standard is desired, the machine may be expected, when doing its best, to produce a sliver ranging in weight from 48 grains to 53 or 54 grains per yard.

Second—Owing to the kinky and generally mixed-up condition of the fibres in the card sliver, it would not be possible to spin a smooth yarn directly from this mass; hence the necessity for straightening and paralleling them.

Both the principle and the operation of the drawing process are simple. The "sliver" is fed into a set of rollers, six "slivers" into one set, and the last of the set runs six times as fast as the first, consequently the size and weight of the sliver produced is approximately the same as that fed in. This same process is carried through three sets of machines. The "sliver" is fed into cans equipped with coiler attachment.

The drawn "sliver" is more even than the card "sliver" because the card "slivers" are fed together into the machine, and it happens that a heavy and a light place entering the machine together produce a strand more even than themselves.

True, the heavy and the light places do not occur at uniform intervals, nor is it known, or practicable to learn, just how often they happen. It is known, however, that the resulting "sliver," after having been doubled and drawn, is much more even than those from which it was made.

From the drawing frames the cotton goes to a slubber frame, where by further drawing the size is reduced, and the product is led to bobbins, instead of cans. The cotton is gradually reaching the yarn stage. On the first set the "sliver" is drawn out four and a half times, in the intermediate five times, and in the finishing roving frame, six times, when a twist is given by a revolving spindle, on to which it is fed.

The Spinning Room

From the roving machines the bobbins go to the ring spinning-frames, upon which the warp yarn is made. In this process the drawing principle is still given application, for on these frames the cotton is drawn out seven times (the draught being represented by the number of times the finishing roller runs faster than the first) and the finished yarn is then, after having been given the necessary twist, wound on spindles. In this room there are 21,760 spindles. The weft or filling is made on mule spinners of which there are 15 pair, with 23,560 spindles.

The yarn is then taken to the spooling room, where it is run from the spindles to spools of from 18,000 to 25,000 yards, according to the size of the yarn being spun.

The warp yarn is afterwards taken from the spools and wound on a beam, with 400 to 500 threads to a beam but in the greater number of cases the warp requires much more than that number, and this increased number is secured by running the requisite number of beams onto one.

Weaving the Cloth

The next and final process in the manufacture of cloth is the weaving. The warp beams are placed on the looms, the weft yarn being put on shuttles, in which form it is fed to the looms. There are 1,234 looms in the weaving room, which is nearly 500 feet long by 100 feet wide. A third of a million yards per week is the normal output of the mill.

The finished cloth is folded in the ordinary way and baled preparatory to being taken to the print mill.

THE BOY WHO DIDN'T PASS

A sad faced little fellow sits alone in deep disgrace,
There's a lump arising in his throat and tears stream down his face;
He wondered from his playmates, for he doesn't want to hear
Their shouts of merry laughter since the world has lost its cheer;
He has sipped the cup of sorrow, he has drained the bitter glass,
And his heart is fairly breaking; he's the boy who didn't pass.
In the apple tree the Robin sings a cherry little song,
But he doesn't seem to hear it, showing plainly something's wrong;
Comes his faithful spaniel for a romp and bit of play,
But the troubled little fellow sternly bids him go away,
All alone he sits in sorrow, with his hair a tangled mass;
And his eyes are red with weeping; he's the boy who didn't pass.
How he hates himself for failing, he can hear his playmates jeer,
For they've left him with the dullards—gone ahead a half a year;
And he tried so hard to conquer, O, he tried to do his best,
But now he knows he's weaker, yes, and duller than the rest,
Hes' ashamed to tell his mother, for he thinks she'll hate him too—
The little boy who didn't pass, who failed in getting through.
Oh, you who boast a laughing son and speak of him as bright,
And you who love a little girl who comes to you to-night
With smiling eyes and dancing feet, with honors from her school,
Turn to the lonely little boy, who thinks he is a fool
And take him kindly by the hand, the dullest in the class,
He is one who most needs love—the boy who didn't pass.

Put up in 50c. boxes only, "Fruit-a-tives" has in the last four years gained a tremendous and rapidly increasing sale, and a reputation for remarkable cures in every part of Canada.

During this time hundreds of people have been asking for a 25c. box to try. They have heard of "Fruit-a-tives," and of the benefit it is giving to thousands, but some people hesitate to pay 50c. just to try a remedy that is new to them.

It has been found, too, that many would like to carry a box of "Fruit-a-tives" in their pocket, so as to have them handy for regular use, and the 50c. box is too large for that.

To meet these needs we have put out a new 25c. trial size—a neat, compact little box that can easily be carried in the vest-pocket, and which contains tablets enough to last two or three weeks—long enough to find out that "Fruit-a-tives" is the best remedy of the kind in the world.

There is now no reason why every person in Canada who suffers from Constipation, Biliousness, Kidney or Liver Trouble, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Skin Diseases, Indigestion, Dyspepsia or Headache should not try "Fruit-a-tives" and get quick relief and eventually a complete cure. "Fruit-a-tives" are concentrated Fruit Juice Tablets. 25c. is all it costs to test the value of the most successful medicine ever produced in Canada.

If your dealer has not both the 25c. trial size and the regular 50c. boxes, write direct to Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont., and we will send to you direct.

"Of course I'll come out, but I don't want this young lady to suffer any violence from your friends," said McNamara. "I am not armed, but I have the right to leave here unmolested—the right of an American citizen." With that he raised his arms above his head. "Out of my way!" he cried. Morehouse opened the gate, and McNamara strode through the mob.

It is a peculiar thing that, although under fury of passion, a man may fire even upon the back of a defenseless foe, yet no one can offer violence to a man whose arms are raised on high and in whose glance is the level light of fearlessness. Moreover, it is safer to face a crowd thus than a single adversary.

"Out of my way!" he cried.

McNamara had seen this psychological trick tried before and now took advantage of it to walk through the press slowly, eye to eye. He did it theatrically, for the benefit of the girl, and, as he foresaw, the men fell away before him—all but Glenister, who blocked him, gun in hand. It was plain that the persecuted miner was beside himself with passion. McNamara came within an arm's length before pausing. Then he stopped, and the two stared malignantly at each other, while the girl behind the railing heard her heart pounding in the stillness. Glenister raised his hand uncertainly, then let it fall. He shook his head and stepped aside, so that the other brushed past and out into the street.

Wheaton addressed the banker:

"Mr. Morehouse, we've got orders and writs of one kind or another from the circuit court of appeals at 'Frisco directing that this money be turned over to us." He shoved the papers toward the other. "We're not in a mood to trifle. That gold belongs to us, and we want it."

Morehouse looked carefully at the papers.

"I can't help you," he said. "These documents are not directed to me. They're issued to Mr. McNamara and Judge Stillman. If the circuit court of appeals commands me to deliver it to you, I'll do it, but otherwise I'll have to keep this dust here till it's drawn out by order of the court that gave it to me. That's the way it was put in here, and that's the way it'll be taken out."

"We want it now."

"Well, I can't let my sympathies influence me."

"Then we'll take it out anyway," cried Glenister. "We've had the worst of it everywhere else, and we're sick of it. Come on, men!"

"Stand back, all of you!" cried Morehouse. "Don't lay a hand on that gate. Boys, pick your men."

He called this last to his clerks, at the same instant whipping from behind the counter a carbine, which he cocked. The assayer brought into view a shotgun, while the cashier and clerks armed themselves. It was evident that the deposits of the Alaska bank were abundantly safeguarded.

"I don't aim to have any trouble with you-all," continued the southerner, "but that money stays here till it's drawn out right."

The crowd paused at this show of resistance, but Glenister railed at them:

"Come on! Come on! What's the matter with you?" And from the light in his eye it was evident that he would not be balked.

Helen felt that a crisis was come and braced herself. These men were in deadly earnest—the white haired banker, his pale helpers and those grim, quiet ones outside. There stood brawny, sun-browned men with set jaws and frowning faces and yellow haired Scandinavians in whose blue eyes danced the flame of battle. These had been baffled at every turn, goaded by repeated failure, and now stood shoulder to shoulder in their resistance to a cruel law. Suddenly Helen heard a command from the street and the quick tramp of men, while over the heads before her she saw the glint of rifle barrels. A file of soldiers with fixed bayonets thrust themselves roughly through the crowd at the entrance.

"Clear the room!" commanded the officer.

"What does this mean?" shouted Wheaton.

"It means that Judge Stillman has called upon the military to guard this gold, that's all. Come, now, move quick!" The men hesitated, then unanimously obeyed, for resistance to the blue

"They're robbing us with our own soldiers," said Wheaton when they were outside.

"Aye," said Glenister darkly. "We have tried the law, but they're forcing us back to first principles. There's going to be murder here."

CHAPTER XII.

GLENISTER had said that the judge would not dare to disobey the mandates of the circuit court of appeals, but he was wrong. Application was made for orders directing the enforcement of the writs, steps which would have restored possession of the Midas to its owners as well as possession of the treasure in bank, but Stillman refused to grant them.

Wheaton called a meeting of the Swedes and their attorneys, advising a junction of forces. Dextry, who had returned from the mountains, was present. When they had finished their discussion, he said:

"It seems like I can always fight better when I know what the other feller's game is. I'm going to spy on that outfit."

"We've had detectives at work for weeks," said the lawyer for the Scandinavians, "but they can't find out anything we don't know already."

Dextry said no more, but that night found him busied in the building adjoining the one wherein McNamara had his office. He had rented a back room on the top floor, and with the help of his partner sawed through the ceiling into the loft and found his way thence to the roof through a hatchway. Fortunately, there was but little space between the two buildings, and furthermore each boasted the square fronts common in mining camps, which projected high enough to prevent observation from across the way. Thus he was enabled, without discovery, to gain the roof adjoining and to cut through into the loft. He crept cautiously in through the opening, and out upon a floor of joists sealed on the lower side, then lit a candle, and locating McNamara's office, cut a peephole so that by lying flat on the timbers he could observe a considerable portion of the room beneath. Here, early the following morning, he camped with the patience of an Indian, emerging in the still of that night stiff, hungry and atrociously cross. Meanwhile, there had been another meeting of the mine owners, and it had been decided to send Wheaton, properly armed with affidavits and transcripts of certain court records, back to San Francisco on the return trip of the Santa Maria, which had arrived in port. He was to institute proceedings for contempt of court, and it was hoped that by extraordinary effort he could gain quick action.

At daybreak Dextry returned to his post, and it was midnight before he crawled from his hiding place to see the lawyer and Glenister.

"They have had a spy on you all day, Wheaton," he began, "and they know you're going out to the States. You'll be arrested tomorrow morning before breakfast."

"Arrested! What for?"

"I don't just remember what the crime is—bigamy, or mayhem, or attainder of treason, or something. Anyway, they'll get you in jail, and that's all they want. They think you're the only lawyer that's wise enough to cause trouble and the only one they can't bribe."

"Lord! What'll I do? They'll watch every lighter that leaves the beach, and if they don't catch me that way they'll search the ship."

"I've thought it all out," said the old man, to whom obstruction acted as a stimulant.

"Yes; but how?"

"Leave it to me. Get your things together and be ready to duck in two hours."

"I tell you they'll search the Santa Maria from stem to stern," protested the lawyer, but Dextry had gone.

"Better do as he says. His schemes are good ones," recommended Glenister, and accordingly the lawyer made preparation.

In the meantime the old prospector had begun at the end of Front street to make a systematic search of the gambling houses. Although it was very late, they were running noisily, and at last he found the man he wanted playing black jack, the smell of tar in his clothes, the lilt of the sea in his boisterous laughter. Dextry drew him aside.

"Mac, there's only two things about you that's any good—your silence and your seamanship. Otherwise you're a disreppitable, dranken insect."

The sailor grinned.

"What is it you want now? If it's concerning money or business or the growed up side of life, run along and don't disturb the carousals of a sailorman. If it's a fight, lemme get my hat."

"I want you to wake up your fireman and have steam on the tug in an hour, then wait for me below the bridge. You're chartered for twenty-four hours, and, remember, not a word."

"I'm on! Compared to me the spinks of Egyp' is as talkative as a phonograph."

The old man turned his steps to the Northern theater. The performance was still in progress, and he located the man he was hunting without difficulty.

Ascending the stairs, he knocked at the door of one of the boxes and called for Captain Stephens.

"I'm glad I found you, cap," said he. "It saved me a trip out to your ship in the dark."

"What's the matter?"

Dextry drew him to an isolated corner. "Me an' my partner want to send a man to the States with you."

"All right."

"Well—er—here's the point," hesitated the miner, who rebelled at asking favors. "He's our law sharp, an' the McNamara outfit is tryin' to put the steel on him."

"I don't understand."

"Why, they've swore out a warrant an' aim to guard the shore tomorrow. We want you to"—

"Mr. Dextry, I'm not looking for trouble. I get enough in my own business."

"But, see here," argued the other, "we've got to send him so he can make a powwow to the big legal smoke in 'Frisco. We've been cold decked with a bum judge. They've got us into a corner an' over the ropes."

"I'm sorry I can't help you, Dextry, ut I got mixed up in one of your scrapes and that's plenty."

"This ain't no stowaway. There's no danger to you," began Dextry, but the officer interrupted him:

"There's no need of arguing. I won't do it."

"Oh, you won't, eh?" said the old man, beginning to lose his temper. "Well, you listen to me for a minute. Everybody in camp knows that me an' the kid is on the square an' that we're gettin' the bunk passed to us. Now, this lawyer party must get away tonight or these grafters will hitch the horses to him on some phony charge so he can't get to the upper court. It'll be him to the bird cage for ninety days. He's goin' to the States, though, an' he's goin'—in—your—wagon! I'm talkin' to you—man to man. If you don't take him, I'll go to the health inspector—he's a friend of mine—an' I'll put a crimp in you an' your steamboat. I don't want to do that—it ain't my reg'lar graft by no means—but this bet goes through as she lays. I never belched up a secret before. No, sir. I am the human huntin' case watch, an' I won't open my face unless you press me, but if I should, you'll see that it's time for you to hunt a new job. Now, here's my scheme." He outlined his directions to the sailor, who had fallen silent during the warning. When he had done, Stephens said:

"I never had a man talk to me like that before, sir—never. You've taken advantage of me, and under the circumstances I can't refuse. I'll do this thing not because of your threat, but because I heard about your trouble over the Midas and because I can't help admiring your blamed insolence." He went back into his stall.

Dextry returned to Wheaton's office. As he neared it he passed a lounging figure in an adjacent doorway.

"The place is watched," he announced as he entered. "Have you got a back door? Good! Leave your light burning and we'll go out that way." They slipped quietly into an inky, tortuous passage which led back toward Second street. Floundering through alleys and over garbage heaps, by circuitous routes they reached the bridge, where in the swift stream beneath they saw the lights from Mac's tug.

Steam was up, and when the captain had let them aboard Dextry gave him instructions, to which he nodded acquiescence. They bade the lawyer adieu, and the little craft slipped its moorings, danced down the current, across the bar and was swallowed up in the darkness to seaward.

"I'll put out Wheaton's light so they'll think he's gone to bed."

"Yes, and at daylight I'll take your place in McNamara's loft," said Glenister. "There will be doings tomorrow when they don't find him."

They returned by the way they had come to the lawyer's room, extinguished his light, went to their own cabin and to bed. At dawn Glenister arose and sought his place above McNamara's office.

To lie stretched at length on a single plank with eye glued to a crack is not a comfortable position, and the watcher thought the hours of the next day would never end. As they dragged wearily past his bones began to ache beyond endurance, yet owing to the flimsy structure of the building he dared not move while the room below was tenanted. In fact, he would not have stirred had he dared, so intense was his interest in the scenes being enacted beneath him.

First had come the marshal, who reported his failure to find Wheaton.

"He left his room some time last night. My men followed him in and saw a light in his window until 3 o'clock this morning. At 7 o'clock we broke in, and he was gone."

"He must have got wind of our plan. Send deputies aboard the Santa Maria. Search her from keel to topmast, and have them watch the beach close or he'll put off in a small boat. You look over the passengers that go aboard yourself. Don't trust any of your men for that, because he may try to slip through disguised. He's liable to make up like a woman. You understand—there's only one ship in port, and—he mustn't get away."

"He won't," said Voorhees, with conviction, and the listener overhead smiled grimly to himself, for at that moment, twenty miles offshore, lay Mac's little tug, hove to in the track of the outgoing steamship, and in her tiny cabin sat Bill Wheaton eating breakfast.

As the morning wore by with no news of the lawyer, McNamara's uneasiness grew. At noon the marshal returned with a report that the passengers were all aboard and the ship about to clear.

"By heavens! He's slipped through you," stormed the politician.

"No, he hasn't. He may be hidden aboard somewhere among the coal bunkers, but I think he's still ashore and aiming to make a quick run just before she sails. He hasn't left the beach since daylight, that's sure. I'm going out to the ship now with four men and search her again. If we don't bring him off, you can bet he's lying out somewhere in town, and we'll get him later. I've stationed men along the shore for two miles."

"I won't have him get away. If he should reach 'Frisco— Tell your men I'll give $500 to the one that finds him."

Three hours later Voorhees returned. "She sailed without him."

The politician cursed. "I don't believe it. He tricked you. I know he did."

Glenister grinned into a half eaten sandwich, then turned upon his back and lay thus on the plank, identifying the speakers below by their voices.

He kept his post all day. Later in the evening he heard Struve enter. The man had been drinking.

"So he got away, eh?" he began. "I was afraid he would. Smart fellow, that Wheaton."

"He didn't get away," said McNamara. "He's in town yet. Just let me land him in jail on some excuse! I'll hold him till snow flies." Struve sank into a chair and lit a cigarette with wavering hand.

"This 's a hell of a game, ain't it, Mac? D' you s'pose we'll win?"

The man overhead pricked up his ears.

"Win? Aren't we winning? What do you call this? I only hope we can lay hands on Wheaton. He knows things. A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, but more is worse. Lord! If only I had a man for judge in place of Stillman! I don't know why I brought him."

"That's right. Too weak. He hasn't got the backbone of an angleworm. He ain't half the man that his niece is. There's a girl for you! Say, what 'd we do without her, eh? She's a pippin!" Glenister felt a sudden tightening of every muscle. What right had that man's liquor sodden lips to speak so of her?

"She's a brave little woman all right. Just look how she worked Glenister and his fool partner. It took nerve to bring in those instructions of yours alone, and if it hadn't been for her we'd never have won like this. It makes me laugh to think of those two men stowing her away in their stateroom while they slept between decks with the sheep, and her with the papers in her bosom all the time. Then, when we got ready to do business, why, she up and talks them into giving us possession of their mine without a fight. That's what I call reciprocating a man's affection."

Glenister's nails cut into his flesh, while his face went livid at the words. He could not grasp it at once. It made him sick—physically sick—and for many moments he strove blindly to beat back the hideous suspicion, the horror that the lawyer had aroused. His was not a doubting disposition, and to him the girl had seemed as one pure, mysterious, apart, angelically incapable of deceit. He had loved her, feeling that some day she would return his affection without fail. In her great, unclouded eyes he had found no lurking place for double dealing. Now—God! It couldn't be that all the time she had known!

He had lost a part of the lawyer's speech, but peered through his observation hole again.

McNamara was at the window gazing out into the dark street, his back toward the lawyer, who lolled in the chair, babbling garrulously of the girl. Glenister ground his teeth—a frenzy possessed him to loose his anger, to rip through the frail ceiling with naked hands and fall vindictively upon the two men.

"She looked good to me the first time I saw her," continued Struve. He paused, and when he spoke again a change had coarsened his features. "Say, I'm crazy about her, Mac. I tell you, I'm crazy—and she likes me—I know she does—or, anyway, she would"—

OVERDOING YOUR DUTY.

No Time For the Really Pleasant Things of Life.

It is a wise woman who knows where to draw the line on just how much duty requires her to do in this world. It is really not helpful to yourself or to others to do more than your share under any circumstances.

There are women who always tell you how tired they are and how much they have to do and how little time they have for the really pleasant things of life.

If they are young, they wish they had time for the theater or a little social event. If they are married, they wish they had the energy to be clever and bright when their husbands are at home in the evening or to see something of the girl friends they had to give up.

They sigh over all the missed joys with the remark, "If I only didn't have so much to do to keep me from all these happy things!"

If you will make these women sit down and analyze what it is that keeps them from all the pleasant things, it almost always turns out that they are overdoing their duty.

They give hours to a thing that when accomplished doesn't amount to much and could well have been put upon other shoulders. They make other people dependent upon them by the way in which they rush into unloading the burdens off shoulders which are well able to carry them.

They are too tired, for instance, to be amusing to their husbands in the evening because they have spent hours in hot kitchens trying to perfect some special dish which these husbands like.

Then when the other half, who likes a companion as well as a cook, tells them so and tries to argue them out of this overdoing they burst into tears.

IN THE MIKADO'S LAND.

How the Artistic Little Japs Arrange Their Flowers.

Flowers appear nowadays on nearly every meal table. There are the elaborate floral decorations of the evening and the simple but artistic bowl of roses which graces the morning breakfast table.

Many people assure us that they find their appetites increased by the sight of a daintily appointed table, particularly if flowers find a place upon it.

Those of us who have traveled at all find in the Japanese a race with a craving for daintiness, tricky workmanship and originality. This is a Japanese idea for holding flowers in position:

NEW WAY TO ARRANGE FLOWERS.

Get a few narrow strips of lead from the plumber and crinkle them up in the manner shown in this illustration. Then place them at the bottom of a shallow bowl, and you will find that they will hold the stalks of your flowers beautifully. This is one of the best ways of arranging flowers, as not only is it very economical, but it shows the flowers off as they grow in nature's own way.

A COIFFURE HINT.

Getting a Natural Wave Without a Curling Iron.

The broad, loose waves that are so much in favor just now can be had without a curling iron.

Before going to bed at night dampen the hair thoroughly. Then tie around the head as tightly as possible without stopping the circulation three bands of ribbon a half inch wide. Tie them under the plait at the back.

With the comb pull out the hair between these ribbon fillets. That in the front should droop well over the forehead, and the other divisions should be drawn out like puffs.

When the hair has dried and the ribbons are removed in the morning the hair will be found to be in pretty waves.

Care must be taken not to allow the hair to part or it will give an ugly effect when arranged.

If the hair does not curl easily the dampening can be done with water in which a little quince seed is dissolved.

An Out of Door Card Party.

A simple but unique morning card party may be given by the hostess who has a lawn or large porch in which to entertain her guests. Cover the tables with green cheesecloth in a pretty shade. For tally cards use leaves from the oak or maple tree, as these are good shape and do not wither easily. Gold paper stars or circles are used to keep score and may be had at any stationer's. The prizes may be a dainty white fan with possibly a suggestion of green for first prize and a huge palm leaf with a bow of green ribbon for the booby. The refreshments are sandwiches of lettuce, olives, nasturtium or any other delicate green filling and iced tea served with lemon and long stalks of mint. After this ices with mint cherries are served in white paper cases with little wire handles wrapped in green paper. On each handle fasten a white butterfly cut from paper and marked a little with water color paint. Plain white and green iced cakes may be used or a white cake with a touch of pistachio in the filling. Green and white peppermints may be served during the game or after the ices.—Woman's Home Companion.

Don't try to take up all the room in the middle of the road. There are numerous travelers on the highway who need a little room themselves.—Atlanta Constitution.

DR. A. T. SHILLINGTON.

Appointed to Office by Canadian Medical Association.

The Canadian Medical Association held its 41st annual session in Ottawa recently and there was a large attendance of medical men present from all parts of Canada. The organization is one of the oldest of its kind in Canada and was formed in the city of Quebec in 1867 and has held annual meetings ever since. It is the parent medical association of the Dominion and its conventions are held in the big centres of population. Last year a new constitution was introduced by which the work was broadened and made more national in character. The Ottawa doctors had an entertainment committee and the visitors were well looked after and given a very pleasant time. The covention was held in St. George's Hall and the Racquet Court was also engaged for the display exhibitions of specimens and other things of interest to the medical profession. Sir Wilfrid Laurier addressed the convention and made some interesting references to his own health and the means he had taken to recover it after he had been practically given up by the leading doctors of Canada and Europe. Rest, simple food, and moderate exercise, were the only medicines that did him any good and his splendid health at present speaks eloquently in behalf of the prescription.

As a result of the deliberations of the convention a journal for the benefit of the profession may be shortly established in Canada. Dr. Montizambert delivered a very interesting paper on the question of the preservation of health and gave many practical hints on the subject. The basis of health in families he argued was cleanliness, simple food, and proper rest. He advocated for people advanced in years at least one hour's sleep before midnight, and he severely criticised the dangerous habit prevalent among women of kissing when meeting and parting and the promiscuous kissing of children as causes that did much to spread disease. He also contended that all plumbing should be carefully inspected by a municipal official and all plumbers should be compelled to take out a license after a proper examination. He argued that active measures should be taken to exterminate rats, a great source of spreading disease, and advocated a Federal health bureau to take charge of the education of the public in regard to proper sanitations and also the establishment of the National Tuberculosis Sanitarium.

The association will meet in Winnipeg next year and Dr. R. J. Blanchard of that place was recommended for president of 1908. Dr. A. T. Shillington of Ottawa was appointed chairman of the Committee on Medical Legislation. The new chairman is one of the best known medical men of the capital. He is popular in military and athletic circles and has been for some years an enthusiastic promoter of clean athletics, having identified himself particularly with the great winter sport, hockey, being a great lover of the game.

Caught Beaver at Work.

With priceless moving picture films and data procured in the wilds, of the habits, haunts and activities of the busy beaver family, caught for the first time in the history of nature studies, sets of films depicting bird, animal and insect life and information on the effect of music upon the denizens of the wild, Prof. C. R. Kellogg, a New York naturalist, recently came out of regions around the chain of lakes, after a month's work far from the haunts of mankind.

This region is the habitat of numerous large colonies of the interesting beaver family. With his special apparatus carried far into the woods where neither roads nor trails penetrate, Prof. Kellogg set up his establishment, made friends with food given the colonists, and was able to procure a most wonderfully interesting series of motion pictures of the beavers at work and at play in and around their spacious houses fringing the ponds they artificially create for their dooryards.

He caught them toting large and good sized logs, rafting them down the streams with the skill of river drivers, adjusting them with intelligence remarkable for dam construction, and photographed them at work on tree felling. Interesting experiments to get the effect of music on the fur-bearing animals seen—mink, otter, fisher, foxes, skunks, and even bears—were made. The flute, Prof. Kellogg says, seemed to have the most attraction for these animals, who fled at the sound of a violin. At twilight, when the beaver families were about to retire, he had no difficulty in drawing them to their doorways with the softly-played strains of the flute, and they would invariably retire when the violin was sounded.

He obtained valuable pictures in motion of clouds of beautiful colored butterflies, with his phonograph he got wonderful animal sounds, and songs of birds, the like of which he says man scarcely ever hears near civilization; a record of the bull moose calling to his mate, the weird night cries of the Indian Devil, the almost human cries of wounded rabbits and of the prowling loup cervier.

Wolf Hunter's Record.

Ninety-three timber wolves killed in less than a month's time is the record made by James Macintyre of Quatsino, who has presented a bill to the Government agent here for $1,395, the amount of bounty at the rate of $15 a head.

An examination of Mr. Macintyre's account showed that some of the wolves were killed before Feb. 1, the date on which the increased bounty came into effect, and on these he will be allowed only $5 per head, but he has evidence enough of February's work to make his claim when revised amount to about $1,000.

It is reported that Indians up the coast, who have learned of the increase in bounty on panthers and wolves to $15 a head each, have taken to the woods on a hunt, and it is expected that they will soon have a large sum to collect from the Government.

A Surprise.

When a woman calls her husband up by telephone without his knowing who she is, she is always surprised to see how politely he addresses her at first.—Somerville Journal.

A PEDDLER'S JOKE.

It Had a Sharp Turn That Took All the Fun Out of It.

One day a peddler of tinware stopped at a country house in New England and, leaving his horse and wagon at the gate, went to the door, where a big woman with a rather pleasant face met him. He told her what he had for sale and succeeded in disposing of half a dozen articles to her. Then she said that she had not money enough to buy more.

"Well, ma'am," said the peddler, "I'll take rags if you have any."

"I have none to sell," answered the woman.

The peddler saw at least a dozen children, all small, about the house and the yard, and he suddenly thought of a joke that he might play on the woman.

"You seem to have plenty of children," he said. "Maybe you might sell me one of them and take the pay in tinware."

"What will you give?" said the woman.

"I'll give $10," said the man, "all in the best tinware."

"Well, sir," said the woman, "it's a bargain; take your pick of the lot."

The peddler was surprised that his joke was working so well, but he kept a very serious face, and, selecting a very bright looking little fellow of six years, he took him up and put him on the seat of the wagon and then gave the woman $10 worth of such articles as she wanted.

Never doubting that the mother would repent of her bargain and give him, to redeem the boy, $10 in money the minute she saw him starting off, he climbed up on the seat, touched up his horse and drove off. He drove very slowly, however, for he expected every second to hear the woman call him back, for how could he think for a moment that a mother would sell her child for a lot of tinware?

But she did not call him back, much to his amazement, while, as for the boy, he was in high glee, for he was going to have a drive. Presently the peddler, fearing that the joke had been turned on him, drove back to the gate. Lifting the disappointed little fellow down from the wagon, he went with him to the door, where he found that the woman had just finished arranging her new tins nicely on her shelves.

"I think the boy will not do, after all," said the peddler, "and you had better take him back and let me have my tins."

"No, sir!" cried the woman. "A bargain's a bargain, and you must stick to it!"

"Why, ma'am," said the man, "surely you wouldn't sell your little son for a lot of tinware?"

"Oh," answered the woman, "I have no children, mister. The boys and girls you see here are pauper children, and as you seem to be a good sort of man I'll sell you as many of 'em as you want for $10 apiece."

The peddler stared at her for a minute in speechless amazement, and then, turning suddenly toward his wagon, he drove away as fast as his horse could take him.

But he left his tins behind him.

His Modest Request.

Your regular "professional" tramp has a sharp tongue and is not slow to use it when occasion arises.

A farmer's wife had curtly refused the usual request for a night's lodging from a gentleman of this fraternity.

"Well, then, ma'am," said the tramp, "would you mind if I slept in that big meadow there behind your barn?"

"No," said the woman in a magnanimous tone, "you may sleep there if you like."

"One thing more, ma'am," said the tramp, "before I say good night. Will you please have me called at 4 sharp? I want to catch the cattle train to market."

The Cocked Hat.

Of course there is no reason why Mr. (or, rather, Viscount) Morley should not wear a cocked hat, but there is hardly any man whom the mind has greater difficulty in associating with that type of head covering and scarcely any type of head covering that would seem less befitting for that austere and philosophic brow. The greater the natural dignity of the wearer the more ridiculous it makes him look. Any scheme for the reform of the house of lords ought to provide for its abolition.—Manchester Courier.

Glories and Glooms.

The students of Yale university have invented some new slang descriptive of important conditions which affect the lives of young men. Here are some additions to the Yale vernacular:

"A glory"—A young woman of unusual attractiveness.

"A gloom"—A young woman of far less than average attractiveness; vide "lemon."

"A ball of fire"—A young woman whose beauty and charm are irresistible. An ideal guest for college parties; vide "peach," "pippin," "corker," etc.—New York Times.

KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows how fatal the summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery and stomach troubles are alarmingly frequent at this time and too often a precious little life is lost after a few hours illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of Baby's Own Tablets prevents stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes suddenly—as it generally does—the Tablets will bring the little one through safely. Mrs. George Howell, Sandy Beach, Que., says:—"My baby was suffering with colic, vomiting and diarrhoea, but after giving him Baby's Own Tablets the trouble disappeared. I would advise all mothers to keep a box of Tablets always at hand." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR GIRL

The woman who makes a man perfectly happy is the one who cares just enough to respond when he is interested and not enough to be interested when he doesn't respond.

A married woman is always impressionable, because she has become accused to total abstinence from flattery that a compliment from a man goes to her head like wine to the head of the teetotaller.

Refinement is what makes a man turn on his heel and go off to the club instead of staying at home and having a good old-fashioned row with his wife.

Cultivated taste is what makes a man turn from the sporting page or the joke column to the editorials—when he notices anybody observing him.

Take a spoonful of violet perfume, a pound or so of lace, a dash of music and serve under a summer moon—and almost any man will call it "love."

A wife corresponds to a man's three square meals; the "other woman" to a banquet with fancy dishes and champagne.

A man is always able to restrain his jealousy as long as his wife wears untrimmed cotton flannel lingerie.

FOUR TONS OF HAY TO THE ACRE

Smith Farmer Thinks Crop Will be Up to Usual Yield

A question which is being generally discussed is the condition of the hay crop. Opinion varies as to its comparison with last year's. Many believe that during the coming winter it will reach as high it not higher figure than last. Mr. Clifford Hancock, of Smith, is quite optimistic and believes the hay will be as plentiful or more so than last year. In one of his fields he had a yield of 4 tons to the acre.

Eight tons of Coal used during a severe winter thoroughly warmed a twelve-room house

That is the record of the "Sovereign"—the hot water boiler with the larger first section.

The habit of saving coal is built into the "Sovereign"—the larger first section is the coal saving part of the boiler.

A "Sovereign" boiler burns less coal than a warm air furnace—and whatever a warm air furnace lacks in sanitary and efficient heating it is popularly supposed to be economical in coal consumption.

It takes more coal, more attention and the next best boiler to get the results the "Sovereign" will give on less coal and practically no attention.

It is well worth your while to learn what we have accomplished by improving the structure of the accepted design of a hot water boiler. It does not matter how you are situated you are interested in the heating problem—interested enough to drop us a post card, to-day, for our booklet, "How coal is wasted."

THE STRENUOUS LIFE

Pails so Hard on the Stomach It Must Have Help.

The stress and strain of the strenuous life in both city and country makes stomach troubles. Five people suffer to-day where one did ten years ago with sick headache, dizziness, flatulence, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness and the many other symptoms of indigestion.

All who are suffering with stomach troubles, and that means at least two out of three in Peterborough and other towns, should use Mi-o-na stomach tablets. Nothing else is as safe, nor effective; nothing else can be so thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na.

So reliable is Mi-o-na that Wm. Madill, with every 50-cent box he sells, gives a guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy cures.

Music and Drama

THE LAST ACT

The last act's drawing to a close;
The hero's fixed his broken nose;
In centre stands the lady fair;
The villain (left) tugs at his hair;
Over his woe I start to gloat—
My friend in front puts on his coat;
"Come, dear, or we shall miss that train."
The closing scene is lost again.
You'd think folks didn't like the show,
They make such headlong haste to go;
But, good or bad, for aught I see,
Farce, melodrama, tragedy,
Or comedy, or opera grand,
You wait the outcome—people stand;
A dozen, fifty, score or more,
Flock geeselike, sheeplike, toward the door.
No use! The stage is hidden now.
How does a play end anyhow?

"THE DAYLIGHT STORE"
WHERE DO YOU BUY YOUR CLOTHES?

This is a very important matter, and still so many men think it of no consequence. They buy just anywhere they happen to see something that strikes their fancy.
There's a difference in stores as well as in clothes. Some stores go in for cheapness, others for quality.

Which Do You Prefer?

It should be quality, because good workmanship increases the wear.
Our Sovereign Brand, Fit Rite and Northway Clothing is made to wear, has all the new style kinks and the price is extremely low, quality considered. When at the Exhibition be sure to visit our Clothing Emporium on the grounds, where we will have displayed some of the new fall styles, which are quite convincing. They will help you decide where to buy your fall and winter necessities.

STORY OF MANUFACTURE OF PRINT

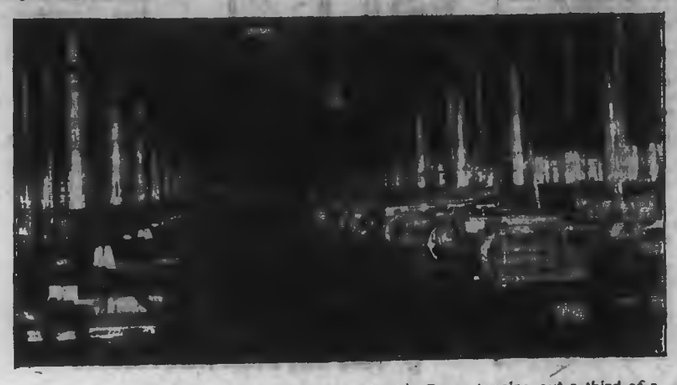
is the procuring of the design. In most cases they are secured in Paris, where they are originated. These designs are engraved on copper rollers, two classes of engraving being employed, the pantograph, which, however, is now being largely superseded by the modern method and the mill, or machine engraving. In designs of more than one colour, the whole design is not engraved on one roller, a separate roller being required for each colour. The printing, however, is done with one passing through the machine.

Preliminary to the printing, however, the cloth has to go through a number of processes. Coming into the works in the grey, it is opened up in the cloth room, sewed together, and the brands stamped on it automatically, ready for singeing. From the grey room the cloth is taken to the singe room, passed over hot rollers in order to singe off all superfluous thread ends, etc., and to prepare the smooth surface which is necessary for good printing and finishing.



The Weaving Room. There are 1234 Looms in this Room turning out a third of a million yards per week.

After being brushed by machinery the cloth is ready for bleaching, and in this operation alone there are thirty different processes, which, after it has gone through the fabric comes out perfectly white, with all stains and foreign matter removed. To the uninitiated, the cloth, while passing through the different operations in the bleaching process, presents an interesting spectacle, flying through space, and from one floor to another at the rate of 150 yards a minute.

The cloth, which on entering into the bleach house, is an endless string, is now drawn to the white room in the next storey, by machinery, opened out flat by an ingenious mechanical straightening device, dried on dry cans, and wound on rolls. It is then ready for printing or dyeing, as the case may be.

The printing of cloth presents much the same problem as that met with in the more general and more widely understood art of printing on paper. There is, however, one essential difference. In newspaper printing, the type—the raised portion—is printed, while in cloth printing the design is printed from the depressed portion of the roll.

Surrounding a large cylinder are the rolls, one for each colour, each with its colour fountain, in which, as the cloth passes over the cylinder, the roll revolves. Before it touches the cloth to be printed, however, it encounters a sharp blade, which scrapes off all the colour on the surface, leaving only that in the engraved indented design.

In some cases the fabric is put through a chemical process before printing, the effect of which is to make it take the colour differently. For instance, after passing through one process a yellow colour will print red on the cloth. A design calling for almost any number of colours may be printed at one operation.

Each print machine is operated with its individual steam engine, and the art of successfully operating one is not easily acquired. It usually passes from father to son, and printers are among the best paid employees in a print mill.

The Wilmington baseball team, in which Walter Jayes, nephew of Mr. Jack Jayes, of the Munro House, plays, defeated Raleigh by 7 runs to 0 in their last game. Jayes had one run, two hits and no errors.

NO RAILWAYS, NO FASHIONS IN THE WORLD 500 YEARS HENCE

"Five hundred years hence," said the philosopher—and paused to throw a pebble into the sea. "Yes?" said I, encouragingly—thinking that a man who could look 500 years ahead ought to have something interesting to say. "This mighty power of the sea waves," said the philosopher, "will plow the field, and scatter the grain, light the parlour lamp, and fill the salt water swimming pond which will be attached to every citizen's house. And by that time the sea will have been made to give back to England every inch of land that the waves have stolen."

"Yes?" said I, for more encouragement.

"Five hundred years hence," went on this wise one, "we shall be able to see in the dark—like the cats and the barn owls. We shall have finger tips to feel with as sensitive as a leopard's whiskers. We shall be able to see to any distances, to speak to and hear from any distances. We shall be able to record our thoughts in permanent form as swiftly and easily as we think them. And every one of us will be able to fly."

"With what result?" I inquired.

"That we shall seldom do anything of the sort. Man's great object will be to discover the simplest possible mode of life, that mode from which he can draw most happiness. We have not found in the past that roller skates, for an example, or railways, or telegraphs have added anything to the progress of happiness—rather the contrary; and so in the future, though a man can fly to Jericho if he wishes, or make himself invisible at will, or argue in Edinburgh with a friend in Peking, he will prefer in the ordinary way to take a quiet country walk on his two legs. The great triumphs of science," said the philosopher, "derived from an understanding of nature, will be employed for the simplification of life."

Lost Causes

"And London?" I queried.

"London will stretch to Manchester; but there will be no slums, and no overcrowding; the whole will be a pleasant garden city, each part in easy communication with the others. By railway? Certainly not," said the philosopher.

"There will be no railways in England 500 years hence. There will be no telegraph lines, no motor omnibuses, no draught horses. There will be no things of leather, things of wool, fur coats or feather adornments. No coal will be employed or coal miners, coal scuttles or coal gas. There will be no gallows for hanging men, no policemen, no prisons. Brutal instincts will have been eliminated; with the consequence that there will be no fox-hunting, beagling, otter hunting, stag hunting, fishing or shooting; no blood sports, in a word; and no one will dream of taking conscious animal life for food or clothing."

"What, then, shall we eat, and what wear?"

"Very little food will suffice us in those days. We shall have fruits all the year round; peaches will be as plentiful in January as are blackberries now in September; and we shall live chiefly on fruit and milk. Lobster salad, pate de fois gras, ortolan on toast, lark pie—they will be regarded as we now regard the ancient emperor's dish of nightingales' tongues. At the same time, it is quite likely that we shall go back to Rome or Athens for some ideas—such as clothing. There will be no fashions; but the simplest garments, allowing free access of sun and air, will be worn—no petticoats, no trousers.

Esperanto

"And this reminds me — when an Englishman meets a Greek five hundred years hence he will be able to speak to him as though he were a brother; all the people who count in the world will be able to speak a common language. Writing, by the way, will be in a form of phonetic shorthand.

"Of course, there will be no wars, or rumours of wars."

"The lion will lie down with the lamb!" I hazarded.

"Nature's great law of preying," said the philosopher, "will remain unaltered. Five hundred years hence, as now, there will be masters and servants, leaders and led, superiors and inferiors alike among nations and among individuals. There will be rich men and poor, wise men and foolish, strong men and weak. So much for equality.

"As to liberty, do you suppose that five hundred years hence a man will be free to smoke, or drink whisky, or bet on the Derby?"

"If not," said I, "how shall we reassure ourselves?"

"In the old, old way," said the philosopher. "No! by going to musical comedies, or acting like peacocks in Hyde Park. We shall prefer to find contentment by digging in our gardens, or walking on the hills, or above all, in philosophy.

No Waste of Daylight

"We shall be a leisurely people five hundred years hence; but not lazy. We shall not allow the best hour of the day to go by while we lie in bed. In summer we shall be up and about by 5 o'clock, as a matter of course, and we shall go to bed, like the day birds, when the sun sets. In winter we shall be content with shorter days and a long period of sleep. There will be no waste of daylight; and so there will be less need to employ artificial light.

"I say it will be the era of simplicity. The result of our simple ways and our simple days will be that we shall live to great ages; to live 150 years will be nothing unusual. Accidents will be few and far between, and doctors will have little to do, since nearly everyone will be healthy.

"Looking down from a height on our life of to-day, how foolish it appears. We work furiously, play furiously—for what noble objects? Climb to a mountain top, and behold a silk hat. Take a rational view, of a game which occupies twenty-two men for three days, and then is left unfinished. Think of what a man suffers every morning who would keep himself clean-shaven. Ponder on the labour of letter-writing with pen and ink. Reflect on the barbarity of earrings. Then look back on our life of to-day from five hundred years hence, and tell me what you think of it."

But my thoughts were with the gulls sweeping over the blue waves.

WHERE TO GO FOR A VACATION

District Passenger Agent McDonald, of the Grand Trunk Railway System, has just returned from a visit to the charming Ontario Resorts of Muskoka, Lake of Bays, and Algonquin Park, and also made a trip to Kawartha Lakes, and reports that hotels and boarding houses are rapidly filling up, and all indications point to a splendid season. If visitors to Ontario, and even citizens of this city, only realized what delightful places there are in the "Highlands of Ontario," and how easily accessible they are by the splendid service of the Grand Trunk Railway System, many more extra trains would be needed. The beautiful Royal Muskoka Hotel, the finest summer hotel in Canada, has made their rates, including meals and lodging from $3.00 to $4.00 per day, and accommodation at hundreds of other hotels and boarding houses at lower rates, may be obtained, a little farther north, the Lake of Bays has good hotels, viz., Ronville, Wa Wa, and Britannia, the Magnetawan River can take care of some. The Algonquin Park, 2,000 feet above sea level, has new hotl, the "Highland Inn," just opened, at moderate rates. Temagami Lakes, farther north, with its 1,100 Islands, good hotels and splendid fishing, will repay you for a visit. Still nearer, the pretty resorts of Lake Simcoe, Barrie, Atherley, Orillia, Jackson's Point and the Kawartha Lakes with its Fenelon Falls, Lindsay, Sturgeon Point and numerous boarding houses, on Stony Lake, are well worth a visit. SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

The questions on the Sunday School Lesson for Sunday, July 19th, are as follows:—

Samuel warns Saul and the People. I Sam. xii:1-5, 19-25.

Golden Text. Only fear the Lord, and serve Him in truth with all your heart; for consider how great things he hath done for you? Sam. xii:24.

Verse 1—When individuals or the people choose a wrong thing, can it ever be made to work out for their good? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Verses 3-5—What proportion of men in authority, can truthfully claim absolute integrity and cleanness of hands as Samuel did?

Notwithstanding Samuel's undoubted integrity what grave faults was he guilty of?

Verse 13—If we have embarked upon a policy that God did not favour, but afterward permitted, what will be God's attitude toward us concerning our present and future success?

If we can compare conduct, or a life policy, as good, better and best, what will be God's attitude toward us, if we adopt that which is lower than the best?

Verse 14—What reason is there for the opinion that God sometimes does a thing for us, at our strong request, which he knows is not the "best" for us? (Verse 12.)

If one person in a family or partnership, or society, is true to God, and the rest are not, what effect will he have upon the success of the rest, and what sort of a blessing will he get from God?

Verse 15—Is the hand of God always against those who disobey him, and if so, how is it manifested?

Do all who rebel against God, get equal opposition from him? Why or why not?

Is it possible, in any single case, for a man to disobey God and escape injury, or not suffer loss?

Verse 16—What is the great thing that God does daily before our eyes?

Verse 17—Does God in these days ever perform the miraculous?

Why was it wonderful to have in that country, rain and thunder at harvest time?

How did Samuel know that God would answer his prayer?

Does God answer all the prayers of the faithful?

Do all the really spiritual know when their prayers are to be answered?

How would the rain and thunder be a proof that their sin had been great in asking for a king?

Verse 18 — Are winners generally troubled in the presence of a great calamity?

Verse 19—Was their repentance genuine?

When we turn to God only because we would otherwise be distroyed, will God accept us?

Verses 20-21—Does God accept the vilest sinner if he turns from his sin?

What is real profit? Is it money, health, ability, friends?

Verse 22—Why may we be sure that God will never forsake us?

Verse 23—Do we sin against God if we do not pray for one another?

Is it our duty to teach one another?

Verses 24-25—What is the essential in order to obtain the highest good?

Music and Drama

Good-bye to the square piano. The instrument is doomed and will soon become as obsolete as the dodo, the pterodatyl and the quart jug in prohibition states. The piano dealers who were recently assembled in New York, agreed not to accept the square piano any longer in exchange for the upright. A writer in the Boston "Transcript," lamenting the fact that the square piano is on its last legs, so as to speak, says that its departure is pathetic: "Memories and associations cling to it that cannot be transplanted to pianos of a different shape. It was the heart of the household; the spot where it stood was the gathering place of the family and its friends. Besides, it was something more than a musical instrument. It was a convenient piece of furniture for the accommodation of newspapers, magazines and bric-a-brac that have now no such general ground upon which to meet." But saddest of all to the men of this generation is the memory that it was an old square piano that their mothers learned to play the "Maiden's Prayer," the "Battle of Prague," and the "Last Hope."

RECTOR MARRIES; IS NOT WANTED

Yonkers Women Find the Rev. Albert Howell Less Desirable With A Bride

DAUGHTERS MARRIAGEABLE

New York, July 18.—(Special.)—The unexpected marriage of the Rev. Allen C. Howell, who was made rector of All Saints' P. E. Church, at Briarcliff Manor, Westchester, has arrested, it is said, a movement, to make Grace Chapel, Yonkers, an independent parish.

The story is that a number of rich and fashionable matrons of Grace Chapel, who have marriageable daughters, and entertained the handsome curate lavishly, when he was stationed there last year, were preparing to get him back by offering him a $5000 rectorship at Grace Church.

The meeting at which the women were to have accomplished this by their influence, was to have been held last Wednesday. But they learned yesterday that the Rev. Mr. Howell had married Miss Rosalie Wardwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lansing Wardwell, of Briarcliff, a pretty society girl.

The Yonkers society matrons have called Wednesday's meeting off.

Grace Chapel is a branch of St. John's Church. When the Rev. Mr. Howell was at Grace the rector, the Rev. Mr. Underhill, of St. John's resigned after a tiff, it is said with his good looking curate.

COBALT IS MORE PROSPEROUS AND FLOURISHING NOW THAN AT ANY PREVIOUS TIME

Mr. Otis Kidd, Chairman of the Board of Education Talks of the Most Wonderful Silver Camps in the World---Many Improvements

THE OUTPUT OF ORE EACH YEAR FROM MINES IS IMMENSE

(To be continued).

That Cobalt is in a more flourishing and prosperous condition just now than it ever was is the opinion of Mr. Otis Kidd, chairman of the Board of Education in the Silver City, who is at present in Peterborough, the guest of his father, Mr. A. R. Kidd, 491 Aylmer street. As Mr. Kidd has been a resident of Cobalt since 1905, and is prominently connected with affairs there, his opinion naturally carries with it considerable weight.

An Examiner reporter had the pleasure of a chat with Mr. Kidd last night on Cobalt, its conditions and people, and the former Peterborough man was able to supply some information that should be of interest.

Cobalt itself has now a population of from 3,000 to 4,000, and is a bustling, thriving little city, going steadily ahead now that the mad rush of the boom is over. At first there was no time to look to the upbuilding of the city, but since then the citizens have devoted themselves to the welfare of the city, and rapid strides have been made. Cobalt now rejoices in the possession of a fine public school which is being enlarged to over twice its present capacity, more room being necessary to accommodate the scholars who last year numbered over two hundred. The school and its staff will be enlarged to make room for the increase in the number of pupils. In addition there is a separate school.

There are four churches, the Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian and Roman Catholic denominations being represented, and the services every Sunday are well attended. The city possesses a fire department which is capable of good work, but Cobalt has been singularly fortunate in the matter of fires, not a single serious conflagration having taken place since the founding of the city. This in view of the structure of the houses, which are built of frame, is a remarkable showing.

During the past year considerable attention has been paid to improving the streets in the city, and a vast improvement has been made in that respect. The sidewalks so far have been made of wood, but it is likely that concrete walks will be laid before long. The city labourers are highly paid for their work on the roads, receiving $2.50 and $2.75 per day, the same rate at which the unskilled labourer in the mines is paid.

Mr. Kidd states that nearly all the mines in the vicinity are being operated, and says that Cobalt is the most wonderful silver mining camp in the world. Vast amounts of ore are being shipped to Doloro and other points in Canada; to Newark, N. J., and over to Germany. the highest class ore being sent there. The Cobalt Lake Mining Company, which purchased the right to Cobalt Lake, are hard at work at the bottom of the lake, and have been rewarded with silver from the first, although no extra rich finds have yet been made.

The merchants of the city are flourishing, although, of course, business is not as brisk as in the days of the rush, when the country was crowded with prospectors. However, they still receive substantial prices for the articles which they have to sell, and have little cause for complaint in that respect.

Mr. Kidd expects to return to Cobalt in a short time.

SWEETHEARTS FROM YOUTH LIE DYING TOGETHER AS THE RESULT OF A SUICIDAL PACT

New York, July 17.—(Special.) — Sweethearts from childhood, Veronica Meehan, 18 years old, and William Wild, 22, lie dying to-day in Bellevue Hospital as the result of a suicide agreement. The girl, a pretty stenographer, was shot twice in the head by Wild, who then turned the revolver on himself. He fell unconscious ten feet from his dying sweetheart. Struggling to her feet the girl reached Wild's side and with her handkerchief began to wipe the blood from his face when she too fell unconscious. A policeman, attracted by the shots, summoned an ambulance in which the dying lovers were hurried to Bellevue Hospital, where they remained unconscious today.

A letter found in Wild's pockets, addressed to Mrs. Meehan, told how the two had decided to die together. Wild blamed the girl's mother in the letter for trying to part them, and said that they had tried to die twice before and that they had resolved that this, the third attempt, would be successful. There was no signature to the letter, but a postscript reading, "I was not crazy when I did this, I was only insane like poor Harry Thaw."

Yesterday the girl went on an excursion, and when she returned with several girl friends in the evening she met Wild. Walking a short distance from the party the two talked earnestly for a few moments when suddenly Wild drew a revolver from his pocket and fired twice at his sweet-heart. She fell to the sidewalk and then the love-crazed youth fired two shots into his own head before he fell.

Mayor Rush Honoured At Union Of Canadian Municipalities

Mayor Rush and City Clerk Armstrong have returned from the Union of Canadian Municipalities, which has been in session this week in Montreal. In the election of officers held yesterday, Mayor Rush was elected third vice-president for Ontario, an office which had many contestants. All the larger cities and towns were represented, and during the sessions there was considerable discussion on important municipal topics. Mayor Rush read a paper on "Sinking Funds," and was the only one contributing to this subject.

According to press reports, one of the best debates of the convention followed the mayor's contribution, as the various points brought out by him were discussed.

Dormitories And School Are Being Added To Barnardo Home

Extensive improvements are under way at the Barnardo Home. A new wing is being erected to the north of the present building and when completed it will be a handsome structure. It will be three storeys in height in addition to the basement, and in dimensions will be 47x26 feet. It will be used as a schoolroom and dormitories. Mr. Wilson has the contract and the work will likely be completed in three months' time.

Walls Of The New Catholic Church Are Rising Rapidly

Rapid progress is being made at the new church of the Sacred Heart and the walls are rising with a promise of exterior beauty and architectural strength. The contractors, Messrs. Langford & Sheehy, are pushing the work on with great despatch and the frames for the windows and doors are all up and the walls nearly to the top of the frames. The stone is going to give the church a splendid appearance and the trimmings add to the effect. His Lordship Bishop O'Connor follows the work closely and is frequently seen at the grounds.

Work Of The Moundbuilders Around Historic Rice Lake

There is apparently no more fascinating belief than that which attributes the construction of our aboriginal mounds to a semi-civilized and peacefully disposed race, which was ruthlessly exterminated by Indians. It is a poetic belief. It affords material for homilies on "man's inhumanity to man," and those who are fond of repeating the silly saying that "history repeats itself," find a new-world parallel to numerous old-world events. It gratifies the survivals among us who deplore the departure of the good old times and affect to regard with deepest grief present day degeneracy.

The work of the Mound Builders was a mighty one. Evidences of it are shown in numerous spots around Rice Lake, and the Examiner intends to give to its readers from time to time something of the historic in connection with them.

MR. CLUXTON ON STAGE

Is Playing In "The Lilac Room" With Miss Bonstelle Who Summered at South Beach Two Years Ago

FORMER'S SPLENDID WORK

The Buffalo Times in a recent issue refers to the splendid work of Mr. Walter E. Cluxton in "The Lilac Room," and also to the acting of Miss Estelle Bonstelle, who has summered at South Beach, Clear Lake. A cut of Mr. Cluxton appears in the same issue, in which appears the following: "The Lilac Room had its first performance in Buffalo last night and in introducing it to local theatregoers the Bonstelle Stock Company added another to its list of triumphs since opening there for the summer. The play is light and just the kind for warm weather, but there is just enough substance to it to make it interesting. There is a good plot to it, and the large audience thoroughly enjoyed the play. Miss Jessie Bonstelle had the principal role. She was Emily Painter, the American girl, who visited Wingate Priory. From the time she entered in rather unconventional manner until she succeeded in making Captain Wingate capitulate to her, Miss Bonstelle's acting was refreshing. Besides breaking up a gang of counterfeiters, saving a girl from the chief of the gang, the American girl proves herself a lively but not a boisterous visitor. Miss Bonstelle was heartily applauded for her good work. Walter E. Cluxton, as a counterfeiter, disguised as a groom, did the best character work of the night.

Julius McVicker was Capt. Wingate, and he made a manly officer and a splendid lover. Norman Hackett as Herbert Trainer fills the part admirably. Miss Josephine Sherwood as Muriel Wingate is charming. She has the best opportunity since being here, and she proved her capabilities. Julian Noa is a good Yardsley-Yardsley. Gertrude Warwick as Blossom is pleasing. The other members of the company are well cast. The usual matinee will be given this week.

LOCAL SOLDIERS ARE LEAVING TO-MORROW FOR ANCIENT CAPITAL

CAPT. JOSEPH MILLS, The Officer in Command of Composite Company For Quebec

A FEW DETAILS OF SPLENDID SHELTER THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY HAS PROVIDED

Large, Bright, Well Ventilated Rooms---A Spacious Home Overlooking the River and Surrounded by Fine Lawn and Orchard---Is Fitted With Every Improvement

CARETAKER W. HENRY IS BUSILY ENGAGED WITH REPAIRS

Many of the citizens of Peterborough have heard frequently of the Children's Aid Society Shelter, and many have an idea of its location, but only those who have visited the place can realise what a splendid building and grounds have been secured. While the locality is really suburban, the house is equipped with all modern improvements and is only a short distance beyond the northern terminal of the street railway line. It is, moreover, not more than a good stone's throw from the river, and being situated on the top of the hill, the premises combine many advantages. It is considered as healthy a spot as could be chosen, and the natural beauty of the surroundings will, with further improvements about the grounds, make it a fine place of property. The society has reason to be proud of its shelter as it affords a home for its wards which could scarcely be bettered.

Fine Grounds

The grounds, which go with the building, were once in excellent shape, but appear to have been neglected for some time. Since the caretaker, Mr. Wm. Henry, has taken charge of the place, after removing from the former Shelter on Charlotte street, a decided improvement is noticeable. There is still much to do, but a fine beginning has been made, and in another year the lawn, orchard and garden should show the results of care and good work. Mr. Henry has the magnificent rows of grape vines pruned and free from weeds, and a bountiful harvest of the fruit is assured. In fact, the green clusters are already noticeably burdening the vines. The fruit trees are coming along well and the vegetable garden has made fine progress.

The lawn off the verandah, and facing Water street, is receiving special attention. The terraces are being rebuilt, and the grass is taking on now life as a result of proper care. It will take a great deal of time and perseverance before the surroundings are brought to their desired appearance, but Mr. Henry intends to keep at it.

Many Roomed House

There are sixteen rooms in the house, including pantry and bathroom. The latter with seven bedrooms is upstairs. There are five fitted up for the children, while those in the east wing are occupied by the caretaker. Until only a few months ago but one half of the house was used by the society, the other half being leased to a family. The whole building, therefore, provides ample room at present, although the society has ten wards in its charge. The house is too large for one to look after, so Mr. Henry has a hired assistant.

The bathroom is a great convenience and is furnished with every modern improvement. The dining-room is very spacious and well lighted, as is also the kitchen. Several partitions were removed by Mr. Henry and the change has brightened the interior. There is a large sewing room in the front, opposite the parlour. It is used by those ladies who do not forget the needs of the society, and meet its wants in a material manner. There is also a room provided with a barred window, to be used if any of the wards should become rebellious. There are two cellars, which are now in splendid condition, and Mr. Henry had a difficult task to lay cement floors, as a result of improper drainage.

The house is provided with electric light, waterworks and telephone; the rooms are freshly papered and painted, and in every particular the society has provided a cheery and comfortable home for the children who come under its charge.

Thought Boat Was Upsetting And Jumped Into The Lake; One Of The Two Boys Drowned

Bancroft, July 18.—(Special). — A son of Mr. Tobias Sexsmith, of Lower Faraday, was drowned in what is known as Neal's Lake in Lower Faraday, on Tuesday afternoon. The young lad, who was twelve years of age, was out in a boat in company with an older boy, named Tommy Paul, and when a short distance from the shore both jumped into the water, according to Paul's story, thinking that the boat was going to upset. Paul waded ashore, but young Sexsmith sank in about five feet of water, and the body was not recovered for nearly three hours afterwards. The deceased was a nephew of Mr. J. D. Payne, of this village.

Big Catches Of Black Bass Are Being Made At Glenwood

Examiner Special

Glenwood, Stony Lake, July 18.—Fishing around this section of Stony Lake has rarely been better than it is at the present time. Messrs. M. M. Robinson, sporting editor of the Hamilton Spectator, and Alex. Lowe, manager of Glenwood, have proved themselves the champion fishing men this week. On Monday they gathered in eleven fine bass. Mr. Lowe catching one that weighed over five pounds, and which he has entered in the Toronto Star competition. Mr. Robinson hooked and landed a four and one-half pounder.

On Tuesday the two doughty anglers succeeded in securing eight more bass, while on Thursday they were with a party of five which succeeded in landing twenty-six fine bass, the lot averaging two pounds, some of them weighing almost five pounds.

Immense Quantities Of Live Salmon Crossing The Ocean

The Over-Seas Daily Mail of London, England, says. The steamship Cornelia, formerly a steam yacht, and fitted anew to make her suitable for the transport of live salmon from the Labrador coast to the home market, has just sailed from Montrose on her first voyage.

The Cornelia is expected to make the passage from Labrador to the west coast of Scotland in a week. Her huge tank has a capacity of about 250 tons of water, and his pumps will supply the salmon with 1200 tons of fresh sea water daily.

This is the first occasion on which an attempt has been made to convey the living salmon from the teeming waters of Hamilton Inlet, Labrador, and the result of the venture will be awaited with keen concern. The scheme is being worked out by Mr E. Gibb, Johnshaven, who will join the vessel at St John's, Newfoundland.

Together with the preliminary expenses, the experiment up to date has cost between 15,000 and 20,000 pounds, including the price of the vessel, and the cost of adapting her for the special work.

From twenty to thirty tons of live salmon will be carried on each trip. The crew numbers 35 men.

WHEN THE PETERBOROUGH MAIL CLOSES

Peterborough people are all the time wondering when the next mail goes out. To the busy man who suddenly finds he must send a business letter, to the anxious maiden who is ever expecting the billet-doux that sets the heart a-throbbing and who wants to catch the "next mail" with a return message, and to many other persons too, the following schedule on the hours the mails close in the local post office, will be of interest. Use the scissors, clip it out and paste it on the wall:—

Canadian Pacific

Train leaves at 12.31 a.m. going east—mail closes at post office at 12 o'clock midnight.

Train leaves at 5.26 a.m. going west—mail closes at 12 o'clock midnight, leaving on the 12.31 a.m. train and going as far east as Perth.

INSPECTOR GOT A FISHING NET AT DAM ABOVE NASSAU

Mr. John Watt, fishing inspector, reports that he discovered a fishing net at Dam No. 5, above Nassau, a few days ago. It contained nothing, however, but weeds, and was about 75 feet long. The inspector has a clue to the ownership of the net, and if the proprietor comes forward and pays his $20 fine there will be no further prosecution.

In speaking of the fishing, Mr. Watt stated that it was excellent in Little Lake. He believed that Peterborough should appreciate the fishing grounds within its limits more than it does. In two evenings he saw seven or eight bass pulled out of the lake, and all of them were of fair size.

RAIN FALL OF 1 1-10 INCHES HERE YESTERDAY

The rainfall of yesterday and last night will be of untold benefit to the farmers generally, although perhaps an inconvenience to a few. It was an ideal rain, not coming down heavily at any time, but light and continuous. It was the same rain that has been favoring the farmers of the Northwest, and which needed in this province was still more required in the prairie country. Locally, 1 inch and 1-10 fell yesterday, and 22-100 of an inch last night.

THE ATTACKS ON SIR WILFRID LAURIER.

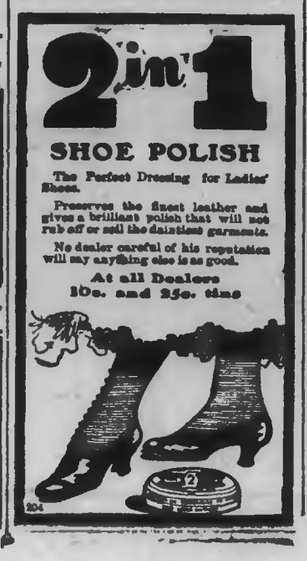
The other day a somewhat rabid orator at a gathering of Orangemen expressed the hope that never again should a French Roman Catholic be permitted to fill the position of Premier of Canada. Without participating in the unworthy motives which prompted this aspiration, a good many of the political opponents of Sir Wilfrid find it difficult to remain good-natured, while they contemplate the undoubted evidence of his remarkale popularity. They come as near hating him as it is possible for ordinary people to hate a remarkably attractive and amiable personality, but no matter what they say about him there seems to be a disposition on the part of the English-speaking as well as French-speaking people of Canada to repose confidence in him as Premier. This enduring popularity of Sir Wilfrid Laurier is the chief asset of the Liberal party.

The reason of this personal popularity is not far to seek. He has proven himself a man of far greater ability than was generally believed when he assumed the Premiership. Half of the men who made up his cabinet at the outset have disappeared from public life. Several of them were men of remarkable ability, but he was from the very beginning able to hold his own and retain preeminence in the public eye.

In addition to ability of a high order he has a very attractive personal manner, the most outspoken characteristic being his imperturbable courtesy and his graceful pose, both physical and mental. Always on the alert, and always trying to be agreeable and conciliatory he naturally succeeds in saying always the right thing at the right time. Nature has endowed him with the gift of remembering faces and names to an extent not possessed by any other man in Canada, except Sir John A Macdonald. His capacity for making public speeches in both French and English is not shared by any other Canadian statesman. Others can speak in either language, but there is not one who is equally facile in both.

Lastly, he is gifted with not merely political insight, but a political imagination of a very rare type. He may have to depend upon his able colleagues to give form and work out details for the conceptions of which he is the author, but among Canadian statesmen he stands preeminent in taking views of political situations that are at once practical and uplifting. This gift of political imagination coupled with his capacity for felicitous expedition has done much to captivate the British statesmen with whom he has come in contact during the course of his visits to London; and, there is nothing incredible in the report that he will be offered a peerage on the arrival at Quebec of the Prince of Wales.

All this goes to show how futile are the attacks made upon the Premier by his political opponents in Parliament. It is impossible to say whether his followers from the different provinces will be, after the general election, as numerous as in the present Parliament, but it is not at all likely that his Government will suffer defeat. The only cause of anxiety for Liberals is the somewhat delicate condition of the Premier's health, though the events of the present session seem to show his powers of endurance are quite equal to those of the most robust members on either side.



ONTARIO PULPWOOD POLICY.

Prohibition of the exportation of raw wood, whether in the form of pulpwood or saw-logs, is by no means a new experiment in Canada, but has already been tried with very satisfactory results in the Province of Ontario. For some years past the Government of this Province has refused to allow the lessees of Crown timber lands to take the wood from these limits out of the Province in an unmanufactured condition; and the policy has proven so successful that it is now endorsed by both political parties and has become one of the institutions of government. It is clear from this that the benefits of the system must be great and evident; and as a matter of fact, it has done more than anything else to build up the great lumber industries of Ontario.

Time was when the lumbermen of Michigan, for instance, used to carry immense rafts of wood from the forests of Ontario to their mills in the northern state, whose lumber industry depended to a very large extent on this supply. In this way the Canadian Province was being shorn of its timber, while American mills were reaping the benefit and thriving communities were being built up and supported in the United States. The shrewd business men of Ontario realized the folly of allowing this condition of affairs to go on, and the result was the absolute prohibition of such exportation. Everything occurred as they had foreseen. The American mills, which had been living on Canadian wood, were forced to shut down, and their owners were obliged to transfer their establishments to Canadian territory. In this way, Ontario reaped the full benefit of its timber, and a great and prosperous industry was built up for the Province. And the same law applies to pulpwood. No timber cut for this purpose on Crown lands can be sent out of the Province in the raw, but must be turned into pulp within its territory. And here, too, the results of the policy have entirely justified it.

Of course, this law of prohibition applies only to Crown lands, as the Provincial Government has no jurisdiction in such matters over lands in private hands. These latter, however, constitute but a very small proportion of the timber lands of the Province, and so are not in a position to materially affect the working of the law. But it is very different in Quebec, and especially in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. In these Provinces the proportion of timber land owned privately is very much larger, so much so as to amount to more than half in New Brunswick, and three-quarters in Nova Scotia. As a result, such legislation as this, applying merely to Crown lands, would hardly be very efficient. Besides, there is a further difficulty in the Province of Quebec, and that is the settlement problem. In that Province the work of taking up homestead lots is continually going on, and has unfortunately been made the occasion of timber-thieving on a very large scale. In thousands of instances, settlers have gone onto lots on the pretence of cultivation and have simply stripped the wood off and then left the land a miserable waste.

The motive for such action has, of course, been the very high price for timber, especially pulpwood. And it is easy to understand what would be the effect of taking out of the export market the wood on Crown lands. The value of privately-owned wood would immediately go up, as the Americans are very large buyers and must have the wood at almost any price. Farmers would cut out their wood lots under this inducement, and then there would begin a terrible raid on the Government forests. The evil of timber speculation and "fake-settling," which is already a widespread and very destructive one, would at once assume terrible proportions, and the result to the Province would be little short of disastrous.

It is clear from this that the only satisfactory method of prohibition would be a universal one by the Dominion Government. And in view of the excellent results which have been obtained by even a partial prohibition in Ontario, there would seem to be every reason for at least giving this question earnest consideration.

ADVERTISING CANADA.

The Quebec Tercentenary celebration bids fair to be a very effective means of making Canada usefully known to the people of Great Britain, and also to the people of Europe. It shows, amongst other things, that this country is three hundred years old, and that it is almost a century and a half since Quebec passed under British dominion. Without age, a country can hardly be regarded as even approaching nationhood, no matter how extensive and populous and powerful it may be. The great contrast between 1608 and 1908 is itself an object lesson and a suggestion.

The earlier event mentioned, namely, the founding of Quebec, is really the more interesting of the two. Fortunately, the character of Champlain is one that raises him above nationality, and makes him one of the great men of all time. All well-informed Canadians, if asked who the greatest Canadian has been, would probably name Champlain. In fact, people of the British race in Canada appear to be more enthusiastic over the founder of Quebec than the French people themselves. This is no manifest that Canada is likely to take a higher position for all time to come in the minds of the French people in France and the people of those Latin nations which are given to the cause of this spontaneous admiration for a great Frenchman.
